Game at Chicago Rough, Doug Bentley Suffering Broken Nose and Six Stitches in Face

REFEREE ROUGHED

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto Maple Leafs apparently will be bereft of a National Hockey League play-off berth, needing a 14-year record as well when the N.H.L.'s schedule ends March 19.

Although Sirufos did not play last night, their prospects of overtaking Toronto Maple Leafs or Chicago Black Hawks for the last qualifying spot in the standings were dealt another severe blow when Leafs trampled Rangers 8-0 at New York. Boston now must take all its four remaining games while Leafs and Hawks stand still to gain the fourth play-off berth.

Chicago, which has five games left, has an opportunity to clinch one of the berths when they dropped a 3-2 decision to Montreal Canadiens in a hard-fought contest at Chicago. A 13,925 home crowd saw 16 penalties called, 10 on Montreal including a major and a five-minute misconduct and a match misconduct. The latter was imposed on Murph Chamberlain, Canadiens' left winger, after he charged the referee.

Doug Bentley, speedy Chicago left wing, received a broken nose and three facial cuts requiring six stitches following a duel with Glen Harmon and Mike McMahon of Montreal in the first period.

Canadiens sealed their 24th victory of the season in the second period on goals by Toe Blake and Ray Getliffe to boost their point total to 58, two fewer than Boston scored in 1929-30 for a league record, which Canadiens seem likely to surpass in their remaining five games.

Maurice Richard tallied Montreal's other counter while Joe Cooper and Joe Carveth were the successful Chicago snipers.

Leafs Can Afford

Leafs can afford off a protracted scoring slump in New York, scoring three Leaf goals as the Rangers gave one of their most erratic efforts to suffer their 36th defeat in 48 starts. Under Toronto goals were Babe Pratt (2), Bob Davidson, Ted Kennedy and Gus Bodnar. Paul Ribeault, alternate leader among the league's goalies this season, recorded his fourth scoreless game of the season in blanking Rangers.

CAPITALS SECOND IN STANDINGS

By The Canadian Press

Indianapolis Capitals have finished out their American Hockey League schedule and today stand in second place in the Eastern Division. They wound up the season last night by defeating Buffalo Bisons 4-2.

The victory gave Caps a four-to-one edge over Bisons for the season. Five games were tied.

Carl Smith opened the scoring in the first period, but Fred Hunt tied it up for Buffalo in the second.

Alex Ritzon and Johnny Sorrell added tallies for Indianapolis in the final frame but Buffalo's Larry Thibeault came through with a goal for Bisons.

At 19:01 a penalty-shot goal by centre Dick Dorohoy clinched the game for Indianapolis.

TRENTON FLYERS EASILY DEFEAT SIXARDEES 8-3

Line of Raymond, Wilson and McAtee Account for All Winning Goals

PRUDHOMME STARS

Trenton "Flyers" rank-dassle line of Paul Raymond, Wally Wilson and Norm McAtee scored all goals as they trounced the Sixardees 8-3 before a crowd of 800 hockey fans in the Trenton arena last night.

Prudhomme, Trenton goalie, had the distinction of scoring the first shutout of the season for a Trenton team. In the intervening time the Trenton "Flyers" rattled in eight. Landridge Sixardees, however, but the Depot squad's lead was short-lived as Wilson-McAtee-Raymond combination gave a wizard-like exhibition of hockey. They counted two goals in the first period and three more in the second without reply.

Then McAtee opened the third period scoring with a goal and then notched their second goal, Goddfue from Prudhomme. Wilson, Raymond-McAtee-Wilson combination for two more quick tallies of the night. Then Ray Jackson and Jackson in the Depot nets alone Sixardees' scoring. The sterling combination plays of Padre Malka's ace trio, Prudhomme, in the Flyers nets, were also the sensational at times to literally beat the Repair Depot squad. Dick Richey, Bert Hunt, Goddfue, Feldman and Ralph Lalonde long and often, but for little avail.

The line-ups:—

Trenton "Flyers" Depot, goal, Jackson, defence, Derry and Feldman, centre, Hunt, Richey, Lalonde and Pratt subs, Stewart, Campbell, McInress, Lalonde, Sixardees, McAtee and Raymond, subs, Tessier, Dart and Fraser.

FLYERS DEFEAT ROCKLIFFE IN CAGE GAME 59-52

Trenton Airmen Yet to be Defeated This Season

ALWAYS ON TOP

Trenton "Flyers" added another cage scalp to their growing list of victories by winning 59-52 over the Rockliffe Wanderers in an exhibition R. C. A. F. basketball games played at the Trenton Main Station sports hangar last night. Actually PO. Charlie Box's Trenton hoopsters have only lost one game since the high hoop campaign opened last November, which to a strong Montreal quintette last month.

The game against Rockcliffe was very close throughout as the home squad lead by the identical same margin at half time as when the game concluded, seven points. The halftime mark saw the count stand at 23 to 26 for the local "Flyers". Rockcliffe scored 26 points each in both halves to prove consistent marksmen, while the Flyers registered 33 points in the initial half and 26 in the last 20 minutes as they rushed up enough points in the first half to eke out a win.

Shooter with 28 points paced the homesters with Burton, and Ingham following in the scoring column. Medlin and Wanhorough looked the best for Rockcliffe.

The line-ups:—

Rockcliffe, Stalk 4, LePlic, Medlin 17, Shannon, Byrne 2, Wanhorough 15, Irish 6, Keay and Jones 2.

Trenton "Flyers", Chorner 28, Burton 16, Keay 2, Ingham 11, Easton 4, McCahill, Daricle, Jarrott, Eastoff and Tasperzak.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

Lorne Carr, Toronto, scored three goals while Leafs walloped New York Rangers 8-0.

Elmer Lach, Canadiens, who drew assists on two counters when Montreal defeated Chicago 3-2.

Brooklyn Flag Hopes Dimmed By Loss of Herman and Head

By The Canadian Press

Billy Herman's retirement second baseman, advised the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday he had been accepted for service in the U. S. Army while pitcher Ed Head sent word he had been accepted for the Army at Shreveport, La. With these ripe in the regular roster of the team, President Branch Rickey said the available material had been reduced to 21 players and, of these only 18 are definite for the coming season.

At the same time, Manager Leo Durocher announced at Brooklyn headquarters he would have no less than 75 aspirants at the Bear Mountain, N.Y., training camp which is scheduled to open next Wednesday, the lot including 33 boys of tender age and uncertain diamond ability. The Brooklyn pep-up is due to typical of the pre-season situation with most of the Major League clubs.

Deadlines have been set for completing inter-unit competitions as well as Western and Eastern finals in the Canadian Army Boxing championships, which have started eliminations across the Dominion.

All inter-unit and zone competitions must be completed by the week-ending April 22, while Eastern and Western champs must be named by the week ending April 29.

The finalists battle it out here for the Dominion crowns in the first week in May.

Two-thirds of the Kraut line oppolned the remaining fraction and, with this superiority of professional hockey figures, the Rosemen won the championship of the Canadian Bomber Group Overseas.

Featuring Milt Schmidt and Bobby Bauer, two victors from the Rival Lancasters, sparked by Porky Dumart, 5-0 and 4-3 in a two-game, total series.

The Rosemen so-named after the station commanding officer, Group Capt. A. D. Ross of Sydney, N. S., took the first game in stride but only a great last-period spurt enabled them to win the second.

Trailing 2-0 as the last period opened, the Rosemen hit their pace with Cpl. Ken Smith, former player for Preston when they won the Ontario Hockey Association Intermediate crown in 1937, counted on a long shot. Then a leading aircraftsman, tied the game and PO. Schmidt, added two more just 19 seconds apart.

Although on the same team, Schmidt and Bauer didn't perform on the same line. Schmidt, at centre, had Preston's Smith and LAC. Pete Place of Prescott, Ont., as wings. Bauer was wingman on the second line.

LAC. George Wray of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., performed in the Rosemen's nets and among others on the winning team were LAC. Hooker Thompson of Montreal; Sgt. F. R. Scott of Midland, Ont., and LAC. R. S. Fullerton, Blyth, Ont.

Among the best of the losers was LAC. Johnny Desilets of Sudbury, Ont.

Toronto, March 10. (CP) — One of the hottest of Canada's sport hotbeds, Fort McMurray, Alta., (Pop. 21,967) sets out in search of previously-unacquired honors Tuesday night at Calgary when New Westminster Royals meet Edmonton Vics in the first round of Allan Cup play-offs. New Westminster has won many National championships in soccer, lacrosse and basketball but has never before made an important bid for a hockey title. Ken (Hec) Gowenlock Province) McConnell predicts that if Lodestars get by Edmonton's team of old pros, they will reach the Allan Cup final. He doesn't figure they have much chance of beating the Eastern champions.

Shiftel Needed?

Despite the general deterioration of N.H.L. play due to the war, Dick Irvin told Bill Caynon of the Calgary Palm Review he is not sure his Montreal Canadiens are far behind the great Canadiens teams of Morenz-Joliat days in Class. "I'll go farther", he added, "and declare that we would not finish lower than second in any race of the last 12 years."

Sweeney the Schriner:

Apparently Dave Schriner is definitely through with professional hockey. He told Harry (Calgary Albertan) Sinnott he had refused overtures from Toronto Maple Leafs and Chicago Black Hawks to join them for the play-offs and mentioned the Chicago offer was "exceedingly tempting" . . . Schriner said Doug Cairns, Calgary Tecumseh-distance centre, would have no difficulty making the grade in the N.H.L. "He's a fine playmaker and like myself favors a nice passing attack instead of the gunning hockey that features the Maple Leafs style of play" . . . that quoted Dave Schriner, who withdrew withdrawal from the majors. He didn't like the new-style hockey.

Here And There:

Mel Colville has been playing open-air hockey in the Edmonton Inter-Service league. That's almost as dangerous as playing on a city street car. . . . Al Lust, whose Calgary Stampeders defeated the Dave Castilloux a year ago were a feature of Sunday's sports news. he's in military hospital in North Africa with a fractured knee and sprained back . . . Truro Bearcats, one of the Maritimes' most famous hockey clubs, have not yet withdrew from the A.P.C. league after their unfortunate row of a dispute with league officials.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, March 10.—(AP)—Some Denver, Colo., boys in a Naval unit in the South Pacific have decided they want to sponsor teams in the Old Timers' baseball association this year and will have a league all their own, with teams named after various ships.

The "Old Timers" are some 50 men who once played on uniformed baseball teams and who have decided to put up a buck apiece to foster baseball competition among boys from 13 to 17 years of age. Next year they'll have about 1,500 boys competing in 130 leagues in Denver and suburban Englewood . . . That's more than double last year's total and is a good example of how many potential players and fans there are if someone will take the trouble to turn his attention to the game . . . Incidentally, most of the details, the Old Timers setup merely gives boys a chance to play baseball, with adequate fields, equipment and coaching.

Couldn't Pin Him Down.

One of the few good yarns we've heard about bowling is related by Rex Mess of the Mansfield, Ohio, News-Journal. It seems Head went to interview a Kegler who had just finished a perfect game and found he had started celebrating before he started bowling . . . In fact, the interviewer explained, he had stopped at that place across the street for a few cold ones and when he got into action he could see three balls rolling down the alley toward 20 pins . . . "All I did was keep on rolling them," the bowler explained. "I expected to get any guy who couldn't knock down 10 pins one of 30 with three balls must be drunk."

Just One More

The best story of the week told inside Germany is about a man who stands for hours in a queue waiting to buy some clothes at a local store, and the queue doesn't get any shorter.

Suddenly he goes wild—both rags and shouts: "Queue, queues, queues all the time! Who is to blame? It is Hitler! I will go and kill him!"

He rushes off, and after great difficulty finds Hitler's house. Of course, there's a queue there, too.

(Convincee them.)

Any doubt as to which is the better hockey club—Trenton "Flyers" or No. 6 Repair Depot—should have been settled Thursday night when Padre Malka's "Flyers" beat the Repair lads 8 to 3 in an exhibition puck contest. Still hard to get to the bottom of it, as the boys went all out. However, all Padre Malka's men in the rank-and-file line of Paul Raymond, Wally Wilson and Norm McAtee, plus Prudhomme in the nets, to beat Bert Corbeyin-Ray Jackson trio not only scored all of the Flyers' goals, but gave the fans a run for their money with some high class playing and combination plays which were pictures to watch. Really it's too bad so many remained at home as they missed a lot of hockey even though it was an exhibition game. Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 324

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Let me give you a slow motion idea of how good bridge players decide the way to play their hands. Take a deal like this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH	NORTH
♠A 8 7	♠K Q 3
♥A K 9 3	♥Q J 7
♦6 5 4	♦A K 7 3
♣K 6 3	♣A 7 5

South is declarer at a contract of six hearts. He must take 12 tricks. Assume you start with the ace of spades and the king. What happens next? North spreads the dummy hand.

Declarer rearranges dummy cards so each dummy suit is opposite the same suit in the south hand. Declarer, then mentally sits on his hands until he decides on an advance plan.

There are many ways for declarer to make with each trick until his contract is safe, long. That worries you, I know. You are you look:

Don't worry about it. You do more than that if you don't plan all that in advance. In fact, you stop to worry every time you start play. If you don't plan in advance.

Before declaring on the play of future tricks, south studies his combined cards in search of losers. He must try to find out what tricks he is likely to lose in each suit.

His mentally says to himself: "I see no losing trick in spades. I have no losers in trumps if the trumps break. I will surely lose a third round of diamonds. I may lose the club queen."

He thus decides what tricks he may lose. That tells him what tricks he must try to save. It then makes a plan that will help him save as many of these possible losers as he can.

That's how you should start with any deal you play. That's how an expert does with every hand. Of course, you and I are not able to follow his train of thought as he makes his mental analysis.

There are many ways for each type of play. Trot out the ones you know, perhaps you are smarter than you think.

"Guadalcanal Diary"

Heading the brilliant cast of the film, are Preston Foster, Lloyd Nolan, William Bendix, Richard Conte and Anthony Quinn.

Thrill packing featurettes precede the feature attraction including seventy famed radio and screen stars in "Stars Parade," the hilarious comical cartoon, "Patriotic Pooches" and a New Pictorial Sing.

"Lassie Come Home," in color.

A story of heroic devotion that lends a noble dog a thousand miles to the side of its young master provides a thrilling picture in M-G-M's "Lassie Come Home" and adapted from the Eric Knight story now running this weekend to the Belle theatre. It serves to introduce a new dog star in Hollywood in Lassie, a gorgeous collie playing the title role, and reunited as they did and son Roddy McDowall and Donald Crisp, who scored a historic hit together in "Green Was Mr. My Valley." Filmed in tecnnicolor in "Lassie Come Home" continues great pictorial beauty with an unforgettable story.

The Canadian Paramount News, a funny Mastro color cartoon "Strange Inner Space" and the third chapter of the thrilling adventure story, "Deadly Rangers" will be exhibited on the same program. Continuous shows will be presented on Saturday.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Dangerous Blondes"

Hollywood's advance comment on "Dangerous Blondes," the new Columbia mystery-comedy which opens next at the McCarthy theatre, is that murder and merriment mount so fast, audiences won't know whether to gasp or gasp. Allyn Joslyn is one of the featured players in a completely sympathetic role, which is something he seldom draws as his lot. Playing opposite him is Evelyn Keyes in her first important comedy role, and it is said that both these players add greatly to this tag spiced detective yarn.

Joslyn is a typewriter detective, while Miss Keyes is his not so helpful source, and the pair become involved in a series of confusing startups. We're promised glamour aplenty, too. In addition to the blonde leading lady, the cast includes Anita Louise, Ann Savage and Lynn Merrick, all goldentressed lassies, and all dangerous, as the film's title states.

Entertainment assets are to be found on the main part of the bill, too. First, in the person of veteran Frank Craven, and his role of the wise old Police Inspector, who is driven to distraction by Joslyn's amateur sleuthing. There are also Edmund Lowe, John Hubbard and Michael Duane.

The story is that of a socially prominent matron who is slain in the receptions setting furnished by a commercial photographic studio. Evelyn Keyes is drawn into the case through her girl friend, who works there, and she in turn involves her husband. The trail leads through a series of involved sequences as the inspector and the super-sleuth make an attempt to run down the guilty party, who adds to the tension with further murders and attempts.

Incidentally film capital reporters advise audiences to watch for excellent comic turns by William Demarest, Sheldon Leonard and Frank Sully, and wager that few people will pick the culprit before his or her identity is revealed in the climatic scene.

"The Chance of a Lifetime"

Here's your favorite screen scoundrel, Boston Blackie...in 3 headline story...that almost missed being classified Blackie's up to something new...in "The Chance of a Lifetime"....the Columbia thriller opening as the second feature attraction at the McCarthy theatre on Saturday. More slippery than an eel, he slips out of one desperate situation...and slips right into another. That took in his eyes means triple trouble...as he confesses to a murder he didn't commit...then goes through some fast, tough action...to pin the murder where it belongs!

You'll chill and thrill at this actionful and frantically funny Blackie adventure, with Chester Blackie adventuring the colorful role of fiction's favorite underworld character. Adrienne Ames, the well-known stage and radio actress, in her screen debut is Blackie's girl friend, Richard Lane, Jeff Donnell, Lloyd Corrigan, Ian Keith and Steven Geray are also featured.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Ship Ahoy"

Eleanor Powell is riding up the pace of her inimitable tap dancing with some new routines in "Ship Ahoy", the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer musical which opened yesterday at the Capitol theatre.

The charming Miss Powell, who has been called the world's greatest feminine tap dancer by the Dancing Masters of America, does not worry the borden alone, Red Skelton is in there pitching laughs, and Tommy Dorsey's top-flight band provides scintillating melody.

The new smooth ballad for "Ship Ahoy" with the audience. One favorite after another came up on deck with mirth or music in constant succession. The plot is considerably exciting, but it also manages to keep pitching around in gales of laughter.

Virginia O'Brien proves herself a comedienne of rare ability, as well as a singer of ear-tickling tunes. Bert Lahr, veteran of the Broadway stage, clowns fore and aft, offering a comedy song, "I'll Take Tallulah" which pleased the customers no end. Miss O'Brien sings in the hilarious deadpan style which made her famous.

Skelton, a wooer of Miss Powell, was never better, even surpassing his initial screen triumph in "Whistling in the Dark," which lifted him to stardom.

Miss Powell's dancing, always a spectacular feature of any picture in which she appears, establishes a new record with five novelty dances, all directed by Bobby Connolly. A chorus of twenty-seven Hollywood beauties lends charm to the numbers.

One of the most remarkable numbers executed by Miss Powell is a literal Morse code dance in which she actually taps out an important message. There is also a Le Tosca specialty, an imitation of a bullfighter; a sailor dance and a tap in competition, or in harmony, with Buddy Rich, the crack drummer of Dorsey's orchestra. The competent direction was by Edde Buzzell.

In every scene a thrill. In every reel a sensation. Russell Hayden blasts his way through sizzling danger in his efforts to thwart a gang of desperate bandits. There is no rationing of thrills, action or adventure in "Silver City Raiders" the added hit at the Capitol.

A colored cartoon and the serial "Secret Service in Darkest Africa" is also shown.

What's Doing in Sport

Boston, March 10 —(CP)— Featherweight Champion Phil Terranova will defend his title in 15-round bout here tonight against Boston's Sal DiSalvo, who has won his last eight fights.

Hollywood—(AP)—Florian Bibeau of Montreal and Luis Castillo of Mexico will swap blows in a 10-round flyweight engagement in the Hollywood Legion Stadium tonight. Bibeau is advertised as the Canadian champion and claims 18 wins in his list of 19 pro bouts including 16 knockouts.

Fort Arthur—(CP)— Fort Arthur Flyers forfeited the third game last night of the Thunder Bay Junior Hockey finals when they left the ice in a dispute over a disputed goal. The game was awarded to the Fort Arthur West Ends. The Thunder Bay A. H. A. has called a meeting to decide if the Flyers are to be thrown out for the whole series and the West Ends to continue into the Memorial Cup playdowns.

Winnipeg —(CP)— By defeating Winnipeg Monitors 5-1 last night, St. Boniface Athletics captured the Manitoba Junior North Division Hockey title, taking the playoff series three games to two. The winners now meet St. James Canadians in a best-of-five series for the provincial honors, the finals to start March 11.

CHAPTER 3

I stuffed the receipt into my bag, told the Kilborns we'd move in before rehearsal the next day, and walked out—alone—into the square and into the theatre, and home to face the second instalment of my fight.

But my luck had deserted me. A young woman darted out of the cashier's cage, just as I was putting my hand on the knob of the door, leading from the vestibule to the orchestra.

"You can't go in. Rehearsal going on," she declared sharply.

"Oh, that's all right," I assured her airily. "I'm Mrs. Turner—Helen Turner—the author of next week's play. I only want to run in and say hello to Mr. Linwood."

"Well, you can't. I have strict orders against letting—against letting anybody in." The girl stepped between me and the door belligerently. "Mr. Linwood's awful busy. Not alone with rehearsal, Mr. Lorimer's with him too, and they're still fussing over the scenery."

The play of the evening was a melodrama with many scene changes, done in New York on a revolving stage and I could well understand the technical difficulties it presented, had wondered how they could possibly be solved in a summer theatre, when I had read the title on the billboard. But that was no reason to bar me from greeting my director.

"Did Mr. Linwood tell you to keep me out—in particular?" I inquired blandly.

The girl flushed and fidgeted. "Why—I guess not—he just said anybody. Anybody who interfered with the play."

I shrugged and said resignedly: "Well, I'm no part of this play. But you might give me two tickets for tonight. Good ones."

The tickets were in the fourteenth row and far toward the side. And the girl let me pay for them.

Then Linwood had gone over to the old guard of Fern Cove, or I would have found complimentary tickets, I concluded as I stepped out into the July sunshine again.

I loitered in front of the theatre quite a while, hating the idea of returning to the dismal room, considering what to do next.

The daintily aroma of freshly roasted coffee solved the problem for me. It must have made me ravenous. I was famished—which, wasn't surprising, as, I had had no lunch and my walk had included by now minutes of time. Deciding the tantalizing odor came from the Snack Hutch I had passed in the shaking Bertha, I made a beeline for the narrow, wooden building.

Its interior was typical of those of its kind; a long lunch counter, with a row of high, mushroom-like stools before it, on one side and six booths, each seating four, on the other.

The first two were taken by a crowd of rabid jitterbugs in shorts, chattering like magpies. And there seemed to be several men in the last booth. The three booths in between were uncoupled. And so I sat down in the last booth one and ordered coffee and cinnamon toast.

I had just placed my second cup and was munching my third half slice of toast, when something happened that made me lose my appetite—completely.

The girl Bertha left. And in the sudden stillness that followed their noisy departure, the voices of the men in the rear booth became clearly audible.

"You'll have to see it our way. We need you, Ridley—I heard one of them say irritably. "What're you acting so mulish anyway? What is the job of an actress—for you?"

Another, deeper voice added: "If it's because of your part—forget it. That punk play won't run three nights on Broadway, if it gets there at all."

Then a third voice — distinctly that of an actor—said ironically: "It wouldn't occur to you, of course, —but it's rather against my principles, producing a play I've agreed to work in." And the two other voices became jumbled in their heated arguments against such inconvenient scruples.

I couldn't all of my self. Only fragments of sentences. "Run over it in Fern Cove." . . . "Ruin the place" . . . and "Oh, he'll come to heel if you don't."

There were interjections from the actor. But he didn't have a chance against the sound and fury pouring over him.

I sat stock still, my coffee and toast forgotten. Here was evidence of ruthless malice. Two men trying to talk one of the actors of my play into "sabotaging" it . . .

Strange to say, the discovery didn't make me angry. My patience only snapped when the voices turned into personalities, and I had to listen to ugly remarks about my probable relationship between me and Anrose and heard Linda Barolle being called Mr. Lorimer's "fair cutie."

After a few minutes of that I left the money for my check on the table, got up and walked to-ward the rear booths.

My enemies were sitting on one side of the table in it, shouting and gesticulating at their vis-a-vis. They were Anrose Lorimer and Ridley Vickery. I recognized them readily from the pictures I'd seen in the papers at the time of their brief, tempestuous revival. Both far along in middle age, Anrose short and squat, with a head too large for his body and a face distorting Darwin's theory and Vickery, long and lean, with a big hook of a nose and a turkey-gobbler neck.

And the object of their persuasions, blandishments, theft? man's good decade their junior, was leaning in the corner of the booth opposite them, watching their bluster with obvious disdain.

She was the color of the trio to see me and the play of expressions across her face—from surprise to shocks dreadisation of my identity, to malicious amusement—put my big admission to see. He didn't try to warn his companions and cut me off. Either, did nothing to prevent Vickery's boastful: "Wait till I get hold of that Helen Turner bird, of course!" with an amused "Hi, there!"

I acknowledged the greeting briefly and went on with what I'd come to say.

"I don't think you need bother explain, Al. It happens I've been sitting two booths down and—accidentally, of course—I've been here. Your judgment of me and my work, based on complete ignorance of both, is very flattering. I simply had to tell you how grateful I am for your opinion. Really, nothing could be more flattering. Then I turned to Vickery. "Thanks for trying to sabotage my play," to the gratified actor, and walked out.

Once outside, I kept on walking. Blindly. Too angry and too shocked in my resentment to notice where I was going.

Should I wire an S O S to Mc-Vafe? No. The wire would have to be sent from the inn. It would be as good as advertising my distress.

A letter? It would take too long to get my answer.

A long-distance call would be best. There must be a soundproof booth somewhere in the inn.

And then my heart dropped, clear into my shoes, as I remembered something Tyler McVafe had said at our last meeting. About going on a vacation this week; in some retreat known only to himself, and that he would "drop from the sky, ready to be surprised," coming night.

That meant I'd have to fight my battle alone and unaided against those hostile people—and not even knew how many of the cast. Apart from Tom Linwood also, I feared. His loyalty looked more than doubtful.

Actually, the only allies on whom I could rely were the two young girls imported from New York for my play: Orra Paulsen, the leading man and Linda Barolle, the ingenue. And of the two, the girl was more a responsibility than an asset.

She was closely connected with McVane. Not in the ugly sense hinted broadly by the ugly Alden. She was McVane's ward. The daughter of a friend, or something of the kind. And he had begged me to look after her a bit, seeing she hadn't been on the stage long.

Thinking of the girl made me realize she might have arrived by now and I'd better get back to the old inn and explain matters to her.

That's when I discovered I'd been walking in the wrong direction. I was away from my temporary quarters, instead of toward it, on the short road.

It was much farther inland here, and the water was on my left, not on the right where it should have been. The path formed the approaches to a few large private homes set well back in spacious grounds. The last of the ostentatious, most likely . . .

I suppose I should have turned back the moment the thought occurred to me, but my feminine curiosity got the better of me, and I walked on.

The place I was passing really was worth looking at. The grounds were blazing with roses, and the house, a weathered wooden affair with many silo and wings, was covered with ramblers and a variety of creepers, some of them in bloom.

A group of young people was sitting on the large screened porch of the house, laughing and talking. They were out of sight of my and glanced in my direction.

I thought nothing of it. Strangers probably were a rarity on this semi-private road. I didn't even consider the sudden whoosh of joy that followed the silence with myself.

That is, until I heard a high, shrill yelp behind me and, turning involuntarily saw a furry ball of concentrated fury shoot out and hurl itself at me. A small dog, ears flattened and teeth bared in a vicious snarl, and it's a good nip at my legs, at least.

Seeing I like dogs, and certainly am not afraid of them, the frenzy of the little beast—a White spitz with tawny overtones—struck me as terribly funny. Instead of running away, as I had been about to, I stood my ground and asked: "What d'you think you are doing? Who sicked you on me, bad doggie?"

My laughter, or perhaps the undismayed look of my face, brought the dog up short so abruptly, his stiffened forepaws dug deep into the soft earth. His snarling lips straightened, ears flattened and he barked up one by one, his head cocked sideways and his clever eyes regarded me with evident perplexity.

I kept on talking to him. All the usual nonsense of "pretty doggie" and "what's the matter, pup?" and at last reached out my hand—watching for a quick snap that didn't come—to scratch his head.

The yelping and snarling had given way to a soft rumbling in the small dog's throat under my hand's caressing touch, and he submitted to my touch with an apologetic little whimper.

YOU WOMEN WHO SUFFER FROM HOT FLASHES

If you suffer from hot flashes, dizzy spells, irregular periods, are "blue," nervous—due to the "middle-aged" period in a woman's life, take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It's helped thousands upon thousands of women to relieve such symptoms. Pinkham's Compound is also a fine stomach tonic! Worth trying! Made in Canada.

I couldn't catch all "the sound and fury."

Little Benny's Note Book

This morning at breakfast me said, to poor, little William, I did it, I took the plunge. I took the plunge, and did it without even mentioning you, she said.

Do you mean you got me to marry you? Why, that happened years ago, poor dear, I said, but I'm not ashamed. I put an ad in the paper offering our wedding ring for sale, and I did. Nobody ever plays so much as chop sticks on it, only many, so it wasn't the decorative value it would be just to match his number. So if I got a good price for it I can have the living room furniture reupholstered with an easy conscience, she said.

And this afternoon I was looking out my window and some guy rang the bell, and I said, It's a fat lady, me.

She wants the piano, me said.

And she hurry up went down and opened the door and the fat lady said, I saw your ad in the paper.

Come right in, me said. And she took her in the living room, saying, There's the piano, I may need a solid tuning but there's not a scratch on it.

Oh, how nice, the fat lady said. Wouldn't it look swell if I played on it? she said, and me said, Certainly not, it's the only way you can tell if you like it, and I'm sure you play very well.

Well, I certainly say that, and I only play one tune, but I love it. The fat lady said. And she sat down on the piano stool and played The Wearing of the Green. Playing it kind of out of time, and then she said, Now can I see the kitchen? After all that's where I'm doing my main work, she said, and me said, Of course, I'm so sorry for last night, and the fat lady said, Don't mention it, I'm sure you'll make me a good cook.

Coming out in the hall, and she took her in the living room, saying, There's the hall, it

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, March 15 —(CP)— Mining groups were stronger this afternoon on Toronto exchange. Industrials held steady. Turnover was small at 208,000 shares.
Wright-Hargreaves, Lamaque, San Antonio, Little Long Lac and Upper Canada all rising moderately and in lesser degree Smelters, Ventures and Hudson Bay gained points.
The trade was featureless in Industrials. Dominion Foundries and United Steel were stronger. Senior Oils, Papers and Liquors held steady. Distillers Pfd and Shawinigan were stronger Utilities.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, March 10 (AP)— Buyers took on moderate quantities of rails and specialties in today's stock market while leaders generally continued inactive on light profit-taking. Dealings were well under the million-share mark rain.
Investment demand, based mainly on earnings and dividends remained at the main purchasing inspiration. The war newsf was more or less ignored.
At peak levels for 1940 were Kansas City Southern, American Locomotive, Sunshine Mining, Schenley, Worthington Pump, Budd Mfg. and Spiegel Pfd.
Canadian issues were mostly firm. Hiram Walker and McIntyre Porcupined fractions and Distillers Seagrams and Dome were unchanged. Canadian Pacific yielded a fraction.
High grade rails improved, closing 1 to were up 2-8. Commodities were narrow.
In the curb Lake Shore was up a fraction.

More Than 6,5[illegible] Sorties in Wa[illegible] By Polish Airmen

Toronto, March 10 (CP) — Polish airmen graduating from the No. 1 Observer School at nearby, Malton yesterday were told by Group Capt. S. Sawuk that Polish aviation squadrons have flown more than 6,500 sorties and dropped upwards of 15,000,000 pounds of bombs and mines since the war started.
Group Capt. Sawuk, senior Polish liason officer to the R.C.A.F., told the men they have been true to the motto secretly embroidered by women in Poland on the banner of their air force—"Love Commands Sacrifice."
Speaking to the graduates in their native tongue, he said: "Young men! Seen the greatest tragedy that can befall a nation, the loss of your country."
Quoting Gen. Sosnkowski, Commander-in-Chief of Polish forces overseas, Group Capt. Sawuk referred indirectly to the Russian-Polish controversy.
"We are fighting together with our Allies to the exhaustion of all our possibilities of service to our country, as always refusing to fight for foreign or selfish interests in disagreement with the interests of Poland and its independence to be quoted.

Decision Pleases Badoglio Govt.

Naples, March 10 —(AP)— Premier Pietro Badoglio expressed gratification today at Prime Minister Churchill's statement on disposition of the Italian fleet. A spokesman for Badoglio's government said "the incident is closed."

Mr. Churchill told Commons yesterday that the transfer of warships to Russia from either America or Britain, or from the Italian navy, had been under consideration, but that the question of ultimate disposal of Italy's ships might not be settled until the war ends. He said "at present no change is contemplated" in the arrangements under which Italian ships, with Italian crews, are cooperating in the war.

Previously Badoglio had expressed distress at reports there were plans to divide the Italian fleet among Britain, the United States and Russia.

DISCUSSES BASIC ISSUE

Chicago, March 10 (AP)—Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio stated last night "the basic issue of our time is whether one man or one party shall permanently regiment 130,000,000 Americans, or whether they shall continue to govern themselves through time-tested institutions of self-government." Bricker, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, in a prepared speech contended the New Deal sought to dominate the political, social and economic life of all the people.

Proper Addressing, Packaging Needed

Senders of Letters and Parcels Overseas Urged to Co-operate With Postal Staff

Relatives and friends sending letters, parcels to Canadian service men and women overseas are being advised by instructions published under the authority of the Postmaster-General, which is placed in each addressing them and in doing up the parcels.

Last year 30,000,000 pounds of mail had been dispatched through Canadian Post Offices to overseas forces but through carelessness letters were sometimes found in addition letters for overseas had to be set aside for redirecting by the Canadian Postal Service. This had meant considerable delay in delivery and disappointment to the troops and it has also added a great deal of unnecessary labor to the postal staff. Besides 25,000 parcels were very poorly packed.

Letters go to great trouble and expense to write these messages and to buy articles for the contents of the boxes and yet many do not take the trouble to make certain that letters and parcels are properly packed and addressed, and parcels wrapped and tied up with the greatest care and amount of labor possible. Every effort should be made to make it a point to remedy any shortcomings on his or her part in the future. It is a service to the men and to the postal staff already hard-worked.

Agriculture Due For a Boom

London, Ont., March 10. (CP) — "Agriculture is certainly due for a boom," Earl Desmond, member of parliament for Kent, said last night, in addressing the 30th annual convention of the Ontario Brotherhood of Windsor-more. Possibilities and difficulties for these great times ahead must be considered. He said, urged them to start now to plan for post-war days.

Production practices in Ontario, especially Western Ontario, have changed, declared Mr. Desmond, explaining that acreage of grains has been reduced by specialization, saving loss work for the thresher-men.

Irwin S. Cobb, Humorist, Dies

New York, March 10—(AP)—Irvin S. Cobb, 67, humorist and writer, died today at his Hotel Sheraton apartment after a long illness.

Cobb had been ill for the past three months suffering from a series of complications including dropsy. At his bedside when the end came was his wife.

Grantland Rice, sports writer and friend of the family, who announced the death, said the funeral would be private but that further plans had not been made.

Germans Convinced American Bombers Have New Weapons

Stockholm, March 10. (AP)—Germans are convinced that American bombers "must have some new weapon" making possible such pinpoint accuracy as the destruction of the ball-bearing works and tank plants in Erkner, southern suburb of Berlin, a Swede arriving today from the ravaged capital said.

The Erkner works were a target of day raiders Wednesday, German dispatches said the bombers had penetrated to the heart of the city yesterday, taking advantage of thick clouds.

"There must have been more than 500 incendiaries landed on that factory", the eye-witness said of the ball-bearing works. "The whole place was covered and five or six blocks were blasted or gutted by fire. Berliners simply are astonished that such a small place could be hit so accurately".

The Swede said Propaganda Minister Goebbels, also Gauleiter of Berlin, had called a meeting of all district leaders, senior party men, police and Storm Troops leaders to plan total evacuation of Berlin within the next few days, should the daylight raids continue.

Baroness Rothschild Beaten, Robbed

New York, March 10 — (AP)— Baroness Alphonse de Rothschild, widow of the late Baron Alphonse Mayer de Rothschild of the European banking family, was beaten and robbed by a foot-suited Negro on Park Ave., last night, police disclosed today.

Members of the family reported she is confined to bed at her Park Avenue home. But was not believed to have been injured seriously.

Her purse, containing $35 in cash and allen registration papers, was taken, police said, adding she provided a good description of her assailant.

ALMOST 2,000 WOLVES KILLED

Bounties Already Paid So Far This Winter Exhaust $40,000 Appropriation

Toronto, March 10—(CP)—Wolf hunters in Ontario have been so successful this year that the government's $40,000 appropriation for payment of wolf bounties has been exhausted, the Provincial Department of Game and Fisheries reported today.

The department has paid the $25 bounty on almost 2,000 wolves so far this winter, compared with 1,500 a year ago. In organized counties the county pays 50 per cent and the province 50 per cent. of the bounty and in unorganized territory the province pays the entire amount.

Department officials said the open winter enabled trappers and hunters to increase their bag of wolves, as well as of other fur-bearing animals.

CUBAN GIN HELD UP

Portland, Ore., March 10 —(AP) — A shipment of 10,000 cases of Cuban gin was held up by the customs office and probably will be sent back, Ray Conway, Oregon Liquor Administrator, reported. Conway said the gin lacked the three drops of lumiry oil per bottle necessary for the authentic flavor.

Murder Mystery, 400 Years Old Is Uncovered

Lisbon, March 10, (AP)—A murder mystery 400 years old has been uncovered in the Italian City of Viterbo by Allied aerial bombs, according to Rome dispatch in a copy of the Hamburger Fremdenblatt received here.

The dispatch said that the bodies of two men and a woman, all with fractured skulls and clad in 16th century dress, were found in the sarcophagus of Cardinal Vita Dominici when preparations were made to move it from a bomb-damaged church. Cardinal died in the 13th century.

A 16th century murderer, the dispatch added, apparently hid the bodies in the sarcophagus.

Pedro Ramirez Resigns Office

Buenos Aires, March 10 (AP)— Le Nacion, Buenos Aires morning newspaper, said today that President Pedro Ramirez had formally resigned the presidency in a communication sent by Acting President Edelmiro Farrell.

The dispatch said that the bodies of two men and a woman, all with fractured skulls and clad in 16th century dress, were found in the sarcophagus of Cardinal Vita Dominici when preparations were made to move it from a bomb-damaged church. Cardinal died in the 13th century.

A 16th century murderer, the dispatch added, apparently hid the bodies in the sarcophagus.

REDS SMASH GERMANS OVER 500-MILE FRONT

Kill 20,000 Nazis In 5-Day Drive West of Cherkasy

Gains of 25 to 50 Miles Since Last Mon.—Much War Material Captured

LIBERATE 300 TOWNS

London, March 11. (CP)—Three great Soviet armies, rolling forward through the mud and wreck of the Southern Ukraine, have shattered German lines over a 500-mile front in a great drive to clear the invaders from all Southern Russia, Moscow dispatches said today.

The drive was brought into sharp focus by yesterday's announcement that a third offensive had been launched in that area by General Konev's 2nd Ukrainian Army.

Moscow said his forces had broken through German defences on a 100-mile line southwest of Cherkassy, killing 20,000 Germans, capturing 300 more and liberating during 2,000 more and liberating more than 300 towns and villages, including the pivotal stronghold of Uman less than 30 miles northwest of the Bug River.

Fourteen German divisions—approximately 150,000 men—were trapped in this five-day drive, the Russian communiques said, and lost seven infantry, six tank and one artillery divisions.

"The true scale of this German defeat can be judged from the huge quantities of booty seized and by our troops", the Soviet bulletin said.

Konev's southern lunge, covering from 25 to 50 miles since last Monday, quickly spelled the doom of the enemy's Dnieper Bend forces on Spearhead of the drive, exploiting their success, were driving the Germans back upon the Bug River 30 miles farther to the west, and clearing out German positions to the southeast in the direction of Kirovograd.

On Konev's right, Gen. Vatutin's 1st Ukrainian army was storming into Galicia-Poland across the Pripet and capturing Moscow trunk railway. Yesterday it was 70 miles from Sarny, junction of the railway, 15 miles to the north, further narrowing a German escape route towards Rumania.

Zhukov's right wing was continued its fight-street by-street battle for Tarnopol", the inner defence of Lwow (Lemberg), which, Thursday, Moscow said. These forces were less than 80 miles from the Polish frontier.

Southeast of Konev's front, Gen. Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 3rd Ukrainian army pressed on from the Black Sea ports of Kherson and Nikolaev.

Red Cross Quota Passes Half-Way Mark Today

The city of Belleville and the surrounding district passed the half-way mark in their contributions toward the Canadian Red Cross campaign today with a total of $12,807 in the kitty, it was announced by A. F. Allison, campaign chairman. A $1,000 donation was received on Friday from the Belleville War Chest, which is a group of the Defence Spotting and Refining Employees' Work organization to coordinate amounts such as this for charitable purposes.

The launch of the campaign became a last minute rush for the citizens of the city and district to give every bit of support possible to increase the total amount before the end of the drive. "Although there may be a few more large donations to come in," said Mr. M. F. Duff this morning, "the smaller contributions by individuals will be essential if we are going to come near to our objective."

The campaign for $10,000,000 ends on the 18th of this month. The Belleville quota of $25,000 has been half achieved, but the period is almost gone at the part of everyone in the city and district, the objective can be met during the last few working days of the drive. Mr. Duff stated that a contribution of a dollar is just as important as a larger contribution, that it is going toward making the total possible. Supporting the Canadian Red Cross is the same as supporting your own son in the front line.

COURT CONVICTS PIERRE PUCHEU OF TREASON

Former Vichy Interior Minister Condemned to Death by Tribunal

DECLARES INNOCENCE

Algiers, March 11 (AP)—Pierre Pucheu, former Vichy interior minister, has been convicted of treason by a special military tribunal and condemned to death, it was announced today.

The court, which has been hearing the first important French purge trial, returned the verdict after one hour of deliberations. Earlier the court had refused a defence motion for a general demurrer to the indictment.

Pucheu, who a short time before had made a last fervent declaration of innocence, was not present when the five-man court brought in the verdict.

He had been led outside a short time before and was later informed in a closed session.

The court convicted Pucheu of treason, malfeasance in office and collaboration with the enemy. He was found innocent of conspiracy to overthrow the third republic and of illegal arrest.

Pucheu has 24 hours in which to file an appeal. The attorney said he would decide this afternoon whether to take an appeal.

The court, which found Pucheu guilty on all but four of the 14 counts in the indictment, said there were no extenuating circumstances.

In a last passionate declaration of innocence, Pucheu had cried "this is not a court of justice.... it's a political coup."

Pucheu is the first French committee of National Liberation's policies would provoke civil war within France after her liberation from the Nazis. He brought his case would dispel the atmosphere of bitterness and hate he would offer it." Fuches Justice of Vichy.

Pucheu referred to prosecutor Fuches former allegiance to Vichy and declared:

"You have the assassin in this courtroom ... This is not a court of justice, but it's a political coup."

In his closing statement, Weits had described Pucheu as "the personification of the despicable policy which raped France's soul." He called on the court to prevent civil war with the death penalty on behalf of the people of France.

Weiss attacked what he termed Pucheu's "effective and deliberate collaboration with the enemy" and then compared him with the Nazi puppet Premier Joseph Staveni who are continuing the struggle.

Pucheu, in his political statement that essential witnesses and documents were missing because of the war. He said the prosecution also lacked concrete proof of his collaboration with Germany, and declared that 600,000 others in Vichy and Gestapo prisons.

Drink-Crazed Japs Charge Revetment Only To Be Killed by Hundreds

BY OLEN CLEMENTS
(AP War Correspondent)

Momote Airdrome, Los Negros Island, March 11 (AP)—Eighty-five weary United States cavalrymen, survivors of a force of 150, a day and a night ago, stood at the bottom were bodies of 250 Japanese. It was one of the strangest, grisliest incidents in the war.

Drink-crazed enemy soldiers, some of them Nippon's finest, had dashed and crawled up the coconut-log sloped and, singing, then many lifted themselves with their own grenades. When it was over, the cavalry brigade had stopped the last great charge of the Japanese Army on Los Negros Island.

The unorthodoxy charge started with a drinking bout and ended in military hari-kari. It was hard for the Americans to understand. It was like a crazy dream.

It started at 2 a.m. Feb. 3. Cavalrymen were spread out on top of the ridge above the airplane. They had fortified their positions with coconut logs.

Beneath them in the jungle, they could hear the Japanese getting steamed up for the charge. They could hear the sons of Nippon drinking toasts of sake (rice wine) to the emperor.

Men of the force of 139 sat tense and waited.

When rain clouds swept in, the Japanese attacked. At the bottom were bodies of 250 Japanese. It was one of the strangest, grisliest incidents in the war.

Drastic Measures to Safeguard Invasion Plans From Axis Espionage Likely

NOTES EXCHANGED

BY JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, March 11. (AP)—Drastic measures to safeguard allied invasion preparations in Britain from Axis espionage were expected today to follow Prime Minister De Valera's refusal of a request by the United States that Eire limit German and Japanese diplomats accused of heading a spy ring.

The need for nearly and decisive actions to keep enemy agents from further enlarging their knowledge of allied plans for the second-front assault on Europe was emphasized by an official statement that because of spy activities based on Eire "not only the success of our operations but the lives of thousands of United Nations' soldiers are at stake."

The American case was set forth in a note sent Feb. 21 and made public by State Secretary Cordell Hull Friday night. In it Hull declared Valera was urged to expel all Axis diplomats and consular officials from his country.

At the same time the Eire Legation here released the text of De Valera's reply, rejecting the appeal. De Valera claimed Eire's counter-spy methods were effective and asserted that the United States would be lost "through any indifference or neglect of its duty" on the part of Ireland.

He also made two other main points. One was that German and Japanese officers would be interned for the duration of the war with the Axis, which his country is determined not to join, and that he had received assurances from the United States that it did not intend to violate Eire.

Thus for the first time it was officially learned that the de Valera-Dublin Government had viewed several days ago Eire's case for the first time that the world knew only that Eire had been swept by waves of hysteria.

Several further measures appeared to be in the offing in the United States and Britain, which had backed the American request to the last.

They included:

Closing and fully guarding the border between Eire and Northern Ireland as an emergency military measure.

2. Breaking diplomatic relations with Eire. This course appeared to be the most improbable step at the moment, because it would create more problems than it solves.

3. Clamping down on economic relations with Eire. The country is an integral part of the British economic system, and a blockade on British and American shipping.

From the text of the two notes it was clear that the gulf between the sides was a friendly solution of the difficulties which have jeopardized the relations of Washington and Dublin more directly than at any previous point in four and a half years of war.

ALLIED TROOPS ADVANCE AROUND BISMARCK SEA

Marines Capture and Hold Alasea Airfield Near Rabaul

NEARER TO MADANG

Allied Headquarters, Southwest Pacific, March 11 —(AP)— Allied troops are advancing all around the Bismarck Sea while the Japanese, without success, finally are trying to choke off at the source the daily air attacks on their dying base of Rabaul, New Britain.

The main Allied victory reported today was the capture by United States marines of the Alasea airfield and village, 170 miles from Rabaul, on the north New Britain coast.

United States infantry, at the same time, were disclosed to have pushed ahead 1-1-2 miles against Japanese opposition on Los Negros island in the strategic Admiralty group. Other advances along the northeast New Guinea coast north of Saidor put Allied forces nearer to Madang.

Less strategically important than the Talasea fighting, but more striking, was the Japanese effort at this late date to knock out the airfields used by Allied planes attacking Rabaul.

These airdromes inside the Allied perimeter at Empress Augusta bay on Bougainville Island in the northern Solomons, were shelled by Japanese artillery. Some shells hit the south end of the Piva fighter strip and set a formation of planes was landing. All planes escaped damage.

The shelling brought a strong reaction against the Japanese. Allied planes plastered suspected gun positions with 50 tons of bombs.

This was not the only sign of life shown by the large but isolated enemy garrison on Bougainville. Under cover of a heavy rainstorm patrols of Japanese jungle fighters slipped through American barbed wire and seized several machine gun pillboxes of high ground.

American artillery countered this with heavy and effective manoeuvres by pouring 2,000 rounds into enemy positions.

ITALIAN GUERILLAS OPERATING

New York, March 11 (AP)—An Italian guerilla army, composed of veterans of Africa and the Balkans, has been operating in Italy under a commander whose identity is known only to the closest associates, a Chilasco dispatch to the Swiss newspaper Basler Nachrichten said today.

ELEMENTS OF 20 NAZI DIVISIONS IN YUGOSLAVIA

Tito Says German Winter Offensive Fails in Primary Objective

PETER IN BRITAIN

London, March 11 (CP)—Increasing forces of Nazi troops in Yugoslavia to a new peak of strength was reported to have defeated dispatch today on the heels of a Berlin statement that Allied Commandos had landed on the Dalmatian Island of Vrgada and that other raids along the Dalmatian coast might be expected.

Associated Press Correspondent Daniel De Luce, in a dispatch from Bari, Italy, dated March 1, quoted high officers of Marshal Tito's National Liberation Army as saying the Nazis now have elements of twenty divisions in Yugoslavia, but that their winter offensive has failed in the primary objective of crushing Tito's forces.

The dispatch declared that German occupation of nine important Dalmatian islands Korculan, Brac, Hvar, Solta, Drvenik, Ulan and Pesman in the split area, and Cherso near Fiume—was nearly established at a heavy cost in lives, but failed to stop Allied supplies from reaching the Partisans.

The Berlin radio, in a broadcast unconfirmed by any Allied source, asserted yesterday that British and American Commandos had landed on "Gen. Churchill" had landed on Lissa apparently with the Partisans.

The reference to Churchill suggested that it might be Capt. Randolph Churchill, M.P., Prime Minister Churchill's son who recently was reported to have parachuted into Yugoslavia to confer with Tito and Other Britons specialized Berlin broadcast declared that Capt. Churchill, former aide de camp to the King, who led a Commando raid into Sicily.

The Bari dispatch said the Partisans officers declared that heavy Allied air raids had whittled down the strength of Nazi forces in Croatia and Bosnia to the lowest level of the war, but that the Nazis were building fighter bases deep in the country in anticipation of a Spring drive into Slovenia and Hungary in the Spring.

Meanwhile, Yugoslavia's King Peter, it was officially announced, has returned Britain and specially assigned to Marshal Tito's staff as co-ordinator Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Minister Eden are responsible for his coming. However, his appearance in London aroused mixed indications of a mounting British determination to bring about greater Royalist-Partisan friendliness—probably under the fighting banners of Marshal Tito (Josip Broz) with King Peter remaining as head of the government.

NIGHT ATTACK MADE ON FOUR FRENCH FACTORIES

Raid Followed by Daylight Sweep of American Bombers On West Germany

ROCKET COAST HIT

London, Mar. 11 (AP). — The R.A.F.'s four-engined Lancaster bombers made a night attack on four factories in France, the Air Ministry announced today, and a few hours later the American heavy weight bombers in a daylight attack struck at western Germany and the Pas-de-Calais coast of France.

The Air Ministry said three aircraft factories and a small bearing factory in the central part of France were hit in a "bomber-moon" operation in the continuing campaign to knock out Germany's aircraft production facilities. The specific objectives were not named.

The constant assault on Germany's aircraft industry came on the night after it was announced that 1,000 tons of bombs had been dropped in this week and the fifth in a new campaign in which army airplane plants and two big railroad centres have been bombed.

These raids are capitalizing on a period of bright nights which are expected for pinpointing targets but which also are good for the movement of the continent.

The Other Hand Last night's raids cost one R.A.F. plane.

The new American assault on the French coast where Prime Minister Churchill has said the Nazis were preparing rockets and robot planes to bombard Britain as the fifteenth attack there by American heavy bombers since the day before Christmas.

These targets on the nearby northern French coast have now been hammered by Allied planes on 60 days in the last 70 days.

The American bombers thundered out after a day's interval in the campaign which has taken them on a scorching trip to Germany's Leipzig, Brunswick Berlin, on ten of the last thirteen days—an unprecedented streak of daylight activity for this theatre. Eight of these attacks have been on Germany itself.

Targets Not Identified

Neither the Air Ministry nor the United States Army Air Force in western Germany were specifically identified.

Formations of fighters again escorted the four-engined flying fortresses and Liberators on today's raids.

Correspondents attached to the United States heavy bombers were seen returning across the strait which separates the French coast between Boulogne and Calais followed by a strong escort.

It was announced that seedlum said the Canadians took no part in the offensive. One strong force of medium escorted by fighters headed toward Zliepe.

U.S. Lend-Lease Program Contributes 20 Billions in Aid to Allied Countries

BY DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, March 11 (AP) — The United States' lend-lease program, three years old today, has cost $20,000,000,000 of which American war expenditures to pile up more than $50,000,000,000 of aid to the United nations.

Through a reverse process, the United States has received something over $2,000,000,000 in such aid—principally in the form of airfields.

Foreign Economic Administrator Leo A. Crowley estimated that, on the basis of the proportion of goods and services now devoted to defeating common enemies, the United States and its allies are about equally sharing the financial burdens of the war about equally.

In a quarterly report to congress on lend-lease operations, he said:

"Each of our major fighting partners is contributing fully from its resources to the defeat of the Axis powers, though the contributions of each differ with the circumstances each differ with the circumstances of war and the resources that are available."

(Canada has not requested lend-lease aid, her business relations with the United States being on a cash and carry basis.)

The report showed total lend-lease aid for 1941, 1942, and 1943 of $46,000,000. The next report is expected to show a total of about $50,000,000,000 after a full three years' operations. For 1943 alone it was $13,000,000,000. For 1942 it was $6,000,000,000 in 1941 $1,344,000,000 in 1941.

Planes, tanks, guns, ships and other munitions accounted for nearly $19,000,000,000 of the $19,864,000,000, industrial materials for $3,000,000,000 and farm products and such services as ship repairing and ferrying of aircraft for $2,000,000,000.

Many services were performed in the United States and some of the goods turned over to Allies had not been shipped overseas, so that lend-lease exports at the end of 1943 added up to $18,819,000,000.

The United Kingdom got about 43 per cent of the exports and Russia 22 per cent.

Reverse lend-lease came primarily from the British Commonwealth of Nations.

Vessels Sustain No Damage From Shore Batteries

Historic City of Florence Bombed For First Time by Allied Planes

LITTLE GROUND ACTION

Naples, March 11 (AP)—British destroyers have shelled towns on Korcula Island off the Dalmatian coast, reported occupied by large numbers of Germans, headquarters announced today.

A communique said the bombardments were carried out Wednesday night and that "in spite of accurate fire from enemy shore batteries our ships sustained neither casualties nor damage."

Dalmatian bombers attacked Piraeus today, hitting at the important port's defences, and Florence today, hitting at the important communications centre was bombed by R.A.F. Mosquitoes.

It was the first time that Florence today, hitting at the important aircraft factories and transport centre was bombed by the German front in Italy.

It was the first time that Florence today, hitting at the important aircraft factories and transport centre was bombed by the German front in Italy.

In the Pisa area, bombers attacked the railway centre, the Leghorn railway junction, and the railway bridge over the Arno river.

The bombers left behind rail junctions. Recent photographs had disclosed large groups of trains and cars there, but these were well covered with bombs.

Florence is one of the richest cities culturally, in Italy, famous for its many churches, art galleries, libraries and museums.

Allied bombers have struck before in the Florence area, and heavy bombers early this week hit the railway yards at Leghorn, 30 miles southwest of the city, and rail junctions at Empoli, 20 miles west, Prato, about 10 miles from Florence, and Pistoia.

Repeats Tu-Day Blow

The Air Command announced that on Monday beachhead south of Rome German artillery has been shelled by heavy bombs in more than a month.

Fighting and fierce German stabs at American positions southeast of Carroceto on the Anzio front were reported as quiet Thursday.

The Nazis, however, were said to have massed strong troop movements around the beachhead perimeter, undoubtedly in preparation for a fourth major attempt to drive the defenders into the sea. Allied artillery has continued to restrict activity on the Canadian, Canadian front of the British Army front in eastern Italy to patrol activity, Canadian Press war correspondent, reported.

4,000-Ton Ship Sunk

Mosquitoes scored four hits on a 4,000-ton merchant ship near Marseilles, the Air Ministry said today, bringing to 11 the number of ships damaged by, it was disclosed.

Other Italian formations ranged across northern Italy and Adriatic ports, attacking shipping, harbors and enemy rail and highway communications. Medium bombers attacked the port of Santo Stefano.

Wellingtons dropped heavy bombs on the Fiume docks and on a railway bridge near Pisa. Spitfires strafed cheap troop convoys in Valona, in Albania, and on Corfu, while Mosquitoes bombed railway yards in the Valley.

Airacobras destroyed a Junkers-88 near the island of Pusa.

Obituary

MRS. EMMA JANE REYNOLDS (Mrs. E. A. Joslin)

Madoc, March 11. (Special)—Mrs. Emma Jane Reynolds, widow of the late Reynolds, died suddenly at her home in this village on Friday, March 10.

The late Mrs. Reynolds, who was in her 71st year, was born in Madoc Township, and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Glover. Her mother's maiden name was Emma Stevenson. She was the wife of the late Mr. Reynolds, lived at Foxboro and for the past four years had resided in her home in Madoc. In religion she was a member of Trinity United Church, Madoc, and when health permitted she was active in church work. In the esteem of many friends she held a high place and to them her sudden death has caused much regret.

Surviving her are four brothers, Mr. George Glover, Queensboro; Mr. William Glover, Queensboro; Rev. John Glover, Hastings and Mr. Philip Glover, Sidney Township; one sister, Mrs. Harry Love, Black Creek Corners. Her husband died sixteen years ago.

The funeral will take place to the United Church at Hamard's Corners on Sunday afternoon at two o'clock.

RODNEY GARFIELD HOSKING (Lieutenant)

The funeral of Rodney Garfield Hosking, infant son of L.A.C. Edwin G. Hosking and the late Mrs. Hosking, took place from the home of the child's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Hosking, Consecon, to Amelisburg Township, on Friday afternoon. The service in the home and at Alberry Cemetery was conducted by Mr. Lyle Tibbels, assisted by Mr. E. A. Joslin.

The bearers were Fred Mostyn, Robert Hosking, Kenneth Hosking and Lyle Wannamaker.

Thought-Provoking Reading Material Planned for Troops

By JACK BRADLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 11 (CP)—To meet a seemingly unquenchable thirst for topical knowledge from the armed forces, Canada's civilian and military officials are planning extensive production of thought-provoking publications for the troops, including pictorial magazines, illustrated articles as digests of current events, and newspaper articles.

It is a crammed schedule for the new Wartime Information Board's cradle here three months after it was diligently pored over the budget of information that goes to the war theatres, and home stations to provide a forum for current problems.

The three are:

Navy—Lieut. Donald C. MacDonald, Montreal newspaper man;

Army—Capt. Frank Park, former Fredericton, N.B., lawyer;

Navy—Capt. Roger Vissche Vissche, Queen's University professor of philosophy and chief author.

Director Brooke Ralston, speaking recently in the Commons, said the army and air, in the spirit of need of getting home news to the troops and he cited several papers such as the Canadian Press news and the Maple Leaf, with its pictorial and news by The Canadian Press.

He then spoke of "Canadian Affairs," fortnightly pamphlet edited by Gordon Sisley, in the Ottawa Citizen and his assistants. Col. Ralston described it as a digest of "which goes articles which perhaps are more for study groups ... But it has a good deal of factual information."

Lt.-Gen. A.-G. L. McNaughton, former Canadian army commander overseas, is the author of "Canadian Affairs", said Sgdn. Ldr. Vissche.

Japs Withdraw In North Burma

New Delhi, India, March 11. (CP)—The Japanese are withdrawing in the Maungdaw area in the Kaiwaw Valley of Northern Burma after British Lord Louis Mountbatten's British forces have advanced on the coastal road south of Maungdaw and into the foothills southeast of Maungdaw toward Akyab, a southeast Indian operation announced today.

Medium bombers pounded Japanese positions and communications on the Maungdaw front, Allied officials said, and Kaladan, Chiktwin, Chin Hills and Rukaung front. They caused heavy damage to an ammunition dump at Indaw and Katha and knocked out the Mandalay railway bridge and the Kamaing Road bridge in the path of the Japanese retreat in the north.

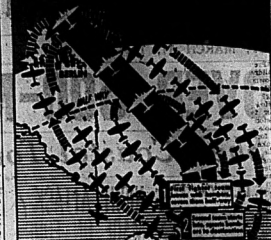
TIMING VITAL TO BOMBING BERLIN



Fighter protection for the planes which bomb Berlin is a miracle of teamwork and timing between the big engines and the weather fighters which are taking part in the operations, it was explained today by Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Harris, commander-in-chief of the bomber command.

Three teams of fighters work in relay to cover the big fellows. First Thunderbolts take them to the objective, taking on any enemy fighters that show up en route. Some time after the departure of the first wave, Mosquito fighters will go on the scene to "mop up" ammunitioned for the job of escorting the last-of-the-line bombers back off the Reich, the sluggers to the target. Finally, Mosquitos cover the target. The whole thing is a marvel of split-second timing.

Value of C.W.A.C. In Saving Manpower in Armed Services Told to Women's Conservative Club

The Women's Conservative Club held its regular monthly meeting in the Conservative Club Rooms on Friday night with the president, Mrs. W. H. Rollins, in the chair, followed by the usual routine of business and a round of community singing with Mrs. Kaladan at the piano. Mr. C. H. Stokes, M.P., addressed the gathering briefly to the women. He commented on the highlights of the Provincial Conservative and Conservative meeting held in the Chateau Laurier, Ottawa, on Friday and Saturday of last week, which he described. Mr. Stokes made especially of Mr. John Bracken, leader of the Progressive Conservative party, and Mr. Drew, his excellent speech at the conference of Friday night. Mr. Bracken he said did not wish to win an election on a negative vote but was determined that he be an instrument for improving Canada, he said. Stokes made mention of the Young People's Progressive Conservative meeting that was in progress at the Chateau Laurier at the same time and spoke in greeting to some of its new General Secretary, Mr. O. A. McDonald. In conclusion, Mr. Stokes complimented the women on the features of their programme and urged them to carry on the fine work.

Sgt. Robertson, the guest speaker, Mrs. Rollins then introduced another guest speaker of the evening in the person of Sgt. Robertson, C.W.A.C., attached to Headquarters of M.D. 3 at Kingston and a member of the recruiting staff. Sgt. Robertson, who is at present assisting Cpl. Lois Pilkington in this local recruiting office gave a most interesting account of the C.W.A.C.

"They Are No Follies,

"We, as members of the C.W.A.C. have no policies," said Sgt. Robertson, "but because of the fact that Miss Pilkington has an interest in our war effort and are in a position to help the women in the service, I am appealing to you. Five thousand more women are urgently needed in the C.W.A.C. Our headquarters are expecting great casualties following the invasion of Europe and we will need all available men — thus, we must have women to relieve them. "When the war broke out," continued the speaker, "the Canadian Army began to be formed." They were uniforms but the groups were not official. At the end of September it was found difficult to find stenographers, and at the same time requests were made of the government to have a women's army corps. In the autumn of 1941 the C.W.A.C. was formed as an Auxiliary but not as an active part. It began with 70c of a personnel and now is composed of 10,000 in the next 4 half years.

Release Men For Duty.

When the corps was first formed, it started to expand greatly, so it was decided to make it an active part of the Canadian army active. An order was passed in parliament and the C.W.A.C. became a part of the active army. "Our work became more valuable," said Sgt. Robertson, "and women began to release men for active duty".

"To prove what I mean, I will give you an example of this," she said, "taking Petawawa for instance, there is a training camp there and also a detachment of C.W.A.C. and girls. They are working in various jobs. They work 40 hours and the auxiliary corps but they are stationed there under the officer commanding the camp, and are administered, paid, clothed, fed and quartered by the army and while they have their own platoon officers.

Sgt. Robertson then spoke of an auxiliary type of company, a depot company, like Bellevile, where the soldiers are deposited and where the war recruiting is done. They are sent into the recruit office, she is interviewed, she is asked, and she is going into the C.W.A.C. thought. Ready she will be no use to either her country or to herself. Everything is explained in the interview to the recruit and then she is sent to the depot company. There she has her medical, her papers and she has an interview with the army examiner. If she passes them all she is in the army. She attends a swearing in and takes an oath of allegiance to her King and Country with the promise to serve faithfully until the service. "I am appealing to you. Five thousand more women are urgently needed in the C.W.A.C. Our headquarters are expecting great casualties following the invasion of Europe and we will need all available men — thus, we must have women to relieve them. "When the war broke out," continued the speaker, "the Canadian Army began to be formed." They were Minister Renounces King Peter's Govt.

Moscow, March 11. (AP)—Stanoje Simic, Yugoslav Minister to the Soviet Union, has renounced King Peter's government and has placed himself at the disposal of Marshal Tito (Josip Broz), it was disclosed today in a letter published in Pravda.

In a second letter Lt.-Col. Mosa Pijade, another military attache here, announced similar action. Both letters addressed to Tito.

Simic and Lusic accused the Royalist government of failing to conduct a People's War against the Germans and of conducting a terroristic Yugoslavs, who desired to fight for liberation of the country.

Deductions 'Mystery' Explained By District Income Tax Inspector

At least one phase of the current income tax mystery—the reason why a great many employees are finding to their consternation the fact that they will have to pay larger balances after deduction than they expected to pay—was explained by Cpl. Gilmore in a talk given on the C.W.A.C. thought. Cpl. Gilmore is the income tax inspector for Belleville and district and is a newcomer to the city, having been transferred here from Ottawa. He was introduced in 1942.

Cpl. Gilmore told why tax payers find they have to pay a greater percentage of their 1943 tax than they paid on the same amount of income when they were expected to.

During the months of January, February and March of 1943, 80 per cent of the tax was paid by employees at the source, leaving a balance of 10 per cent to pay. But during the following nine months—after the source deductions were raised to 30 per cent—the amount to be paid was five per cent. The balance which will fall due on April 30th, therefore, consists of 10 per cent for the first three months' salary in the year and five per cent on the nine months' pay.

Inspector Gilmore stated that the original legislation which inaugurated the plan and which saw a portion of all tax returns deducted at the source, called originally for a 50 per cent deduction. But a subsequent increase to 90 per cent was made and this resulted in larger deductions.

In explanation of the manner in which deductions were made at the source the Inspector pointed out that all deductions were based on 1942 income because payments on account of the 1943 tax, and that by the 30th of April returns should have been raised to the 90 per cent level, payments being made in three instalments for the months of January, February and March. These payments have to be brought to the full quota along with the remaining five per cent due on the salary for the last nine months of the year.

Forms for filing income tax returns are now available in post offices and at the income tax offices and it is stated that returns be made as soon as possible. Reason for this is that the early date of tax forms is that tax offices then may have time to check all returns and help relieve the natural congestion of offices during the final days before forms are due. Returns must be made by April 30th.

Income tax payers are on salary but whose income is derived from business or profession from the vestment may pay this income tax in quarterly instalments, it was explained. The first instalment for 1944 consisting of 30 per cent of the estimated income must be paid on or before March 31st.

Legislature Hears First Dissenting Voice on Bills

Speculation Throne Speech Debate Will End on Tuesday

C.C.F. CRITICIAL

Toronto, March 11 —(CP)— The Ontario legislature resumed debate of the Throne Speech debate with one C.C.F. speaker, his criticism tinging as to whether the C. C. F. opposition will offer any constructive criticism of the address.

C. H. Millard (CCF—East York) a raising-hatted labor official, condemned the federal labor code as "defective, deceitful document" when he spoke in the debate Friday, and called the provincial government to draft one of its own.

Following the general line of most of C. C. F. speakers, he criticized the Throne Speech proposals as not going far enough, but reiterated his party's decision to support any legislation introduced to help in the interests of the province.

The debate was adjourned by Dana H. Porter (PC—Toronto St. George) who will wind it up Tuesday, and the medical officers into areas where they were needed after the war, with the province to bear the cost of the plan.

This was the first time provincial government had heard of the proposed other than a letter from an other officer which said the plan was under consideration. There has been no consideration from the federal government.

That a plan for reaching decisions concerning the provincial governments and the matching the contributions to be given without advising the provinces concerned must stop, and must stop right away," the Premier said.

A Weekly Column Devoted to the Activities of the Members of the Armed Forces and Abroad

Following the reduction of training periods for Reserve Units announced from Ottawa sometime ago Tuesday's programme will be devoted to full battalion training for the Argyll Light Infantry (Hastings). Lieut.-Col. H. R. O. Donnan, C. O. of the Battalion, announced this week.

However, on Thursday nights a series of special classes for officers, N.C.O.'s and specialists will be conducted in M. T. and Signals, reported Captain E. R. Holmes, the battalion adjutant today. The new training scheme went into effect this week. Following the series of special lectures, however the unit may return to the conventional two night training period later.

Lieut. J. E. Dixon was listed on Part 2 orders last week as promoted to the rank of Temporary Captain.

Two retirements were noted from the officers' ranks when the Department of National Defence at Ottawa accepted the resignations of 2/Lieut. D. Boyce and 2/Lieut. J. N. Corbett and made them official in orders.

Incidentally there will be some further retirements of officers from the Reserve Regiments throughout Ottawa in the near future. They will commence coming officers' training centre connected with Canadian Armoured Corps Capt. Headquarters Staff Commander of the Tank Division.

Captain Cyril Henry was keenly interested in cadet work while attending the Bowmanville Collegiate and also interested in football and basketball. Upon joining the Corps he was commissioned as a Lieutenant and now is taking a further course of instruction at the Officers' Training Centre connected with Queen's University, Kingston, the Canadian Armoured Corps Capt. Headquarters Staff Commander of the Tank Division.

Captain Cyril Henry was keenly interested in cadet work while attending the Bowmanville Collegiate and also interested in football and basketball while at Queen's. While employed in Ottawa he became associated with the Governor-General's Foot Guards and three years ago graduated as a Lieutenant. He was then sent to Officers' Training School. He second "phy-sician" Captain Cyril Borden, when he spent a period as instructor before being transferred to Debert, N.S., where he was given a staff position under Col. Worthington, he was promoted to the rank of A.P. band. Of this sum $15 was given to the Navy League Canteen fund, the remainder to be applied in the provision of sports and recreational facilities for the use of the members of the armed services in Bowmanville.

The monthly sports night of the O.W.S.P. was held Wednesday evening when the girls took over the Armouries bowling alleys.

Sergt. Jack Murphy—"I wish to make a statement."

Father—"Do you drink, young man?"

Sergt. Murphy—"Thanks, but don't get this other matter settled first."

Things to Come

The colonel was a fastidious man. When he travelled he took not only his driver but his batman as well. Came the day when he went to Belleville. Arriving there, the corporal being a good soldier, jumped out of the car, opened the door and stood stiffly at attention. The colonel stepping out of the car, inadvertently stepped on the corporal's foot. The corporal, who suffered in his right foot from, accidently brought his knee up and struck the colonel in the south side of his leg. The inevitable court-martial had happened, drew back his foot and with a beautiful dropkick the same location.

Then the inevitable court-martial. The corporal explained his action. The private when questioned as to his duty said:

"When I saw the corporal kick the colonel, I thought the war was over."

After being overseas for the past four-and-one-half years, Pte. Geo. Shields, son of Mrs. Wm. Shields, 30 King Street, member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, is expected to be home shortly, according to a word received in a recent letter from her son. A native Belleville boy, Pte. Dimmie enlisted early in '40 and went overseas with the 1st Canadian Contingent. He did not go to Sicily or Italy with the H. and P. E. and according to his letter home has been reboarded and expects to be returned to Canada.

Among the district R.C.A.F. personnel to have received commissions overseas recently is Warrant Officer 2 Joseph C. Copeland Foley of Wellington, Ontario, according to a release from No. 1 Training Command. Pilot Officer Foley's wife lives in Wellington.

Sidney Twp Council

The March session of Sidney Council was held last Monday. It was decided to grant the claim of the London Sanatorium in Miss M. Gilbertson until such time as a residency in Sidney Township has been established. A grant of $10 was made to the Sick Children's Hospital, and Relief Accounts for Secretary, and assessor Mrs. Hood Voucher No. 3 as well as accounts on the March pay list were ordered to be paid.

The council accepted the tender of $405 made by C. and J. Vanalstine of Trenton for the road plowing. Tenders were decided to send the damaged crusher to the Dominion Road Machinery Co. at Goderich, for repairs.

The township solicitor, Messrs. G. C. Gay and Geo. W. Short, gave a comprehensive report of the audit of the books and accounts of the township for the year 1943 which was adopted by the council.

Children's Aid Society, Some Facts Concerning Its Development, Aims

(Prepared by the Association of Children's Aid Societies of the Province of Ontario.)

Have you ever grieved over a lost child?

How well she writer remembers a recent story told by Dr. Barnardo Boston Bull who was lost for a whole week. How the family searched for him, advertised for him, lay awake at night thinking of him, prayed for him, faithful friend—hungry, cold, lonely—strayed or stolen home!

And when one morning he was found, there was the utmost feeling of overwhelming joy! Bedraggled, utterly exhausted, but unscathed, he stood among that whole parents' efforts he made to respond to the welcoming arms! And when he lay in his basket, loving hands stroking him, his great brown eyes gazed full of unutterable thankfulness. They told all he had suffered in a little life that had been so full of love.

But what about a little lost child not to love and care and happiness?

This is the first of a series of articles to be published in this paper each week, the purpose of which is that is being carried on every day by Children's Aid Societies and Branches of this province to protect and salvage the lives of children. It will not be anything about the struggle of over half a century to enact and establish children's protection and develop Children's Aid Societies from small beginnings to maturity. That no little boy or girl in Ontario should be "lost" or abused, neglected, living without proper care, without happiness, without a just and fair chance to grow to be a worthy citizen of his country and community. The community comparable to this work among the children who have been deprived of their parents by suffering parents and an equal chance to grow to be worthy citizens. Partnership with the other children in their community. Parents are necessary because it embraces a hope and a value that only work among children can bring. It is the work that every man and woman in every province throughout Ontario can help in some way or other.

Some can help through volunteer work on local Children's Aid Committees, others by participating in the management of the Children's Aid Society—which is the legally-chosen democratic organization. Some can help by offering boarding homes for little homeless children. All can help by understanding just what the local Children's Aid Society is doing and trying to do and by using their influence in efforts to bring about even stronger laws and higher standards for child care in the manner purpose of the Province of Ontario.

Let us go back not much more than half a century and see just how the neglected and ill-treated child was faring at that time. Not only the poor, the well-fed children whose own children were enjoying every comfort and opportunity. How much thought was given to the little waif, the child of a bad home—who used to run the streets night and day selling newspapers or blacking boots, from the tender age of ten and even younger? What laws protected children? Cruel, brutal, drunken, depraved parents? What shelter was to be found for children with actually no homes at all, good or bad?

Do you know that in Canada, the United States and England the movement for the protection for children actually preceded the movement for the protection of children?

There was a good woman in New York—a Mrs. Wheeler—who one day heard the cry of a child from a poor woman dying of tuberculosis in a tenement and visited her. But when she sat by her bedside the dying woman said: "It is too late for me, but for God's sake, and as you can do for that poor little child!" Mrs. Wheeler, by law enlisted there under which parents could be prosecuted for cruelty to their own children! Finally she went to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and this gentleman, who was also a lover of little children, listened and between them they decided to establish the first charge of "cruelty to a human animal!"

The case was tried, publicity and this astounding case aroused public interest and sympathy and thus was initiated the movement for laws and institutions to protect children throughout the United States.

In the next article I will tell you how a group of humane people first met in the parlor of Toronto children under a common banner for protection of animals; and what happened when an effort was made to have a Winnipeg animal protective society extend its interest to neglected and ill-treated children whom no one had thought to protect.

Bantry News

On Wednesday evening the officers and men of the 34th Battery held their monthly sports night during which time a basketball team composed of batterymen from all Ilbert College played a 37 to 33 decision to a quintette composed of players from the remainder of the unit. These two squads are even in two games played.

Clear As Mud

Once again the sergeant was going over his instructions to a rather timid recruit taking his first turn of duty at a gate.

"Understand this!" he snapped. "If anything comes, you shoot."

"Yes, sergeant," replied the recruit, speaking in a tone of respect "and if anything shoots, I move!"

Personal News

Spr. George Reid son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Reid, 18 Green St., arrived overseas this week. Spr. Reid is attached to the Royal Canadian Engineers. He did in a recent letter home.

Able Seaman Vernon "Thom" Tyndall, R.M.C.S. "Ohsema", is enjoying a furlough at home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Pitnall, 84 Gordon St., after serving considerable action in the North Atlantic of a recent date.

Pte. Jack Henderson was added to the strength of the Argyll Light Infantry (Hastings) this week.

Lieut. Alex Cunningham, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Cunningham, 16 Alexander St., Belleville, visited the city this week en route to Sussex, N.B., where he has been posted with an infantry unit. Lieut. Cunningham graduated from the O.T.S. last summer and has been on leave following his graduation at Camp Borden. He is at present on loan to the British Army.

At the monthly meeting of the Sergeants' mess of the Belleville Garrison it was decided to hold a St. Patrick Night social evening at which time the sergeants from the Peterborough Basic Training Centre, will be guests. This feature is in reciprocation to the visit to the Peterborough Sergeants' Mess made to Peterborough by the local N.C.O.'s and their friends were royally entertained at the Peterborough Sergeants' Mess. Sergt. Ben Goodman was named chairman of the entertainment committee for the occasion.

Sergt. J. E. Nixon of the 34th Battery, is recuperating nicely from a fractured ankle he sustained in a recent sporting fracas. Sergt. "Nick" expects to be back for the odd game of hockey in the near soon.

Women's Army

Sgt. Muriel Robertson, of the C.W.A.C. Headquarters Staff of M. D. 3 at Kingston (Recruiting Staff), has been in the city this week assisting Cpl. Lois Pilkington of the local recruiting office staff.

Sgt. Robertson has recently returned from a coast-to-coast tour of Canada, during which she recruited with the C.W.A.C. Pipe Band, Drum and Bugle Band and three women's army musical units organized in Belleville and Kingston. Sgt. Robertson was here to assist Cpl. Pilkington in her recruiting campaign.

The C.W.A.C. still needs recruits urgently to replenish positions left when Canadian girls went overseas. Canadian Women's Girls from Belleville and the surrounding district can obtain any information regarding the C.W.A.C. at the local office daily (except Saturday and Saturday evenings when the office is closed) regarding the activities of the women's army at the present time.

Officers and members of the local branch of the C.W.A.C. realized the sum of $42.50 from their recent Sunday band concert in the City Hall. Mrs. Worthington expressed the thanks of the unit to the audience and to Trenton R.C.A.F. band. Of this sum $15 was given to the Navy League Canteen fund, the remainder to be applied in the provision of sports and recreational facilities for the use of the members of the armed services in Bowmanville.

The monthly sports night of the O.W.S.P. was held Wednesday evening when the girls took over the Armouries bowling alleys.

Sergt. Jack Murphy—"I wish to make a statement."

Father—"Do you drink, young man?"

Sergt. Murphy—"Thanks, but don't get this other matter settled first."

Things to Come

The colonel was a fastidious man. When he travelled he took not only his driver but his batman as well. Came the day when he went to Belleville. Arriving there, the corporal being a good soldier, jumped out of the car, opened the door and stood stiffly at attention. The colonel stepping out of the car, inadvertently stepped on the corporal's foot. The corporal, who suffered in his right foot from, accidently brought his knee up and struck the colonel in the south side of his leg. The inevitable court-martial had happened, drew back his foot and with a beautiful dropkick the same location.

Then the inevitable court-martial. The corporal explained his action. The private when questioned as to his duty said:

"When I saw the corporal kick the colonel, I thought the war was over."

His Majesty Visits Canadians

His Majesty King George during the week visited a Canadian camp and there saw many of the many of the thousands of Canadians who will have a part in the great onslaught upon Nazi Germany. The King met and talked with many of the officers, N.C.O.'s and men and was informed of details of training. His Majesty also met some Canadian nursing sisters on parade.

His deep personal interest in the troops who are the defenders of their country and Empire has endeared him to the British Empire nations and the members of the forces. They have known His Majesty's interest in every phase of the life of his people.

The King and Queen besides carrying the many great burdens of State have been tireless in their visits to every part of the realm, to the workers and the members of the forces. They know the British people as they are from their many contacts with them in so many varied callings.

Their Majesties have known the burden and sacrifice which war entails and they feel with all the people in their efforts and wards without the war and with their hopes and ideals.

In the King these Canadians on Thursday saw not only the symbol of the unity and continuity of British ideals and democracy and of the greatness of Britain's spiritual and material power but also that very noble man who is the head of the State and whose interest in the welfare of everyone of his subjects is so well-known. The visit of the King might be regarded as an unfolding of the vast program of British development down the ages of history to the present time and of the revelation of the future progress of British ideals of freedom and democracy in the world after the close of the present struggle.

To have been inspected by His Majesty is an honor which Canadian troops will always treasure as one of the great moments of their lives at a time when Britain and the other United Nations are opening the way for the beginning of an era of ever-growing democracy in the world.

H.M.C.S. Corvette 'Belleville'

Citizens of Belleville have reason to be proud of the loyal manner in which the campaign to raise funds associated with the sponsoring and adopting of the corvette Belleville of the Royal Canadian Navy to be launched at Kingston some time next month. About nine thousand dollars in all has been contributed in cash and gifts to the fund at a time when naturally there are many demands upon the people for so many worthy purposes. Not only will Belleville be proud that the citizens have done so loyally by the corvette but funds for the men who will man the ship will go down to sea in the new vessel Belleville when she joins the Canadian Navy to do service for the United Nations, will be proud to have been assigned to this craft.

Among the features of the recent campaign were the generous gift of weather jackets by Deacon Brothers Limited and employees, the library donated by St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E., and other equipment. The chairman of the committee, Mr. J. B. Boyce, the honorary chairman, Mayor Rollins, and the secretary and treasurer, H. D. Bateman, deserve the thanks of all the citizens.

The high honor of christening the ship will be the pleasant duty of Mrs. Rollins, wife of Mayor Rollins.

Belleville has supported well every effort for the services and the sponsoring and adopting of the corvette will be an emblem of the loyal support and co-operation of the people.

When the noble ship goes to sea she will be followed by the prayers and best wishes of Canada and particularly of the people of Belleville and with the words "God-speed" and "Bon Voyage."

Basic English Encouraged

An abbreviated vocabulary of English words, 850 of them, known and selected as a means of expressing oneself in "Basic English" will be encouraged by the British Government as an invaluable auxiliary international and administrative language. All the words will be within the bounds of Basic English. Many of the words in the rich vocabulary of Prime Minister Winston Churchill who made the announcement on Thursday are outside the 850 Basic English. He made it clear that it is not a substitute for the wealth of modern English according to established literary usage but as a supplementary means of communications.

There is not thought that anyone knowing a wide range of English will begin jettisoning the wealth of the British language derived from so many sources that are found together by the English tongue. But it is a help to those in the administrative service who are called away from where English is spoken and who can thereby come into contact with those of other lands whose knowledge of English is limited. So the difference of tongue may be bridged by means of Basic English. In the diplomatic service it will do well and those outsiders who learn it have taken the first great step to a much wider knowledge of the English language and English literature. The vista also opens up to a wider understanding of British ideals through understanding of something of the English people.

There is a fine range of possibility in Basic English for scientific and technical literature.

Anything that helps understanding serves and Basic English, Mr. Churchill feels, it will serve well in many fields.

Mr. Churchill will not of course limit himself to the 850 words because he can express himself clearly and magnificently in words of pure Anglo-Saxon origin or words derived from the sonorous Latin tongue of Julius Caesar and the old Romans and from the Norman-French languages.

Basic English would seem to open the portal to a wider knowledge of literary English especially for outsiders.

The Value of Art

(W. Somerset, Maugham, in "The Summing Up")

The value of art, like the value of the Mystic Way, lies in its effects. It can help only pleasurable ends and the spiritual that pleasure may be, is of no great consequence or at least of no more consequence than a dozen oysters and a pint of Montrachet. If it is to be justified it will enough; the world is full of inevitable evils and it is good that man should have some hermitage to which from time to time he may withdraw himself, but not to escape from, rather to gather fresh strength to face them. For art, if it is to be reckoned with as one of the great values of life, must teach man humility, patience, wisdom and magnanimity. The value of art is not beauty, but right action.

(London Daily Sketch)

The irritability induced by war nerves among people of Germany has been so pronounced that positive injunctions to be more polite have been issued by Dr. Goebbels.

I wonder what he would have thought of a charming conversation I overheard in a London bus and which, if courtesy is a sign of calm confidence in victory, would have shaken him somewhat.

A little old lady boarded by 19 bus. When the conductress came to collect the fare it transpired that she should have been on a 14.

"Oh, dear!" she said. "I'm afraid you will have to stop the bus and put me off."

"That's all right, lady," said the conductor. "Next stop will do, and you'll get a 14 there."

As he helped her off, she said, "It was very good of you, me—but you know I'm rather old, and I get things muddled. Still, if I hadn't made the mistake I should not have had the pleasure of meeting you."

"And it's been a pleasure to meet you, too, lady," said the conductor gallantly.

SOLDIER-WISH

If we at some grim task were kept,
As they on land or sea,
What dreams would find us where we slept?
What would our longings be?

I fancy none of us would care
To find the world made o'er,
But we should all be wishing there
'Twould be as 'twas before.

And coming home we'd hope to find
The little street the same,
The eyes of all we'd left behind
With the old light aflame;

The friends, the school, the drugstore gay,
The mother's garden small,
Our rooms, as when we went away,
We'd want to see them all.

Well, not for glories strange or new
At battle posts they stay,
But for the simple joys they knew
It seems—just yesterday.

Capital Closeups

Ottawa, March 11—(CP)—War has helped put Canadian business on a cash basis. The Prices Board has undertaken a survey of credit restrictions and, in connection with its consumer credit regulations and has found instalment buying in a decline.

The volume of instalment accounts department stores on June 30, 1943, was 62 per cent down from the total of June 30, 1941. Furniture store the decline was 54 per cent; jewelry 51 per cent and clothing 35 per cent. The 400 stores surveyed had more than $80,000,000 in accounts outstanding on June 30, 1941 and less than $11,000,000 on June 30, 1943. Cash sales in department stores were 75 per cent compared with 68 in 1941, while furniture were 61 per cent compared with 48 per cent in 1941.

In general the board regulations require a one-third cash down payment on credit purchases of almost all consumer goods and payment of the balance of the credit purchase from six to 18 months, depending on the type of article and the amount financed. Mortgage loans must be paid within one month of the end of the month in which the purchases are made.

MEMORY: C. W. Boyce, who acts as assistant clerk of the House, has a memory for faces that is the envy of every politician. When a division occurs in the House of Commons, he calls the name of every member who stands to show his opposition to proposals of the measure being considered. Usually there are between 200 and 300 names of more than 200 members, some of whom sit in distant corners of the chamber. Mr. Boyce knows the names are noted on a tally sheet by Dr. Arthur Beauchesne, clerk of the House, who, in 26 years of service, has seen hundreds of divisions and placed data concerning them on the record.

A Tribute

To the memory of the fine young airmen who died in the air when their plane crashed near Consecon Lake.

Theirs was not the thrill of combat
Nor the victor's glorious name,
But they gave their lives as bravely
In their modest, humble way.
Though far distant from the battle
Flying Death can overstay,
They were heroes as the bravest
Who have had to die!

In the nation's scroll of honor
We will find their names
For the cause of faith and freedom
They have died—these airmen bold!
Oh! how long must our young manhood
Die like these in life's fair morn?
Dear God, grant that right may triumph
And that peace may follow soon!

Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. L. G.

Ever try threshing on ice? What experimenting with the method, the pioneers of the Bay of Quinte district have managed to whip up more cakes of frost-bite than loaves of good wholesome bread. Sickles succeeded sickle—and was. Following instructions, the farmers cut their grain and a fairly smooth piece of ice, usually already there for skating, with their nearby to cut the wind. Having swept the ice, they carefully placed sheaves of grain on the cleared space. Then they unharnessed their oxen and hitched them their primitive sleighs and drove the animals around and around the sheaves over the grain, the idea being to separate seed from straw. Results were not entirely satisfactory; they were good enough for feed but not for seed.

The little pig that didn't go to market—but stayed home to play a prominent part on the farmer's table appreciated also as a frost-bite were. The early settlers got off to a good start with wholesome qualities slung to greenhorn newcomers, as well-known as they are today. "Keep some of the flare lining next your skin," was one of the instructions went on: "Bind the lining about the infected area (one hopes there will be no fester in no time!) and don't take the dressing off for the next week and be sure not even to wash up!"

If to the throb or frost-bite was added the ache of a bad toothache the sufferer had plenty of excuse for taking a holiday—and the head of the menage often took matters into his own hands; for it could be that he was the only male fellow when it was a matter of "making out a bill." At 37 the patient objected to this treatment, preferring to let the tooth be—and then make a trip to the dentist when the pain was applied forcibly. Powdered cloves answered in this role and speedily dulled the ache.

On Making Fine Liqueurs

(St. Thomas Times Journal)

To many people the Allied attack on Italy means the beginning of the hill dominating the strategic city of Cassino, famous for its delectable liqueur made there by the monks and name for the famous drink. It was founded by St. Benedict in the year 529—more than 1,400 years ago.

How long it is since the monks originally ceased making the famous cordial we do not know; but it is peculiar fact that although the secret of the making of the liquor of any kind—or at least to the public—is commonly known it has been noted for "inventing" and distilling liqueurs from many herbs, the contents and proportions of which are jealously guarded.

Potent liquors they are, too. A glass of Benedictine is more than a few sips, and any man who is tempted to indulge his thirst for it overmuch will find himself under the table, with probably a bad headache next day. Some of them are mild and delicious, and the colors of others will make one's eyes water.

Liqueurs usually consist of various kinds of spirit as a base, mixed with some aromatic substance, perhaps one secret of the monks lies here. It is supposed they were used by the ancients as medicine. While some liqueurs are named for the abbeys in which they are made, others derive their name from the district in which they are produced. They are made in many countries and cannot be successfully counterfeited.

There is a well known Scottish liqueur, the base of which is, of course, whisky, called Drambuie. This is made by the ancient Scottish family of Mackinnon, living in the island of Skye. The recipe is said to have been given to a Prince Stuart by one of the gentlemen who belonged to the bodyguard of Prince Charlie (Bonnie Prince Charlie); officials expressed gratitude for assistance given on many occasions by Canadian Army personnel during air raids.

Ancient Basket Weavers Make Parachute Packets

(Evening News, London)

When I met Mr. Harold Cooper, head of an ancient company of basket makers, I supposed he was "up from the country."

But I found his company and its ancients (for most weavers of willow, it is said, die young) have been a court off Charing Cross Road. Nearby were in the country, in the parish of St. Giles in the Fields, 300 years ago, and harvest money out of that ancient neighborhood. London grew and absorbed St. Giles, Marylebone, Tyne Fields, Lincoln's Inn Fields, and the rest.

What makes the basket makers interesting at the present time, however, is that workers in the craft are as many as old as the world itself, are weaving hampers as hard as their clever old fingers can drive for airborne supplies of the R.A.S.C. to be dropped to troops in action or partaking.

This is a recent development, but the trade, which is so ancient, is not that every basket maker in the country is using it. Some are making hampers for medical and surgical equipment; others are making packets of cane and willow which are secret.

It became evident that this country's crop of willow "rods" and whips would not suffice, and the trade warned the authorities line, was killed in a bomber in 1814.

whereupon the Supply Ministry said: "Leave that to us." Since it from Mr. Cooper that in little more than a fortnight they were receiving willow rods from the "furthest corners" of the earth and daily became "priority" in a war of science and machinery.

Willow is tough and the continuing power of basket-construction methods is proved by the use of those materials for certain purposes.

Parachutes used by the R.A.S.C. have two baskets; one fits snugly over the other, so there is room for two parachutes.

Parachutes check the rate of fall but 16 ft. a second is 16 per second and the hamper lands with a bump and the contents, so they say, "go to pieces" much. Equally important are the webbing straps which close the hamper. They must withstand the shock, and yet be capable of release in a couple of seconds, for the troops may depend for their lives on getting quickly at the contents.

Scott's name goes back to Bonnie Charles II's reign, when one William Scott was enrolled in the Worshipful Company of Basket Makers by virtue of his descendants are Mr. Cooper's brothers-in-law, Ewart and Harold Scott, both of Hampstead. Their father, Ernest Armstrong Scott, who carried on the family tradition in the direct

NUGGETS OF KNOWLEDGE

It is said that the Jewish synagogue has had a longer continuous existence than any other human institution.

James Froude, the English historian, wrote: "One lesson, and only one, history may be said to repeat with certainty, that the world is built somehow on moral foundations; that in the long run it is well with the right, ill with the wicked."

Early in the ninth century the classical Greeks to one of a body of water, and the Romans who watched on Jacchus, the god of wine. The satyrs were represented as having the feet and sometimes the legs of goats, budding horns and goatlike ears. They were supposed to be very lascivious.

Many of the words used to be known as "small cattle" in Britain.

To the ancient Greeks all nonGreeks were barbarians. The Greek term literally means speaking like a stammerer.

In ancient Rome if a debtor could not repay his loan within 30 days after it was due the creditor could keep him very short and expose him to public view; if nobody came forward to pay the debt within that time the creditor might sell the debtor into slavery or put him to death. In the event that he were several creditors they might cut the debtor into pieces and each take a share of the body, according to his part of the debt.

The ancient historian Diodorus say, that a Roman ambassador to Egypt died on the spot by the Egyptians because he killed a cat.

The Egyptian Nile has no tributaries.

Naturalists and philosophers in the ancient world believed that the reptiles known as salamanders could live in fire, destroyed, doubted that salamanders could withstand fire and he caught a salamander and placed it in the flames to put the peculiar belief to a test. The creature was sacrificed in the name of knowledge and science. Instead of breathing and extinguishing the flames it was itself consumed into powder by them. But philosophers went on believing as to why it was that salamanders were invulnerable to fire.

Red Cross Report For Jan. and Feb.

The regular monthly meeting of the executive of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society was held (on March 9th (Monday) with the president, Mr. M. P. Duff, in the chair.

The treasurer's report for February presented by Mr. Zeran, showed:

Receipts	$978.12
$1,000 was turned over to the Blood Donors' Clinic for their work.

Mr. Freeman, chairman of the financial campaign, now in progress, reported that sales results were somewhat disappointing. He stressed the importance of the project and expressed hope that Belleville Branch may attain its objective of $35,000. To do this the help of all citizens and corporations is needed.

Women's War Work.

The Women's War Work report for January and February followed: Thirty-five cartons of Red Cross supplies were shipped to the Overseas Headquarters in Toronto during January and February. Comprising this were 826 articles of clothing, leather vests, navy dungaree bags, layettes, quilts and hospital supplies, also air sleeves, gloves, turtle neck sweaters, hurricane suits, helmets, girls' sweaters, boys' knitted suits, afghans and bandages. In addition to these things which were donated to the Branch. These lately arrived, were packed in layettes and the packs assemble.

Work is constantly receiving word from Headquarters that stress the great need for knitted socks for sweaters, particularly the turtle necks for our sailors. They have requested that we must push the sweaters to the utmost. We have also the knitted sweater yarn for this purpose on account of the shortage of wool. We know that many women do not like to knit with wheeling wool. We know that we can refuse to take it. We believe however, that our Canadian women will rise to the occasion in view of the enormous demand for this type of knitted wool. It has reached the point where those who have been knitting with wheeling or take the responsibility of knitting with it, and those in the services will go without sweaters." The above is quoted from the report.

The Belleville Branch has every reason to be proud of the work turned out by its sewers and knitters, many of whom have given much work before. The tailoring and sewing on women's shirts, dressing gowns, coats and dresses, boy's shirts and windbreakers, has been very fine, as we see them. The knitting, with very few exceptions, has been done by those in charge of marking, tying and packing. This is a splendid job and wonderful work. We are very grateful to all who have made this possible.

Lillian E. Mikel, Chairman, Women's War Work Committee, Belleville Branch.

Jean Committee Report.

Following is a letter received from Jean Committee, Toronto:

The last shipment of jam for Britain from Ontario left the Toronto warehouse early in January, and this is a summary of the 1943 production:

A total of nearly 110 tons of jam has been manufactured in 1943, as compared with 121 tons in 1942. Only 2½ per cent of this total was rejected for overseas shipment, and most of this was quite satisfactory for sale to Hospitals, Clinics, and charitable organizations, or for distribution to the people's homes. Considering the difficulties and the heavy additional demands on the time of those who volunteer to make the jam, we feel that our quality is very good and very commendable effort indeed.

We wish to thank your branch for your very generous donation of jam this year. This is a splendid response and we know that it will mean a very great deal to those who receive it in Britain.

We hope to be able to count on your continued co-operation throughout the coming season.

Yours sincerely, Donaldson.

WANT FIED PIPER

Woodstock, March 10. (CP) — Woodstock is calling for a pied piper. More Premature Gray Hair

Susan Hayward has lovely auburn hair.

By HELEN FOLLETT

BEAUTY operators report that there is now a considerable amount of complaining about hair turning prematurely gray. The cure? Old Man War!

It is quite true that in wartime, just why, nobody knows. The cause is that strain, overwork, worry, loss of sleep deprive the hair of vitality.

Each individual shaft is like a glass tube. Tiny pigment cells inside the tube provide the coloring of the glass-tube. Under strain, they apparently take themselves off and the hair is white. Sometimes a shaft is white part of its length, showing the virgin coloring the rest of the length.

Checking Up

If you have noticed that silver threads in your thatch, check up on your living habits. Are you given to the worry habit? Then this can be corrected. Anxieties we all have, and sometimes we cannot help them. But worry is something else again. It is senseless; it is a weakness. It is ironing one's bridges before one comes to them.

Are you wakeful at night, getting up in the morning feeling like a grand old ruin, and looking it, too? Have a light dinner, read a dull book during the evening, make yourself relax. If you awaken in the night, turn over and say, Quite! Get a sense of tranquillity and you will soon sleep again.

Anything we do to stimulate the blood streams of the scalp will help. Shampoo often, brush the wool upon your head. Finish your shampoo with cold water that leaves the scalp briskly glowing. Give it a quick rub-down with a rough towel. It will be glad. If you're afraid that brushing will string out your gray, give yourself the benefit of the brush the night before the shampoo.

Avoid heavy setting lotions that are likely to dry the hair. Use only a little tonic, and ask your physician to recommend some peppy bathing vitamin tablets.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

On Wearing Mourning Clothes

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My mother is very sick, and the doctor says she cannot possibly live longer than a few weeks. May I ask you a few questions about clothes for mourning?

1. How long is it proper to wear black-and-white?

2. I work in an office. Is it proper to wear mourning in an office, or would black-and-white be correct?

3. Would my husband have to wear a black suit at the funeral, or would a dark gray suit be permissible?

4. Do sympathy cards have to be acknowledged?

Reader

1. Nothing in the world of conventions has changed more than mourning conventions. A generation or two ago the regulations for wearing mourning were most definitely prescribed, such-and-such a type of mourning for such-and-such a length of time, according to the relationship of the mourner.

But today it is left to one's personal choice as to whether or not one will wear mourning; and if worn, for what length of time. Many people do not believe in going into mourning at all. They feel that the color of one's attire has nothing to do with the sincerity of one's emotions; that it is more practical and sensible to wear the dark clothes one already has, that mourning clothes, with their lustreless, dull finish, are unbecoming, sure burden for the eyes and spirits of those with whom they come in contact; that it is more sincere and reasonable to indicate their real feelings in the respectful production of their lives, by what they do and how they do it, rather than by what they wear.

However, if the person in mourning feels that the wearing of mourning is a comfort in grief, a consolation in early contacts, that is the preference and decision that should be abided by.

On the average, a woman today her mourning consists of the simply designed black dress that can be worn so easy and practical to buy. She may, if she wishes, wear all-black for a few months and then lighten it with white goods.

2. Even if deep mourning is worn at other hours of the day, it should not be worn to the office, especially in wartime. In the office, a woman's dress with a touch of white at the neck is suitable attire. Also a suit of very dark gray or a mixture of gray and black is proper and very often worn by women in business.

3. Of course it is proper for your husband to wear a black suit to the funeral, but if he feels that it would be an unwarranted expense to buy one, and if he can't borrow one, it would be the way of economy for him to wear his suit of somber dark gray suit.

4. Yes. Every letter or card of sympathy should be acknowledged by a note of appreciation for the sender's thoughtfulness.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Educational Inequality Greater Handicap than Difference in Age

Dear Miss Fairfax:

At 26, I'm having my first love affair. The man I love is a soldier, 23 years of age and it's not only that difference which rules out marriage unsuitable, but other things.

I taught school since I was 21, and have been highly successful. So wrapped up in my profession have I been that I've never had a love affair nor even an admirer. At the "I" I met this young man who is strikingly handsome, of Norwegian ancestry, towering 6 feet 3, he's splendid looking to a degree. He would be foolish for me to describe. So-here was I in matters of the heart I didn't recognize what made me so happy, and then he told me he might be hired and wanted me to marry him.

It's strange that this boy has never gone beyond the fifth grade in school because he comes of Scandinavian people, and they always acquire education, and are acquainted with the finer things of life. He is highly intelligent. I don't know how well he speaks Norwegian, but his mixture of English is flawless. Grammar is non-existent for him and I'm worst of it is his utter indifference and his refusal to remedy his English.

Considering the difference in our ages, his love for me may not be the real thing, though he absolutely believes it is. It may be part mannerisms, and I'm willing to respect for my position. Be that as it may, I have told him that I would not consider marrying him unless he took advantage of what the government is now offering soldiers free. With my assistance he could certainly learn to speak a way that would not shame me. Your common sense in these problems impresses me. Shall I take a chance and marry this boy or not?

M. M. J.

You've probably observed that no marriage is ever successful in which a man feels himself inferior to his wife. Masculine psychology prohibits such an arrangement. If this stunning looking young man will not improve, which the government has to offer in the way of bettering out the deficiencies in English, I'm afraid your marriage will not prove very happy. But for the present don't give up trying to help him to improve his English.

BEAVER CLUB IS REAL HOME TO CANADIANS

Thousands of Fighting Men Overseas Revel in Home-like Surroundings Provided at Big London Centre

By MARGARET ECKER

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 10—(CP)—The big, lovely Canadian Beaver Club may have given his mother a good many headaches and kept him in hot water, but it's full of thinking about that same patient little woman when he is over here thousands of miles away from home. The Beaver Club in London, just off Piccadilly, can prove that.

Last year before Mother's Day Canadian servicemen sent more than $11,000 worth of cables home, and though a lot of them were good wishes at reduced cable rates. This Christmas season the total was $13,000 for cables home, most of them addressed to mothers.

Everything is something about the Beaver Club that gets men right down to the heart of things. It's big and friendly and the men usually feel someone from their own home town. In the reading room there are newspapers from all over Canada and towns and cities, and no one who hasn't been there can imagine what a comfortable paper means.

Then there's when the club celebrated the fourth anniversary of its founding, the King and Queen dropped in and said to me that they knew what the big, cheerful place meant to Canadians away from home, since it opened its door Feb. 10, 1940.

The institution, partially financed by the Canadian Y.M.C.A., is under the active management of Colonel Canadian directors in London, Lt.-Col. Ernest Bell, general manager, and senior supervisors are Mrs. R. A. Gaudin, Montreal, Toronto, and Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Swan, formerly of Pinnean, B.C.

There's always something doing at the Beaver Club. Usually the notice board in the lounge hall reads: "Sightseeing tours: 10.30 a.m., Queues of Londoners; 2.30 p.m. Tower of London; 7.30 p.m. Dance."

Eight Hundred Workers

The club has a voluntary staff of more than 800 workers, and the sightseeing tours, serve meals in the dowagerian cafeteria, or the big popular canteen that was wrecked by a bomb more than two years ago. Each week it is a post office, the information bureau, and at night, the theatre and dance and canteen for the parties, which Canadian servicewomen may also attend.

Before Canadian servicemen went to the Mediterranean more than 10,000 passed through the club every day. Attendance has now dropped to 2,000 daily because there are more than 26,000 during an average weekend. Beaver Club men are now away from home.

Up in the first aid room, Mrs. Alice Alden, formerly of Victoria, now a British Red Cross worker, was dressing a wound for a soldier on sick leave. She treats many men who have been stationed in London.

Next door there's a chiropodist who treats men from across the sea of charge and a barber shop where they get a shave and a hair cut for the equivalent of 16 cents. Most London barbers charge 32 or 48 cents.

Then there's the post office and doughnuts in the snack bar at all hours and the comfortable dining rooms they can get a meal of bacon and eggs for 40 cents, a great deal cheaper than the cheapest London cafe. The steak and fish salads so the club is one place in England they can get them.

Gifts Presented To Mr. and Mrs. Dyer

On Thursday evening a number of members of Grace Chapel and other friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. Sullivan, on Charles Street, for a farewell party to Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Dyer, who are moving next week to make their home in Picton. An impromptu program and a Bible quiz followed by refreshments, enjoyed by all.

Pastor E. A. Wicks made the presentation of gifts on behalf of the congregation.

Mr. and Mrs. Dyer still be greatly missed by their many friends both at Grace Chapel and at his place of employment, and will carry follow them for future blessing and success.

Evening Beauty

BEAUTY By Helen Jameson

Yukon, Sweet and Low

No doubt, my friend, you know a number of women whose voices are pleasing. They're nice people. You know others whose voices make you screech pop out of your head. They curl up your nerves and make them stink. They are a menace to the human race.

A gentle woman has a gentle voice, of that you may be sure. Loud women, unthinking women, have screechy ones. The well-bred woman couldn't shout any more than she could slap somebody on a party. Any reporter believes that seekers after charm do not give this subject enough attention. It is worth thinking about, because women, in a way, are judged or classed by their voices—how they use them, how they enunciate, how they say.

There are whole families that never speak to each other in a normal manner, they yell and shout. To sit with them at dinner is a sore trial to one whose ears are fastidious, and who believes that good manners are important. Their remark's seem to be meaningless. What's the idea?

There are other orders besides the loud-speakers. There are the mumblers, too lazy to make an effort to pronounce clearly. Rapid talkers, on the other hand, keep one on the alert to catch their meaning.

QUICK ON THE JOB

Accra, Gold Coast—(CP)—With its six months after the establishment of new policries in West Africa, 4,000 water-carts have been supplied for use of the West African Forces in canteens, hospitals, etc.

Some people can't seem to get started. They say "uh," "er," "um," before each sentence. Others have a habit of ending what they drive you crazy.

We don't like gum-chewers—Tom hold perfectly dutiful. How pretty your hair is. I'm crazy about your frock. It's the new fashioned one, but the gushers lay it on too thick. Some people are so insincere, and simple syrup all the time. Who knows what to say after a few well-worn bouquets?

Baby talk drives some of us into a frenzy. Among my acquaintances I recall a certain heavyweight, aged fifty or thereabouts, whom wherever she sat down to a meal, said she just had to save her "waistline." Wagners! She referred to her "little feeder," which were enough to nauseate nine shows.

The whining voice is disturbing. You know the kind of woman I'm whines. Her life has been sacrificed for others, or the hand of fate is always raised against her! As if to the hand of fate doesn't take good aim at all of us now and then! Her voice suggests that she is "put upon" by all the world. These women drive men to drink, and their children run away from home.

Whiners have whimpering faces, scanty tissues. Smart women, who speak clearly and correctly, have a better chance of success. Look around. You'll see.

Senior Interscholastic Cage Title Captured by B.C.I. in Fifth Game Against Albert

Red Townsend's Charges Click With Good Defence to Register 45-30 Win

ALWAYS IN LEAD

Leading from the barrier to the wire the Belleville Collegiate hoopsters won the Bay of Quinte senior C. O. S. S. A. Interscholastic basketball championship yesterday afternoon at Toronto by a 45 to 30 tie a fifth and final game at the Collegiate gymnasium yesterday, by virtue of victory the "Collegians" advanced to the semi-finals of the O. S. S. A. play-downs in Toronto later in the month.

It was a fifth and final game in the series, after Coach "Red" Townsend's charges and the Albert squad had battled at even terms for four previous games with little to choose from. However, in the fifth and deciding game the Collegiate quintette not only set up a strong defense, but raced through for a 27 to 22 lead in the second half and then ran amok to outscore Coach Pepper's Albert 18 to 7 on the last leg of the pastime.

Wiggins Strong on Defence

Wood, on the defense for the "crimson tide" played through for ten points in the initial half to put B. C. I. well in the lead. Then it was Hamilton and Mason in the second half who clinched the piece and the district conference title, as Ken Wiggins stood a tower of strength on the defense after the "collegians" rallied a substantial lead. Boyce and James played a lot of strong ball in the winners' attack, while Skipper Townend's entire squad went on the ball and kept any opposition well in hand. It was the belated fouls of Fulford and Plaxton for Albert that initiated any chances of even so much as coming close.

For Albert College Mackitosh and McLeod starred in the greater points, as the "red clad" Collegians hailed Albert's scoring ace, Jack Fulford, who was held to a single basket in the last half, after scoring four points in the initial frame.

In winning the B. C. I. "crimson tide" advanced to the semi-finals in the C. O. S. S. A. playdowns.

N.H.L. ENTERS FINAL WEEK

By The Canadian Press

The National Hockey League enters the final week of its 4 1-2-month schedule this weekend with a disposition of four Stanley Cup play-off berths apparently just a formality.

Montreal Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings already are safely inside the charmed circle. Chicago Black Hawks and Toronto Maple Leafs, second and third in the two brackets, can clinch things by winning their weekend engagements.

Leafs are idle twice, against New York Rangers at home tonight and at Detroit Sunday, while Chicago plays hosts to Rangers Sunday. Detroit plays at Montreal Saturday and the fifth weekend contender, Boston Bruins from Boston, whose Bruins still retain a 1,000-to-1 chance of ousting either Chicago or Toronto from the Stanley Cup series.

Bruins now trail Toronto and Chicago by seven points and must win all their remaining four games, while Leafs or Hawks go pointless, to qualify for the post-season round.

WHIZZERS DROP GAME TO ST. MIKES

By The Canadian Press

Hamilton Whizzers dropped the first game of their best-of-three semi-finals of the Junior "A" playoffs in the Ontario Hockey Association last night when they bowed to St. Michael's College 4-3 at Toronto. The return engagement will be staged at Hamilton Monday night.

Previously St. Mikes had disposed of Galt Kiltie when the Whizzers had whitened through Hamilton Navy in two consecutive preliminary rounds. The clash with the Collegians was the third fixture for Albert that included any chances of even so much as coming close.

For Albert College MacIntosh and McLeod starred in the greater points, as the "red clad" Collegians hailed Albert's scoring ace, Jack Fulford, who was held to a single basket in the last half, after scoring four points in the initial frame.

In winning the B. C. I. "crimson tide" advanced to the semi-finals in the C. O. S. S. A. playdowns.

37 TEAMS STILL IN RUNNING FOR PRINCIPAL PRIZES

Twenty-Five of Challengers For Allan and Memorial Cups in the East

HAMILTON ON TOP

By The Canadian Press

Despite military service restrictions on Allan and Memorial Cup competition, 37 teams still are in the running today for amateur hockey's two principal prizes. Twenty-five of the challengers are in Eastern Canada, 12 in the West.

The East actually has 13 senior and 12 junior clubs still in contention, but one—E. M. C. S. Cornwallis of Deep Brook, N. S.—will be unable to advance beyond the maritimes because of service regulations.

In Ontario, Hamilton Majors lead the Canadian Senior A-1 in a best-of-seven Ontario Association Senior final series which, if they are the winner to meet Frood Open Pit or Porcupine All-stars, whose best-of-three semi-final series stands at 1-1. Frood, in the Ottawa district, Hull Valleys and Ottawa Canadiens are tied one apiece in a best-of-three set.

Four senior teams still qualify in Quebec. Ottawa Commandos lead Montreal Navy 1-0 in the best-of-seven semi-final and Quebec Ace Aces hold a similar edge in the Province of Montreal.

The winner will meet the winner of a best-of-five series between Saint John Beavers and Truro Bearcats in the Maritime senior final. Saint John now leads the Antigonish-Truro-Dominion champions 1-0.

Four in Running in East.

Of 13 Eastern Canada junior challengers, four are from the Ontario district, with four from the Ottawa district, two from Quebec and three from the Maritimes.

Oshawa Generals lead St. Catharines Falcons 2-1 in a best-of-seven series for the Canadian junior crown. Toronto St. Michael's College or Hamilton Wildcats, who now hold St. Mike's 1-0 in a best-of-three playdown, in the Ottawa district. Inkerman Rockets will meet Cornwall in a best-of-three set while Quebec Citadels, Quebec, and one game down in their best-of-three series against University of Ottawa.

Montreal Royals and Montreal Concordia meet in the Quebec Junior final. Amherst Ramblers, allqualifying Maritime entry in Junior A competition, will oppose Sydney Arrows in the Canadian Army hockey playdowns through winning the championship of Nova Scotia. Games were going to be much tougher from now on, it was figured, and he wanted to be at the helm.

So great was the game's attraction, it brought FO. Gordie Nesbitt, down from Iceland as a spectator. A Montreal Big Four gridder of other years, Gordie got from his base for a rally with his pal, Jerry Smith. Smith, another McGill University great who was a big factor in the American defeat of Another unbeaten unlocked by Flt. Lt. Wally Shepherd, 39-year-old air gunner who flies for the Montreal Big Four club from the quarterback position for 13 years. A former ground crewman, Wally re-mustered to the air and made the grade despite his age.

There was much backslapping and handshaking in the Montreal dressing room after the game when Danny Gallivan, radio friend of they hadn't seen since Canada Day.

One of the meetings came when Maj. Eric Nicholls of Toronto caught up with Maj. Chris Mundell, of Kingston, Ont., who coached the army team. Mundell played with Queen's University back in the days of Pep Palmer and Harry Batstone. Both Nick and Chick are in the medical corps.

Up in the stands, Percy Nicklin watched as his son, Jeff, Winnipeg Blue Bombers outside wing, appeared a last-second forward pass on a "sleeper" play and scampered a few yards for a major score.

It so happened that Percy formed hockey coach who came to England several years ago, is assistant general manager of the war effort in which this "Tea Bowl" game was played. Jeff, a major with a Canadian parachute battalion, received last-minute permission to participate. His teammates had been training for two weeks.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By ALLAN NICKLESON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Finding most sports at a standstill unions were legion when a crowd of 30,000 stormed White City Stadium to see a Canadian Army football triumph, and just about the most important other there was Evergreen Teddy Reeve.

Teddy, pre-war columnist and rugby coach of pre-war years, Dinn Reeve sat—part of the time—on the touchline bench and followed the play with an eagle eye as the Maritimers, representative of Canada's greatest gridiron figures, swept to a 16-6 victory over the American Army Pirates. Another game will be played March 18.

It was just like old times for Dinn Reeve's Teddy. But for the army greatcoat he wore, he might have been coaching one of his great Queen's University clubs. There were some good players in the playing on the field, too, in Lieut. Nick Paithouski and S. K. Armstrong and Capt. Jock Graham.

Teddy got a great "bang" out of the match, though, and was all anxious to get back to his unit from this week-end pass in London. It seems that the unit—Maj. Canny Smythe's Sportsmen's Battery—advanced into the Canadian Army hockey playdowns through winning the championship of Italy. Of course, Games were going to be much tougher from now on, it was figured, and he wanted to be at the helm.

Toronto, March 11. (CP)—Red Dutton, the National Hockey League's gusting fight, thinks Lorne Carr's annual failing-off in form is due to over-training. "I wouldn't advocate this for any player less durable and club-loyal than Carr but the best thing he can do is go out, break training and get a few beers", Dutton told Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson.

At the same time Dutton said a club management entirely of Lorne Carrs would end all managerial worries. Red recalled that Lorne when he had with New York Americans, he had detective trailing two of my players and found they stayed out all night, every night, until 4 o'clock in the morn' of Lee's clock. All of a sudden the reports showed that the two were getting home every night at 10.30. I couldn't go for this modern reformation so I had a couple of other detectives on and found the players were out every night, the first two dicks and the whole four of them were getting properly stewed together, every night".

Upswing:

Bowling popularity is on the increase in Manitoba, which now has a total of 347 alleys, 120 in Winnipeg alone.

Fitful:

Lee Thrivell, a star with the Calgary Stampeders of the Alberta Amateur Hockey final in 1940, is a lieutenant with the army in the Mediterranean area. . . Manager Metras, Athletic director at University of Western Ontario, is leading a move to revive Intercollegiate football this year. . . Dick Irvin of Montreal Canadiens expresses the belief that Howie Morenz, Stanley Cup hero of the former Canadiens' centre wizard, will become an N.H.L. star in his own right. . . Pat Costigan, an outstanding halfback at the University of Alberta, is a medical corps cadet, now undergoing training at a "jumping off".

What's Doing in Sport

Taking a leaf out of the National Hockey League book with respect to arrangements for part-time players, Manager Ossie Orr of Hollyhocks, the Philadelphia Athletics of the American Baseball League will use Catcher Hal Wagner behind the bat when the club plays at home and nearby cities, it was announced last night. The rest of the time Wagner will serve as a war worker. It was pointed out that Manager Jimmy Outlaw of Detroit Red Wings and other N.H.L. clubs had made use of part-time workers in some games and the plan had worked out satisfactorily.

The Syracuse Chiefs of the International - Eastern League will take up an old-timer for the coming season in Horace M. Lisenbee, Dallas baseball writer and friend of league years who used to fan such sluggers as Shanty Hogan, Gehrig and Bob Meusel. For the last two years Lisenbee has been managing his farm at Clarksville, Tenn. but will come out of retirement March 15 when he reports to the Chiefs' training camp at Bedford, Ind.

Boston—(AP)—Goalkeeper Bert Gardiner announced last night he will complete the Boston Bruins Monday to return to Philadelphia to enlist in the U.S. Army Air Corps. Manager Art Ross said he would not name a successor. Bert Olmstead is in the Boston net for the balance of the schedule.

New York—(AP)— After disposing of the state of Georgia to win the New York version of the lightweight title, Fritzie Zivic, Pittsburgh Bob Montgomery announced last night he was "done" to go ahead with the next fight in the elimination series for the world championship crown. The latter said the N.B.A. lightweight title until last Wednesday when he lost it to Juan Zurita at Hollywood.

Port Arthur—(CP)—Port Arthur Flyers scored a smashing 10-4 victory over Port Arthur West Ends here last night to take the Thunder Bay Junior hockey best-of-five series three games to one. Flyers won the first two games by 5-4 scores and refused to finish the third game after they had a 6-goal cushion Thursday night. The Thunder Bay Amateur Hockey Association awarded the game to West Ends.

Hollywood—(AP)—It took Maxie Rosenbloom, Champion Lou Castillo just three seconds less than one minute to book out Florian Bibeau of Montreal, who claims the Canadian title, in a scheduled 10-round fight at the Hollywood Legion stadium here last night.

Toronto — (CP)—The Ontario Minor Hockey Association announced last night that Oshawa and Canadoque have been ordered to play a home-and-home elimination game in Belleville next Tuesday for the right to advance into the Northern Ontario midget semi-final. Other teams still in the running in the Quinte-Lake Ontario section are Kitchener, Stratford, Owen Sound, Toronto Young Leafs, Etobicoke, Toronto Young Leafs, Etobicoke, Toronto Young Leafs, Etobicoke

Horse Sensee Bridge

LESSON NO. 335

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A good bridge player first considers what may happen most often. That is his guide for playing any deal. Later, he may have to provide for something unusual. Meantime, he has his guide.

What happens more often than not with the cards in a suit held by opponents? If they have an uneven number, between them, the cards should be divided as equally as possible.

Thus, five cards in a suit should split three in one hand and two in the other. It will happen that way much more often than it will four and one.

You are south in the pair of partnership hands shown here:

SOUTH
♠ A 6 3
♥ A K 2
♦ A 5 4 3
♣ A Q

♠ K Q 3
♥ Q 9 7 3
♦ A K 7 2

You are trying to make a contract of six hearts. West leads the spade five. Dummy spreads. Plan now to take your needed 12 tricks.

Say to yourself: "I have no losers in spades or trumps; a sure loser in diamonds; a possible loser in clubs. I think I have one of the losers. The only hope of saving one is in clubs."

Opponents have five cards in each red suit. So, each such suit, you have a right to expect three in one hand and two in the other. If one has either four diamonds or four hearts, you are sunk.

Even if hearts and diamonds are favorably divided, you still have a problem. Because, hedge against losing a diamond trick, you have a chance of losing a club trick.

You must lose your contract without a struggle, unless the elements, but all signs indicate there will be lots of productions to choose from for many months to come.

Latest to announce its approach-ing end is the musical Jack-Pot, a rather disappointing hit by Vincent Freeley—who would've been better—concerning marines who win a girl in a lottery and don't quite know how to handle her.

The successful revival of "The Connecticut Yankee" is pulling out this week-end to begin a road tour, with Vivienne Segal and Dennis Day—and a few things like that were quickly chilled.

EARLY CLOSING: A month from now Helen Hayes will have to take a rest, and "Harriet," the play about the abolitionist, sister of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," Harriet Beecher Stowe, will have to close. Also Margaret Sullavan of the enormously successful "Voice of the Turtle" in a movie contract to fulfil during the summer and it is believed the play will be suspended until she can return.

Raymond Massey is leaving "Lovers and Friends" shortly for Hollywood. Henry Daniell will step up to the supporting cast to take Massey's place opposite Katharine Cornell.

NEW SHOWS: It is popularly supposed that the Theatre Guild has its hit in Maxwell Anderson and the Colonel" which will open at the Martin Beck Theatre next Tuesday. Lynn Fontanne, Alfred Lunt and Helen Hayes bring big moneymakers on names to the cast. Maxwell Anderson continues his melodious way and Rouben Mamoulian directs. Not still smashing all records for a Shakespeare run in New York with "Hamlet."

Other new pieces due soon are "Sleepy Time Gal," with Ethel Waugham's pen; "Dream With Music," Richard McKnight's latest work; "Chicken Every Sunday," based on the popular biography of the state prison warden into releasing several prisoners for trial work in a war plant; Blackie has to see to it that his wards come through. When Dudley Warner chooses another immediately and is then found in the company of his ex- girl pals of the underworld, one of who is quite obviously dead, from a bullet wound, Blackie's experiment seems headed for defeat.

It is at this point that our rascally hero, determined to have his plan go through, confesses to a murder he did not commit, and reports in-stead to the warden. Results in high-ly dramatic fashion as Blackie makes some bold moves to clear the innocent man and get a fugitive from justice himself makes his plan work darling.

"DANGEROUS BLONDES"

In Manhattan

By H. M. PETERS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, March 11—(CP)—Between the Lenten fall-off in attendance and the theatre-goer's preoccupation with the income tax several plays on Broadway are folding—now as the best money-making season in many years draws to a close.

Still other shows are losing one or more stars due to prior commitments, but all signs indicate there will be lots of productions to choose from for many months to come.

Latest to announce its approaching end is the musical Jack-Pot, a rather disappointing hit by Vincent Freeley—who would've been better—concerning marines who win a girl in a lottery and don't quite know how to handle her.

The successful revival of "The Connecticut Yankee" is pulling out this week-end to begin a road tour, with Vivienne Segal and Dennis Day—and a few things like that were quickly chilled.

EARLY CLOSING: A month from now Helen Hayes will have to take a rest, and "Harriet," the play about the abolitionist, sister of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," Harriet Beecher Stowe, will have to close. Also Margaret Sullavan of the enormously successful "Voice of the Turtle" in a movie contract to fulfil during the summer and it is believed the play will be suspended until she can return.

Raymond Massey is leaving "Lovers and Friends" shortly for Hollywood. Henry Daniell will step up to the supporting cast to take Massey's place opposite Katharine Cornell.

NEW SHOWS: It is popularly supposed that the Theatre Guild has its hit in Maxwell Anderson and the Colonel" which will open at the Martin Beck Theatre next Tuesday. Lynn Fontanne, Alfred Lunt and Helen Hayes bring big moneymakers on names to the cast. Maxwell Anderson continues his melodious way and Rouben Mamoulian directs. Not still smashing all records for a Shakespeare run in New York with "Hamlet."

Other new pieces due soon are "Sleepy Time Gal," with Ethel Waugham's pen; "Dream With Music," Richard McKnight's latest work; "Chicken Every Sunday," based on the popular biography of the state prison warden into releasing several prisoners for trial work in a war plant; Blackie has to see to it that his wards come through. When Dudley Warner chooses another immediately and is then found in the company of his ex- girl pals of the underworld, one of who is quite obviously dead, from a bullet wound, Blackie's experiment seems headed for defeat.

It is at this point that our rascally hero, determined to have his plan go through, confesses to a murder he did not commit, and reports instead to the warden. Results in highly dramatic fashion as Blackie makes some bold moves to clear the innocent man and get a fugitive from justice himself makes his plan work darling.

NATIONAL HOCKEY LOOP NEAR END RECORD SEASON

Attendance, Team Scoring and Other Records Likely to be Shattered

CANADIENS ON TOP

By HAROLD FREEMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal, March 11 —(CP)— Almost any way you figure it it looks like a record season for the National Hockey League.

Attendance, team scoring, individual point-getting and a variety of other league marks either have already been passed or seem in a fair way to being upset before the regular schedule winds up a week from Sunday.

Starting where the front office starts, unofficial compilations indicate there is every likelihood that come March 19, about 140,000 more persons will have watched N. H. L. games this season than last. And last season was the league's best on record, with attendance reaching 1,446,000.

Leaping figures won't be available until after the season ends, but the unofficial indications are that the total this year will be close to 1,600,000 or about 16 per cent higher than the record of a year ago.

The variety of playing records smashed or expected to be smashed is almost endless. Detroit Red Wings alone established at least 8 new marks during that hectic Jan. 23 night when they whipped Rangers 15-0.

Two Top Record

Montreal Canadiens and Boston Bruins have both topped the league's season-goals record, and Toronto Maple Leafs are at present equal with the old mark. The Canadiens have 205 goals with five games to go, and Bruins with four to go. Canadiens look to be a inch to establish a new high-mark total, needing only three points out of a possible 20 to top the old record of 77.

Canadiens have already set a league mark of 26 home games without defeat and possibly may go the whole season at home without defeat.

At the other end of the scale, New York Rangers and Boston Bruins are already far ahead of the former goals against record record of 194 in a season. The Rangers have 240 at stake with them so far, and the Bruins 230.

Individual scoring is somewhat the same. Herbie Cain of Boston needs only three points in four games to break a new mark.

Joe Malone's goal record of 44 in 22 games in 1917 won't be topped this year, but Elmer Lach of Canadiens has already set a new mark of 46 assists. Max Bentley of Chicago is also likely to break the 45-assist high established by Cowley in 1940-41. Syd Howe of Detroit set a new mark of six goals in one game at the time.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Ghost Breakers"

If advance reports can be credited, the new mystery-thriller, comedy-shriller, "The Ghost Breakers," which opens Sunday at the Capitol Theatre, transcends even its vastly popular predecessor, "The Cat and the Canary," in high entertainment values. The story tells of Paulette Goddard inheriting a castle on an island off Cuba, and the machinations of a desperate gang of villains as could be imagined, who try to prevent her from visiting her estate, and murder her into selling it. Bob Hope, as a radio commentator, who is always rounding up underworld characters and their rackets, is catapulted into the plot, and goes to Cuba with Paulette. Starting with a murder and several exciting and strange happenings on Paulette's floor in her hotel, the thrills come three aboard ship where more threats and warnings are issued, building to a thrilling climax that will come as a complete surprise to all who see it. Mel Brooks' Produced by Arthur Hornblow and directed by George Marshall, "The Ghost Breakers," features Richard Carlson, Paul Lukas, Anthony Quinn and Willie Best.

"If I Had a Million"

(All Star Cast)

If you had a million you couldn't buy a better picture entertainment. We're talking about the picture that figuratively of fans have asked to see again. One of the most enjoyable pictures ever screened. This added attraction "If I Had a Million" opens Sunday midnight at the Capitol starring Gary Cooper, George Raft, Charles Laughton, Jack Oakie, Charlie Ruggles, Alison Skipworth, Wynne Gibson, Mary Boland, Roscoe Karns, May Robson, Lucien Littlefield and Richard Bennett.

The Canadian Universal News completes the great double attraction.

AT THE McCARTHY

"THE CHANCE OF A LIFETIME"

That slick fellow Boston Blackie, still in the screen person of Chester Morris, opened today at the McCarthy Theatre. He's in the latest escapade or his adventurous career, Columbia's "The Chance of a Lifetime", according to reports it seems to be easily the most exciting of this colorful character's entire career.

In this version of the Boston Blackie series, Mr. Morris is assisted by several players who have become well identified with the character, and there are a few new names for added interest. George E. Stone as Blackie's pal, Arthur Margaret as his wealthy backer, Richard Lane as Police Inspector Farraday, and Walter Sande as the somewhat dumb sergeant McGovern, are in the regular lineup. The new names are Erik Rolf and Reed Hadley. Mr. Rolf, although well known for his fine work in other Columbia pictures, makes his bow to the Boston Blackie series as Dooley Watson in "The Chance of a Lifetime". Jeanne Bates is appearing on the screen for the first time in this, although she has gained a reputation as a radio and stage actress.

Mr. Hadley as Blackie trying out a bold experiment and he is forced to take over as a criminal mastermind in order to prove his theory. After talking the governor and the state prison warden into releasing several prisoners for trial work in a war plant, Blackie has to see to it that his wards come through. When Dooley Warner chooses another immediately and is then found in the company of his ex- girl pals of the underworld, one of who is quite obviously dead, from a bullet wound, Blackie's experiment seems headed for defeat.

It is at this point that our rascally hero, determined to have his plan go through, confesses to a murder he did not commit, and reports instead to the warden. Results in highly dramatic fashion as Blackie makes some bold moves to clear the innocent man and get a fugitive from justice himself makes his plan work darling.

"DANGEROUS BLONDES"

When a dazzling dame sticks her nifty nose into a mess of murder—it's "her" fault, of course! You'll scream with cold chills — as Evelyn Keyes and Allyn Joslyn — a crime-cracking couple, step in where angels fear to tread! Here's a triple-threat monster mystery loaded with laughs and suspense!

The "Dangerous Blondes", latest Columbia comedy-mystery which shows murder in the ominous shadow of a photography studio, and promises laughingly slung as dazzling blondes and motionless situations fill the screen with thrills!

The Columbia Picture is presenting "Dangerous Blondes" as their second feature attraction now showing. The excellent supporting cast includes Edmund Lowe, Frank Craven, Anita Louise and John Hubbard.

THE LITTLE DOG BARKED

by ANNE ROWE

CHAPTER 4

I stood up straight again, said hurriedly: "Run along home now, dear, pie. Tell your master to send 4 big fellow next time," and walked on.

But the spirit was gone. He came with me, low trotting at my side, now running ahead with joyous yelps and coming back when I called him, until I stopped at the gate where he had rushed at me.

"This is where we part, Mr. Spitz," I told him firmly. "Go on in home—wait!"

The dog whined in answer. Stood at the gate, one paw raised questioning for a moment. And then was beside me again. So close I was afraid of stepping on him. Nuzzling me, barking, whimpering. It was as if he were trying to tell me something.

Someone did it for him. A little nearer the theatre, I heard old Mack's voice hailing me from a barnlike building in back of it, the scenery shed.

"Hey, Miss Turner!" he called, coming towards me through the high grass, boisterously welcomed by the little dog. "Glad to see you make friends with Stray."

"Whose dog is he and who lives in the big house with the ramblers?" I asked him as he had rushed over the spitzian din.

"The Fausens. But they don't own him. He only goes visiting there," old Mack said, fondling the dog. "Nobody owns Stray. Or maybe I do, good's anyone. He got left here by some actors, I reckon, staying. That's why I call him Stray. Wasn't nothing but a puppy then. Miss Kilborn don't give him to me outright, case them people come back for him. He's a good dog. Worth real money. I feed him and wash him. I'll be same, and come fall I just take him along."

He stooped like a boy at the door. "Good boy, Stray! Stick with Mack and Miss Turner. That's the way. Now, explained to me: "He's a great barker. May come in handy for you some time. That's, I reckon—you know who I mean—with cook up-stairs. Don't like strangers, Stray and Ada are very kind to me. Wouldn't have found out so soon what I'm up against without your help."

And he said: "Aw, that's nothing, ma'am. Glad to oblige them that's on the right."

Then I walked on. Past the inn and toward the Fern Cove, with Stray trotting zealously and dainty beside me, now that he was my appointed protector.

I'm afraid my thoughts weren't on the little dog, or the little old man who had ordered him to stay with me, at least, only in so far as the dog and the man were connected with the Parnell case.

The Parnis could had tried to make fun of me by setting Stray on me. That is, the younger Parnis could. The figures on the porch by the little dog. "Glad to see you make friends with Stray."

"Whose dog is he and who lives in the big house with the ramblers?" I asked him as he had rushed over the spitzian din.

He's a good dog.

"Go ahead I have no right to object," I told her. "He isn't my dog. His name's Stray, and he's a loan. Object: barking at intruders, and keeping me company at the door. "Good boy, Stray! Stick with Mack and Miss Turner. That's the way," she explained to me: "He's a great barker. May come in handy for you some time, I don't, I reckon—you know who I mean—with cook up-stairs. Don't like strangers, Stray and Ada are very kind to me. Wouldn't have found out so soon what I'm up against without your help."

Bill To Set Up Industrial Development Bank After War Has Trouble in House

G. G. McGeer Critical of Measure Being Money Reform Enthusiast

SHARP REMARKS

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 11. (CP) — The Commons' most yesterday was mainly high flowing with a slight side dish of McGeer-C.C.F. politics.

The Bill to set up an industrial development bank with resources of $100,000,000 to help industrial financing after the war had its troubles during the day. G. G. McGeer (C.-Vancouver Burrard), money reform enthusiast, said in a critical speech that it would be called on to lend when others refused.

"This bank could never succeed", he said. He said he favored the bill being sent to the Commons Bank and Commerce Committee for examination, but added that he believed Canadian development should no longer be hampered by banking controls such as those which would continue under the proposed new bank. He said he would suggest in committee that the bill be abandoned and a substitute found.

Liberal and C.C.F. members trade sharp remarks in discussion of the C.C.F. policy in respect to agriculture in British Columbia.

Earlier this week, Capt. Walter Tucker (L.-Rosthern) said that a report in the Vancouver Sun on the Provincial C.C.F. convention in April, 1943, had indicated the C.C.F. favored collectivization of farming as in Russia.

Liberal members protested that T. C. Douglas (CCF-Weyburn) was out of order as he proceeded to quote a letter written to the Sun by a C.C.F. official declaring the report about collective farming "not true".

Mr. Douglas read part of the Provincial CCF policy of Agriculture until he was checked by Deputy Speaker Joseph Bradette and told to keep to the subject before the House—the proposed new bank.

Claims Right To Reply.

After the dinner recess, J. Gordon Ross (L., Moose Jaw), speaking amid protests from C.C.F. members, said the C.C.F. party had found that farming sections did not like socialization of land "and they are trying to get away from it".

Prudence Minister Mackenzie said that Mr. Ross had the right to reply to Mr. Douglas and M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said his party reserved the right to make a future reply to Mr. Ross.

The bill survived a motion by Victor Quelch (N.D., Acadia), that it be postponed until after review of the Bank Act, expected this session. His amendment to the motion for second reading was defeated by 104 votes to 32.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King said at the opening of the House sitting that he protested against earlier statements by New Democracy leader Blackmore which indicated that the government was influenced by sugar companies in its wartime policy respecting that commodity.

King Says Blackmore Wrong.

Mr. King said Mr. Blackmore was wrong both in his "alleged facts" and in "his innuendoes". John W. McConnell, president of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refineries Ltd., whose name was mentioned by Mr. Blackmore, in 1939 had offered to place the company's plant unreservedly at the disposal of the government in the event of war.

(Mr. Blackmore, speaking in the Commons last Tuesday, said he thought the quantity and price of sugar had been influenced by "a sugar trust or combine" in which the St. Lawrence Company was "one of the dominating units".

(He said suspicion would be allayed if the prime minister would categorically state that the Liberal party had at no time received contributions from the company or Mr. McConnell.)

Remarks Unwarranted Claim.

Mr. King said the New Democracy leader's remarks were of an "irresponsible and unwanted" nature and tended to destroy faith in the government and parliament at a critical time.

Mr. King said the suggestion made by Mr. Blackmore was that because contributions were made to the campaign funds of political parties the members of the party were unworthy of holding public trust.

"What is pertinent, and what, I recent very deeply, and so far as the Liberal party is concerned, deny most emphatically, is the suggestion that the present government of Canada, or any member of it would betray its trust at the instigation of any corporation, any special interest or any individual."

Prompt action of the government in controlling sugar in the early stages of the war had made it unnecessary to accept Mr. McConnell's offer of taking over the company's plant, he said. The company had co-operated with the government fully and without any benefit beyond the payment of pre-war prices for sugar.

Apples to Canada Packers.

Mr. King said his position with regard to the St. Lawrence company applied equally to Canada Packers which T. C. Douglas (CCF.—Weyburn) had mentioned in an interjection in Mr. Blackmore's remarks.

Mr. McGeer said the proposed new industrial bank would be a part of the Bank of Canada and it was hard to conceive of Graham Towers, as governor of the Bank of Canada, going into competition with the chartered banks he was supposed to control.

Something like the United States Reconstruction Finance Corporation was needed in Canada instead of the proposed bank. The new bank was to be financed by a loan of $15,000,000 from the Bank of Canada, and then bonded were to be sold. It would thus be partly publicly owned and partly privately owned.

Bank Bill Commendable.

"Here we have what the Minister of Finance (Hon. J. L. Ilsley) has repeatedly said is inflation of the kind that would blow the lid off," Mr. McGeer continued.

Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House leader, said that the industrial bank measure, "weak and feeble as perhaps it is", was commendable. It should be supported at least to the extent of being referred to the banking committee, where it could be studied in detail.

Angus MacInnis (CCF.—Vancouver East) said he agreed with Mr. McGeer on the importance of the bill. It was the first of the measures mentioned in the throne speech brought before the House, but if other measures forecast in the Throne speech were no better the government program was "indeed a barren one."

In 1943, 10 chartered banks had assets of $4,800,000,000 almost four times as much as the assets of 28 banks in 1911, said Mr. McInnis. In other lines of activity there had been similar concentrations and extension and it could not be expected that small business would flourish in the face of monopoly.

"We are Socialists, we are proud of it," said Mr. McInnis.

We are going to be in the not distant future in a very large company."

Arthur Slaght (L.—Parry Sound) said some features of the measure caused him "grave concern". He said he proposed to discuss them fully in the banking committee and wanted the bill to receive the most careful consideration the House could give it.

AWARDED SHIELD

Port Erie, March 10 (CP)—When Pat Nunn, county game warden, landed a 22-pound, four-ounce, wall-eyed yellow pickerel from the Niagara River last summer, he made sure to substantiate his claim by immediately measuring, weighing and photographing his prize catch. His thoroughness was rewarded this week when Forest and Stream Magazine awarded him a shield for catching the largest fish from a fresh water stream in 1943.

Toronto, March 10.—Edvard Benes, President of the Czechoslovak government in London, said last night the people of Europe would "learn a lot" by following Canada's example in the war. Benes said in an address recorded in London and broadcast on the CBC's "War Roundup" that Canada provides an excellent example of the way in which "the destructive struggle between nations can be replaced by co-operation, peace and general well-being."

A great engine doing a great job

AS ALLIED ARMIES push forward their offensives in various parts of the world, Canadian military motor vehicles continue to play an important part in the transport of men and supplies. Along the rim of North Africa they carried a large part of the advancing Eighth Army. Over shell-torn roads and through deep mud, they carried the main weight of the Canadian advance in Italy, and a large proportion of the British Eighth Army as well.

In this gigantic transport undertaking, Ford-built cars, trucks and universal carriers have borne a substantial share of the load. In Canada, too, Ford buses have played an important part in solving wartime transportation problems. The power plant which drives these Ford vehicles on the home front and on the fighting front is the Ford V-8 engine.

At home and abroad, the Ford V-8 Engine is famous for its smooth, surging power and rugged reliability. It is a thrifty engine, economical of gas and oil, and it keeps on eating up the miles with the very minimum of care. In war or in peace, it's a great power plant. Certainly it's the engine you'll want in your post-war car.

RED ARMY WITHIN 30 MILES OF NIKOLAEV

Black Sea Port A Main Objective In South Russia

Germans Reported Retreating in Panic Before Red Drive Into Odessa Prov.

CAPTURE PRIVOLNOYE

Moscow, March 13 — (AP)—The Red Army pushed deeper into the area of the swollen Ingul river today to within 30 miles of the Black Sea port of Nikolaev, one of the major objectives in Southern Russia.

Reports said that the troops of Gen. Rodion Malinovsky's third Ukrainian front reached the Ingul after a swift thrust southwest of Novy Bug, crossed to the western bank of the stream and captured settlements including the town of Privolnoye.

Previously, the dispatch said, the Russians repulsed a counter-attack by a regiment of German infantry and tanks on the east bank of the Ingul southwest of Novy Bug.

The newspaper said the number of prisoners was increasing hourly and that Germans in some cases were surrendering in groups. One captive was quoted as saying morale was extremely low, ammunition short and weapons poorly disciplined.

Troops carried a similar report from the second Ukrainian front where the Red Army was driving on from Uman into Odessa province. "The Germans were reported retreating in panic."

Tough Fighting at Tarnopol.

At Tarnopol, unmentioned in last night's communique, the Russians appeared to be on the edge of another fighting since the Red Army began its westward push on the Polish corridor approaches said. The German drive a mighty force including armored units and infantry, was launched into the desperate battle for the town.

Disregarding their losses, the Germans were reported in a dispatch to the army newspaper Red Star, still fighting fiercely for every hilltop, stream and road in the Tarnopol sector where a decline in the breakthrough would threaten the entire German avenue of retreat from southern Russia.

From this stricken area to the Black Sea the Russians sought to capitalize on German disorder by driving westward. Today's issue of Pravda said the Russians already had reached the Bug river between west of Kazatin and that the Germans were in such panic they failed to blow up a bridge.

The German communique declared the Russians had attempted to storm across the river southwest of captured Uman but had been repulsed.

In the battle of the Russian offensive southern offensive, the Soviet communique said, 9,000 Germans were killed Sunday, bringing to more than 60,000 the number killed in eight days on that front.

The bulletin said other Soviet troops captured Dolinskaya, junction of the railway running south to Nikolaev, another important Nazi river and rail base on the road to Black Sea. The Russians last were reported within 35 miles of Nikolaev itself.

JAPANESE BASE AT WEWAK DEALT CRIPPLING BLOW

Gun Positions Wrecked, Fuel Dumps Fired and 26 Planes Downed

OTHER ATOLLS TAKEN

Allied Headquarters, Southwest Pacific, March 13 (AP)—United States Army Air Forces squadrons dealt the Japanese base at Wewak, New Guinea, a crippling blow in several weeks with a 130-ton bombing Saturday, leaving gun positions wrecked, fuel dumps afire and shooting down at least 26 planes, headquarters said today.

Heavy and medium bombers, supported by fighters and attack planes struck Boram airdrome and the Wewak area and Japanese coastal base. They downed 26 planes for certain and five probably out of about 40 Japanese interceptor fighters. Other aircraft were destroyed on the ground. Two attacking planes failed to return.

American invaders pressed on Los Negros Island in the Admiralty group yesterday and strengthened their positions while Allied aircraft bombed Lorengau and Momote airdromes, destroying Mams Island, to the west, the Allied communique said.

Troop-Laden Barges Sunk.

Two troop-laden barges were sunk by Australian Beaufighters off Cape Hollandia, on the northern tip of Willaumez peninsula. These planes also bombed and strafed Japanese soldiers who were isolated when the American Marines moved from Talasea to Talasea, or reinforcements intended to attack the line.

Allied aircraft also bombed and knock-out blows on Rabaul, the Japanese base in New Britain, with a 91-ton bombing Friday, causing fires and explosions in the supply storerooms and waterfront.

In the Central Pacific, the blood-red Marshalls, another stolt Wotho, was announced at Pearl Harbor today.

Wotho, directly between Eniwetok and Kwajalein Atolls, which United States forces took last month, was invaded by a fleet supporting Army unit and a detachment of marines.

Reactions of Londoners to Raids Differ According to Personality

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 13 (CP)—The Jerries are back here again, just as the authorities have been saying they would be.

So far, they haven't come back in force (since midnight tonight) even approximating the hills of 1940-41 but they are coming over in small numbers in such incomfortable for everybody, fatal for some and today for all.

But the civil defence authorities are organized as they have never been before and those emergency services they've built up since the big blitzes were through, are handy things.

It doesn't take much of a raid these days to empty downtown streets. In the second attempt by the Nazis to fire London in three days (the first was Saturday, 11:30-20) subway stations were crowded as they weren't in the heaviest 1940-41 days.

Still, on buses taking the folks to work next day there were a lot of people who said: "Wan, I didn't get back 'til 7. I slept through it all." Which means they are getting used to it, and the sound of London's barrage, from the noise point of view, is startling even for war correspondents back from the Italian and Libyan battle scenes.

No two people react to the barrage in quite the same manner.

When the sirens went recently a little old wrinkled woman, bustled into the Civic Branch, bought herself a beer and retired to a corner muttering to herself. Finally she burst into full voice: "Ave the guns started, dearie! 'Ave the guns started!"

They hadn't. Over and over she repeated this same thing. Perhaps she was no mistaking the thunder of the barrage as it rolled across the city.

"The guns," she screamed, clutching her beer, "the guns. Now we'll all be killed."

Nobody was. Not near her anyway. But that's how a lot of people feel about this tremendous ack-ack barrage that London throws up and sometimes you can hear shrapnel clattering down on roofs and in the streets.

The other view comes from two char women treading home from their pub through Sunday night's blackout after the all clear siren had gone and with sound of aircraft overhead. Came the sharp bark of nearby guns and the flash of shrapnel bursting. Then in the darkness you could hear one of the women shouting:

"Give 'em the guns. Now we're safe. I don't like them aircraft, but I love the guns. Now we're safe. Give 'em hell dearies, shoot them bleeding Nazis."

TRAVEL BANNED BETWEEN ISLANDS IRELAND, BRITAIN

Restrictions Imposed By Britain to Balk Espionage of Agents Working in Eire

EISENHOWER'S REQUEST

By WILLIAM SMITH WRITE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 13 —(AP)— The outright closing of Northern Ireland's border with Eire to give full effect to the suspension of travel between the islands of Britain and Ireland was to go into effect today.

All reports from Belfast, North Ireland, said talk was rife that the British government could order the evacuation of all persons not connected with the war effort.

The Allies moved with hard realism to end what they called a haven in Eire as an Axis spy base. Certain other steps, of a nature not yet ready to be disclosed, may also be taken.

All travel except in cases of greatest urgency was suspended between Britain and Ireland by Brendan Northern Ireland Minister, by a British Home Office order in effect from midnight. Eire's Prime Minister, Eamon de Valera, announced his refusal to accede to the United States request that German, Japanese and Axis diplomatic offices in the country be closed.

Requested by Eisenhower.

The request, made from an urgent request by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, allied supreme commander, who was said to have information that Axis representatives in Eire were using it as a convenience to military security.

The British Home Office said: "Where it connects with the host of other measures which Sir John Anderson announced in the House of Commons this morning" two-thirds empty.

Instead of the usual Monday morning rush there was only a handful of passengers many of whom were doubtful that they would be able to get back although they were using tickets issued before the travel ban was announced.

Speak Against De Valera.

Protests at the train-mainly laborers—spoke against De Valera. "He's a fine one to talk about Germans in Dublin for!" asked Michael Lenehan of Dublin. "Germans in Dublin for!" asked Michael Lenehan of Dublin. "Germans, I never gave anything to Ireland and never will."

The Belfast dispatch indicate that Allied moves were likely to extend to the evacuation of economic sanctions against Eire. British sea going slow, leaving the ports of Eire to the United States because of the ancient feud between Irish and Irish over other practical considerations.

Allies Resume Assault On Military Targets In Northern France

London, March 13 (CP)—A small formation of Canadian Typhoon fighter-bombers attacked military targets in northern France today said allied, though no opposition from enemy aircraft was encountered, two of the bombers were lost.

They were escorted by fighters, the announcement said.

British Mosquito bombers attacked unspecified targets in western Germany without loss.

A formation of unescorted United States heavy bombers hit enemy military installations in the Pas-De-Calais region of France Sunday.

All the big aircraft returned home from the foray, their second in as many days, without loss against 60 planes along the invasion coast. The accomplishments underscored the allied growing air superiority.

Throughout yesterday's round trip flight of approximately 400 miles, the Germans offered no fighter opposition.

Fort of Hamburg Hit.

The mission followed the eighth night blow of the month by R.A.F. Mosquitos, two wooden bombers hit the bomb-wrecked port of Hamburg Saturday night for the first time since Jan. 21. One plane failed to return from this and a companion attack on unspecified objectives in western Germany.

Gestapo raiders in England Sunday night said Augsburg's 150-ton M.A.N. 2-4-cylinder engine works—Germany's largest—were extensively damaged by allied attacks late in February. Hardly a factory escaped damage, the night said, in the United States, Brig-Gen. George McFarland, director of intelligence for the United States strategic air forces in Europe, estimated today possibly 3,000 allied planes attacked Nazi targets in one day last month. That was the greatest number of aircraft ever put into the air against Germany, he said.

BRITISH FORCES TAKE BUTHEDAUNG NORTH OF AKYAB

Lord Mountbatten Scores Series of Successes In Arakan Sector

TANKS IN ACTION

New Delhi, March 13 —(CP)— In a series of British successes including the occupation of Buthedaung 20 miles north of Akyab, on the coast of Bengal port of Akyab, was announced today by Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's Southeast Asia Command today.

To the front Buthedaung, Rathedaung and Maungdaw, British troops also forced the rapacious Mayu range of the Northern Hill feature, from hills between Rathedaung and Buthedaung and from the Maungdaw-Razabil area to the north.

"During the past few days other troops have been making a series of local attacks in the Buthedaung area and after occupying that village on March 11 they have further strengthened the position in this area by clearing the enemy from high ground to the north and east of the communique said. "During this fighting our troops have been supported by tanks. Many enemy casualties were inflicted on the enemy and as in the Rathedaung area quantities of ammunition and equipment was captured."

Water-Borne Raids.

Further water-borne raids on enemy defence works in the Kaladan plain south of Maungdaw also were announced, which across the Mayu Peninsula to the southwest of Buthedaung West Africans captured another village on the Kaladan river Kyaukiaw.

In North Burma, Chinese and American forces, continuing southward along the main road to Myitkyina, have advanced two miles in 24 hours and reached a point five miles south of Kamaing, it has been seven miles south of Walawbum where the Americans recently established a road block trapping about 2,000 Japanese.

The American and Chinese were within about 11 miles of the southern edge of the Hukawng valley and preparing to drive into the Mogaung-Kamaing area, the communique said. The Japanese 18th division, retreat from the capture of Singapore, had been largely destroyed by the North Burma operations" led by tanks.

50,000 MINERS RETURN TO WORK 40,000 STILL OUT

Those Refusing Want Government to Meet All Demands in Full

SITUATION CRITICAL

London, March 13 —(CP)— The week-end strike of 100,000 miners which is estimated to have cost British industry 2,000,000 man days is slowly breaking up today with early reports indicating almost half of the men back at work.

The situation as a whole, however remained critical as miners who voted yesterday to return to their jobs refused to go until next week this morning after meetings at the pit heads. The shutdown still was complete in some areas.

A fuel ministry official in Wales said that there was "no doubt that we are unable to make up the loss of production in the number back at work. "We will not have a proper picture until later in the day."

Welsh Miners Split Over

The back-to-work movement, which followed a split vote Sunday in the Welsh coalfields ended the strike, enabled most of the idle miners to return to their jobs today. A return to work were miners in the largest colliery in South Wales, Cwm Colliery with 2,000 employees.

Pit-head holdouts also included virtually all the 8,000 miners in the Rhondda valley and more than 4,000 in the Tredegar valley in Monmouthshire.

To Review Situation.

Welsh union officials met today to review the situation and to plan the next steps after their meeting agreed to the miners yesterday to return to the pits. The leaders emphasized in their talks to the miners that the government has agreed to many of their demands and that only a few remainder are to be studied.

A further effort to end now—the strike has been costing Britain about 400,000 man days a week. Appeals to the United Nations into a "desperate situation on the eve of the invasion" were issued by union leaders declared.

Arthur Horner, President of the South Wales Miners Federation, said the situation still must be regarded as very serious, declaring those now out would "cause a canker which would spread to Welsh."

1,750,000 Australians In Forces or Engaged In War Industry

Canberra, March 13 —(CP)— Of Australia's working population of 2,500,000 men and women, 1,750,000 are in the forces or doing war work, Edward J. Ward, Australian Minister, has disclosed. At the beginning of the war the manpower directorate had provided employment for about 90,000 discharged servicemen.

Two Enemy Supply Ships Attacked and Sunk Off Spanish Coast

DULL GROUND FIGHTING

Naples, March 13 — (AP)—British Beaufighters on subs attacked an enemy supply ship off the Spanish coast, driving one to the beach and leaving the other sinking, it was announced today.

A Berlin broadcast by the propaganda agency Transocean official information Bureau claimed the attack was "in violation of international law." It claimed nine British Beaufighters took part in the attack on Feb. 26, he said.

An Air Ministry announcement Sunday night said Augsburg's 150-ton M.A.N. 2-4-cylinder engine works—Germany's largest—were extensively damaged by allied attacks late in February. Hardly a factory escaped damage, the night said, in the United States, Brig-Gen. That was the greatest number of aircraft ever put into the air against Germany, he said.

An Air Ministry announcement said last night set off London's warning system for the first time since late Wednesday, but there was no immediate report of any damage or loss of life. Axis enemy raid Saturday night destroyed two houses and killed several persons in a southeastern coast town.

Ottawa, March 13 —(CP)—Wing Cmdr. Ralph Christie of North Bay, Ont., will report to No. 8 Air Observers' School at Rivers, Manitoba, Que., Mar. 17, to become Chief Supervisory Officer of the school, it was learned today.

Christie, who at 25 will be one of the youngest officers commanding an air school in Canada, will succeed Wing Cmdr. Frank Pollock of Montreal, whose new post could not be learned immediately.

Pollock now is at Malton airport near Toronto studying administration.

152 Square-Mile Island Used as Nazi Submarine Base

Operation Led by American Officer Announcement Says —Bitter Fighting

COMMANDO RAID

London, March 13. (AP)—Yugoslav Partisans have captured the Port of Pucisce on the northeast corner of Brac Island, off the Dalmatian Coast, Marshal Tito's (Josip Broz) headquarters announced today.

Brac, a rugged 152 square-mile island, lies 10m miles southeast of the Port of Split and has been used in the past as a submarine base. The announcement said the operation was led by an American officer.

The action, announced in the war bulletin broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio, again turned the spotlight on the Dalmatian Islands. The Berlin radio asserted last week that British and American Commandos led by a "Gen. Churchill" had landed on Lissa Island in the Adriatic.

The Yugoslav communique said that "considerable enemy forces were locked in battle with the German garrison" on the island, which is a group, and that on the mainland heavy fighting developed on scattered fronts from Ljubljana in Slovenia southward to Banja Luka.

60 P.C. Objective Of Red Cross Has Been Reached

Toronto, March 13 —(CP)— Reports received up Saturday night in the Canadian Red Cross Society's $10,000,000 national war fund drive, $6,000,434 or 60 per cent of the national objective, the Society said today.

The current total was achieved in the drive's remaining days in the drive, which opened Feb. 28 and ends March 25.

Receipts by provinces, with percentages of quotas, were: Prince Edward Island $50,000 (100); Nova Scotia $268,000 (67); New Brunswick $200,000 (63); Quebec $1,585,227 (60); Ontario $3,041,000 (53); Manitoba $350,000 (43); Saskatchewan $150,000 (43); Alberta $293,000 (47); British Columbia $491,207 (61); Yukon $5,000 (71).

The Society made public a statement by Lt.-Col. W. J. Gage, honorary National C. G. F. Leader, in which he said: "I join with others in urging all our people to give generously to the appeal of the Red Cross Society for nation-wide support."

Lt.-Col. Cotswell said he hopes the Society's $10,000,000 quota will be reached next week.

Nazi Commanders Relieved of Posts

London, March 13 —(AP)— Two German commanders on the Russian front—Field Marshal Gunther von Kluge, commander-in-chief of the centre and Field Marshal Georg von Kuechler on the northern flank—have been permanently relieved and replaced by commanders who are strong Nazis, and not from the junkers generals' caste, a usually-reliable informant said today.

Von Kluge, who was temporarily replaced some six weeks ago, now apparently has been written off the active lists, possibly because of wounds, necessitating his retirement, said this source.

Information from Germany said Von Kluge was removed personally, presumably by action of Partisans behind the lines or from Russian sources. Von Kuechler, ago he was replaced permanently by Gen. Ernst Busch, who was promoted to Field Marshal for the new post.

Von Kuechler was replaced by Gen. Walther Model—reportedly because of "the stress of the campaign."

Both Busch and Model are regarded as strong supporters of Hitler's commanders. Both have come to the front lately.

The command which Busch has taken over, Army Group North, represents a 300-mile front from northern White Russia south through the Baltic States.

Von Kuechler's command was created in 1941 ago he was replaced by Gen. Walther Model—reportedly because of "the stress of the campaign."

Suggests Restriction Amount of Money U.S. Soldiers Spend

Sydney, Australia, March 13 — (CP-Reuters) — Judge Redshaw, presiding over a court here on men found guilty of assaulting an American Army Staff Sergeant, said today:

"United States Army authorities should take steps by restricting the amount of money their men can spend."

He added that by their excessive spending power they were causing trouble over the distribution of controlled goods such as tobacco and drink.

Prime Minister John Curtin turned down in the House of Representatives on March 9 such a suggestion made by Senator Fadden, opposition leader, that he should negotiate with the United States government to limit the spending power of American soldiers in Australia to an amount equivalent to the Australian rates of pay.

Yugoslav Unit Swears Allegiance To Marshal Tito

By EDDY GILMORE
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

With Yugoslav Partisans in Croatia, March 13 (AP)—A Yugoslav unit, equipped by the Red Army, swore allegiance today to Marshal Tito, the Partisan leader, and declared itself ready to march under his banner.

It is a tough-looking group, mostly seasoned fighters who have served in German labor battalions on the Russian front, the Italian army, the Hungarian army, or in the Yugoslav army.

In talks with many officers and men I found not a single one who expressed any desire to fight for King Peter. Almost to from several times of his own accord, they asked so far as they were concerned that was their concern, and the while King Peter might be a nice fellow "there in the palace for a monarchy any more in Yugoslavia."

Two Enemy Supply Ships Attacked and Sunk Off Spanish Coast

DULL GROUND FIGHTING

Naples, March 13 — (AP)—British Beaufighters on subs attacked an enemy supply ship off the Spanish coast, driving one to the beach and leaving the other sinking, it was announced today.

A Berlin broadcast by the propaganda agency Transocean official information Bureau claimed the attack was "in violation of international law." It claimed nine British Beaufighters took part in the attack on Feb. 26, he said.

An Air Ministry announcement said last night set off London's warning system for the first time since late Wednesday, but there was no immediate report of any damage or loss of life. Axis enemy raid Saturday night destroyed two houses and killed several persons in a southeastern coast town.

Every Factory Hit.

An Air Ministry announcement Sunday night said Augsburg's 150-ton M.A.N. 2-4-cylinder engine works—Germany's largest—were extensively damaged by allied attacks late in February. Hardly a factory escaped damage, the night said, in the United States, Brig-Gen. George McFarland, director of intelligence for the United States strategic air forces in Europe, estimated today possibly 3,000 allied planes attacked Nazi targets in one day last month. That was the greatest number of aircraft ever put into the air against Germany, he said.

TANKS IN ACTION

New Delhi, March 13 —(CP)— In a series of British successes including the occupation of Buthedaung 20 miles north of Akyab, on the coast of Bengal port of Akyab, was announced today by Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's Southeast Asia Command today.

To the front Buthedaung, Rathedaung and Maungdaw, British troops also forced the rapacious Mayu range of the Northern Hill feature, from hills between Rathedaung and Buthedaung and from the Maungdaw-Razabil area to the north.

"During the past few days other troops have been making a series of local attacks in the Buthedaung area and after occupying that village on March 11 they have further strengthened the position in this area by clearing the enemy from high ground to the north and east of the communique said. "During this fighting our troops have been supported by tanks. Many enemy casualties were inflicted on the enemy and as in the Rathedaung area quantities of ammunition and equipment was captured."

Water-Borne Raids.

Further water-borne raids on enemy defence works in the Kaladan plain south of Maungdaw also were announced, which across the Mayu Peninsula to the southwest of Buthedaung West Africans captured another village on the Kaladan river Kyaukiaw.

In North Burma, Chinese and American forces, continuing southward along the main road to Myitkyina, have advanced two miles in 24 hours and reached a point five miles south of Kamaing, it has been seven miles south of Walawbum where the Americans recently established a road block trapping about 2,000 Japanese.

The American and Chinese were within about 11 miles of the southern edge of the Hukawng valley and preparing to drive into the Mogaung-Kamaing area, the communique said. The Japanese 18th division, retreat from the capture of Singapore, had been largely destroyed by the North Burma operations" led by tanks.

Toronto, March 13 (CP)—A re-200,- tax levies for the year decreased by $1,819,000 to $115,000,000 or 1.76 per cent below the 1943 total, Ontario Municipal Board reviews, however levies for education which are collected direct by the Province, showed an increase of $268,000 to $16,000,000 that levies other than for education were reduced by $2,087,000.

Tax collections totalled $115,284,-000, representing 104.4 per cent of the current levy of which 90.0 per cent was collected in 1943 and 14.4 per cent arrears. This compared with $118,018,000 or 107.2 per cent current and 17.3 per cent arrears collections.

At the end of the year gross debentures stood at $246,420,000 or $26.16 per capita, a reduction of $2,689,000 and $9.41 respectively from 1941.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

POLICE CYCLES QUIET

Activities were rather quiet and somewhat below normal, and district police circles over the week-end. The only incident of importance was the theft of a motor car, which was reported only routine speeding. Two motorists and a cyclist were fined for violations during the week-end. Two motorists and a cyclist who had been charged with driving while under the influence of liquor were fined in their respective districts. The sole complaint received at the police station call box was a disturbance on the Bridge road, Bridgewater, on Friday.

"We must like our company," remarked one police official as the reporter was leaving.

'SPUDS' DELIVERED TO WRONG ADDRESS

Some person went without their good old helping of "spuds" over the week-end.

On Saturday evening residents at 103 Chatham street, Belleville, saw a ten cent city police that a bag of potatoes had been left at that address by mistake.

It is presumed the potatoes were destined for the next door with delivery to be made later. In some manner the bag apparently got one answer and delivered the potatoes to the wrong address.

KNOCKED OFF BIKE BY LARGE DOG

While cycling along East Dundas street, yesterday morning Mr. Campbell, 81 Murney St., was attacked by a large dog and knocked off his bike sustaining a back injury as the result of crashing to the pavement. Mr. Campbell reported the incident to city police and added it was not the initial occasion of the dog's unprovoked attack on pedestrians during the past few months.

SALES AVERAGED $33 PER MINUTE OVER 4-HOUR PERIOD

Some kind of a record for farm auction sales was established Saturday at the farm sale of the late J. R. Thompson, Rawdon township, when sales averaged over $33 per minute were continued for a four hour period. Cream sales at the auction amounted to slightly over $8,000, it was stated by the auctioneer.

Following the brisk demand by district farmers for good milch cows were the prices for which milkers in the Thompson herd sold, although not approaching the record seven cow sold from $175 to $225 each, which Stanley Bellerville, was heard over Station WGR in Buffalo, on Saturday afternoon. The fourth number of the herd at the fourth consecutive day varied amateur program featuring vocalists, instrumentalists and novelty numbers.

Several breaks ago she appeared on the WGR Sunday afternoon amateur concert and was successful in being voted as the first prize winner making her eligible for yesterday's show broadcast. She was heard in a classical number and was well-received by her radio audience.

Wing Cmdr. Says Allies Now Have 'Definite Edge'

Ottawa, March 13—(CP)—Growing Allied air superiority and attack with noticeable signs of weakness in German strength are significant trends in the skies over Europe today, Wing. Cmdr. Lloyd Chadburn told a Parliamentary committee here Monday.

With a score of 14 enemy planes and a D. S. O. and Bar and D. F. C. Chadburn is home to help sell the Sixth Victory Loan. He will leave here tomorrow to visit his home in Montreal and then go to Mrs. T. A. Allen at Aurora, Ont., and then make a cross-country tour of the Dominion before returning to Britain and action.

Hr Deadly Air war was a uniformity in the class of fighter pilot being turned out under the air training plan and the lad making their first combat flight today were better "about the same" as those he started out with three years ago.

"But with them all there was a definite edge," he said. "We don't meet the same experienced guys we used to but a couple of years ago." He said the scoring rate in the early days of the war was about even but now days "we have a definite edge."

Pte. P. Harrington Returns Home From England

Trenton, March 13 — Returned on Saturday after more than four years overseas Pte. Peter Harrington was welcomed home by his parents, Miss Clara Harrington, 142 Main street.

He enlisted from Kingston and quickly qualified for the medal on completing satisfactorily the First Division. His one regret is that after nearly 30 months in Sicily and Italy he must part with this medal.

Pte. Harrington, unfortunately was not able to bring home with him "old will regret of the men" his comrades were left behind, but he did say he had taken to hospital them to spend the remainder of his time in the sunny Italian climate, conditions followed keeping him in hospital for a time. Illness just a month ago to some home. While recuperating he whiled away the time by doing some sentiment needle work, much of which he sent home to his mother and sister. Some of the artistic display by the local Red Cross.

Tell of Kindness of English.

Pte. tells some interesting tales of the kindness of the English people to the Canadian boys over there. In this words Pte. Harrington to tell of the kindness and generosity of the Canadian Red Cross. While they were on intensive manoeuvres in England, he said, the Red Cross were able to bring to the soldier outfit of knitted garments, pyjamas, etc., to every man in his unit and these were greatly appreciated by the boys personally as they thought of the labor of love behind this work done by the Canadian women, some of them wives, mothers or sweethearts of the boys overseas. Pte. Harrington said, "While in hospital," he said, "representatives of the Canadian Red Cross visit him personally several times during each week bringing with them cartons of candies, cigarettes, etc." Even at one time he was in receipt from one kindly Red Cross worker of a box of fresh raspberries (last Nov. 3rd) and a cake. Incidentally that date happened to be his birthday. This was personally unknown to the lady in question.

Dense Through Red Cross Work.

The medal unit which he accomplished in hospital was all done through the Red Cross. The boys are permitted to buy the materials with which to work and these are patiently taught by skilled teachers and the work carefully inspected before the boys are allowed to send it out from the hospital.

While the rates of prices have been steadily on the rise, Pte. Harrington states the Red Cross has become so well organized in every detail, that the original prices for the knitted wool and needlework is gradually decreasing until now the boys are getting their work-knitting in any respect. Though this kind of work is done by the hospitalized, he stressed the fact, that unless both were the case many of the boys' work and the teachers would find themselves with piles of partly finished pieces. If, however, the soldier pays from a sense that he is eager to see that his money is not wasted.

Pte. Harrington's other articles sent through Red Cross however, he made clear, such as knitted garments, etc. were gifts from them.

During his uneventful trip home he said the Red Cross were on hand on the ship too, to help the boys in any way possible.

Following a well-earned month's leave at his home here Pte./Hairington to be report at Kingston.

Pte. Harrington has two brothers and one sister, Mrs. Hallace Charles and Jim, both of whom were overseas on the same boat and one of whom has already been twice wounded. A sister, Lillian, is Mrs. Harrington is a war worker here.

Accident Averted.

What might have been a very serious accident was narrowly averted on Friday at 10.30 by John Bonfoco, employee of Miss Bonfoco gasoline truck, owned by the Cooper Lehigh Coal Co. of Oshawa, was delivering gasoline to the Dundas Street and as he slowed down for the traffic signal as the intersection of Dundas and Dufferin streets. The truck was fully complete with tire and rim, rolling past him at a fast rate. He immediately wheels had become detached and the truck ran down the street without kept going. The wheel kept rolling along and crashed into the front of a car owned and driven by Fred E. Simpson, Downey Street. Peterborough, Ont., who was proceeding west at the time. The force of the impact tore off the grill, bumper and right front fender of the Simpson car. Fortunately no one was injured.

Ungraded Syrup Will Sell Here For $2.40 Per Gal.

District farmers interested in syrup making had their first opportunity to see the newly adopted "colorimeter" by which all maple syrup offered for sale this season must be graded, when they attended the seed growers' convention at Shire Hall on Saturday afternoon. The syrup grading demonstration was conducted by E. Lynn Pair, agricultural representative for Hastings, who brought to the meeting the complete equipment supplied to him by the department.

According to a recent announcement by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, all syrup this year will be sold on grade basis and farmers who fail to have their product properly graded, and to mark their containers accordingly, may lose as much as one dollar per gallon.

Perfected in Quebec, the colorimeter consists of a wooden frame in which there are four screw-capped bottles. The first bottle is empty. The second contains a sample of "Canada fancy" syrup; the third "Canada medium" and the fourth "Canada dark". The sample brought by the producer is placed in the empty container and graded according to the other three samples.

According to W. P. T. B. officials in Belleville the price of syrup for the consumer this year will be $2.40 per gallon, including seven-cent-per-pound tin container, for ungraded variety, while the graded varieties will be sold at varying prices up to $2.80 per gallon for the "Canada fancy" grade. "Canada light" grade will sell at $3.15, "Canada medium" at $2.90, and "Canada dark" at $2.65. If the producer is under the bills the prices for the various grades will be 25 cents per gallon less than the prices quoted above.

Officials of the Department of Agriculture will be responsible for seeing that syrup is properly graded when sold by grade. The fruit inspector's office at Belleville also has a colorimeter for grading syrup.

Surface Water Nearly Floods Filtration Plant

Sunday evening's rather unexpected rainfall which combined with exceptionally mild weather quickly melted snow with a resultant rush of surface water from the bay, necessitated some rather quick action on the part of members of the Belleville Fire Department and plant maintenance men when the water filtration plant on Trent Road was in danger of flooding.

Surface water running toward the bay was caught in an open ditch running from the newly constructed water reservoir to the filtration plant with the result that the pumping plant began to flood. The fire department was called and went into action with the city pumper and A. R. P. pumper with the result that danger of flooding was eliminated. Pumps were in operation from six o'clock Sunday evening until about four this morning.

Work necessitated by the completion of the water reservoir and its connecting water mains with the filtration plant was directly the cause of the trouble. The ditch which was dug for the purpose of installing the connecting water mains with the surface water following the open trench to the filtration plant.

All units of the off shift on the fire department were called back to work when the firemen were called in the emergency and remained on duty for the balance of their off period. This is the second time within a few months that the entire fire fighting personnel has had to remain on duty over Sunday. The first occasion was at the time assistance of the local department was given at the Napanee fire.

Prompt action by the department prevented damage to pumping house equipment by flooding with the result that no machinery or other equipment was put out of order.

Men of British Merchant Marine Are All Civilians Doing Wonderful Service

(By J. L. Hodson, in The London Spectator)

Britain's merchantmen have been in the war from the beginning. The war was not a day old when the Donaldson liner "Athenia" was torpedoed and sunk with a loss of 112 lives, 19 of them members of the crew. From that time the war at sea has never for a moment ceased; it is unlikely to till the end is reached.

You can meet Masters of British ships who will tell you that the last war was a picnic compared with this. That is largely true; the U-boat packs—up to 30 and 35 —were a new idea; so were the dive-bomber and the torpedo-bomber. Often the merchant ship-tain got away from Britain's shores in the last war he felt comparatively safe from submarines; he doesn't feel safe today, and sometimes he is.

Yet it is possible to meet Masters who have sailed through the whole war and to read for across the Atlantic or down to the Antipodes time after time, and seen nothing. Luck is a curious thing, and the Merchant Navy. The title is so honourable that one is apt to think that Britain's Merchant Navy is an entity like the Royal Navy itself, and that it springs into being and to active warfare as easily. Yet that is not quite so. British merchantmen are privately owned by probably over 300 different men or companies. The ships themselves range from a 20,000-ton "Queen Elizabeth" (the world's fastest and largest liner) to small coasters and colliers and tugs. (The "dirty British coaster" with a sail-and-smoke-stack" is at the heart of them.)

It is true that they are all, high and low, on war work, but control of them is exercised by Britain's Government was accomplished by stages spread over a few months. The merchant officers and seamen are civilians, and like to be. Even full-blown captains arrive in port and are wearing trilby hats before you can say Jack Robinson. A too rigid discipline or too much spit and polish would not, as a rule, the seaman's choice. There are even those among them who prefer the title Merchant Service to Merchant Navy. Moreover, not all serving the Red Ensign are British. Of the 30,000 Indians and 10,000 Chinese and a number of West Africans take their place on Britain's ships—and in important place it is.

It is well to remember these things when we think of Britain's merchantmen and of their magnificent achievements. It is well, too, to recall that among the ships sailing with the British Merchant Navy, doing the same dangerous tasks in and out of convoy, are those wearing the flags of America, Norway (nearly 40 per cent of the tankers in the North Atlantic are Norwegian), Holland, Belgium, Poland, Greece, Russia, Yugoslavia and Free France. In addition, ships belonging to Sweden and Denmark are working for the Allied cause. On some of those ships the British officers are sailing and when the requisite number of gunners for the weapons used against submarines and aircraft is not available, British gunners go aboard.

The merchantman's guns today are formidable. Many a Master of a young ship—especially if she is on the Russian convoy—feels he has not a moment to spare. Earlier, the old-time anti-submarine 4-inch gun in the stern has quite often been supplemented by a couple of 12-pounder, and by various rocket devices. Now, to make up today's convoy can be such that the guns either time, and seen nothing. Luck is a curious thing, and the Merchant Navy. It is well, too, to recall that among the ships sailing with the British Merchant Navy, doing the same dangerous tasks in and out of convoy, are those wearing the flags of America, Norway (nearly 40 per cent of the tankers in the North Atlantic are Norwegian), Holland, Belgium, Poland, Greece, Russia, Yugoslavia and Free France. In addition, ships belonging to Sweden and Denmark are working for

What we remember less, because it is less colourful, is the Merchant Navy's solid work and results. Every convoy that safely reaches port is a battle won, yet little is said—for excellent reasons, no doubt—of most of these quiet victories. In periods when the Battle of the Atlantic has been at its height convoys have crossed and seen nothing of the enemy. Against any individual ship being hit on any single voyage the odds have always been large. Of the total number of convoys one cannot speak with any certainty—Coastal Command announced several months ago that they have escorted well over 5,000, excluding those of single ships and naval ships.

As to what British ships have done, they have done all; for Britain's life is built on the sea, and without the sea Britain is nothing. A typical mixed-cargo ship has brought across the Atlantic wheat, lumber, aluminum, cheese, trucks, steel alloy, chemicals, electrodes, guns, flat and tank parts. Once to Malta, took, in addition to aviation spirit, cement, maize, wheat, flour, whiskey, tobacco, corned beef, bales of cloth, guns, shells, lorries and aeroplane parts.

To the Middle East, by the longest lines of supply in history, Britain's merchantmen have carried supplies totalling millions of tons, and on voyages that took three months. They moved west from Suez with the Eighth Army and they moved east from Gibraltar with the First Army.

At least one ship sailed along the North African ports so fast that it was in its port before the Army or R.A.F. had arrived there. If the First Army was the best-fed army the world has ever known, it was British merchantmen who made it possible; if the Eighth Army lads, wedded to tea, "brewed up" with the zest and frequency they did, it was to the seamen they owed—and generously gave—their thanks.

British seamen brought the last demolition parties out of Rangoon, they brought the engines and rubber out of Singapore right up to the final moment, they had their own adventures ashore both in Greece and Crete—in Crete they formed parachute patrols. As prisoners of war, some have leapt from trains crossing Germany and made their way to England, and have told here of their life on German raiders, and (one of them) of a brief hour or two's life on a U-boat.

The men and their ships have done wonderful things. And yet, perhaps, it is not so strange. Because for seven centuries or so after England became a state its trading ships and its ships of war were mostly one and the same. It is no new thing, then, for merchant seamen of the British Isles and Commonwealth to become warriors (12,000 of them went straight into the Royal Navy when war broke out in 1939), nor is it strange that men have gone back to the sea in this war after long years ashore, or that a ship's boy of 15 or so burst into tears when told he couldn't sail to Murmansk (he did, all the same), or that Masters of 70 have run the gauntlet of bombs and torpedoes in convoy.

For, if there is one thing thus of British folk, it is that the saying "the sea in his blood" can be used of a host of them. And since they have long built good ships, should

Russian Army Successes Create Many Interesting Possibilities

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

Nobody can give a reasonable guess to the question as to when the war in Europe will end until we have the solution to the Russian mystery—when the Allied invasion of Western Europe is going to take place. That's the key—barring a long-drawn-out war of attrition between morale. However, the Red Army's sensational successes in the Ukraine have created some mighty-interesting possibilities.

Certain developments have indicated every one coming to fruition in the Ukraine, which threatens to destroy part of Nazi Marshal Von Manstein's army and drive the rest of it back to Rumania. Then we have the Anglo-American allies a chance to choose whether they will strike early, or wait until Russia's spring is past and the steppes are again suitable for all-out operations. Indeed, the Russian successes may so cripple the Fuehrer's organization in Russia that he will be indefinitely prevented from moving enough troops to France.

As a matter of fact, the Nazi dictator will be lucky if he doesn't suffer a huge disaster in the Ukraine.

As the battle is now developing it wouldn't be surprising to see Von Manstein compelled to abandon defence of the southern Polish border and devote his energy to defending the gateway to the Balkans. This presumably would force the Nazis to abandon their entire line by pulling it back to Central Poland.

This is one of the decisive engagements of the war.

Wind Prank Forms 'Snow Doughnuts'

Listowel, Ont., March 13—(CP)—A strong wind and wet snow combined recently to form freakish "snow doughnuts" in the fields around the Perth County town. The wind formed the wet snow into little balls which grew to three feet in diameter as they whirled along. Then they got too heavy to roll any farther, they stopped. The wind blew holes through the centres and there were the "doughnuts."

ADDRESS BY POPE PIUS WILL BE BROADCASTED

New York, March 11. (AP)—Bells of all Rome's churches will peal for 10 minutes Sunday morning immediately preceding the appearance of Pope Pius XII on the balcony to speak to refugees from Southern Italy on the fifth anniversary observance of his coronation, the Vatican radio said last night.

The Pope will speak at 10.30 a.m. E.D.T. The ceremonies will be broadcast by the Vatican radio on wave lengths of 50.26 and 30.06 metres starting at 10.10 the announcement said.

THE Miracle of Radio TOOK FORM

ABOUT 1922 came the dawn of a great new era in communications and entertainment. Suddenly the public awakened to the great new possibilities of radio. In just a few months, radio became a part of everyday life.

The Canadian Nickel industry, with its mines and plants still partially idle because of loss of wartime markets in 1918, saw an opportunity to find new markets for Canadian Nickel in the growing radio industry.

Soon Canadian Nickel was playing an unseen but vital part in millions of broadcasting and receiving sets throughout the world. Another step had been taken in rebuilding the markets for Canadian Nickel beyond their wartime peaks.

Today Canadian Nickel is again devoted to war purposes and again the industry looks to the future with confidence. Plans are ready to develop and expand old and new peacetime markets, so that the Nickel industry may continue, through its own initiative and enterprise, to make still greater contributions to Canada's welfare.

Berlin's Fate

Berlin, the capital of Germany, escaped easily in the First World War, but the Berlin of the Third Reich, the centre of Hitlerite and Nazi aggression and war lay ties and will be waste in ruins for the years to come.

Hitler started it all September 1940, the Allied Nations have bested Hitler's air force and knew how far to build and they have built well. Dust, ashes, rubble—that is Berlin and that is many other cities and will be the fate of other cities.

Hamburg and the Ruhr paid heavily for their share in building up Hitler's war machine. And again the Allies have bombed "Hamburgered" city.

Goering, head of Germany's Luftwaffe, is incapable of dealing any blows at the R.A.F., the R.C.A.F., the United States Air Forces and the Russian Air Force. The Allies have a giant combination that is the despair of the enemy—nothing they can do can prevent the destruction from proceeding according to schedule and with precision that Germany never dreamed of.

Over a third of a million incendiaries rained on Berlin in an hour-and-a-half raid falling on Berlin in an hour-and-a-half raid along with thousands of explosive bombs was the startling experience of Berlin one day recently. What that meant baffles conception and those who experienced it cannot put into words what it was like.

The punishment of Berlin has been carrying with relentless iteration. Carthage the city the old Romans destroyed in 146 B.C., comparatively never suffered the destruction in battle that Berlin has, though the Romans, after taking Carthage, burned that city and ploughed its ashes under. It is interesting to note that the site of that old city has levelled Rome in the pre-Christian era is near Tunis in the territory taken by the Allied armies in North Africa.

Interesting O.S.D. Facts

Interesting data on the Ontario School for the Deaf for the financial year ending March 31, 1942, appears in the report of the Department of Education. Attendance at the residence school in Belleville averaged 201 for the year while day classes in Toronto, Hamilton, London and Ottawa averaged 73, the total being attendance of the whole school for the year being 274.

Thirty-four pupils left the Belleville residential school in the year preceding and 39 new pupils entered the school ranging from ages of 5 to 11 years.

The majority of the pupils listed last year were congenitally or born deaf, this group being 162, 46 became deaf during the first year of life, 28 between the first and second year, 14 between two and three years, 10 between three and four years and 17 over four years.

According to Superintendent Morrison's report 152 were in junior school, 68 in the intermediate and 59 in the senior school.

Total expenses for the year ending March 31st, 1942, were $129,325.91 for an average yearly cost of $456.98, according to Bursar C. B. McGuire. Total expenditures for the year ending March 31, 1943, were $123,941.81 or $8.70 per pupil weekly.

School Attendance

It has been estimated that a 70 per cent attendance represents a 50 per cent school efficiency and a 90 per cent attendance a 95 per cent efficiency, says the 1942 annual report of the Department of Education of Ontario which has just been issued. This is explained by the statement that "as a rule the pupil must lag until the laggard catches up or the teacher the laggard catches up or the teacher the loiterer catches up or the teacher the loiterer catches up to his fate." Attendance therefore is seen as the first consideration that a school may do its best work. There is a reason for hearty co-operation of the teacher with parents and the attendance officer.

The percentage for the elementary schools during the year was 91.69 while secondary schools reached 93.4.

There has been a falling off of the enrolment in the past two years, in all of the groups, public, separate, high schools and collegiates, continuation schools and day classes in vocational and special industrial schools. Only night classes in the latter grouping show an increase in the last year while the night school attendance in 1939-40 was somewhat higher than in 1941-42.

The cause of this is in part the years of depression when the increase in the birth rate and in part to older pupils leaving school earlier for occupation in agriculture or essential industry.

At the present time there are 7,346 elementary schools with 17,584 teachers and 496 secondary schools with 4,933 teachers.

The attendance percentage in 1941-42 showed a general increase in all types of schools. Town and village schools led all at 94.7 per cent, all urban schools were second at 92.8, city schools third at 92.7, with 91,252 pupils in average attended the separate schools in the rural areas with 16.4 days lost per pupil, and for urban separate schools the attendance averaged 170.815 and the loss in days per pupil 10.8.

Taking separate and public schools together rural attendance averaged in days lost per pupil 17 days and for urban schools 12.7 days.

Flyer's Jacket

(Brandon Sun)

An R.A.F. bombardier who almost failed to return from a jungle flight, spent six months designing a suit for such an emergency as the one in which he found himself, and it has been issued to some of the English flyers on the Burma front. Two breast pockets carry cans of food concentrate, medical supplies are tucked into armpit pockets. Pockets all the way down the front and back carry a compass, map, cigarettes, a flashlight, waterproof matches, thermo-resisting leather elbow gloves and a water sterilizer. There are places for a commando knife and a short bayonet. A Gurkha kukri hangs from the belt. On the flyer's back is an oilfilled sack containing a undersack into which all the kit from the pockets can be transferred.

A Little Ray of Sunshine

Sometimes it seems a little pessimistic over the outlook for post-war employment —until we get around to figuring out how many people are going to write books about this war and how far several of them will go. Then, it seems that the book publishing business should be able to absorb practically the whole labor surplus.

JUST FOLKS

SCUTTLEBUTT

Young fellow in the Navy, when the talk begins to flow,
And you'll find it does, my hearty, where-soever you may go,
You will hear the scuttlebutt on your quarters and you'll hear it fore and aft;
They will tell you who is coming and who's due to leave the craft,
Just remember the mouths of sailors very seldom long are shut
And unfounded conversation is what's known as "scuttlebutt!"

When some "hasher" starts relating what he's heard a "stripper" say,
Take it in, if you've a mind to, but don't carry it away!
When the women get to talking, and it's certain that they will,
Just remember sailors' ladies are not famed for sitting still.
When you hit the beach, forget it! Better far your throat were cut
Than to use it to be spreading what is known as "scuttlebutt."

There's a constant flow of chatter both ashore and far at sea
Touching when and where you're bound for and what will or will not be,
But remember, boy, no matter what it is you have have heard:
In the Navy nothing's certain till the skipper gives "the word."
Only brass hats know what's doing. On the bridge alone they strut,
But from them you get your orders. All the rest is "scuttlebutt."

Failure of Another Hitlerian Promise Affects Troops' Morale at Bridgehead

By RELMAN MORIN
(Associated Press War Correspondent)

Algiers, March 13.—(AP)—Hitler promised that the Allies' Anzio beachhead would soon cease to be eliminated in three days, and the failure of that promise—one failure that cost the Nazis heavy casualties in their recent counter-attack—had a disastrous effect on the morale of his troops, German prisoners of war declared today.

Allied Headquarters said the prisoners had stated that Hitler had sent a special message to the German troops telling them the Allied 5th Army would "be in the sea within three days." Some of the officers had told them the German Air Force would provide an air umbrella and that the big offensive would be spearheaded by 300 tanks—half of them the monster Mark VI's.

German troops never entered battle with greater confidence or higher morale, they said. But then things began to happen.

The umbrella appeared, but so did Allied, and the Allied airmen were still there after the German troops saw some of their Mark VI's. But a large number of the Tigers had gaping holes shooting from them. The little radio-controlled tanks, known on the Russian front as "teller," stopped miserably.

Meanwhile, although the German infantry had gained a foothold, it found the Allies counter-attacked with tremendous force. The troops of Hitler's "three days" the enemy's net gain amounted to less than the equivalent of three days' gain. And this was achieved at the cost of terrible casualties and an unestimated expenditure of equipment.

The prisoners described the beachhead battles as "hellish," and said Allied artillery was more than anything they encountered in Russia.

The Winds of March

The winds of March are calling across the frozen plain,
Awakening earth to springtime, the flowers to bloom again,
To rouse the sleeping seeds from sleeping,
To set the waters leaping,
To hasten on the coming of the shining April rain.

The winds of March are calling in voices shrill and high,
We hear their thrilling chimes in the midnight's hours drear night,
But the trees are bending,
The sap is fast ascending
To paint the leaf and tree buds against the evening sky.

The winds of March are calling
insistently to me,
To waken all that being to spring!
time's ecstasy,
To rouse to new desires
That like the sunset fires
Give promise of the brightness of the day; that are to be.

Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. L. G.

A comparison of the Canadian scene of 100 years ago with that of today would make us all thankful for the advantages we now enjoy; and it should provide a real spiritual lift, particularly in showing that mans lot has been—and can be—improved by time, knowledge, diligence and wise planning.

Whoever was lucky enough to have the first volume of the world through a magnifying glass must have felt a thrill of pride at the time that Canada's noble-sitizens were busy improving conditions. In 1813 the "magic" had worn off. However, a generation later we were glad to have his spy glass within reasonable reach, and at a good price on it if he lost it and could gain compensation. It is to be noted that residents of the war put a value of 5 pounds 10 shillings on his glass and that he could claim the government to recompense him for losses sustained during the campaign.

Instruments to aid the naked eye in examining objects have been known long before the 19th century. Hans Lippershein of Holland improved upon the telescope in 1608, the first successful instruments for the purpose. Galileo in 1610 improved upon this and was the first to use the telescope for study. David Brewster, Scotsman, continued many developments and between 1810 and 1840 to the construction of microscope and telescope. Wheatstone in 1838 made ways linked town and country distance. The electric telegraph invention was paid to the eyes...It was long a perplexing subject to shape engines that with the eyes or perceive but one object. This however was explained by means of the well-known instrument, the stereoscope, which by the union of two dissimilar pictures of an object are fused into one image, having the actual appearance of relief.

Coventry to Rise Again A Symbol and a Sign

By VERNON M. KIFF
(Special to the Ottawa Journal and the Ontario Intelligencer)

COVENTRY, ENGLAND, Feb.—Lady Godiva wouldn't have liked it much in Coventry today. A bleak wind blows down the streets and through the ruins that once were stately homes and prosperous shops—through the roofless cathedral that was the Cathedral of Coventry before the bombs came with blood on his hands and hate in his heart.

But inside Council House was a cosy fire, and the Bishop of Coventry, the Mayor and his chief officials had gathered to greet the visiting Canadian editors. Our party stood especially high because we came to the Bishop's city from the city clerk of Toronto saying Toronto proposed to raise $25,000 for Coventry's relief and the rebuilding of the Cathedral. There were short speeches by the Bishop, his Provost, and the officials, and of course there was tea.

The subject uppermost in the minds of the Coventry dignitaries was the plan, recently announced, for reconstruction of the blitzed heart of Coventry with a new Cathedral to be built beside the ruins. Coventry, which has a population of 220,000 counting the vast war-time influx, will celebrate the 800th anniversary of its charter, and the blitzkrieg last April destroyed, so far, the ancient part of the city with ancient streets and buildings dating back hundreds of years, was almost completely put by air raids and fire. Only the most modern districts, which surround the old city, are left to accommodate a fast-growing population, were comparatively little damaged.

The Bishop's proposal was proclaimed by the Coventry Evening Telegraph in a leading article for the new Coventry, to include "great churches for the people of Unity linking Anglican and Free Churches," it would be "a city of the arts—science and the plans would surround the Cathedral with a precinct worthy of it by the blitz—and would involve the demolition of much of the old world Coventry which survived the blitz and attack.

Already the scheme has severe critics. There are, of course, those who say no to (privately), "hundreds of modern towns but only one Coventry. But we have Lady Godiva, and our old traditions or else all up for wide streets and imposing vistas!" Moreover, he went on, housing was a difficult problem more important than cathedrals after the war, and first things must come first. But the plan is developing another contest between tradition and the severely practical.

What comes of it we shall know better ten years hence.

Presently we went out into the wind and the blitzkrieg. Dr. Nevile Gorton, who came to Coventry since the blitz showed us the Cathedral which he loves even in its ruins. The great tower and the simple steel roof-ing and would be incorporated in any reconstruction. The walls stand, to their full size, but the roof was burned off and the entire interior destroyed.

From the main entrance to the cathedral a broad aisle, cleared to the stone floor, and when the weather is suitable services are held here. On either side of the aisle are long piles of rubble, inside the sanctuary, open to the sky, is a tall cross made of fire-blackened timbers taken from the wreckage and tailed together the morning after the blitz, still speaking its message of triumph. Behind the cross the Provost, "and dropped incendiaries in the sanctuary, six at the very base of this cross. They burned themselves out harmlessly, otherwise—" he left the thunderclap or miracle? I don't know. Sometimes the two are indistinguishable.

Under the floor of the Cathedral, also destroyed by bombs, is a tiny crypt hewn out of the rock centuries ago, where the Cathedral was consecrated a year ago and which now is the seat of his Episcopal throne. Here, in the two places for 30 worshippers, but here congregations of thousands on Sunday. There is an even tinier chapel under the flooring where the cross stood, and here, in the charred timbers welded together and gilded, the Cathedral of Coventry carries on.

We drove about the blitzed area before going on to Birmingham, and saw quite literally "not one stone" scene of block after block of building—"hundreds of homes" were destroyed, many other churches, many schools, and the whole business district. But here as everywhere was high courage, here were plans being made for the city of the future. "Coventrized," which the Germans intended as a term of word of terror, is becoming instead a word of hope. "Coventrize" the world, the Coventrians say. "The blitz seems like a bad dream. But out of it has come something for the better Coventry with better houses, better streets, better and more conditions for the people. That now is our great ambition."

There is much long faces in Coventry today. Instead you find courage, determination and hope. Today there are plans, tomorrow there is action and we have no doubt whatever that in one form or another Coventry Cathedral will rise again as a symbol and a sign.

Chicago—Parents, as you select-ing a name for your baby that will give him or her a handle that H.O.G. or S.A.P.?

Dr. Edwin de Kok, author of the old name or initial-combination that will plague the youngster all his life-long, warns in the March issue of Hygeia Magazine.

In an article, Dr. Fishbein urged expectant parents to select for any name to be given to a boy or girl and, further, to make certain that proper consideration is given birth and issuance of a birth certificate ensue immediately after birth.

Names for baby run in cycles—Robert for boys one year, Richard the next, then perhaps John. One in 24 of all women is named Mary; one in 27 is Elizabeth, next in popularity are Margaret and Helen.

William and John are the favorite male names for boys, then James, George, Charles, Harold, Robert, Edward, Joseph and Arthur. Dr. Fishbein said Percy, Reginald and Hubert are declining popularity, undoubtedly under the influence of the former years' draft boards.

Girls' names go out of style, too, he said, citing Ruby, Opal, Lily, Pearl and Iris.

Dr. Fishbein turned up a weird collection of names from recent Georgia birth certificates—Pink Lemonade Silvers, Honest Price, Asia Minor, twins named Utah and Arizona Reynolds, Wednesday, Virginia Ham, Pleasant Feelings.

Then there was a doctor named Frat who named his son Safety.

THE UPPER CRUST

The common people have always been fond of coining words and phrases to describe those who regard themselves as "the cream of society."

Such a much term is "the codfish aristocracy," originally descriptive of the newly rich who got quick wealth from the Atlantic fisheries.

Another such appellation is "the upper crust."

Then we have the high-brows, the "four hundred," the bluebloods, the stuffed shirts, the filthy rich, and a lot more of the same kind.

Where did the upper crust coins names to describe what it regards as its own exclusive set?

At one time the fashionables were known as the upper 10.

This was a shortened form of the "upper ten thousand."

In 1890 James Fenimore Cooper, in his "Ways of the Hour," referred to "those who, you know, are our upper crust, 'not upper ten thousand.'"

Ten years later N. P. Willis, in "Fun Jottings," in the "Home Journal," said: "At present there is no distinction among the upper ten thousand of the city."

At that time the theory was that the fashionables of New York City did not number more than ten thousand.

In 1678 James Payn, in "By Proxy," wrote: "Warren . . . is a nouveau riche, and quite a conservative on that account; it being the readiest method to gain admittance among the Upper Ten."

Edith Wharton used Ward McAllister, a New York society leader, who was regarded by the smart set as an authority on fashionable matters, declared that there were only about four hundred people who could claim admission into the best social circles in New York City.

He said there were not more than 400 persons who could walk gracefully across a ball-room floor.

In 1892 McAllister boasted that the Union League Club is that he half cut down the list of guests for Mrs. William Astor's ball to 400 names.

The phrase caught the public fancy, was taken up by the press and entered the idiom of the language.

From then circumstance the exclusive society people got their only number, and the phrase "the first 400" took place became "the four hundred."

Lack of Shipping Nullifies Jap Malaya Conquest

Chungking, March 13 (AP).—Shortages of shipping has made Malaya, Japan's richest conquest, a useless asset, its principal resources, rubber and tin, are lying in idle stock piles, Chinese say Japanese haven't the ships to transport these, writes Hsu Mo-Cheng, Chinese evangelist, recently escaped from Malaya.

In Malaya itself, the market for rubber and tin is limited to purchases by Japan, who considers them a better investment than the enormous yen the Japanese issue.

The Japanese print bank notes identical with the old British notes, except that the words "Japanese Government of Malaya" are substituted.

Immediately they conquered Malaya the Japanese seized all the metal they could. Gold formed a high priority. The Japs had to disgorge their supplies, and so did the Chinese private owners unable to hide their stocks.

Everywhere in Malaya, there is blister, seaport or air, Japan's so-called co-prosperity sphere. Those who at first welcomed the Japanese as deliverers from the British, soon thought they would get a new deal as they now generally awaiting the day when the Allies will return.

Neither prices of war nor civilian incomes get enough to eat. The individual diet consists of three balls of rice a day one at each meal, with a little salt.

In Singapore I saw prisoners of war,—Britons and Australians—pass my house twice a day, once to work and the other on their way back to their camps. They appeared thinner day by day.

Later I saw some of these prisoners in Thailand, where they had been sent to cut a railway through some of the world's densest jungle. Illness and disabilities were given the hardest work.

The guerrillas in Malaya, consisting principally of Chinese, with a sprinkling of natives and British officers. There are many centres of guerrilla resistance in Malaya, particularly in Johore, Selangor, Trengganu and the Cameron Highlands of Perak.

Bridges Closed Again Sunday

Niagara Falls, N.Y., March 12.—(AP)—Two bridges leading from New York State to Canada, which closed yesterday for the third Sunday in succession over a customs inspectors' wage dispute, opened on schedule one minute after midnight today.

Owners of the Rainbow Bridge, spanning the Niagara River from this city to Niagara Falls, Ont., and of the Thousand Islands Bridge connecting Ivy Lea, Ont., with Alexandria Bay to Ivy Lea, Ont., refused Feb. 15 to pay a $2,000 bond guaranteeing overtime pay to customs inspectors for Sunday work.

Admiral Doenitz Speaks for Hitler

London, March 13 —(CP)— Substituting for Hitler at the microphone, Admiral Karl Doenitz, of the German people in a Memorial Day address Sunday that a "pitiless struggle is being waged for the existence or annihilation of our national life."

In his address, the first time since the start of the war that Hitler has failed to broadcast as part of Germany's annual tribute to her war dead, Doenitz, commander of the German Navy, declared: "Everywhere our soldiers are in the midst of a merciless struggle of great historical dimensions. The events of this war and the brutal aims of our enemies which they have laid bare, demand the most pitiless struggle to us what is at stake."

Hitler, before, Hitler has spoken from the rostrum of Berlin's ancient Zeughaus, the military museum on the Unter Den Linden. Neutral reports from Stockholm have indicated that Hitler left the old landmark in this year's R. A. F. raids on Berlin.

"Deebee's" Entertain At "Y" Open House

Members of the Dee Bee Club, which includes all the girls who room on Bree, acted as very capable and pleasant hostesses in connection with the Sunday Open House program this week. A large group of the Dee Bee members, assisted by Miss Margaret Meeks, gathered at the "Y" and prepared a most enjoyable tea to follow an afternoon spent in small games and other social amusements. Real "be-nan" sandwiches, cake and tea were served in the dining room to a large group of airmen and soldiers, as well as the boys sailor and the single W. D. that made up the fairly large group of guests.

In the evening a concert was enjoyed on the gym floor. A sing song led by Mr. Roberts, with Miss MacDougall at the piano, opened the proceedings, and guitar solos by little Barbara Dix, songs by Joan Latta, whose father has been overseas for more than four of her eleven years, some fine tap dancing by Miss Margaret Cockell, piano selections by Mrs. Watts, and skipping rope exercises by Miss Gertrude Bell, made up a varied and enjoyable evening which closed with another session of community singing, with quiet numbers leading into "Abide With Me".

Mr. Harry Ackerman welcomed guests during the afternoon, and the thanks of the Association to the Dee Bees and the artists was expressed by Mr. Shortt.

All-Out Drive To Exterminate German Air Force

By GLADWIN HILL
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, March 13 —(AP)— The bombardment of all other strategic targets in Germany by the United States Air Force has been relegated to a back seat in favor of an all-out campaign to exterminate the German air force, it was learned today.

The U. S. strategic air force swung into its deliberate campaign last week to tangle with the German air force head-on and left off its battle of trying to avoid the German fighters and splitting up by diversionary attacks.

The new extermination campaign is two-edged. When the weather is past the impact is primarily on the Germans' ground resources such as their synthetic oil plants. When the weather is bad the aim is to make attacks from the overcast so destructive that the German air force will be compelled to send up fighters to oppose the heavily-armed four-engined bombers—which can shoot down down.

RAVAGE OF SPRUCE BUDWORM FORESEEN

Toronto, March 13 —(CP)— J. J. de Gryse, chief of the forest investigation branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, said in an interview that within three to five years Ontario will lose 40,000 square miles of commercial spruce timber through the depredation of the spruce budworm.

Survey Recommends Control Of Movement of Physicians From One Locality to Another

Ralston Submits Report in Which Health Services and Requirements Are Reviewed in Detail

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

OTTAWA, March 13 (CP) — Control of the movement of doctors from one locality to another, including provision for replacement of doctors in rural areas no longer able to carry on was recommended in a 200,000-word National Health Survey report tabled in the Commons today by Defence Minister Ralston.

The report, resulting from a survey by the Canadian Medical Procurement and Assignment Board, reviewed health services and requirements in detail and made numerous recommendations.

It said steps should be taken immediately to ensure the maintenance of present minimum health services. No further enlistments of public health personnel should be allowed without consent of the provinces concerned and post-graduate courses in public health should be established.

Regional wage levels for hospital employees should be established and hospitals paying approved wages should be able to look to the National Selective Service for necessary staff.

Recommendation was made for a National Council of Health to be set up to formulate a national policy for Canadian health personnel. Membership would be drawn from the various health agencies which co-operated in the survey.

Should Subsidize When Necessary.

Hospitals should be subsidized when necessary to meet standardized wage requirements. Hospital strikes should be declared illegal and employees should be frozen to the employment for which they have been trained.

The report said the procurement board should be authorized to provide physicians and nurses as required by industry.

There should be better distribution of nurses, and nursing bursaries, as an essential public service, should have governmental aid.

A committee of the Canadian Nurses' Association should be set up to function in connection with the procurement assignment board of nurses to meet the needs of the armed forces and civilian requirements.

A procurement, and assignment board for dentists and dental technical aides was recommended, with provision for dentists now practising being fixed in their present locations and allowed to move only with the approval of their provincial dental advisory committee. Dental personnel for civilian services should not be reduced below 70 per cent of the pre-war level, and no further dental enlistment should be allowed in provinces where this level has reached.

Recommendations concerning doctors were supported by the Canadian Medical Association; health services by the Dominion Council of Health; hospitals by the Canadian Hospital Council; industrial medicine by the Canadian Medical Association; Industrial Medicine Committee; war medical manpower by six members of the War Medical Survey Committee; nurses by the Canadian Nurses Association and dental services by the Canadian Dental Association.

The procurement board was established in July, 1943, with the primary duty of obtaining physicians for the armed forces and at the same time endeavoring to maintain adequate civilian medical services.

12,325 Doctors in Canada.

The chairman is Maj.-Gen. C. B. Chisholm, director-general of Army Medical Services, and the other 11 members are drawn from the services' medical and dental establishments, with five members of the Canadian Medical Association Medical Advisory Committee and a representative of National Selective Service.

The report said that in March, 1943, Canada's doctors numbered 12,325 and of these 2,000 were in the armed forces, 1,000 were retiring 9,220, 8,614 were active while 615 were living in retirement. On March 1, 1944, 2,589 doctors were on military service.

"There has been a steadily growing demand on the services of physicians under wartime conditions," said the report.

"On the average, three per cent of the population is disabled on account of sickness each day during the year. This means that on any day over 300,000 persons are unable, by reason of illness, to pursue their usual occupations."

Deaths Exceed 110,000

Deaths annually exceed 110,000 and confinements exceed 250,000. Since 1939 there had been a 10 per cent increase in the number of patients treated in hospitals and a similar increase in the birth rate.

Of active physicians still in civil life, only 41.7 per cent are under 45 years.

"Some areas of Canada will be found to have been seen drained of physicians than others — some to the danger point," the report.

In March, 1943, there was one doctor to 1,381 persons in Canada. Ontario had one doctor to 1,068 persons.

Graduates of medical schools were estimated at 631 for 1942 and 542 in 1944, with an accelerated program of graduation providing an average of 745 graduates annually.

Staffs Depleted

The report recommended that satisfactory replacements should be found before further withdrawals from the teaching staffs are made. The staffs of mental hospitals and tuberculosis sanatoria have been depleted almost to the danger point, and the reporting committee was satisfied no further depletion of staffs could be made without endangering the welfare of patients.

Health Survey Proposals

Ottawa, March 13—(CP)—Recommendations in the National Health Survey report tabled in the Commons by Defence Minister Ralston set forth, inter alia, with respect to doctors:

1. Personnel and covering of doctors for the duration be controlled by the Assignment Board.

2. Provision be made that physicians enlisted up under National Selective Service and that the key categories be made available for service either in their former civilian life on the recommendation of the Assignment Board.

3. Physicians called up by National Selective Service be found to be in low medical categories be re-examined by special military medical boards, where necessary, shall be final.

4. Registrar called for service and found to be "C1" or "E" and until military service is completed civilian duties replacing doctors who have entered military service, by the survey showing the distribution of medical manpower to be necessary.

5. The Procurement Board be given the same power with respect to disposal of medical personnel as National Selective Services has for other personnel.

6. Every effort should be made to prevent a decrease in the number of students entering the medical profession.

7. In the event that there is a shortage of nurses or an acute hospital problem, consideration be given by military and civilian authorities to the feasibility of pooling the nursing resources.

8. As far as practicable, every physician should be encouraged to assist in providing many special services which he may be called upon to render from time to time in the rehabilitation program.

Dental Recommendation.

The matters dealing with dental personnel are as follows: That an essential civilian dental service be established on the recommendations of National Selective Service, and that dental rehabilitation should be given dentists.

Other recommendations follow:

1. In the interests of civilian dental service, the distribution of dentists in Canada, subject to military requirements, be controlled.

2. The National registration be kept up to date, and that dentists entering reporting changes in addresses.

3. Steps to see that nurses receive adequate remuneration with their responsibility and which compare favorably with wartime salary scales.

4. Provide as much as possible be made of nurses available for part-time duty.

5. Ward aides and members of the voluntary aid division should be trained in greater numbers in hospitals and communities to supplement the nursing staff. Special and effective measures to obtain and maintain the nursing auxiliary staff to support the nursing profession in hospitals and elsewhere "should be put into effect with as little delay as possible."

6. Every effort should be made to prevent a decrease in the number to enter the nursing profession.

7. In the event that there is a shortage of nurses or an acute hospital problem, consideration be given by military and civilian authorities to the feasibility of pooling the nursing resources.

8. As far as practicable, every physician should be encouraged to assist in providing many special services which he may be called upon to render from time to time in the rehabilitation program.

Dental Recommendation.

The matters dealing with dental personnel are as follows: That an essential civilian dental service be established on the recommendations of National Selective Service, and that dental rehabilitation should be given dentists.

Other recommendations follow:

1. In the interests of civilian dental service, the distribution of dentists in Canada, subject to military requirements, be controlled.

2. The National registration be kept up to date, and that dentists entering reporting changes in addresses.

3. All enlistments of dentists and dental personnel whether called for service or by call, be referred for re-to a government grading test.

Hospital beds per 1,000 of population have increased from three in Prince Edward Island to 7.5 in British Columbia, and the percentage of population treated in hospitals ranged from 7.2 per cent in Prince Edward Island to 12.9 in British Columbia.

The survey had shown that "a great many" industrial employees did not receive the benefits of industrial medical care which they would and should receive if there were a substantial increase in the number of physicians and nurses engaged in industrial medicine.

53,483 Nurses

The survey showed Canada had 53,483 nurses, and of this number 8,926 had expressed willingness to enlist, while 34,000 were not available for military service. There was a waiting list for the armed forces of 2,741.

Of the 53,483 graduate nurses registered, 45.4 per cent were in Ontario.

About 52 per cent of the total registered nurses had been engaged in employment other than nursing, 20,308 being married housewives. Of the total registration 42,150 of the nurses reported graduating in 1920 or before.

The survey said that in February, 1943, 2,384 doctors were "attempting" to serve about 11,000,000 people or at the ratio of one to every 3,417 persons. There were 1,019 dentists in the Canadian Dental Corps. Dental manpower available for civilian services had dropped 21.4 per cent since 1939.

"It is considered that for the duration of the war, there will be no reduction in all that could be contemplated," said the report.

THE NEED GROWS AS VICTORY NEARS

WITHOUT a host of volunteers there could be no Canadian Red Cross—and only the Red Cross can do Red Cross work.

Last year, millions of food parcels for prisoners of war were packed by these Red Cross workers. They made tons of surgical dressings for overseas use. They cut and sewed millions of garments and accessories for dressing stations, for hospitals, for civilian relief work. Yet they ask no pay. Their only reward is the grateful prayers that rise from a thousand Red Cross outposts.

The dawn of Victory in Europe has intensified the need for Red Cross supplies. Suffering mounts daily as war spreads. Support the Red Cross volunteers in this unselfish work. Give liberally.

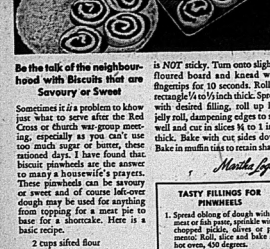
Versatile Biscuits



Be the talk of the neighbourhood with Biscuits that are Savoury or Sweet

Sometimes it is a problem to know just what to serve after the Red Cross or church war-group meeting, especially as you can't use too much sugar or butter, these rationed days. I have found that biscuit pinwheels are the answer to many a housewife's prayers. These pinwheels can be savoury or sweet and of course left-over dough may be used for anything from topping for a meat pie to base for a shortcake. Here is a basic recipe.

2 cups sifted flour
4 tsps. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
5 to 5 tbsps. chilled shortening (lard is best) about ⅔ cup milk.

Measure flour and sift with baking powder and salt. Cut in Lard finely, using 2 knives or pastry blender. Gradually add enough milk to make a dough which, though soft is NOT sticky. Turn onto slightly floured board and knead with fingertips for 10 seconds. Roll to rectangle ¼ to ½ inch thick. Spread with desired filling, roll up like jelly roll, dampening edges to seal well and cut in slices ¾ to 1 inch thick. Bake with cut sides down. Bake in muffin tins to retain shape.

TASTY FILLINGS FOR PINWHEELS

1. Spread slices of dough with a meat or fish paste, sprinkle with chopped pickle, olives or pimento. Roll, slice and bake in hot oven, 450 degrees.
2. Spread dough with 2 tbsps. butter blended with ½ cup brown sugar (molasses may be added). Roll, slice and bake at 425 degrees.
3. Cover rectangle of dough with shredded cheese, pepniks or mustard; chopped sardines, salmon oumeats, chopped pimento, green pepper or celery are good too with cheese. Bake at 425 degrees. Serve hot.

Eastern Star Flag Is Presented To Minerva Chap.

Mrs. Kathleen Cowling, Napanee, District Deputy Grand Matron, presented the Minerva Chapter colors on March 10th. Many chapters of the district, No. 12 were represented, Deseronto, Trenton, Napanee, Tweed, Bancroft, Belleville, St. Stirling, Madoc and Mrs. Thos. Rathbun, past-matron of Minerva Chapter with a beautiful Eastern Star flag on one half of the past worthy matrons' table past worthy matrons' table. Mrs. Nellie Clarke, presiding matron, received the flag from Mrs. Cowling and Mrs. Rathbun and past officers for this gift to the chapter. Refreshments and dancing brought a very pleasant party to a close.

Good Companion Club

The Good Companions of Trenton Methodist Church met on Friday evening at 8.15 o'clock in the church parlors for an enjoyable evening.

The program was varied and entertaining. It opened with a short religious program, consisting of a hymn, Responsive reading by Miss Lois Hodgins, short address by the president, Mrs. Gordon Clarke, prayer by Dr. Myers and solo by Mrs. Hodgins.

The feature of the evening was an hour or more of games, contests and amusements for the whole group under the leadership of Mrs. Ernest Hall, secretary of the head office, Ontario Religious Education.

Miss Lewis is very versatile and capable person and has the highest praise of the variation and novelty of the program. She has had wide experience in this capacity and is doing excellent morale work among girls aimed forces in Toronto.

The evening's entertainment and refreshments were served by Mrs. J. R. Tippett and Mrs. Miller. Thanks of the district girls present were extended to all who made such an enjoyable evening possible.

Women's Activities

AVONDALE NEIGHBORS' AID

The March meeting of the Avondale Neighbors' Aid was held at the home of the president, Mrs. H. E. Elvidge, Trent Road, with twenty ladies present. Reports were read, letters from the Red Cross nurses who had received Christmas parcels from the Aid. All the committees of the business period, Mrs. Elvidge introduced the speaker for the afternoon, Rev. C. A. Bunting, a returned missionary and a member of the China Inland Inter-denominational Missionary Society. Mr. Bunting's is a very interesting talk on his missionary work amongst the Chinese people. A draw for a quilt, made by the Aid, was held during the afternoon and the lucky one was Mrs. Ketcheson. Lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Carson. Votes of thanks to Mrs. Elvidge and to the speaker were moved by Mrs. Rowsome.

MARSH HILL W.M.S.

The monthly meeting of the Marsh Hill W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. E. B. Pinkle on March 7. The president was in charge of the meeting. The minutes of the last meeting were read and the roll call to which seven members and one visitor responded. Temperance readings were given by Mrs. A. Frederick and Mrs. Leslie Pinkle. During the business period, Mrs. F. Campbell and Mrs. B. Mitts were appointed delegates to the Presbyterial to be held in April. The society decided to have Miss Burke and Miss Hunt as their missionaries and Mrs. Frank Lough was appointed to say a prayer for them next month. Mrs. Berson Mitts had charge of the fifth chapter of the Study Book. "Inspiration of Worship," she dealt with Christian worship in India, China and Africa. Mrs. Fred Campbell read "Art and Music in Worship of Younger Churches; Mrs. Leslie Pinkle, "Christian Worship Does Influence Action"; Mrs. Berson Mitts, a short reading; Mrs. Dafoe read "Gathering of the First Fruits; Mrs. Pinkle Johnson, "Worship of the Kingdom; Mrs. A. Frederick, "The Daring of the Disciples."

FRIENDSHIP GROUP HEARS MISSIONARY

The Friendship Group of Bridge St. United Church held their regular meeting at the close of the regular church service. Cpl. Harold Mountain of Mountain View led the sing-song after which Dr. Semple introduced the guest speaker, Dr. George Bryce, a missionary recently returned from India. An interesting talk by the minister, was enjoyed upon by Dr. Bryce, was shown. This film deals with the lives of the Bhils in India and showed how the Christian church has influenced them. As an example, the life of Dhula was illustrated before and after his conversion. Cpl. McNish then thanked Dr. Bryce and also welcomed the young people from Tabernacle and Holloway St. Churches. After a social time,' a dainty lunch was served by the Group. Every evening a hearty welcome is extended to all young people to attend these meetings.

Over-eating Chief Cause Of Excess Fat in Women

Mary Beth Hughes has a beautiful figure.

By HELEN FOLZETT

Lightweight cubes of sugar, undersized slices of heavyweight gâteau that way, stay that way, don't do a thing about it. They don't realize that the road to slenderness is not easy travelling; one must suffer a certain amount of dietary deprivations. Skinnies who can eat their cream puffs and desserts a moment's worry are altogether too scornful of their plumpish sisters.

It is not necessary to reduce to normal weight. One must not be a skeletalder. But if the diet weight. One must stick to the rules, rain or shine, willy-nilly. When there is a natural inclination to expand beyond pleasing proportions the fight must continue.

As a rule, overweight is due to over-eating, and the excess diet elements—fats, sweets and starches—that are stored away in the form of adipose tissue. Now and then, but not, often, such surplus is due rather to glandular disturbances in which event medical treatment should be sought.

As a woman gains flesh, she finds that activities pall. She wears herself out carrying her burden of poundage. Well, she can get down to normal without much exercise, if she finds it painful. She can eat her groceries; that's all.

She can have lean meat, eggs, fish, buttermilk, cottage cheese, vegetables that grow above ground and fruit.

Strictly forbidden are fats, starches, sugars, potatoes, fried foods, although she can have one-half pat of butter a day. Fruit and beef are better for her than pork or veal. A green salad should be eaten each day to regulate her. Coffee and tea must be taken without cream or sugar and cream that their beverages—lemon or plump.

Calisthenics that pull hard on the muscles of the midsection are helpful in reducing inches from the waistline.

58th Annual Meeting Held by Kingston W.M.S. Presbyterial

The 58th annual meeting of Kingston Presbyterial WMS (WD) of the Presbyterian Church in Canada was held in St. Andrew's Church last Tuesday, morning and afternoon.

The president, Mrs. George Dardging of Gananoque, presided and Miss Larsen of Madoc led the devotional, taking as her topic, "We have not because ye ask not." She also gave an interesting address on the topic. Mrs. R. J. Hornsby brought greetings from the Belleville ladies.

A resolution was passed after grateful discussion of the Presbyterial change its annual meeting from March to January 1941, to the give annual reports and plan the year's work. It was also decided to have the executive meeting be immediately preceding the regular meeting and to plan for the June rally.

Mrs. D. L. Fleming's report of "Glad Tidings" showed an increase of seven subscriptions over last year. Mrs. Hamilton's report showed total givings $129.40 and total membership, 67. Miss Hall's Elder's students' reports were read.

The historian, Mrs. H. B. Parry told of an honorary, life membership having been presented to herself by the Presbyterial. It was reminded the members of the 50th anniversary of Madoc WMS. Mrs. Gollan's supply report showed excellent results.

Mrs. H. Wallace led in the closing prayers for the morning session.

Mrs. Dunning opened the afternoon session with a devotional and Miss M. Hetrey led in prayer.

Plans were made for the summer rally, the Presbyterial to be divided into two divisions, east and west. The western committee includes Miss M. Mackintosh, Mrs. H. Rollins and Mrs. W. Shaw; the eastern committee includes Mrs. A. C. Smart, Mrs. W. H. Penwarden and Mrs. W. H. Vanderden. D. L. Fleming presided at the leaders' conference Saturday, March 11.

Miss A. L. Fowler in the treasurer's report showed the allocations exceeded by $117.50. Mrs. Horsuby urged stricter censorship of films.

Miss Lavern Pelton, general secretary of the Provincial W.M.S., gave a short speaker, speaking on the "Four Book Shelf". She stressed the value of reports saying that they were the means of giving an account of the responsibility of the society and the work done during the year to the Presbyterial.

The following were appointed delegates to the Provincial annual meeting to be held in Hamilton, April 16, 17, 18 and 20: The president and the secretary of Girls' organizations, Mrs. W. H. Vanderden, Mrs. W. Keith Watson as alternate.

Mrs. George Darling, who retired as president after five years in office, thanked all officers and members for their splendid loyalty and co-operation during her term of office. Mrs. Pargey extended a vote of appreciation to Mrs. Darling on behalf of the Presbyterial.

Miss Laura Pelton took the chair for the election of officers and called upon Mrs. A. E. Cameron, convener of the nominating committee, who presented the following slate, which was unanimously accepted: Honorary Hon. Mrs. William Shaw, Ivanhoe; 1st Vice, Mrs. L. L. Fleming, Belleville; 2nd, Mrs. T. H. Gothard, Trenton; 3rd, Mrs. H. E. Rollins, Stirling; 4th, Mrs. M. Cameron, Newburg; 5th, Mrs. C. A. Smart, Kingston; Recording Secretary, Mrs. A. E. Cameron, R.R. 1, Kingston; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Enid Larsen, Madoc; Treasurer, Miss A. L. Fowler, 180 Johnson Street, Queen's Secretary, Miss H. VanCleaf, Picton; Home Helpers Secretary, Mrs. Keith White, Roslin; Exchange Secretary, Mrs. MacKinlay, R.R. 3, Harold; Literary and Literature Secretary, Mrs. John Macdonald, Wellington; Welcome Secretary, Mrs. Keith Watson, Kingston; Supply Secretary, Mrs. L. A. Gollan, Kingston; Life Membership Secretary, Mrs. John Wallace, Stirling; Glad Tidings Secretary, Mrs. Elizabeth Picton; Press Secretary, Miss M. Hetrey, Kingston; Historian, Mrs. J. F. Pargey, Belleville.

Greetings and installation of officers were taken by the Moderator of the Presbytery, Rev. J. Wanderden.

The new President in her opening address gave a message of "Courage" to the W.M.S. and said to remember that "prayer unlocks God's store of Strength."

Front Road War Workers

A social evening was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Reid recently with a very pleasant evening spent. Bridge was played, with twelve tables being in play. Prize winners were: Ladies, Mrs. C. Jenkinson and consolation, Mrs. Mayberry; Men's, Mr. J. Botting and consolation, Mr. W. Grey. The lone lucky prize which fell to Mrs. Jenkinson and the door prize to Mr. J. Botting. The collection was $12.75. A delicious lunch was served by Mrs. Reid, assisting to $6.45, which was on a draw by Mrs. Frank MacDonald.

The Junior Red Cross was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Summers with twenty eight present. Games and bingo were played and Mr. Summers showed the guests how to play the game called "Shoemaker." Mrs. Summers, assisted by her mother served refreshments. Miss Dorothy MacGillivray invited everyone to her home for the next meeting. Collection for the evening amounted to $5.22.

WEDDINGS

MURRAY—STEWART

The first military wedding solemnized at the R.A.F. Station, Picton, took place on Saturday afternoon, March 9th, when Pilot Officer Jacket Louise Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Allan Stewart, became the bride of Flying Officer Robert Murray, son of Professor and Mrs. W. H. Murray, of Dundas, Ont. The bride was married officially at the ceremony against an impressive floral background of white mums.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length bridal gown of white, fashioned with long fitted bodice of heirloom lace and full skirt falling to the floor in soft folds. Her headdress was an elegant coronet crown adorned with orange blossoms and misted with French net. She wore blue slippers and carried an arm bouquet of white roses and forget-me-nots.

Miss Josephine Croft was the bride's only attendant and was wearing a striking floor-length dress of heavy blue crepe with matching cap, accented with shoulder length veil. She carried a nosegay of pink sweet peas, roses and forget-me-nots.

Wing Commander Shaw Kennedy, D.F.C. acted as groomsman and Fl. Lieut. Grigsby and P.O. Langley were ushers on the occasion.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Officers' Mess of the station. The bride's mother received the guests in an effective ensemble of spring print of white and orchid figures on a grey background, with black accessories and corsage of orchids. She was assisted by Mrs. Wing Commander Shaw Kennedy, receiving for the bridegroom's mother, who attired in black crepe with white accessories and corsage of orchid carnations and forget-me-nots.

The toast was proposed to the bride by O/C Group Captain Collingwood, who also presented the bridal couple with a cheque from the officers of the station.

On the wedding trip to Montreal, the bride selected a navy dress with white and navy top coat in a rich shade of shrimp with a tuxedo navy and white hat with lynx fox. Her accessories were navy and her corsage was gardenias.

Flying Officer and Mrs. Murray will reside in Kingston.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. H. Preston and Mrs. R. G. Sherratt, all of Toronto and Mrs. Walter Huzzle, of Port Arthur.

BEACH HALF-WAY MARK

Toronto, March 13 (CP)—Ontario has practically reached the half-way mark in its objective of $8,000,000 in the Canadian Red Cross Society's campaign for funds, it was announced here tonight by Jack R. The Marry-Go-Round

Wives, ecologically speaking, are of two kinds. Married husbands, ecologically, as the Tomcat, the Oyster, the Ostrich, the Lamb, the Eagle, the Pig and the Rooster. If you ask why we omitted the wolf between "Pig" and "Rooster," we can only say that a "Wolf", even when married, is never a "husband" in the full sense but a "misunderstood married man."

It is going to be harder to classify wives zoologically, since we are one of them; but Cynical Sybil offers the following suggestions.

The BIRD-OF-PARADISE: This specimen is not a rare avis among us, as it is in the animal kingdom. It can be found in large flocks in the beauty parlors of New York, Hollywood and all large cities. It shrouds in night-clubs, where its beautiful, dazzling plumage, an opaque scent (at forty dollars an ounce) and ornamental figure cause men to swoon and women to wish they had a gun. Sometimes it lives on alimony and sometimes on domestic worms. Has not much intelligence—but who has?

The SPANIEL (See Poodle family): This type is meek, lovable, loyal and a one-man-woman, who faithfully follows wherever her adored Master leads, never barks in opinion and is grateful for a kind word and a pat on the head. Does think she is none too bright—but others think she is pretty cute and could find the right answer. Since some male always makes her life as we haven't space for them, here, *

Landing under fire prepares troops for the real thing. In this operation, perfect co-ordination between Army and Navy forces is essential. Primary purpose of school is to teach mechanics of amphibious warfare to every soldier of Pacific Command, from elementary stages of boat drill to the successful planning and carrying out of large scale landing operations on hostile shores.

The school also includes co-operation with the R.C.A.F. extending from lectures on air aspects of combined operations to actual participation in large scale exercises in which as many as four full air squadrons are involved in operations.

Beach landings of motorized equipment is part of training. These landings are usually practised at dawn. Barges shown are used only for instruction.

Combined operations feature the use of amphibious vehicles. This sea-going jeep, known as the "Seep" takes to water like a duck and at almost any speed.

BELLEVILLE KIDS BEATEN 27-19 BY KINGSTON

First Game of Juvenile Basketball Playdowns is Played at "Y"

WINNERS TOO BIG

Taking full advantage of their additional height, Kingston Y.M.C.A. defeated the Belleville Y.M.C.A. kids 27-19 in the first game of the Inter-City Juvenile Basketball playdowns in the juvenile section at the local "Y" on Saturday night. The Belleville juveniles face last night's defeat in the line return game that is to be played in Kingston this week.

Despite the fact the Limestone City juveniles were much taller and heavier than Coach Andy Shortt's Belleville "Y" kids, the locals were of boasters at times, only trailing by one point at the halfway mark that saw Kingston leading 8-7 in a close checking game. The visiting quintette set up a strong five-man defence and in the last half raced through for 18 points while limiting Belleville to five baskets and a foul toss for eleven points as the game ended 27-19.

The Kingston scoring was quite divided as all of the visiting team entered upon the scoring sheet, only four of Skipper Shortt's hoopsters registered points. D. Bankier headed the Belleville scoring list with nine points, Wannacott, Rollins and Garrow splitting the remaining ten points even.

D. Smart, Kingston, elongated centre player, proved strong among the opposition basket and scored eight points despite the fact he was tied up with some strong defence at the hands of the locals. Woods and Boyde, the other two Kingston scorers, netted six points apiece and that was just about enough to clinch the game. The two matches with some of the fastest and cleanest ball seen locally this season.

"Y" Girls Win

Prior to the boys' Ontario Basketball Association playdown, two girls' teams played an exhibition game, one being the Ed. Shortt's Belleville "Y" girls' quintette entered in the City League and the other team composed of girls selected from the City ones to form what was the All-Stars. The "Y" girls won 41 to 18.

Practically every member of the provincial entry scored points during the play period but Betty Bongard headed the list with 11 points, followed closely by Jean Hilchon, 7; Marion Salisbury and "Pee Wee" Joyce, 6; Allison and S. Carter, 5; accounted for the bulk of the All-Star scoring.

The line-ups:

All-Stars—Allison, 1; Carney, 4; Le Fevre, 6; Joyce, 6; Hilchon, 7 and S. Hilchon.

"Y" Girls—Salisbury, 6; Lazenby, 2; Ronsky, 11; Oliphant, 4; Gilbert, 2; Lefevre, 6; Bongard, 7; Rowbotham, 2 and Wannacott.

LESSON NO. 286

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Mrs. Knittingham never worries about how to play the cards in any deal. She takes her much tricks right away and then picks up her knitting. You can have the rest, for all she cares.

Linger with his pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH
♠ A 6 3
♥ A K 4 3
♦ 8 5 4 2
♣ A Q

NORTH
♠ K Q 2
♥ Q 9 7 2
♦ A K 7 2
♣ 7 2

You are declarer in south at a six heart contract. West leads the spade five. You have a cinch diamond loser and a possible club loser. Don't just take that in sight and call it a day.

Play dummy's first ace and the red suits split three and two with opponents. So, assume they are that way and concentrate on some plan that may save the club you are afraid of.

There are only seven principles of play by which tricks may be taken or saved. Most players know only three of them; the same three, one, they may have only a small part of the other four.

The three simple ones are trumping, establishing suit for slurring, and finessing. When determining the play of any hand, look for them in that order.

The club cannot be saved by trumping. Nor can it be shifted on an established suit. So, it looks as if declarer must resort to the only one left: finesse.

A finesse is an attempt to win a trick with a card that is lower than an opponent card in that suit, as a club could be led from north. If east does not play the king, south could play the queen.

If east happens to have the king, the queen will win that trick. If west happens to have the king, the queen will lose. Thus, a finesse is only a 50-50 chance.

An expert player will not take a 50-50 chance if he knows some other play. Before taking a finesse, he looks for one of the other four plays that may be a cinch.

There is such a play.

If east happens to have the king of clubs, he must have at least four spades, as he has shown up with five cards in the red suits. If he has four spades, he has only four clubs. Therefore, he has only three cards in the red suits.

Lead a low club from dummy and put in the queen. If it loses to the king, you can get back to dummy with a heart and lead another club. If east plays low, you win with the ace and lead another club. If east plays low, you win with the ace and lead another club. If east plays low, you win with the ace

by ANNE ROWE

CHAPTER I

Penelope Lee coldly when I had finished. "So that's it! Spite against Antonia, from way back in the days when I had acted kind of sheepishly."

"I'm Marlys—your friends—are they in my play?" I asked, hopeful of reinforcements.

Marlys shook his head. "No, Penny, not yet. We're counting on you to work in shifts. One week you rehearse, one week you act. Unless you have a very small part. Swell for the actors and the plays. No overtime, no bad performances."

I wasn't greatly interested in the working system of Fern Cove, except in so far as it concerned my play.

"But you've met some of our cast? Who's in it?"

And Linda added: "Yes—who's doing the vamp?"

Paulsen answered the second question: "Sondra Marshall. Very beautiful, good type for the part, with a grimace that showed he had no great opinion of the lady. In spite of her beauty and suitability. "She would. She's a fixture here, with a house and all. Bent on becoming the first, or is it the third?"

"Mrs. Burns Loring."

Marshall Loring—something old Mack had said came back to my mind. "He's got one foot in the grave, but I wouldn't notice it when Miss Marshall's around."

"Burns Loring, the millionaire scenic designer!" I wondered. "I thought he was very ill."

"He is. Kidney trouble, I believe. But a little thing like that wouldn't keep the great lover from taking one more wife, or the be-ootiful Sondra from wanting to be the Mrs. Loring. Not the way he is rolling in dough."

It sounded unkind and sneering to me. But Linda must have thought the remark funny. At any rate she laughed—stridently.

I wanted to ask her if she knew Sondra Marshall and disliked her for some reason. But I didn't have the chance. The starting bell ran at that moment, and we were caught up in the crowd surging toward the pillared theatre doors.

The intermission brought us outside again, into the now very dark grounds and face to face with the two people we had discussed before the curtain rose. Sondra Marshall Loring and Sondra Marshall.

Watching the long first act—the play had only two, each divided into a number of scenes—had given me respect for Fern Cove Players. The acting had been first-rate, the direction full of original touches and the scenic effects simply unbelievable—lacking a revolving stage.

One scene especially, toward the end of the act, had baffled me: a triple telephone talk, done in three small blackouts on different levels. High up, in the centre, a young man was talking into a phone at his desk. Lower down, toward the left, a girl in a dowdy negligee reclining on a chaise longue, receiver in hand. And downstage right, another girl, trim and chic, was standing in a regulation telephone booth. I recognized her as Lee, who had been done in New York, with quick strips of the stage, and found the blackout technique much more effective.

"How in the world did they do it? And where do they keep all the scenery when it isn't in use?" I marvelled as we walked up the aisle.

"Fly it," Linda shrugged, out of the fund of recent theatrical knowledge. "Bet the stage looks like a junkshop, overhead."

That statement, too, occurred to me, and only increased my admiration of Burns Loring's work. What a pity he was on the other side of the fence, I thought. He could use so much for my play—if he wanted to.

And then, there he was. He and Sondra Marshall, talking with Orne Paulsen.

They were standing a short distance away, just at the rim of the circle of light pouring from the open theatre doors, both dressed in unrelieved white and sharply silhouetted against the darkness behind them.

Loring, in spite of his fifty-odd years, the gauntness of his tall frame and his general look of ill-health was singularly handsome. And I am using the word judiciously.

He looked like a statue — the Apollo of Belvedere—grown old and come to earth. Perhaps the pallor of his skin, combined with his thick, curling white hair, helped the impression. Anyway, it was there. Even the keenness of his deep blue eyes, the straight dark eyebrows, or his strange smile—tired and tensed at the same time —couldn't dispel it.

Sondra Marshall, who clung to his thin arm possessively, was no less striking. She wasn't so very young—around thirty-five, I judged but she was at the height of her beauty, with a perfect face poured into the white sheath of her slim dinner gown, a regular face accented with upswept black curls, a creamy skin, soft pink mouth devoid of lipstick and the most extraordinary eyes, golden, tawny, topazes set in a fringe of long black lashes.

Paulsen quickly performed the introductions and presently we were all talking about my play—that is, all but Linda, who stood by like a baby little girl forced to meet someone against her will, so pointedly silent, Loring glanced at her repeatedly in a puzzled way. And I began to regret having brought her along.

But that was the only flaw in the short meeting.

Burns Loring was all charm and suavity, praising my play, promising me sketches of his sets in the morning, expressing his pleasure at the casting. Sondra was equally generous. Linda's.

"Very perfect type-casting. The beautiful woman, of the world, the handsome would-be Romeo, lovely young lover and the ingenue," she shifted from one face to the other, finishing as it rested on Linda's, sulky and unresponsive in the circle of light with his "the perfect comedy of a charming audiences" to me.

If Linda sabotaged a play, it would be done so skillfully no one would dream of suspecting him.

Sondra Marshall, too, was friendly, almost raving about her part, and about Linda and Paulsen as "working partners"—all in a faintly Southern accent garnished with occasional "honeys" and "sugars," much eye-play and a cloyingly affected manner.

It was so startling I thought at first she was doing it deliberately, to give me a sample of her interpretation of her role—the scheming vixen of my play. Until I caught a wink from Paulsen and it dawned on me that she was a bad mimic and her "suitability" for the part.

Sondra Marshall acted that way because she was born stupid.

The night had turned even warmer and been very close, I noticed as we were standing there. It felt like a storm brewing. And it wasn't particularly surprised to see lightning flicker far across the bay and hear the low rumbling of distant thunder, when we left the theatre after the show.

It would rain soon, judging by the sudden gusts of wind playing havoc with flimsy skirts and unguarded hats.

No use trying to find Orne Paulsen—he had murmured something about seeing us tomorrow—in the crush and confusion. If we wanted to get to our cottages in a hurry, we'd better run for it . . .

And run we did, literally, after we'd battled our way through the crowd to the deserted shore road. It was we who did the battling, the walk in four minutes flat, with Linda's help of frantic fighting for the ground and keeping us from tripping.

Somewhere on the way Stray joined us. I don't know from where his light but rangy gay bark an additional guide as he scampered ahead of us. And once past the dark gap between the houses and on among the ferns, there was also a lantern, suspended beside the entrance of our bungalow, to act as a beacon.

We made it just in time. The first big drops splashed on the steps as I snatched the lantern from its hook, while Linda pushed the door open. And it had scarcely closed behind us when a blinding flash of lightning, and simultaneous deafening clap of thunder ushered in the deluge.

There we stood—in the bath robby the lantern and my flashlight reaching out groping fingers into the darkness, made deeper and darker by them: Catching "I breathless, listening to the rain pour outside and gradually getting scared.

I suddenly felt that anything could happen in this gloomy isolation. Any knight but me be hind one of those many closed doors, or creep in through one of the many long windows. And Linda's face showed she felt the same way—only more so.

The only carefree member of our small group was Stray. He yapped happily, shook himself, scattering raindrops all over us and then pattered off down the long corridor.

Probably the little animal's unbombow the little animal's unconcern pulled me out of my blue funk. I called: "Hey, Stray! You're in the right direction but on the wrong floor!" between thunderclaps and walked up the stairs resolutely, followed by Linda.

Upstairs we stopped in the hall. undecided what to do during at random to delay our parting, about how long the storm was likely to last and how dreadful it was neither of us was afraid of lightning and we'd sleep just the same. And where should Stray spend the night?

Until again, the little dog forced the issue by running into my room and jumping on my bed.

We said good night then quickly and I went after Stray, determined to have my bed to myself and find him a couch of his own.

I accomplished my purpose too, in the end through the fortunate tides of banishing him into the bathroom.

The bath was nothing but a large closet, really. Windowless, but with a second door to the hall. And as I had no wish to suffocate my friendly canine friend I left this door open and only closed the shutters attached to it for better ventilation, before I put down a quilt and invited Stray to make himself comfortable.

If I had expected resistance, playful yet energetic, I'm sorry to disappoint. But to my surprise he lay down at once, thumped his tail on the floor in a way that said "I'm fine," and settling himself to sleep, his cute black nose pointing against the shutter slats. And I went back to my room thankfully, changed the pillow case to the foot of the bed to keep the lightning out of my eyes, and tried to sleep.

Only I couldn't. The storm was too violent. I lay there, counting the seconds between the lightning flashes and the crackling thunder. Watching the storm recede, come back, recede again—coming in each time with a silence for other sounds. And hearing them.

Stray, protesting against his imprisonment? Footsteps in the hall? Or was it only the rain, drumming down now, on the porch roof, that scotched the footsteps?

I must have dropped off in the end, for I was dreaming of an ugly, nondescript creature whistling a table and rapping "Salutogen!" I must have awakened then when I found myself sitting up in bed. In answer to the rapping sounding on my door, and Linda's breathless voice calling my name over and over entreaty: "Mrs. Turner! Mrs. Turner; please! There's someone downstairs."

Praises Humanity Of British Troops

With the 8th Army in Italy, March 13.—(CP)—A German officer now safe in British hands had written home to say that he owed his capture to his commanders and his life to the humanity of the British soldier.

"You don't need to worry about me because we have all been treated well," he said. "I would never have believed we would get such good food. You could say that the whole group command is to blame for our bad luck. In two days the entire division was split in two. I believe the whole regiment was captured."

"Our leaders wanted to pull out but the Tommies were too quick for them. We were in bombs so much that we couldn't even fire. Then massed attacks rolled over our guns and ground them to pieces.

"All that saved us was the decency of the Tommies and the humanity of the Tommies. We got cigarettes and chocolate and tea, and we are in good hands. If it goes on like this we'll all come home again fit and well."

Says United Nations Have Chosen Practical Approach to Problem Of Setting Up Peace Organization

Toronto, March 13 — (CP) — The United Nations have chosen "a practical approach" to the problem of constructing a peace organization, Dr. H. B. Pearson, Minister-counsellor of the Canadian Embassy in Washington, told the Canadian Institute of Toronto.

"Logical and possibly a spectacular approach" would have been to call a great United Nations assembly to deal with post-war problems. Instead special conferences were called to "deal with specific subjects and to set up permanent agencies for covering these specific subjects, leaving the vital political organization to be constructed later."

"Experience gained in these workings from the ground up, going from the particular to the general, from the easier . . . to the more difficult" was demonstrated by the Hot Springs conference of last May which dealt only with the problem of food and agriculture.

A second "eminently practical" step was the United Nations relief and rehabilitation conference at Atlantic City last November dealing with an immediate welfare problem —the relief and rehabilitation of the millions about to be freed from the clutches of the enemy," it set up an organization to deal with this problem now and is known alphabetically as UNRRA.

Preparatory work in which Canada is participating is being done by the United Nations food and agriculture body "to see what problems there are to be solved."

Explaining the necessity for the continuance of rationing, the minister said: "You cannot take a lot of young men out of farms, as we only here have in Canada, the United States, Australia and New Zealand, and expect to feed Britain, and expect farm production to be kept up."

Food Rationing To Continue In England After War

London, March 13 — (CP-Reuters) — Food Minister Col. John J. Llewellin said today that accidents of women that food rationing would continue for some years after the end of the war.

"When the armistice is signed you will not be able to go home mentioning as you take down blackout curtains," he said.

"In meat, dairy products and fats, there will unfortunately be a shortage for years after the war."

Explaining the necessity for the continuance of rationing, the minister said: "You cannot take a lot of young men off farms, as we only here have in Canada, the United States, Australia and New Zealand, and expect to feed Britain, and expect farm production to be kept up."

Saturday Market

Although quite freely offered by district farmers, potatoes took a slight rise on the Saturday produce market Saturday morning with sacked potatoes selling from 60 cents per bag upward, prices depending on the quality. Eggs were also in good supply with best grade dyers and Mcintosh selling at 53 the bushel. Commercial grade Mcintosh sold at $2.65 with Courtlands bringing $2.75. Baldwins in bulk sold for $2.50 and $3 per bushel. Cabbage was sold at 25 cents, Mcintosh at 75 cents per dozen, sweets at 75 cents. Beef by the quarter was again offered with thirds being quoted at 20 cents and hinds at 25 cents the pound. Garden vegetables were also on sale at the usual prices.

One load of birch cordwood sold at $11 per cord.

Rednersville

Rednersville — The monthly meeting of the Women's Association was held at the home of R. Wantanasker on Wednesday afternoon with twenty-two members present.

The minutes were read and a quilting and a pot luck dinner were planned to be held at Mrs. Wm. Rednersville on Friday. An interesting letter was read from Mrs. Mcintosh, now in Africa describing the church service held there. Mrs. Wm. Wilson had charge of the program consisting of a piano solo by Mrs. McKay, a duet by Mrs. Mcintosh and Mrs. R. Adams and a spelling match with Mrs. Wm. Wilson, Mrs. Ina Keith Redney being the winners.

Roll call was followed with Irish jokes.

Lunch was served and a vote of thanks tendered to Mrs. Wantanasker and all who had helped with the lunch.

The War Today—
Severe Travel Restrictions On Eire Fully Anticipated

By HERBERT MACKENZIE
Canadian Press War Analyst

London's premier task of ending a serious breach in relations between Britain and Eire was a fully-anticipated corollary to Prime Minister Churchill's request to grant America's request that German and Japanese diplomatic and consular representatives be expelled from Dublin.

While it was Washington which made the overture to neutral Eire, London already backed it. The net point is that enemy agents have been given the cover of their legations and consulates to pass military information back home. Gen. Eisenhower, supreme commander of Allied western invasion forces, says these Axis operations are a menace.

Travel Restrictions Likely

Travel restriction is a heavy blow to the economic life of Eire, for Britain is a vital market for Eire's cattle and other products. Even such a severe step as this may be in the offing for Eire, however. The British, Free Canadian establishments of essential supplies from Britain and America. An appeal by Dublin to Australia fully supports the U. S. stand.

Just why should Eire cling so rigidly to her neutrality? This is especially puzzling to many because Eire's shield against danger from the continent of Europe is the island which comprises the United Kingdom, and Eire's ties with America are strong.

Deprived of Naval Bases

Dublin's neutrality has deprived the Anglo-American Allies of naval bases with the result that the war has been lengthened and Allied lives and shipping have been lost. We have needed little Eire's help badly. Why then has she stood out?

The main reason is Eire's bitterness towards Britain.

So powerful is this feeling in the heart of many Irishmen that they would sacrifice themselves rather than give aid to England. Of course, not all citizens of Eire feel that way. Some 200,000 for fighting with the British forces, and others are leading their support.

Premier de Valera would probably say that the security of Eire has depended on neutrality. However, I think the support which his people are giving him in this stand is due to their anti-English feeling.

NAZIS MOVE TO BRESLAU

Naples, March 13—(AP)—The official but brutally reported said today that Allied bombers had forced the Germans to move their digital from Berlin to Breslau, 175 miles to the southeast.

The move from bomb-battered Berlin began quietly several months ago. And most of the government functions are carried out at the new Silesian headquarters, it was said.

POPE APPEALS TO SPARE ROME FROM BOMBINGS

Receives Ovation as He Speaks on 5th Anniversary of Coronation

CRITICIZES AIR RAIDS

London, March 13 (CP)—Pope Pius XII, speaking to a great throng massed in St. Peter's square and to radio listeners around the world, appealed to Allied and German leaders Sunday to spare Rome and to strive for a "peace of liberation."

Speaking on the fifth anniversary of his coronation, the Pontiff received a tremendous ovation from the throng which had been assembling for hours before he appeared on the balcony of St. Peter's.

In one crucial word, we believe that anyone might dare to turn Rome, this almighty city which belongs to all nations and to all places, and to which the Christian and civilized world is looking for light, into a theatre of war, thus perpetrating an act militarily ingnorious and abominable in the eyes of God and of a humanity conscious of the highest spiritual and moral values!" the Pope asked.

He urged rather that leaders of the belligerent countries work for an agreement which will free mankind from all internal and external violence, so that they may be remembered in benediction and not maledictions for centuries on the face of the earth."

The Pope described the plight of Rome, which is occupied by the Germans and toward which the Allies have been bombarding, as "especially grave," and he appealed that "all those who have means to help, either with material contribution, or with the help of active work, not to deny their efficacious support and assistance."

He said that towns were stricken "in nearly every continent by air warfare, and not one has yet recognize any law or restraint, already a terrible indictment against the cruelty of such methods..."

Leading Officials Of Dairy Industry To Be Heard Here

Addresses by top-ranking officials of the dairy and cheese making industry will feature the annual spring conference of the Canadian Cheese Manufacturers' Association which is scheduled for the Hotel Quinte on April 3rd, 4th and 5th.

Members of the Association will convene at eleven o'clock the first morning with a discussion by distinguished dairy authorities in charge of the convention on Thursday afternoon.

President of the C.C.C.A., Mr. Harold Henderson, of Bloomfield, will be heard in an address following the registration of district representatives. The address on the first day will be heard from T. J. Hicks, senior dairy produce grader; Prof. J. L. Gamble, Kemptville Agricultural College; H. B. Heuch, chief dairy instructor for Eastern Ontario, and Prof. W. H. Sproule of the dairy department, O.A.C. College at Guelph.

Speakers on Thursday will include: J. M. Scott, chief instructor for Western and Central Ontario; C. E. Lecker, director of dairying; J. L. Irwin, honorary president of the C.C.C.A.; W. J. Gilmore, chief, Dairy Products, Grading and Inspection Services; W. D. Jones, director of Extension, O.A.C., and W. E. St. John, National Dairy Council of Canada.

Chief Instructor Dies Suddenly

Brockville, March 13 —(CP)—Lt.-Col. Alexander John Lott Pritchard, 51, chief instructor at Officers' Training Corps, died suddenly today from a heart attack.

He was a veteran of the First Great War, he came to Canada in 1923, settling in Brockville. Columbia joined the British Columbia Regiment, now the Irish Fusilier Regiment, and was posted to Gordon Head. He later served five months overseas. Subsequently he became chief instructor at Gordon Head, and was transferred here in the fall. He is survived by his widow.

'BABY HANSARD' BEING KEPT IN LEGISLATURE

Three Reporters Work in 45-Minute Shifts to Record Doings

36,000 WORDS DAILY

Toronto, March 13 —(CP)— The Ontario Legislature is keeping for the first time in its history or in the history of any provincial House, a stenographic record of its proceedings, a "Baby Hansard."

Three shorthand reporters work in 45-minute shifts at a small desk in the corner of legislature's high-walled, red-carpeted chamber, taking down proceedings. Speeches, members, comment and all the crossfire between Premier Hepburn and the "fear, fear" of members, go into the record.

Then, using shorthand in the House the reporters are in their private offices in the legislative building, reading their notes into dictaphones which high-speed stenographers type the daily record.

Three copies are made and distributed between the office of the Premier, the Leader of the Opposition, the Liberals and the two labor-progressive groups. Two copies go to the legislative library for the perusal of members. There they will be kept on the general public List of Wordage.

The reporters have found a lot of wordage goes into the running of the province's administrative affairs. With the Throne Speech debate on and some members speaking for about two hours, they have been copying an average of 18,000 words a day when the House sits. That means close to 36,000 words a day when the House sits at night.

It takes time to transcribe and edit the proceedings. The recording staff can be found at the buildings just fifteen minutes after the hours after the House rises at 6 p.m. Usually questions are not completed on the stenographic record until late next day.

Suggested by Jolliffe

The "Baby Hansard" was suggested by C. F. Leader Jolliffe outside the House. Premier Drew put the motion in the Legislature for retaining a court reporting firm for the purpose and the House agreed.

To the three court reporters who form the chief reporter A. O. Newell, R. C. Sturgeon and W. W. Pentney—copying House proceedings is just another job, though rating high.

Grey and vandyke-bearded Mr. Perry, oldest of the three, and hell on his 45-minute shift declaring this he prefers the most interesting reporting job.

Tadworth, Surrey, England, Mar. 13—(AP)—Labor Minister Ernest Bevin said today 22,000,000 Britons now are engaged in full time war work and his two armed forces and that of these more than 7,000,000 are women. He opened a rest home for women workers built with donations from American war workers.

County Team Wins 2nd Place in Jun. Judging Contest

Scoring a total of 1,702 points out of a possible 2,000, the Northumberland county team of three boys placed high in the Quinte district Junior Judging competition held in Belleville Shire Hall on Saturday afternoon. The Durham county lads took first place in a field of 36 contestants with 1,736 points, while the team from Hastings County, a little later, the other was lost. Approaching the clearing, the plane struck a fence, shattering the plane.

When the plane landed, the passengers were flung to the floor, and the radio operator still was sending out messages to the airdrome.

Plane Carrying 14 Lands Safely After Losing Both Wings

Tea, N.S.W., Australia, March 10 —(CP)— The plane carrying 14 Australian and United States service personnel, including an American nurse, landed safely in thickly-timbered country near here Thursday, after both wings were torn off.

Piloted by Capt. L. Dunn, the Australian National Airways plane ran into a rainstorm and the pilot flew blind. Water in the carburetor stopped the flow of gasoline, ignoring a small clearing, the pilot nosed down. One wing was torn off by a tree. A little later, the other was lost. Approaching the clearing, the plane struck a fence, shattering the plane.

When the plane landed, the passengers were flung to the floor, and the radio operator still was

GIVE GENEROUSLY TO THE RED CROSS

Looking Ahead in Ottawa

(By The Ottawa Staff of The Canadian Press)

Ottawa, March 13 — (CP) — An intensified drive by National Selective Service to round up draft dodgers is expected to follow the compulsory registration of farming made by employers of all male employees within which group slightly the call-up service.

Reports must be made to district mobilization officials by May 1 of any employees who fail to produce documentary proof that they have met the call-up requirements and employment has been granted with detailed descriptions of government certificates that may be accepted as proof.

Farmers as well as industrial employers are required to check their workers.

Radio Hearing: The parliamentary committee on radio broadcasting has called a meeting next Wednesday, and the hearings probably will open with a statement from War Services Minister LaPointe.

Augustin Frigon, acting general manager of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, will attend to answer questions should Gen. LaPointe's statement not take up the entire sitting.

Liberal members, particularly those from the prairies, have voiced the criticism that the CBC gives the C.C.F. party more "play" in its news bulletins than the speakers of other parties, and may be expected to ask many questions about that phase of the CBC's activities.

The CBC plans to issue a White Paper in the House of Commons meeting defining the January ruling of its governors on political broadcasting, and this will be the first time it sets squarely before the committee.

The CBC Board of Governors announced in January that the CBC would grant one broadcast period of equal length time to all political parties, and the White Paper will show in detail how this is to be divided.

It is understood the CBC has decided that no party shall be given less than 15 minutes for any one broadcast, as the division of time may present complications.

The White Paper also will define the term "political party" as interpreted by CBC regulations. Probably it is likely to be made if some of the new groups in the House of Commons are not included.

If the term "political party" is interpreted as including all parties allied to the Liberals, Progressive Conservatives, C.C.F., and New Democracy groups, then each party could have 15 minutes of broadcasting time every second month.

GERMAN 'DUNKIRK' AT ODESSA FORESEEN

Every Available Ship Being Sent To Southern Port

Complete Collapse Of Nazi Southern Front Is Indicated in Turkish Dispatches

OFFENSIVE UNCHECKED

By JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, March 14 — (AP)—Every available ship in Rumania's Black Sea ports has been rushed northward apparently to Odessa, an Istanbul dispatch said today. This appeared to foreshadow complete collapse of the Germans' broken position in flight to Russia in a vast scale evacuation of the Soviet pull out in 1941 Dunkirk which sent the British reeling back into obviously-brightened Rumania.

The dispatch, based on information from Sofia, suggested the Germans were preparing to evacuate Odessa by sea.

Following up reports from Stalin's announcement Monday night of the capture of Kherson, 90 miles east of Odessa, the German communique said today that base had been evacuated in the course of planned defensive movements after the engagement movements after the destruction of all military installations." The communique also said that both sides had thrown large forces into the battle for Nikolaev on the southern sector of the eastern front.

75,000 Killed in 19 Days

Moscow announced 75,000 Nazis had been killed and captured in the 19 days of the broad Soviet offensive on Lower Russia. Kherson and Gen. Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2nd Ukraine army, made up of veteran Soviet veterans, after crossing the lower reaches of the Dnieper.

If it were true that the Nazis had given up all hope of other than a seaborne retreat from their Crimean peninsula, this would explain their terrific resistance in the outskirts of Tarnopol, in the war-torn Poland, where a see-saw fight raged into the 43rd day. There the Nazis were making a grim attempt to hold an inland anchor of the front threatened by the combined Red Army offensives.

The Russians were pounding within 45 miles of the Dniester River from the northeast. They had also lopped out the Odessa-Lvow trunk line and left the whole Germ-man south flank army with only a cross-border threadwork of single-track spur lines to the Polish border.

These lines would be neither adequate for the supply of 300,000 fighting men — nor for their retreat.

Odessa Is Peril

The peril to Odessa — last hope of seaborne escape — was two-old, with Gen. Col. Feodor I. Tolbukhin turning upon Nikolaev from captured Kherson and Malinovsky driving upon Nikolaev from captured Kherson and Malinovsky driving upon Nikolaev in his onslaught from the northeast.

Both these forces likely were within 75 miles of Odessa today — and undisclosed.

To the north, the Red Army was pending 30 miles of the Rumanian border at three points following advances in the Ukraine, Moscow said, swept up 330 more towns in'24 hours.

On the basis of Soviet announcements, 350,000 Germans have been killed and 40,000 captured since the inception of the Red army winter offensive.

Relentlessly pushing the Germans back toward the Black Sea coast, the forces commanded by Malinovsky officially credited yesterday with taking Galiguevka on the Inguletz river, 35 miles east of the important Nikolaev base port of Nikolaev, which is 35 miles northwest of Kherson. Additional Red army units were said reported only 23 miles north of Nikolaev.

Flee In Panic

Moscow said the Germans fled "in panic" and declared that when the Red army broke into the city it scattered those Nazis who still try to make a stand. The Germans were even shelling their own flight packs in flight, Moscow dispatches added. Malinovsky's troops alone were said to have killed 15,000 and captured 2,500 Nazis in a week.

The Russians were menacing the entrances into Rumania at Jassy and Ismy I.'had with him here—most of taken Balti, about 20 miles southeast of Tarnopol in pre-war Poland; and at the mouth of the Dniester, at Perkurov, in the west Ukraine; and, about 120 miles farther south, at Akkerman on the banks of the Bug river.

A new threat to the Odessa-Lvow trunk rail line, already reported slashed by a 67-mile gap between Tarnopol and Proskurov, was offered by a renewed offensive in the Vinnitsa sector of the west Ukraine, the communique said. Vinnitsa is only 30 miles from the

JAPANESE STAGE SUICIDE ASSAULTS ON BOUGAINVILLE

Hundreds of Enemy Dead Left on the Defenders' Barbed Wire

U. S. CASUALTIES LIGHT

Allied Headquarters, Southwest Pacific, March 14 (AP) — Massed Japanese assaults on the American beachhead on Bougainville Island in the Solomons Saturday were thrown back with hundreds of enemy dead left on the Defenders' barbed wire, Allied headquarters reported today.

The United States 37th. Division, held against the enemy repeated suicidal attacks northeast of Cape Torokina at Empress Augusta Bay on Bougainville, Associated Press war correspondent, said the Japanese hurled their bodies with the sole purpose of killing as many Americans as they could before they died.

But official accounts said American casualties were light, against a conservative estimate of 1,000 Japanese killed since the enemy, isolated on the island by the Allied blockade of reinforcements and supplies, started the Empress Augusta Bay attacks March 8.

Allied aircraft operating from the Solomons, Admiralties and the Marianas established the Empress Augusta Bay beachhead on the November 1 have helped neutralize the enemy base at Rabaul, New Britain, and hastened Japanese centres in the Solomons.

Troopers debarking from Los Negros Island in the Admiralty occupied Hawell and Momo Islands in the Hyane harbor area, Allied headquarters announced today.

Navy and Marine Corps planes aided ground troops with a 78-ton bombing of the enemy's supply dumps and concentrations. A destroyer pursued shells from Japanese areas.

Meanwhile, the Japanese were reported massing for a counter-attack

NAVY LEAGUE NEEDS MORE HAND-KNITTED SWEATERS FOR SAILORS

A very serious shortage of turtle-neck sweaters is reported from the Belleville branch of the Navy League as the Atlantic and Pacific fleets and the spring recruiting drive to wash ashore numerous and unexpected requirements. Knitters of "hot water bottle" sweaters are asked to do possible.

The number of made sweaters available, even if they were all gathered in the Navy League headquarters, would not begin to meet the demand and those who need them, as far below the number needed right now as they are below the number of sweaters required in all who can knit, are willing to learn, to contact Mr. P. M. Lewis, chairman of the Navy League Belleville Branch, 219 Front St., where they can secure instructions quickly.

SHIRE HALL OFFICES GET SPRING CLEANING

Council chambers, committee rooms and other offices at Shire Hall, the county seat, are getting their spring cleaning these days, with the addition of a coat of paint or kalsomining where needed. Formerly completed in the upstairs building which has been highlighted by a coat of paint, while the council chamber has been cleaned and the desks varnished. It is expected the same procedure will be seen in the other offices of the clerk, treasurer and road superintendent.

"The work is all being done by jail inmates," stated County Clerk Ernest Hepburn, in explanation. "We're not trying to run opposition to organized labor, but it is important to keep inmates' time occupied. When their other duties are done they are set painting in a few hours redecorating the building."

FIRST INDICATION OF MOIRA RIVER BREAKUP SEEN

First indication of the impending annual breakup of the ice in the Moira River here appeared over the weekend and on Monday, when moderate to heavy rains, mixed with warm mist, sufficiently rotted the ice to clear the river over its rapid course. Conditions are getting right approximately even with the Belleville Construction Co. dock on Bridge Shore ice still clings to the river banks along the open stretches however.

Ice in the lower stretches of the river, from above the Transport Bridge to the bay still remains solid with a considerable thickness, and of a heavy up. No side cracks are apparent on the surface although considerable water has thinned the ice from underneath. On Monday water was running over the ice at each bank below the lower bridge.

HIGHWAY FLOODED EAST OF FOREST MINE

As the result of Sunday night rain and early spring-like weather of Monday, Highway No. 2 east of Belleville was flooded to such a degree necessitating caution being taken in the progress of vehicular traffic. Provincial Police were notified that water on the main highway at several points east of the city, the level rising at some points in two hours, whereupon the Highway Department emergency crews were placed on service to erect temporary warnings regarding precautionary driving practices through the area.

Charge Is Changed When Man Appears In Police Court

Charged with a breach of the National Selective Service regulations, namely, failure to report to the Chalk River conscientious objectors' camp after being designated as a conscientious objector, Michael Korzymowski, who gave 24 North Front Street as his home address, appeared before Magistrate J. I. Lloyd here today.

"I was only served with this charge at the opening of court today. I came here to agree to a charge of failing to notify the Selective Service of a change of address, not failing to report," interrupted Korzymowski.

"You were distinctly told on March 10th that if you failed to report at Chalk River on or before March 16th and appeared in this court today you would be charged with failing to report as a conscientious objector," pointed out F. C. Pollwell, special Selective Service prosecutor.

As the accused was only sentenced by the more serious charge today Magistrate Lloyd agreed to an arrangement until Friday. "But this case must go on Friday," ruled His Worship as he admitted Korzymowski to bail set at $5,000.

JOHN STANLEY COLDEN

John Stanley Colden of Latta, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Monday, March 13th, the result of a stroke which he suffered on Saturday last.

The late Mr. Colden was born fifty years ago in Thurlow township, the son of Mr. Joseph Colden and the late Mrs. Malinda Colden. He was married in the district and for many years he conducted a general store at Latta. For the past couple of years he became a patrolman on the Provincial Highway No. 2 between Belleville and Napanee. He was survived by one son Claude and one granddaughter, Mrs. Stanley Fuller, in Italy, Mrs. William Claus, (Gladdie) and Madge, Winston, Kenneth and Gertrude, daughter Mrs. Clayton Fuller, predeceased him and was buried over the ice at each bank below the lower bridge.

Buildings for Accommodation Of Industry Should Be First Concern of Planning Board

Rotary Club Members Hear Commission Members Discuss Post-War Planning

QUESTION PERIOD

Suitable buildings for the accommodation of industry should be constructed in this city with the object of enticing desirable industries to locate so that factory workers might be continued to be employed following the war, it was suggested at Rotary luncheon Monday by Mr. Arthur Young of the Aircraft Warner Alemite Corporation.

This suggestion was hard following the outlining of present post-war plans by members of the Belleville planning commission, Aldermen Harold Woodley and Harold Dougall. Mr. McDougall outlined in brief projects, which had come in for discussion by the commission and in more detail indicated those which had been set-aside for early action.

"As far as I can see our post-war plans to date include mainly constructional projects with the view of employing as many men as possible labor as is possible," stated Mr. Young. "Have you any plans about the present industrial worker."

Mr. Young intimated, that it was a general feeling among employers of factory labor in Belleville could not hope to give full employment to the present workers in the post-war period. "Additional industries must be sought and set to take up this slack," he said. "I think the first step which is to get this industry would be to provide suitable buildings in which a start could be made. The employment industries are not in the position to buy a site and construct a suitable building.

Projects Detailed For Action.

Post-war projects which had been detailed for action by the commission include a new digital plant, flood control, a landing field and the esplade, according to Mr. McDougall. He indicated the present plans for the latter are for the sewage project stating "combining sewage in Belleville with a complete treatment. Cost of the system required for Belleville was estimated at between one and two thousand dollars, fifty percent of which would be given by the city and an equal amount for sewers. Yearly maintenance would be about in the neighborhood of $17,000, was estimated.

A committee had been set up to look into the esplanade project, which committee was also being given for the provision of a landing field. Tenders have been also given for action in a flood control program.

"I think there are too many committees connected with this post-war program," protested Jamieson Bone as a discussion period opened following Mr. McDougall's remarks. "The flood control project is something which should go ahead immediately. Our aldermen are paid and I think should be the flood control council; they should be empowered to go ahead without appointed committees."

Dr. Jessop Semple wanted to know how much consideration had been given by the commission to the provision of recreation for youth. He claimed the city was in need of a social centre where youth could play basketball.

"I" Only Suitable Place.

Mr. McAMOA is the only suitable place in the city for this purpose and it is already overworked," he said. "I feel we are giving too little consideration to this matter. I am loath to see buildings for recreation for our youth, but I think some provision accommodation for this purpose is totally inadequate. Planned play is the answer to the problem which combat juvenile delinquency."

Mr. Alderman Harold Woodley intimated that the planning commission had given consideration to a municipal park on the waterfront, but if this was to be carried to completion the matter of raw sewage being dumped into the bay would have to be taken care of.

Mr. A. Turner, principal of Belleville Collegiate, told Rotarians that steps were being taken in interest the Navy League of Canada to provide for the construction of a new building in Belleville. This building, however, would be for the purpose primarily for the use of the sea cadets. He said he had been asked to speak on the matter consideration.

President John Deacon presided over the meeting. Among committees which the club's convention that suitable buildings were provided for industry, a study of which Mr. Young is chairman.

Chairman Woodley cited the background of post-war planning organization in Belleville and the projects which had been discussed. He indicated that a housing construction program had also been considered and a site in Belleville was called for a high percentage of man hour labor being used.

Prior to members of the Picton Rotary Club, instituting its present club in Belleville, were present at the luncheon. Mr. Williams extended an invitation to the Picton club to local Rotarians for the gift of their gong used at luncheons.

$8,000 Needed to Reach Red Cross Objective

Canvassers Are Urged to Complete Work Before End of Week

EXTEND TIME

The Canadian Red Cross campaign headquarters in Belleville report a total of $16,886 as the national campaign approaches the conclusion of a drive for $10,000,000. This figure is just 68% of the total objective set for Belleville and county and leaves $8,000 to go before the objective is reached. Campaign officials expressed the wish today that they would be sure of the success of the Canadian Red Cross Society's 1944 campaign is written, that Belleville will not be a prominent position. High up on the list of municipalities which have given every bit of support to this drive which is now in its last hectic gesture on the part of each citizen; patriotism is not the unselling motive of the people who are devoting their lives to the Red Cross cause as much as possible.

In view of the fact that tomorrow, the official closing date of the national campaign, will find Belleville still short of its objective by about $8,000, Mr. Morley E. Duff, campaign official, announced this morning that the local drive would be extended. Announcement March 15th, to the end of the week, in order to obtain the amount needed to reach the full objective. He issued an urgent request to all canvassers to complete their canvass by the week-end and also issued an appeal to all citizens or the city and district to "dig down deeper and endeavor to raise the needed additional $8,000 to go over the top."

No. 5 I.T.S., R.C.A.F. Station was visited during the day, starting at eight o'clock in the morning by a group of "Red Cross lady workers" who will solicit donations to the Red Cross drive from airmen stationed there. The results of their work will be reported to tomorrow's edition of The Ontario Intelligencer. An expression of thanks is made by the local committee to the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company for their donation of $1,000 received over the weekend.

No. 5 I.T.S. Included Among 28 Air Training Stations To Be Closed This Year

Twenty-eight air training stations across Canada, including No. 5 Initial Training School at Belleville, are to be closed in the period between March 15th, and the end of the year, it was announced Monday by Air Minister Power, according to a Canadian Press story from Ottawa.

The list of stations to be closed includes 11 service flying training schools, one operational training unit, three initial training schools, an air observer school, two bombing and gunnery schools, one wireless school at Guelph which occupies part of the Ontario Agricultural College buildings.

Production of aircrew during the next year would not be curtailed because of the closing of the schools it was announced, as the production of trained aircrew would still be sufficient to meet any necessary expansion of front line squadrons and operational units, and any wastage and replacements. The Air department had made provision for training sufficient recruits to fill the quota of trainees required by terms of recent conference agreements.

Close in Summer.

The Initial training School at Belleville which is to be closed in July or August is the only training school in Eastern Bay of Quinte area which is to be closed according to the announcement made from Ottawa. The nearest training centre to the Belleville district to be affected by the order is the I.T.S. at Toronto. Several of the schools to be closed are in Western Ontario, with the majority being situated in Eastern Canada.

Speaking with the Canadian Intelligencer today regarding the announcement of the closing of the training school, Wing Commander A. J. Snetsinger, commanding officer of No. 5 I.T.S. indicated that he had no further information on the matter.

The buildings occupied by the Belleville training school are those formerly occupied by Ontario School for the Deaf which were turned over to the war department for the duration of the war. The use to which the buildings will be put was not learned.

CANADIANS

This is his conception of combined operations: The Army, Navy and Air Force operating as one striking force.

"You cannot expect an army to do it alone and you will not win wars without bombing," he added, evidently referring to the heavy bombing attacks now being made on Germany and occupied France as part of the strategic bombing campaign and a prelude to landings.

"The piecemeal bombing of Germany is a great thing," the commander said. Referring to the attacks on factories he said the British working men are "an awfully decent lot" and if you tell them what you want you will get it.

He probably had them on his trip just what his armies want. The bombs from it is a vital importance, he said, and with a sly smile added that fighting the Germans is not the hardest thing to do in this war.

Robbery Charge Laid Against Everett Van Allen

Everett Van Allen, of this city, who has been held in custody on a charge of robbery with violence, the hold-up and robbery at the Kent Hotel, Bridge St. East, on the night of March 4th, today was arraigned before Magistrate J. I. Lloyd charged with "being held in custody on the charge of robbery with violence and threats the Kent Shoe Store.

Mr. F. E. Bell, counsel appointed by Mr. E. E. Pollwell, local barrister, was asked to plead guilty after Mr. Pollwell was granted a week's enlargement. The same charge was applied to Van Allen's second co-charging Van Allen with selling a revolver to one Ralph Copeland, not in position to possess a revolver. Van Allen is being held in custody at the county jail.

In regard to the Picton charge, Morgan C. Pope, of this city, subsequently appeared before the court and pleaded guilty to the charge of offering an unregistered revolver for sale. Constable Constable W. E. Smith informed the court that Morgan Pope purchased the pistol in question from Van Allen for $3 and later offered it for sale for $5 to a Belleville youth pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs, which were paid.

"This is a serious matter dealing in fire arms," warned His Worship before he ordered the revolver held under seizure at the request of Crown Attorney B. C. Donnelly, K.C.

Kingston Youths Taken From Train

The urge to try a little ride on a freight train was too great for two Kingston lads of the adolescent age, here yesterday afternoon, one aboard the freight train they were unable to jump off in time, due to speed, with the result they were removed from the train at the station in the Belleville C.N.R. yards early Monday night.

The two lads, 13 and 13 years respectively, were apprehended by Special Constable Hutchinson of the C.N.R. police, after a bitter cold ride from Kingston to Morgan's Point on the freight car. The two lads climbed aboard the freight at Kingston and were taking water at the Kingston Junction. At first the boys thought of riding as far as Bath and then returning home, but as the freight sped through Napanee the two youths were unable to leave the speeding train. They were discovered at Belleville, cold and hungry. Constable Hutchinson reported that the two boys were placed them in the custody of the juvenile police here for safe keeping one of the boys arrived in Belleville Monday morning and returned the youths to their respective homes, thoroughly convinced that riding freight trains was just about the worst kind of travelling, especially in the wintertime.

SUPPLY OF BEER

Little Effect on Production

Hugh F. Labatt, vice-president of John Labatt Ltd. Brewery at London, Ont., said the lifting of restrictions on sales would have very little effect, if any, on production at his brewery.

D. C. Betts, president of Canadian Breweries Limited, said the government's action will not make any additional supply of beer available to the public immediately. A great deal of organization would be needed to provide larger quantities, he declared.

National Breweries' officials said they felt that if the clerks had their way the breweries would be forced to increase production, yet it will be a mechanical rather than a physical operation." If the breweries have the equipment they can increase their production without any great increase in manpower.

Mr. King said the restrictions were lifted to remove a possible source of friction between the provinces and the federal government.

He said the Ontario Liquor Control Board had posted notices in beverage rooms which implied that the Dominion Government held responsible for a 25 per cent decrease in the amount of beer allotted them.

King Tackles Allegation

In the Alberta legislature Solon E. Low, Provincial Treasurer, Mr. King said, the allegation was reported to have stated that some of the Eastern provinces were warned that the liquor restrictions were to be imposed and that the Dominion government had refused the base year to give the greatest advantage to Quebec and Ontario.

"Mr. King said such statements were a ridiculous fraudulent."

However, with the removal of federal restrictions the matter now rests entirely with the provinces.

Sale of wine are restricted to 50 per cent of sales during the year ended Dec. 31, 1943, and sale of spirits to 70 per cent of those during the same period.

In addition, the content of all distilled spirits remaining released for consumption must be 25 per cent proof.

Purification of wine with distilled spirits is prohibited.

Provincial governments are asked to restrict hours of sale to at most eight hours per day.

All liquor advertising is prohibited for the duration of the war.

Yank Troops Raise Eyebrows Of Londoners

(By Charles V. Murphy in Fortune)

The British have turned over one of the ports to the U.S. Navy. They have moved out of villages to provide billets for our troops. They have let fields and hedges, lovingly tended for generations, be torn up by the tracks and the mercies of our tank crews. They have given over for our convenience what the American Indian would have thought the sanctified sanctity of the Englishman's home.

The trend, movies, pubs, taxis and particularly in London—are filling with Americans. From the dignified part of Claridge's and the fleshy, the shoulder insignia of the American officer gleam as brightly as they do in Washington's Carlton—and Englishmen at those pubs are scarce. "The British," a friend of mine disapprovingly mourn their own pubs," sang the first line of which they parody: "An Englishman spoke in Berkeley Square."

This raises a touchy point affecting the Anglo-American partnership—the amount of spending power in the richer partner's possession.

A British Tommy's base pay is roughly $15 a month, against an American private's $50 (counting the allowance). After the British Treasury has been satisfied, he is lucky if he be able to treat himself and his friends to an occasional glass of beer.

Similarly, the R.A.F. squadron leader draws about $175 a month against an American major's $400. He finds dinner for two at a good restaurant a costly stiff proposition, what with the dinner costing $5 and the wine of Dublin and French wine $4. One can imagine the mischief the Americans pay into this especially over girls.

A columnist in the London Daily Mail suggests that it would be Americans to stop paying tax drivers ten shillings as a tip for a speedy ride. barbers ten shillings for a twenty-minute job and cinemas five shillings for a half-crown drink, and bootblacks a half crown for a shine. Americans, he says, "are made it hard for me to get a haircut, mainly because I won't be the tender serves you first."

Every hotel has its tales of young American airmen on leave who check in with £200 or £300 and blow it all in three or four less glorious nights. There are extenuating circumstances, of course. This hell raising is done by hard-working men, who by normal American standards have earned a blowoff. They arrive from lonely, uncomfortable billets. And they regard London as the Paris of World War II. The Londoner knows this and tries to put up with it, but he can't help wishing that Americans were less conspicuous.

Britain is populated by millions of shopkeepers, land drivers, farmers and home guardsmen who are mustered and a little disillusioned that an American soldier should want to decorate himself with an enemy ribbon just for setting foot on British soil or for being in service before Pearl Harbor. Having just got around to awarding medals to their own veterans of the great desert campaigns and the Battle of Britain, they don't help feeling let down to be told by a young American fighting man with a solid row of ribbons that he has yet to see the enemy or hear a shot fired in anger. A story now going the rounds in London concerns an American who went to see the British film, "Desert Victory." As he left the theatre he was seen to pin a campaign ribbon to his tunic.

Doubtless all this discussion of ribbons only proves that there is a British and also an American way of doing things. However, the fact remains that in the Englishman's eyes the ribbons our Army gives men for crossing the ocean represent "Hollywood values."

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

Gerrard, a member of the 162 squadron, pyjamas, vanished from the house one day and eventually were given up as lost. But when we saw the picture of Murray," the elder Gerrett wrote in a letter to the editor of Wings Abroad, "the whereabouts of the missing pyjamas came to light."

Mr. Garrett thanked the editor for unearthing them and asked him to consider another photograph showing how I could get them back."

Glider Bombs Give Warship Close Call in Bay of Biscay

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

A Port in Northern Ireland, March 14—(CP)—Aboard a corvette whose anti-submarine motto is "seekers, destroyers, sockers, sinkers" was one of the first ships outside the Mediterranean to witness the latest attack by German aircraft using the radio-controlled glider bomb.

Lieut. Mr. J. Robertson of Victoria, the first Canadian to see Lieut. J. S. Brown of Windsor, Ont., the gunnery officer told the story of the attacks upon the convoy action, which the Bay of Biscay when they were on escort duty. Until then the operation of the glider bomb was prohibited.

On the first raid about 16 bombers came out from France and launched their attack on the ships. They let the new bombs go when they were two or three miles away from the convoy.

"The bomb looks exactly like a glider," said Brown. "It is about 10 feet long, the wing span is about 10 feet and there is a red light on the bomb which glows all the time it is in the air. The bomb and the wings are a gray color. That's about all we could figure out about it during the first raid for they dropped some distance away."

Another Attack

The second attack, which came later by 10 planes, was much closer. The glider circled around as usual at two miles released the bombs. Robertson observed around at from 300 to 400 miles an hour.

"They came right for us and the red light stared us right in the eye," Everyone on board, watched that ugly light, thought it was coming at them personally. The bomber wobbled about and then dived on us. But it hit the water 50 feet away. There was nothing like the explosion we expected. Just the wing flopped down on the deck and that was all. We got off scot free."

Other Canadian ships were also convoy escorts when this attack occurred but this corvette had the narrowest escape of all.

Captain of the ship is Lt.-Cmdr. R. D. Barrett of Victoria. Another officer aboard the corvette's crest with the appropriate motto, "We get our share" was on all to see.

Other officers are Lieuts. L. E. Baggs of Comstrock, Nfld., H. B. Main of Moose Jaw, Sask., and D. M. C. Morgan of Toronto. Warrant Engineer is W. E. Spearshout of Victoria.

Letter From Eire

By SEAN O'CATHAIN
(CP War Correspondent)

Dublin, March 14. — (CP) — Sean Kavanagh, author of the 2,000,000-word Irish phrase dictionary, now with the printers, is not through with this work. He is preparing for a new one of the Irish coastal areas to gather more information about the Irish language and the people who speak it.

He will make his journey on foot in no other way, he says, can he hope to get in touch with the people he wants to meet. He plans to carry his luggage on a donkey.

His big dictionary took five years to compile and he talked with thousands of Irish speakers, from 10 years to 85, gathering old sayings and expressions which had been spoken for the last 300 years.

Following the relief of the inhabitants of Tory Island off the Donegal Coast, the question is being mooted as to whether the Eire government should consider evacuating the island and getting the islanders grants of land elsewhere. Leith as they did a few years ago with other island inhabitants.

At least once a year Tory is storm-bound and considerable trouble and expense is caused authorities by shipments for relief. This year was no exception.

A transfer would not find favor in Tory Island where the people pay neither rates nor taxes and elect their own leader. They have however, been no elected ruler of the island for the last few years but this due to the absence of many of the islanders on war work in the United Kingdom.

Eire considers it will have an important position in post-war air communication, pointing to the importance already attained by the seaplane base at Foynes on the Shannon River estuary. Now the government is going ahead with a larger scale plan for Rineanna, seven miles up the river, which will become one of the finest seaplane bases in Europe with a four-way land-ing field and mooring facilities for a large number of flying boats.

Twins of Necessity

There are many among us who must figure closely in order to make their earnings meet the bare necessities for the family. For them, an unanticipated income tax balance of $20, $40 or $60 becomes a problem and in a few cases makes the purchase of a $50 Victory Bond a doubtful possibility.

There are, in the existing economic status of Canada, such unfortunates are very much in the minority. Most families in communities large and small in all provinces are in receipt of sufficient income to provide for the necessities, to pay their income taxes in full and in addition buy Victory Bonds.

There are large numbers of these, however, who spend their income as fast as it comes in and who will also find the income tax balance due for the year 1943 difficult to finance. That is, they will not have reserve funds on which to draw and they will be forced to scrape up the required amounts out of current income.

Thanks to the monthly savings plan of the National War Finance Committee, this group will be able to join their fellow citizens in the patriotic job of providing the fighting forces engaged in battle. If they begin to save now, they will be able to meet the income tax payment before the Loan campaign is finished and will be able to buy bonds through a plan that does not call for the first payment until the month of May.

"Enemy Cannot Escape"

"We have got this war gripped in a firm hold and the enemy cannot escape," said Sir Bernard Montgomery the other day, the "Monty" of the British armies which will make the grand assault upon Hitler's Reich and its stolen territory. He went on to say, "I have not the slightest doubt that if the battlefront and the homefront really get down to it this year, we can get the thing almost finished—held so tightly that next year we will just topple it over. At the end of the year, if not sooner, we shall have it just about right for toppling over."

When that glad day comes it will be the end of the most unholy and godless regime ever set up in the modern world. Like things of evil, the German machine that makes war will be ended and in the graphic words of the British leader, "it will just topple it over." It will be the triumph of right and the united voice of humanity.

The enemy cannot see any hope of victory and the victory he has done to humanity and civilization must be expiated by his overwhelming defeat and his elimination as something that the world must demand to have destroyed so that it can never again raise its head to menace liberty and progress.

There comes a time when the full measure of weight of the forces of right and progress makes the lower fell to earth that which once threatened all humanity reaches the stage where it is as a tottering wall and it needs only the push that will topple it over.

General Montgomery speaks a language of directness and power. He can speak truth because he is on the side of right and his confidence is in the + right. The enemy must know he is in the grip of the United Nations and that nothing he can do will save him. That is Hitler's fate—to be caught in the net that he cannot escape. By his evil course he has laid the steps that will in the course of time bring about his disappearance from the world scene as something that the world has had to destroy because it has been so brutal and opposite to all principles of right and justice.

Sap Season Nears

"The year's at the spring." In six days spring will have arrived and the work in the sugar bush will be beginning. This is the time of the year when everyone looks forward to the breaking of the bonds of even ta mild winter and to the coming of spring of the maple sugar bush is one of the unfailing signs. Already the heat of the sun has been causing the snow to disappear especially on the slopes that are to the south, there are bright skies and light clouds and the buds on the trees are swelling.

Sap with its products of sugar and syrup is the first harvest of the new growing year—one of the loveliest harvests because set in the advent of springtime when the world awakens to a new kind of growth in the forests and fields. With the sun shining down powerfully in the woods, no more happy scene can be imagined than the activity in the sugar bush with the fires under the spacious pans of sap turning to syrup and honey by evaporation of the water.

This spring festival draws near with its attendant sights of large cans of syrup on the markets of the country from which the precious maple product is distributed to the buying public.

Gasoline Life Blood of Modern War

(Journal of Chemical Education)

In the first 12 months of the war, the quantity of petroleum and petroleum products sent to our troops was more than 80 times that shipped in the first 12 months of the last world war. Instead of horses, mules, and forage, our armed forces now use trucks, tractors, bulldozers, gasoline and oil.

In Tunisia, for example, 18,000 gallons of gasoline were consumed for every hour each mechanized division was on the move.

On a very active day in North Africa, the Allied air forces alone required 1,500,000 gallons of high octane gasoline. In one such day, these air forces consumed enough high octane gas to operate 45,000 car clubs for a day. A single mechanized division required enough gasoline to run 52 average car clubs for a year.

So important is the transport of gasoline—the life blood of modern warfare—that on occasion, as for example, for use in Labrador, the tank trucks have been cut in halves, flown out, and welded together again at their destination.

Wherever U. S. forces supply forces, trucks, and gasoline can be counted on to do a job. Still, military aircraft have sometimes not only been forced down because they have run out of fuel, but on the other hand, have been unable to take off for the same reason. Tanks have been abandoned after unsuccessful attempts have been made to obtain fuel from other vehicles; large and valuable armaments have been left behind for the same reason.

As bases are taken over from the enemy, and new bases are built, the spread of gasoline supplies must be greater to avoid unnecessary risks occasioned by lack of refueling points, and gasoline must be available in as many places and in as great a reserve as possible.

War Maps

England has, for years, been a producer of first-class maps, and has been able to apply a great amount of expert experience to keeping the British Army supplied—and not only the British Army, but the American Forces. Under Mutual Aid Lend-Lease, Britain is supplying all of the maps used by the U. S. Army and the U.S.A.A.F. in Britain or based on Britain, and most of the maps used by the U. S. forces in the Mediterranean theatre. The responsibility for map production and supply rests with the Royal Engineers, which has developed a widespread organization of highly-trained experts to do the job. One of the main jobs of R. E. Map Depots is map supply, at short notice, accurate maps of any locality, and to provide them where, when and in the quantity needed. Every unit is equipped with a truck in which a complete photolitho and rotary printing outfit is contained. The press prints in color at the rate of 4,500 copies per hour. At one point during the North African campaign, the Royal Engineers' mobile presses worked twenty-two hours a day, every day for six weeks without a breakdown.

QUESTION

We put our faith in them and we hold their faith in trust.
They have taken an oath for us to battle to death if they must,
And over the oceans wide, and into the skies of blue
Every hour of the day and the night they venture, perhaps to die.

Now the wounded and lamed come home,
for never a ship returns,
But is laden with victims of shells and the terrible torpedo that burns,
And they smile at the sight of the almost died.
We are boasting our pride in them, but in us can they all take pride?

Are we serving the cause as they? Are we standing the stress and strain?
Do we go to our tasks with a smile? Do we suffer and not complain?
They have stood up to bloodshed and pain, to hardship; to hunger and cold.
Shall we seem like heroes to them when our little service is told?

A Brewery In Your Cellar

(Calgary Herald)

It appears that some thirsty souls in Canada are making their own beer. They are quite within the law; all they need is a permit from the nearest Inspector of the Federal Government. They must also be careful not to sell their product—at the beer parlors or certain certain' homes. It must be what is known as "home brew" or "cellar beer."

They make this beer from a powder manufactured in Montreal which has now been placed on sale in Calgary. The manufacturers claim that it will produce drinkable beer in six days.

So far, so good. But how does this tally with the Food Administration of December 14, 1942? In that month, Mr. King said that the Canadian people were drinking too much beer, and the way to cut down the supply.

But here is a way in which the Canadian people can make more beer. Small beer, it is true, and drinking it will involve a little worry and physical effort. With "cellar beer" a hangover will be occasioned by the inexperience of amateur brewers rather than by the beer. And legs! bear, at that.

How about the breweries? Well, they could be closed down, but not the Federal Government, at Mr. King's behest, would have to do so. Beer may flow from the basements, but it will not flow from cellars. Amateurs can make it, but not professionals: presumably on the theory that the latter would be less dangerous to the nation's morality than the former, in such circumstances.

The Federal Government thus marches on to greater heights of achievement. It has made beer-drinking a profitable hobby; it has created a state of affairs which will keep the whole family busy every man and woman; it has given the Food Administration a thrilling line-up system which wastes enough man-hours to fight the battle of the Bulge; a couple of battleships.

Only one sense the crowning accomplishment—smell beer. Father is the ingredients, mother does the stirring, and the children help with the bottling. The whole family will be followers a perfect slogan for the next federal election—a family affair. Beer flows in every garage, and a brewery in every basement.

Canada's Drink Bill

(The Ottawa Journal)

A statement issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics estimates that Canada's drink bill for 1943 has climbed from a pre-war $131,000,000 to $310,000,000, or $30 per person man, woman and child in the country.

Sobering, on its face, seems bad, but, in all fairness, it is not as bad as it looks. Canada's coast has been a great deal more, than pre-war liquor, it is true, but there is a balanced more; so that when a man buys a bottle of liquor in the east and takes it to an old friend John Barleycorn: the great bulk of it goes to Mr. Excheq-uer, who is for the war. That's where a big bit of the $310,000,000 bill will go. We were drinking more, but less for ourselves, and a great deal more for the more that we did drink, with the reason taxes, the consequence is not as great as it appear that we had all gone on a drunk. Sobering, that.

Robert Low, a British Chancellor of the Exchequer, once increased excise revenue, said that the British were drinking themselves out of debt." We would n't want to argue that the people of Canada are drinking themselves out of debt." We would-n't want to argue that the people of Canada are drinking themselves out of liquor, were making a necessary war effort, and that we are doing so they were concerned about their drinking habits, they weren't. Nevertheless, they did pay in that particular way a great deal more than they had before, even though they made us all seem to be drinking like fishes.

Actually, there is a great deal of moral satisfaction in the assessments which appear from time to time taxing what "the traffic will bear" to "cure the country". We read that sickness costs us so much, or that crime costs us so much more, and reading it we get the idea that they could get to cost us so much though it were thrown into the lake. But in fact what that figure mean is that a certain sum of money was spent on a certain thing, and that it was merely changing hands, going for the most part into some other use or into payment for material or transportation or for other services, and being used in turn for some other purpose or activity. It is not "lost" or "destroyed" to society" in money; a sort of turnover.

Regina, E. G. Wollett of Saskatoon and Art Baker of Toronto.

Cmdr. Hugh Pullen of Oakville, Ont., in the Canadian destroyer Ottawa, commanded the 4th escort group of convoy ships on the North Atlantic. This group has been operating since the ships were not been in action, but has secured hundreds of miles of ocean and tankers across the ocean without a single loss from enemy action.

Bryan Fraser of Toronto, is a sailor on the new Canadian corvette Fersel 101 and has been at sea for years he had not seen his brother, Norman Fraser, R.C.A.F. He met himself also on an escort ship.

Lt. Cmdr. (E) Ian Strachan, of the west coast and Noreen on the east and then they both were sent overseas. Every time Ian's ship put in an East Coast Canadian port by a few days or hours, Noreen and Ian, Glasgow, by mere chance, bumped into each other.

"I saw this officer coming and was preparing to hand out the usual salute," Noreen related it was my brother," he grinned.

A Tour of Britain Spiced With Air Raids

By VERNON M. KIFF
(Special to Ottawa Journal and The Ontario Intelligencer)

London—plotting of British air war is, of course, far more than the picture of specialized London, while some more terror raids are disturbing the night's slumber, the industries vitally more than we have been able to see in ten days in the factories, and yet that tour can give a good deal of light on the reason for the strength of Britain, on her military and industrial power in this great crisis.

The tour began two days in Edinburgh, a day each in Glasgow, Liverpool, Chester, Manchester and Birmingham, and a week-end at a Canadian bomber station. Some of our party went to Newcastle, Durham and Hull—perhaps the most bombed city in Britain, and others remained in London for the air raids.

It was a condensed and intensive holiday, packed fast, jammed with more superficial impressions. In Glasgow, for example, every hour of daylight and dark was filled, leaving until we took a train at 11 o'clock next night filled with inspections, a luncheon and a dinner; there was only a minute in which to walk the streets and shops and pubs. That in greater or less degree, was our experience everywhere. We had numerous official conflicts, and most helpful ones, but not enough to form formal meetings with the people. And yet superficial contacts are not necessarily unsound ones.

We were received everywhere with extraordinary kindness, far beyond the warrant of this modest group of newspapermen, and we decided, the desire of our British hosts to pay some tribute to Canada, and we were the only medium. At Hull, for example, the official welcome to the party there gave a luncheon and reception for those who had been in their earlier itinerary. At St. Helens an industrial city of 110,000, we were taken to the Town Hall at 10.30 a.m. for a reception by Mayor Marsden and a group of officials, and we were met with us to inspect a great factory, and back to the Town Hall for lunch, went out with us again in the afternoon, took us back to Gateshead to see the Mayor there, and car after being photographed with the local worthies, and back for luncheon, when the King was toasted, the good burgesses said: "Long King," the Duke of Lancaster," he being one and the same.)

The receptions were received by the Lord Mayor, who brought out his official sherry at 11 a.m. and gave us autographed booklets about the city, at Coventry the Mayor and the Bishop—always a party of officials who gave us a reception, at Lord Nuffield's home, Nuffield, the Earl of Rosebery and Lord Mayor. At Glasgow there was a luncheon by heads of the local newspapers, and at Derby the Lord Mayor and all of councillors attended it, told some stories and made a song about the newspaper portraits.

That evening at Glasgow Sir Steven Bilsland, vice-chairman of the Scottish Council of Industry, entertained the party at dinner which included many men distinguished in trade and business, and it was a long round-table discussion on post-war problems, and the last one was carefully to Mr. Kenneth Wilson, our party's foremost authority on Canada-United Kingdom trade.

Arrangements for the tour were made by the British Ministry of Information, which passed us on from regional office to regional office and the Ministry's competent young men smoothed out the discomforts of travel, as far as possible in reservations, arranged for the opening of doors and confidences. They left it open to visitors, even visiting editors.

Hotels everywhere were crowded, as they are crowded in Canada, and trains.

In 10 days in the provinces we had one air raid alarm, this in Birmingham, but no bombs were dropped, and no enemy aircraft came over the city. At 12.30 a.m. I was awakened by a bell ringing with great vigor just outside my window, and then by the loud sound of the siren, and this was the hotel's own alarm. I thought it might be a fire, and got my clothes out into the corridor to investigate. A chap was pounding on the door of a room, said he was trying to get a man friend, that the siren alarm had been given. I asked him what people there usually did in such a case. He said he was a stranger in Birmingham himself, but some had gone downstairs, presumably to the shelter. However, I went back to bed, but with little else the All Clear was given, and the raiders went on to London—where 10 of them were shot down.

We saw in every city evidence in the bombed districts, buildings and great rubble piles of the violence of the German air attack in 1940 and 1941, and evidences of the end of the war will bring problems of reconstruction of some planning. There has been no reconstruction, in the sense that the London Traffic was running as usual, and little groups of men and women with magnificent courage went into these houses and shops and offices and fitted them for use.

Postscript: More about the tour in another article. Between this dateline and the next, however, we have had grandstand seats for an air battle, one

Other members of the Oshawa Skating Club, Miss Chown's pupils, presented a specialty number.

Mrs. G. H. Smith, Church St., entertained at a birthday party on Saturday in honor of her son daughter, Ann, who was celebrating her third birthday. The little guests received her guests wearing a hand-smocked white silk dress which had been her grandmother's in England. She was a perfectly charming little hostess and entertained her kiddie friends at various games during the afternoon. At this time, Ann's mother presented her with a pink and white birthday cake, topped with three lighted candles. Ann, who was experiencing her first birthday in Canada, received two cablegrams of congratulations, one from her father, Sgt. Smith, in Italy, and the other from her grandparents in England.

Women's Activities

TYENDINAGA EAST W. I.

The regular meeting of the Tyendinaga East Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Percy Kinnersley with a fair attendance of members and visitors. Mrs. M. Schamerhorn conducted the meeting in the absence of the president. Minutes and correspondence were read, letters of thanks from the sick members. Quills and quiltings were discussed. Interesting current events were given by Mrs. Roy Stafford. The roll call was a short talk on Canadian women writers. The following program was conducted by Mrs. Percy Kinnersley: Readings, "No Socks in Heaven," by Mrs. F. Kinnersley; "The Testament Will," by Miss G. Mowers; "Victory Gardens," by Mrs. Roy Stafford; "Living Up for Tomorrow," Miss Irene Mowers and community singing with Mrs. R. Tucker conducted two contests. A dainty lunch was served. The next meeting will be held thanks to the hostess for her kind hospitality.

SCOTTISH NURSE helps relieve MANY AILMENTS with Minard

MRS. M. MILLER came from Aberdeen, Scotland. She has been a nursing home in Seth Current, Ont.

"I learned many of the uses of Minard and its value in home nursing while I was in training in Scotland," explained Mrs. Miller. "One ingredient was the secret of causing a patient to perspire freely, thus helping to break the fever and eliminate poisons from the body." She described how a flannel blanket is dipped in boiling water containing a half a cup of Minard and then wrung out and wrapped around the patient to induce perspiration.

Bronchial Trouble in Babies

"I never hesitate to use a mustard poultice on small babies in case of bronchial trouble," states Mrs. Miller. "It helps to give quicker, safer relief than any other remedy.

I sponge the chest or back with olive oil and apply mild poultices mixed one part mustard to five parts of flour on the affected areas." Just by knowing this simple fact, thousands of babies may be relieved from bronchial suffering. Never leave a poultice on them for longer minutes.

Pure Mustard is Safe Mustard

The best proof of the value of mustard in treating many common ailments is the fact that thousands of people like Mrs. Miller depend on it year after year. Keep mustard always handy in your home to help relieve Chills or Colds, or when you feel depressed by Grippe or other Winter infections. Use it to help relieve pains of Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Arthritis, Neuritis, over-tired muscles, etc. Call your doctor if symptoms are severe. Be sure that you use famous Keen's D.S.F. Mustard, made entirely from mustard seed of highest quality and packed to preserve its uniform quality and full medicinal strength. Sold by grocers and druggists everywhere.

WEDDINGS

WEBSTER—WATTAM

Picton, March 14—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Wattam was decorated with carnations and snapdragons for the marriage on Saturday of their daughter, Jeanne Clarice to Flight Sgt. Leonard Charles Webster, R.A.F., Picton, son of Mrs. J. Webster, Middlesex, England. J. F. Hayrath officiated. Mrs. P. B. Wattam was bridesmaid.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a two-piece dress of navy sheer, an off-the-face hat with blue veil and a corsage of white roses and carnations.

The attendants were her sisters, Miss Betty Wattam, in printed silk jersey in blue tones and Miss Kathryn Wattam, in blue and white navy check. Their corsages were of sweet peas. The bridegroom was supported by Flight Sgt. S. P. Mason and Flight Sgt. J. O. Smith of Picton, R.A.F.

At the reception following, the bride's mother was in black and white checked taffeta jacket with white taffeta skirt and corsage of sweet peas. Tea was poured by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. D. Watson, and Mrs. Mrs. J. L. Shannon. The assistants were Mrs. Mrs. Ralph Rikley, Miss Doreen Wattam, Mrs. D. G. Wells and Mrs. W. Cleaver.

Flt. Sgt. and Mrs. Webster left for a honeymoon motor trip. The couple were for the east coast. Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Mrs. Leonard Kerr, Ottawa, Mrs. C. S. Jones and Miss Doreen Wattam, Toronto.

ALLEN—WILCE

Wooler—A pretty wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, Wooler, on Saturday, March 6, at 10 a.m., when Marjorie Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Mr. Willis and the late Mr. Harry Wilce, Castleton, became the bride of Claude Willis Allen, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Durward Allen, of Castleton. Against a background of evergreen branches, heath an arch fashioned with green ribbons, roses, asple and sweet peas, centred with a white bell, the marriage was solemnized by Rev. J. Ashton, United Church minister at Colborne.

Mr. George C. Wilce, uncle of the bride, gave her in marriage. The bride was charming, gowned in a floor-length white taffeta fashioned with classic lines, sweetheart neckline and bishop sleeves. She wore a long train, studded in large white roses and carried an arm bouquet of American Beauty roses and maiden hair fern tied with white ribbons, studded in large double bows and long streamers. Her only ornament was three strands of pearls.

Miss Ruth Allen, sister of the groom, as bridesmaid wore a floor length frock of pale taffeta with matching headdress and carried a bouquet of Queen Mary roses tied with pink ribbons.

Mr. Gordon Wilce, brother of the bride, attended as best man.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held, with the bride's mother receiving in black crepe. The groom's mother assisting, gowned in Royal blue crepe. Both wore corsages of violets and rosebuds. The guests were received and ushered to the dining room which was decorated with pink and white crepe and streamers and white bells, where a dinner was served by lady friends of the bride. The table was adorned with pink ribbon and tall white tapers, centred with a three-tiered wedding cake, the top tier of which was a miniature bride and groom.

The groom's gift to the bride was a silver fox fur; to the groom, a gold locket and to the best man, a leather wallet.

On the wedding trip to Toronto and places in Ontario, the bride wore a tailored crepe suit topped with a green hound's tooth coat. Persian trim was her only other accessories. On their return, the young couple will live with the groom on the groom's farm near Castleton.

The bride is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wilce, Wooler, residents of Wooler, Methodist minister, and a niece of Mrs. Parley Montgomery is an uncle of Mr. Roy Allen, father of the groom, the bride, both residing at Wooler. Owing to a recent bereavement in the bride's home, the wedding was quiet.

Western Brides Look to Future In New Zealand

Winnipeg, March 14—(CP)—Four years ago New Zealand was a virtually unknown country to Canadian girls. Today, although still unknown, it is their though still unknown, it is their thought.

Winnipeg, thus far boasts the largest crop of New Zealand-Canadian marriages with Calgary a close second. There is generally a city throughout the Dominion that won't lose some of its daughters to New Zealand's sheep country.

Winnipeg's N. Z. Club, the only one of its kind in Canada, was suggested by Hon. P. Jones, minister of national defence for New Zealand, while on a tour of Canada last year. It was organized in June, 1945, and now includes New Zealand and Australian wives. So Jean Christie, of Winnipeg, who married a member of the R.C.A.F. (W.D.) got the girls together and now acts as general adviser.

President of the N. Z. Club is Mrs. Dorothy Vincent, whose husband, a wireless air gunner, is now overseas. "I went roller skating one night, met a New Zealander named Reg, and now I'm wondering what it's like," she says.

New Zealand-born Mrs. Beth Mrs. Beth McDonald, who was born in Edmonton, Sask., Canada, and went to school in Victoria, met her husband, Mac, in 1941, the location used to be a name in a geography book she says. "It's mighty important."

"Sounds Like Paradise"

"It must sound like," said Mrs. Carol Mayes, of Winnipeg, who spends a good deal of her time poring over pictures and articles on Hamilton, New Zealand, a province dreamt of by many Canadian housewives.

Mrs. Mayes' husband, whose husband is from Wellington, enlisted in the C.W.A.C. and was stationed in Italy a prisoner of war and Mrs. Dorothy Dempsey, whose husband is overseas in the R.C.A.F. is in the R.C.A.F. (W.D.)

Then all have one other interest in thought—getting over to New Zealand. "It just can't be soon enough," said Mrs. Glenys Glenny, who will make her home in Ashland. "Judging by their letters, the people sound marvellous—I'm certainly looking forward to living there."

St. Michael's H.S. Literary Society Holds Form Debate

At the regular meeting of St. Michael's High School Literary Society last Friday, the representatives of Forms III and IV debated the question, resolved "That Immigration Be Restricted After the War Would be Advisable."

Fourth form was represented by Miss Mary Agnes Wilkinson, Georges Wilson and Gordon Donovan, while third form was represented by Miss Sheila Doyle, Miss Betty Flynn and Boys Dyson. It was a very interesting contest, the Third formers, were the affirmative of the question, were successful in winning by a close margin.

The winners at this time will, at the next meeting, debate with the representatives of Forms I and the names of the finally successful contestants will be inscribed on a plaque to be placed in their form room during the coming year.

Mr. Edward Buckley and Mr. George O'Neill very capably acted as judges and praised the students for their commendable efforts on this subject. Also present at the meeting were the parents of the debaters. A novel arrangement of Irish songs by Miss Gloe, "The Little Annie Rooney" by the girls, with a good harmony and a number of much enjoyed instrumental by Miss Sheila Doyle and Miss Betty Flynn brought the program to a successful conclusion.

Clothes Without Ration Tickets Amazes Sergeant's War Bride

MRS. CECIL STYLES AND DAUGHTER, SYLVIA

Absence of clothing rationing in Canada is one of the things about this country which impressed Mrs. Lillian Styles, this city's only overseas war bride, who has come to Belleville, she is the wife of Sergt. Cecil Buck Styles, and now is in Canada, last week in company with about 100 other Canadian servicemen.

Accompanying Mrs. Styles from her London home was her 30-months-old daughter, Sylvia. Mrs. Styles met her father had never seen. Sergt. Styles is old daughter, Sylvia. THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN

Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! Fish clothes are the order of the day, during Lent.

To get away from frying meth-ods and off the beaten track as it were, here's something we tried in our hydro kitchen the other day. We purchased 4 fish fillets and 4 cups canned cream soup. The fish fillets were coated with half the can of soup. Next, we butter-ed them with finely crushed corn-flakes and placed them in a lightly greased casserole. These were baked in a preheated electric oven for 30 mins. They were delicious, served with the rest of the cream of celery soup. Try this method and we're sure you'll agree.

Mackerel Croquettes

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk.
1 egg
2 cups mackerel
2 cups riced potatoes
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
Salt and pepper
Make a white sauce with the butter, flour and milk; season. With two forks mix sauce, fish and potato and fish, add egg slightly beaten, then the parsley. Shape portions of the mixture on a buttered baking sheet; cook in electric oven (400 degrees) until brown.

Baked Halibut with Tomato Sauce

2 pounds halibut
Salt and pepper
2 cups of tomato sauce or canned tomato soup

Wipe the slices of halibut with damp cloth or paper, place in buttered baking dish, pour the sauce or soup around the fish, and cook in electric oven at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

Fish Chowder

2 cups raw diced cod fish
2 cups water
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup of cream, celery
2 cups raw diced or grated potatoes
4 cups milk
2-3 cups minced onion, salt and pepper

Fry onion in melted butter, add fish, potatoes and celery, cook a few minutes, season well, add cold water and cook until tender. Then add cold milk and heat to the boiling point. Serve very hot. Any kind of white-fleshed fish may be used.

Tartare Sauce

To one egg, slightly beaten, add one or two teaspoons of mustard, 1 teaspoon of salt. Mix well, then add a few drops of oil and beat with Dover egg beater, adding oil regularly, a little at a time. When thick enough to stand up, add two tablespoons of vinegar, then chopped pickles, parsley or else dill pickles, capers, etc.

Place above sauce in refrigerator and chill.

Take a Tip

To overcome fish odors: (1) Clean hands after handling raw fish by rubbing them with salt and then rinsing. (2) Fill cooking odors by scorching orange peel or coffee in pan. (3) Wash fish in water and vinegar to cleanse it. (3) Dishes which have held fish should be washed in warm water to which a teaspoon of dry mustard is added.

The Question Box

Question: Should fish be washed before used to poach fish?

Answer: Smoked fish may curdle milk, simmer fish in water before it is poached in milk.

What is parchment paper?

Answer: Butter wrappers are parchment. Use to wrap fish.

Is it necessary to use lemon juice in the water to cook fish?

Answer: No. Use vinegar when lemons are expensive. Vinegar is an acid that keeps the flesh firm and white. It is not necessary to use in the cooking of salmon.

Fashion Flashes

BRIGHT HEADLENGTHS on fashion models in the idea of sporting up a plain beret with a big jewelled pin, brooch or clip.

THE PULLING POWER of the drawstring continues for it is a feature of Spring frocks. White crepe with a print of green leaves and yellow, red and blue leaves and yellow, red and blue is used for a frock with black velvet drawstring at the rounded low neckline and for either side of the waistline.

JUST WAIT and see how smart brown with pink or white will appear soon. Already for a early Summer is a simple shirtwaist frock of these rich woolens. A print with brown grosgrain banding all the way down the front and at the side seams. Worn with a brown topper saddle stitched in pink.

IF YOU GO IN for a bolero suit then the wallet frilly blouse becomes an important accessory. Many of the new blouses are of white organdie or starched chiffon, all-over embroidered with frilly collar or jabot edged with lace.

TOBACCO ROAD might very well be the name of a new print that features, of all things, Roosevelt's bolero holder. Churchill's cigar and stalin's pipe.

IT'S GRAND to have at least one dressy little hat for a last-minute date. A hat that can accept time and time again in a tiny circlet of pleated tulle, lace, flowers or ribbon here and there by tiny grosgrain rose buds.

Alemite Lassies and Reliance Girls Meet in Finals of Cage Loop for Industrial Title

Fryfers Squad Downs Bell Sergents While Martin's Team Beats Deseons

GOOD CONTESTS

Title between Alemite and Reliance for the championship of the Belleville Ladies War Industrial Basketball League.

Last evening in a doubleheader consisting of two sudden death games in the semi-final round played at the Y.M.C.A., Reliance advanced to the final championship series by eliminating Bell-Sergents with a 33 to 18 victory. Directly following Reliance, Alemite defeated Deseons by the other final spot position by pushing the two Deacon lassies out and winning 33 to 18.

Both games saw the season's fastest basketball with the winning teams possessing the slarting power to clinch their victories early-off scrlbs by last period splurges, as the half-times scores in both games saw the contesting quintettes battling with close scores.

Even in First Half

In the curtain-raiser it was rather even for the initial half when Frank Martin's Alemites were only leading 14 to 12 when the half period came. However, the league-leaders came back in the last half period to score 20 points and win 35 to 18. Marion Fryfer and Ruth Clemens headed the Alemites on the attack with nine points each, while Betty Fryfer starred for the losers with eight. However, it was Ruth Carlery for the Alemites who was high scoring the most points, ten, while Evelyn Aimite netted 8.

It was the Alemites' razzle-dazzle passing that left the Sargents behind in the second half, as the scoring of the winners was quite evenly divided in the final half when they ran in 20 points, with no player scoring over five.

Kay Cushing High Scorer

It was Kay Cosmpe eleven baskets that were good enough to put Reliance Girls into the finals over Gloria Fryfer's elongated centre player scored 22 points as Reliance won Deacon's 33 to 18.

As in the opener the losing quintette made matters interesting for the initial half as Coach Cook's Deacon lassies were trailing 12 to 9, when the long rest period arrived. However in the last half Kay Cosmp rang basket after basket on set-ups for Dot Fryfer's couple to score seven baskets in the last 20 minutes. Artie Gilbert followed for the winners with 10 points.

For Deacons "Pee Wee" LaPure led the attack with eleven points, Joyce Woodhouse getting four. However the Deacons failed to hit the ball. Kay Cosmpe the sig we up, as Coach Fryfer's ace scoring threat showed why she is the class forward in the loop.

Next Monday night Alemite and Reliance meet in the first of a best-in-three series for the city cage championship.

Hamilton Whizzers Surprise St. Mikes With 8-2 Victory

By The Canadian Press

Hamilton Whizzers last night upset calculations in the junior O.H.A. playoffs of the Ontario Hockey Association by turning back Toronto St. Michael's College in the return game of the semi-finals at Hamilton by sweeping through the Collegiates 8-2.

The series thus became deadlock-ed, 1-1-1, as Toronto took the first two encounters 5-3 at Toronto. The necessary Hamilton victory is specified for Thursday night at Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens.

Previous conquerors of Brantford and Toronto Navy, Whizzers whipped up a 4-0 lead in the first period, added another in the second and coasted home in the last stanza to beat the Mikes. St. Mike's found the target for the first.

Scores for Hamilton were Jackson, fullback and Tumiuk, with two apiece, and Lawrence, Bolden, Hall, one each. The two marksmen for Toronto were Angus Mortson and Jim Thomson.

SUDBURY MINERS READY TO MEET HAMILTON TEAM

Senior Series for the Provincial Title Opens on Wednesday

EVENLY MATCHED

Sudbury, March 14 — (CP)—Confidence reigned supreme in the Ontario Open Pit hockey team camp today as arrangements were completed to leave tonight for Hamilton where they clash with Hamilton Majors Wednesday night in the first game of the best-of-five all-Ontario senior final.

Coach Frank Graham said the first game with Hamilton "will give us a good insight into what we are up against in the other series. And if we win the first one we will know that we are in for the Allan Cup."

The Pioneer won the Northern Ontario Hockey Association championship by eliminating Porcupine Alley-Stars-four games to one. Hamilton reached the final by defeating St. Catharine Saints 4-1 in the other best-of-seven series.

Fourteen players, including two former National Hockey League players Reg (Pep) Kelly, one-time Toronto Maple Leaf star and Alex Singbush, defensive star with Montreal Canadiens — will make the southern trip. They will be accompanied by Graham and trainer Al Keller.

Played Last Year

More than three-quarters of the team played here last year under the name of Frood Tigers, the team that won the right to play for the hands of Toronto R.C.A.F.

Among Sudbury members is goalie Morris Gorth, netminder last year with Frood Tigers who started his hockey in Stratford.

Other members of last year's team are Bill Mosienko, Jack McIntosh and Johnny Babby, all defencemen; Jim Emery, centre; Hubert Eatoon Quarters, Allan Cup semi-finalist in 1938-39 with Pioneers and Allan Cup champions in 1937; Geo. Blake, Maurice Vaillancourt and Bill Lamarche, forwards and centre Al Weiser; Oscar Clouthier, another member returned to Sudbury last year after playing with Buffalo-Amherste northern champions; Gino Bodanese, member from last year's Open Pit team.

"PHONEY" TROPHY GOES TO SALVAGE

London, March 14—(CP)—German radio announced it is to the British Legion 13-1838, a magnificent rose bowl with flags engraved on it, a symbol of the "ties of friendship" between the ex-servicemen of two nations.

In 1944: A legion conference decided to hand the trophy over for salvage. It was viewed as a "phoney trophy." Then it became a "mystery trophy" because the salvage decision having been reached, nobody could find the rose bowl. Search for it is underway.

HERBIE CAIN TIES LEAGUE'S POINT RECORD

Player Hard-Pressed by Carr of Leafs and Bentley of Chicago

OTHERS IN RACE

Montreal, March 14 —(CP)—The National Hockey League made it official today that Boston's Herbie Cain has tied the League's point record with his 27 goals and assists, but whether the feat is going to be enough to give the Boston forward the league title this season remains to be seen.

Cain has 36 goals and 26 assists in the weekly official figures released today, but he's still hard-pressed by Lorne Carr of Toronto and Chicago's Doug Bentley, with 27 each. The way Bentley, particularly, has been going of late, it looks as though Cain will have to set a fast pace to be sure of slarting off the thread from second place.

The record of 72 was established by Cooney Weiland of Boston, when he ran up 43 goals and 29 assists during the 1929-30 season. Bentley Has Best Chance

Bentley probably has the best chance of overhauling Cain, if any opposition to the latter's pace is only one more game to play while Cain has three and Bentley four. Right behind the two accomplishers and far from out of the race yet, are Elmer Lach of Montreal Canadiens, and Carl Liscombe of Detroit and Bill Mosienko of Chicago Black Hawks, all with 67 points.

The goal scoring column is marked by a three-way tie, with Cain and Bentley are tied for top spot with 36 each, and Lach of Montreal and Detroit is right behind with 34, three up on Liscombe and Mosienko.

The assist race is almost as close, Lach is out front with 46. A new league record, but Smith is right behind with 45, with the old mark set by Bill Cowley of Boston in 1940-41.

Harold Jackson of Detroit, leads the penalty parade with 75 minutes in majors and minors, two more than Mike McMahon of Canadiens.

Ralph Warren Re-elected As Club Commodore

Picton, March 14. —Though regattas have been suspended for the duration, the Prince Edward Yacht Club continues to be active it was shown at the annual meeting held. The club house is much used by amateur radio calling here. Ralph Warren was re-elected as Commodore; Secretary-Treasurer, Lieut. Chester; H. S. Tully, house chairman; Herb Daubney, rear commodore. It was decided to send cigarettes to members in the services, and pitched battle will continue for the duration. Earl Croft was re-engaged as steward.

Cornwall Chemicals Out of Playoffs

Ottawa, March 14 — (CP)—Cornwall Chemicals bowed out of the Ottawa and District Hockey Association senior playoffs last night, last night when they dropped a 10-3 decision to Hull Volants in the final game of a two-game total-goals semi-final series. Hull won the series between St. Michael's Academy and the Belleville Collegiate had to be postponed to a later date also.

For the O.M.H.A. midget provincial semi-final Jack Christie, secretary of the O.H.A. has laid down rules and regulations that at times will bring the players to their knees to shame. The midgets are 16 years old and under but there are kids in the N.H.L. today who went straight to the big time from the midgets, who knows but that he might be washing future big league sweaters when Osbaldo and Dingsnoque battle it out here Thursday night?

(Remember when—)

The Hamilton Tigers went on strike after winning the National Hockey League championship 19 years ago today. The club executive refused a bonus to players who were to meet Victoria Cougars in the Stanley Cup final series. So the Toronto St. Pats, and Montreal, Canadiens, Senators and Hamilton clubs in the N.H.L. respectively, played off for the right to continue with Les Canadiens winning. However, the Canadiens then lost out to the Cougars in the Stanley Cup series.

(Yfrers loss.)

FO. Charlie Box's Trenton Flyers ran into some stiff opposition in the No. 1 Training Command basketball playdowns in Toronto over the weekend. Although the Trenton quintette was favored to take the series, they were eliminated by the Brantford "Bombers" who went on to win the Command championship. The Brantford-girls beat the Trenton "W.D.'s" in the women's section also.

As was expected Alemite and Reliance will meet in the Belleville Ladies War Industrial basketball finals, that opens at the "Y" next Monday night with the winner going on top of the heap and last night's two play-off games in a sudden death format.

In the other half of a dual-header of a sudden death games Reliance triumphed over Deacons, as was expected, but Bell-Sergents and Alemite battle it out in a best-in-three series.

BOSTON BRUINS TO MEET HAWKS

(By The Canadian Press)

Any last lingering hopes that Boston might have about squeezing into the Stanley Cup hockey play-offs may be squelched tonight, when the Bruins meet Chicago Black Hawks at Boston.

The Bruins don't make the play-offs—and their chances are so slim as to be almost non-existent with three games remaining—but a three-fifths of the losses suffered by Chicago tonight, would be enough that is something no other team has been able to do since schedule was first adopted.

CASUAL COMMENT

By K.J.C.

One of the best descriptions of "boogie-woogie" that we have heard to date in the radio line was by a disgruntled father when his daughter was entertained.

Daughter—Did you ever hear anything so exciting wonderful on the radio, Dad? Really it is out of this world!

Father—No, I can't say I have although I once heard a collision between a truck full of empty milk cans and a freight car filled with live ducks.

Three weeks from come Friday will see the annual meeting of the Ontario Amateur Softball meeting, which is to be held in Guelph on Good Friday. It doesn't seem nearly a year ago when the softball moguls of Ontario met at the Quinte Hotel as guests of the Belleville Softball Association. Since that memorable weekend softball has continued in Belleville every year with the exception of fifth year of world hostilities.

What the future holds for softball in Belleville for this year is told at this early date, but Pres. Ralph Knell and his much-men will doubtless have to hold a meeting to see what plans and what delegates are to be dispatched to Guelph. As the local association is entertain as host to the meeting against the provincial regulations that prohibit the entertaining of delegates should attend is in the air. Harry Rollins stands re-election to the post of vice president of the O.A.S.A.

Frank Fryfer, Hamilton-born secretary of the O.A.S.A., got off one of those newsy bulletins of his last week which usually are inconclusive and also reviewing the exploits of the game which is the Canadian troops abroad. Of course this bulletin will appear only once or spring, which is just a week off, March 31st this year.

In his bulletin the O.A.S.A. secretary encloses a few comments about the game itself and declares that softball today draws the greatest player attendance of any sport and that Canadian boys in the armed forces have introduced it into every land where troops or games played in England, Egypt, Gibraltar, India with attendance in the thousands have reached this office," Secretary Fryfer states. Other interesting notes are the fact that the Great Lakes Naval Training Station in 1943 operated 2,000 teams in regular competition and Former O.A.S.A. Player Pitcher Louis Jaber of Amherstberg, Ont., pitched for United States Quartermaster Corps to the United States Army championship last year. Incidentally the bulletin winds up with this slogan which we hasten to pass on to the local executive: "1944 Objective: Every Ontario Player Registered." We might add—And in time too.

Owing to the fact the ice surface at the Stone Arena is required with water tonight's O.M.H.A. midget sudden death game between Oshawa and Oshawa, Macdonalds was postponed until Thursday night. The winner of the game will be tightened up sufficiently by then to be physically capable of meeting the puck contenders. By the same token yesterday's Senior International Hockey League between St. Michael's Academy and the Belleville Collegiate had to be postponed until a later date also.

For the O.M.H.A. midget provincial semi-final Jack Christie, secretary of the O.H.A. has laid down rules and regulations that at times will bring the players to their knees to shame. The midgets are 16 years old and under but there are kids in the N.H.L. today who went straight to the big time from the midgets, who knows but that he might be washing future big league sweaters when Osbaldo and Dingsnoque battle it out here Thursday night?

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 327

By HAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

No, did Sally Sword invent this strip-cardplay? It was popular with strip-players long before she was old enough to wear a Jacket or show a snap bridle.

A strip-card-cardplay is a quick substitute for a possible losing finesse. Experts use it to avoid taking a finesse. And opponents can do nothing about it but sit there and suffer.

Suppose you hold a hand in which you feel bad to take a finesse in the hope of winning that trick. There is a 50-50 chance that the finesse will be successful.

If you have a safer way to win that trick taking the finesse would be foolish. And a strip-and-endplay is a safer play that you should make a part of your bridge play equipment.

Get chummy with this deal:

♥A K 3 2

♣A Q

You are declarer in the south at six clubs contract. The lead from west is the spade five. You see just what you must do—finesse dummy's ace in the hope that the king will be there. But you are a strip-and-endplay player. You take a club finesse and it fails, your opponent's queen of clubs winning.

Now dummy spade wins the first trick. Three top hearts, pull the opponents' trumps, stripping them of trumps. Take two more rounds of spades and both opponents are stripped of that suit.

Now lead dummy's last card—by dummy. Now, instead of trying a club finesse, lead a third club from hand. West must win it and now in the lead. west is stripped of all but red suits and is down to black cards.

If west leads a club, it is right down your alley. Instead, if he leads a red suit, ruff in dummy and aluff your south club queen. Either way, you lose no club trick.

West was helpless. He was forced to lead what you wished him to. After being stripped, he was exposed at the end.

WALKER COOPER, AND OTHER STARS ARE HOLDOUTS

Managers of Teams Wish Which Stars Play Are Not Known

OTHER DEVELOPMENTS

By TED MILES
Associated Press Sport Writer

New York, March 14 — (AP) — Star catcher Walker Cooper of the St. Louis Cardinals; Vince DiMaggio, slugging outfielder of Pittsburgh Pirates, and Gee Walker, outfielder of the Cincinnati Reds, are the latest additions to the 1944 ranks of baseball holdouts.

Cooper, in company with first baseman Johnny Hopp, discussed terms with president Sam Breadon of the Cards yesterday, but the two did not sign contracts; Breadon said trouble . . . we didn't discuss terms seriously."

No comment was forthcoming from the Pirates on DiMaggio except that the hard-hitting outfielder is unsigned. Walker, however, announced he will not report to the Cincinnati Reds unless he receives more money from the Reds.

That puts Walker in the company of such other stars as shortstop Billy Jurges of the New York Giants; first baseman-outfielder of the Philadelphia Phillies; outfielder Lois Olsen of the Brooklyn Dodgers and pitcher Lake Hamlin, of the Philadelphia Athletics, all of whom have announced they want salary hikes.

Other diamond developments yesterday included:—

Brooklyn — Yanks bought catcher Joe Glenn from Kansas City.

Bloomington, Ind. — Eleven players missing as Reds worked out.

Cincinnati — Reds announced pitcher Jim Hopper was inducted into Army at Columbus, O.

Evansville, Ind. — Detroit Tigers announced Dick (Chief) Hogsett, who pitched for them a decade ago, will try out with them in 1944 as a chief, a southpaw, was with Minneapolis recently.

Indianapolis — Outfielder Roy Cullenbine signed Cleveland contract, the 31st Indian to sign.

What's Doing in Sport

Calgary (CP)—Edmonton Vics and New Westminster Lodestars are scheduled to open their two-game total-point for the Allan Cup tonight in the Victoria arena here in the first game of the Canadian Amateur British Columbia series. After both squads were reported in top form.

Leicester, England (CP)—A stadium for 12,000 spectators is included in the plans for a new sports and recreation centre as a project for the post-war reconstruction of Leicester, it was announced last night. The scheme calls for the erection of 3,000 new homes "in the open."

Guelph (CP)—The Ontario amateur softball association announced that its 22nd annual meeting will be held in Guelph on Friday and Saturday, April 7-8. F. Reaver of Hamilton will accept proposed amendments to the constitution and nominations for association offices will be received.

Los Angeles, March 14 (AP) — Manuel Ortiz, undisputed champion of the bantamweight boxing division, defends his title tonight for the ninth time, challenger in the main event is Lieut. (j.g.) Ernesto Aguilar of Mexico City.

Trail, B.C., March 14 (CP)—Trail Smoke Eaters and Nanaimo Clippers here last night to advance in semi-finals of Pacific coast playoffs. The British Columbia champions won the first game of the best-of-three series 6-3 here Saturday.

KILLED IN ACTION

Pittsburgh, March 14 — (AP) — Lt.-Col. 'Cy' Young Discloses Second Name Is Not Tecumseh

By The Canadian Press

Denton (Cy) Young, now 76 and the first pitcher to be honored in baseball's Hall of Fame, made the startling announcement at his home near Peoli, O., yesterday, a mistake had been made in the description of his name on the scroll at the Cooperstown, N. Y., shrine. Young, who gained fame with the Cleveland Indians, explained he was listed in baseball's records under Denton Tecumseh Young, adding:—"That's not my name but I think I'll let it stand. My real middle name is 'True,' he said, in memory of a captain under whom his father served in the Civil War.

Young broke into baseball in 1890 with Canton, O., club of the old Tri-State League and was purchased mid the same year by Cleveland when the Indians gave the Canton manager a suit of clothes for his contract.

Fifteen years later he was with the Boston Americans and retired in 1912. During his 22-year career Young pitched 874 games, winning 511 and losing 315. He stayed above the .500 mark in seasons and lost four of 12 straight years.

By uncorking a six-point scoring spurt which brought him into a tie for second place, Ron Ingram helped lead Cleveland to the Canadian Hockey League's individual scoring honors race, Red Rimit of the Cleveland lineup, and coach of the Cleveland monopoly of the three top brackets in the points column.

Hunt's two goals and four assists last week enabled him to climb over Les Trudel of Cleveland and to draw up pack and neck with Joe Cunningham of the Ramparts. Tom Buttington of Cleveland with two goals and two assists, collected a couple of points and now leads the pack by a margin of eight. Trudel only got two assists and dropped him into fourth place, only a point behind Cunningham and Hunt.

By HYE BOSSIN

Here's what is almost a movie scenario: Lloyd Christmas, Hamilton theatre man who joined the RCAF and was transferred to the RAF, was sent back to join a crew that was to bomb Germany. The navigator turned out to be Jack Armstrong, who used to be at the Royal, Oswego. The bomber was shot down and both boys were captured. The scene changes to the Italian front, where Pilot Officer Joe Lowe, who was also at the Royal, Oswego, before enlisting, is forced down and captured. In prison Joe meets Jimmy Gooding, a forced down and captured. In prison Joe meets Jimmy Gooding, a forced down and captured. In prison Joe meets Jimmy Gooding, a forced down and captured. In prison Joe meets Jimmy Gooding, a Gould, also a Guelph boy. They plot an escape and jump from a speeding train. Jimmy is recaptured right away but Joe covers 130 miles and hides in a barn but is betrayed by a Nazi sympathizer. He is sent to a prison camp—where he meets his father. He is former railroy-townman, Jack Armstrong! Some reunion.

Despite building restrictions, the demand for movies was so great in 1943, according to a statement issued by the Canadian Bureau of Statistics, that 31 new theatres and auditoriums were opened with the permission of the government . . . An important part of the Canadian movie scene are the fellows who peek their engagement and and up temporary shows in places where there are no theatres, usually for into the country. During 1943 there were 2,000 of these "theatres" in operation, and movies in that year attracted 86,000 persons . . . Canada had 1,331 theatres in operation during the year, and the total attendance was 120,000,000 persons . . . Double features are better as popular in Canada as single features.

New York, March 14 — (AP) — Now that spring training is under way and "Ole Diz" has positively confirmed by the "pitchers' year," it is worth noting that a very rough survey of the red and green books shows that the baseball gods' schoolers still are outnumbered by the fair-to-middling pitchers. Just a quick look for much change in the normal balance of power in favor of such clubs as the Yankees and Senators, who still have enough pitching to get by, one on the hill every day . . . After watching Gil Dodd's mile in the record Saturday, this dept. is convinced the fabulous four minute mile will be attained only when someone turns up with can run four 60-second quarters . . . Gil's limit is three and he was able to make seven only when he slowed down a bit in the third.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Ghost Breakers"

A notable and unique contribution to the assembly of Paramount for its latest fascinating mystery-comedy-thriller, "Ghost Breakers" which is now at the Capitol Theatre, Bob Hope and Paulette Goddard, of "The Cat and the Canary" fame, are again featured, with Richard Carlson, Paul Lukas, Anthony Quinn and Willie Best also starring in the film. The story is based on a play by Paul Dickey and Charles Goddard, the screenplay being by Walter DeLeon, and the picture was directed by George Marshall.

"If I Had a Million"
(All But Cash)

If you had a million you couldn't buy a better heart-entertainment. We're talking about the picture that thousands of people are going to see during one of the most enjoyable pictures ever screened. The added attraction at "If I Had a Million" is now at the Capitol starring Gary Cooper, George Raft, Jack Oakie, Charlie Laughton, Jack Carson, W. C. Fields, Allison Skipworth, Frieda Inescort, Roscoe Karns, Mary Robson, Lucien Littlefield and Richard Bennett.

The Canadian Universal News and the cartoon, Curtis Cat, "Look to the North" complete the big double bill.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Always In My Heart"

The McCarthy Theatre's new attraction, "Always In My Heart," which opened today bids fair to go down in screen history, not only as a thoroughly human picture of family life, but also as the picture which introduced Gloria Warren to the film public. For fifteen-year-old Miss Warren has a singing voice that is pure gold, and a completely captivating personality. "Always In My Heart" is a story of family loyalty, and a more heart-piercingly moving screen entertainment you would be hard to find. Kay Francis, Walter Huston, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Gloria Warren and Frankie Thomas, Patty Hale, Una O'Connor and Sidney Blackmer are featured. Borrah Minnevitch provides some tuneful melodies.

Huston, as the father, is in jail, and at his insistence, Gil Dodd (played by Kay Francis) is divorced from him and his children believe him to be dead. A wealthy man is in love with her and anxious to marry her and take care of her and the children. She can't make up her mind, and sees Huston's service. He tells her to accept, and hides from her the fact that he has been pardoned.

He works his way down the coast to the town where his family lives. It is his intention just to get a glimpse of his children, but can't quit. In the town, however, he finds out that his young daughter (Gloria Warren) is not happy over her mother's remarriage. He also hears about Dodd and finds that her wonderful natural talents need the guidance that he, with his musical education can give her. He takes a room in town and the two of them get acquainted.

Meanwhile, the son of the family (Frankie Thomas) is completely won over to the love of his new stepfather, particularly after he is presented with a new car. Another daughter, who has discovered that the "professor" is very much in love with her, and that he is leaving town that night, taking a boat to San Francisco, tries to stop him. Finding that she has missed the boat, she goes to the local police protection office with all the facts. The father, however, is now on the boat, and the police cannot help. It is left to the rescue of his son, who is involved in a boating accident with Spanish girl he has taken out for the evening. Then the father and son hear that Gloria is out on the speedboat alone. They follow her, and succeed in time to save her from close disaster. When the night is over the little family in Huston's cabin.

AT THE BELLE

"Lassie Come Home," in Color

A great drama of the great love of a boy and his dog, and the long journey that took them to their home, strife and suspense in "Lassie Come Home," story of a gorgeous collie's thousand-mile journey to find and join her beloved master, is now playing at the Belle theatre.

Roddy McDowall plays the part of Lassie's boy owner, and Donald Crisp, the famous character actor (Huckleberry Finn, Brigham Young, Abraham Lincoln and Mother Wore a Shawl) plays their roles with gripping effect. Edmund Gwenn, as a kindly peddler who also befriends the dog, has an engaging character role. Elizabeth (Dame) Taylor, Duke's granddaughter; J. Patrick O'Malley, as the brutal dog trainer; Baron of the Duke, gruff but kindly at heart, are among other principals delivering capital performances.

Fred M. Wilcox directed with skill and sympathy. Leonard Smith's photography in technicolor is outstanding the filming of an actual rainbow in natural hues, does much to enhance the beauty of the Eric Knight story.

The Canadian Movietone News, and the funny Metro color cartoon "Goof Cat," and a C.C.O. feature "Look to the North" completes the program.

Ma was looking at the movie page, saying to pop, I hear good reports of Ella Fitzgerald, Wife, Witness or Suspect.

I dont need any reports, I can tell what it's about just by the lood report made by Ella Fitzgerald. All the pictures of that breed are alike. The boy and the girl are supposed to learn that they've never been legally married, or else they're divorced and one of them doesn't know it, or else they're married all right but one of them doesn't know that. I'm fed up with that bedtime story. If you're suffering from an insomnia, just go to the movies, there's a good western around somewhere. It's called Fictions on the Range, or Ranging the Range, or something like that, I said.

Now William nothing could be more silly than movie pictures, they're just literally peas of a pod, just one endless panorama of dancing, singing and shooting around corners, with horses here and there and everywhere, I said and pop said, But this one's entirely different, there's an exciting chase in it between a tractor and an airplane.

If there's a chase in it, it'z between a train and a man on a horse, and you know it, ma said, and pop said, Maybe that's what I'm thinking of. But I believe it has one distinct novelty. The hero's song stranger is overpowered by somefoe members and thrown off a flight and is never heard of again till his next picture, he said.

Gosh, ma said, I'm glad you said, he handsome young stranger all those and unarmed desk death and defiance to 50 ruffians in a saloon, he as a railway station with soon swinging from the chandeliers and leaping over the bar like rocky mountain goats, she said, and pop said, I bet you're right at that, Wm. I'm different from the handsome young stranger, I said, then you licked. Let's go and meet His Fonism Wite, he said.

THE LITTLE DOG BARKED

by ANNE ROWE

CHAPTER 6

I snatched up my flashlight, threw on my robe and opened the door, all in one desperate move.

Linda was standing in the hall, a flickering candle in her hand, her eyes huge and black with fear and shaking all over.

"I thought at first it was the storm. A shutter banging or something," she said in a scared whisper. "But it can't be. It groans. Listen!"

I listened. And I could hear nothing but the wind and rain and occasional thunder outside, and a Stray growling menacingly in the bathroom. Then Linda's knocking had roused the small dog, or he too had heard something . . .

"Quiet, Stray," admonished under my breath, and then follow-ed Linda into her room when she said: "It's right underneath my room. You hear it better there."

Again I heard nothing for a time. Half a minute possibly. And then, in the lessen between thunders, I did: A strange, long-drawn moan ending in a bubbling sound. As if someone were gargling. It seemed to come up through the floor. And a moment later there was the distinct sound of a window being pushed up . . .

Both of us were at Linda's window in a flash, pushing the flashlight out between the two halves of the rusty adirondack screen and directing it downward. The noise of the window slamming down coincided with my action and the next instant I picked out the figure of a man; tall, in a light suit, with his collar turned up and a viscred cap pulled down over his ears.

His arms flew up, shielding his face, as the light struck him. He ducked and vanished in the night.

I couldn't turn my flashlight quickly enough, hampered by the screen, to find him again. He had made out that he hadn't run toward the Beaks and the Inn but toward the right, where the woods crowded our outbuilds shelter.

With his disappearance the stillness was complete again. There were no more groans and gurgles. Even the storm had ceased. Abruptly, as if on a special signal.

I stared at Linda, speechless and open-mouthed. And Linda stared back. In silent terror. Then, suddenly, there was a sound again. Stray, deep and very hoarse. Howling, piercingly, mournfully . . .

The words I made those things worse and yet broke the tension.

"Of all the howlsome kricket! Sending a man here to frighten us. In the middle of a storm too!" I broke off furiously.

"You think they—they just wanted to—to scare us?" Linda questioned through chattering teeth.

"What else? Isn't that enough?" I challenged.

"I don't know. That man—may he be was sent to—to k-kill." The word came out in a sheer fright.

This wouldn't do. The girl was bordering herself up into hysterics.

"Stop out it, Linda!" I said sharply, with an assurance I didn't feel. "It's over. Whoever the man was, and whatever he meant to do—he's gone and we must get some sleep. Come on. Let's go to my room. The bed in it's wide enough for a regiment."

Presently we were busy barricading ourselves. Pushing everything we could move in front of the door. And then I had done that, myself, I still remained the problem of Stray.

He kept on howling. Nothing I said or did, no amount of petting silenced him. He was beside himself with terror, and the hair around his neck stuck up stiffly.

At last I became desperate. Picking Stray up, cuddling him and squirming, under one arm, and tucking his cuffl under the other, I ventured into the dark corridor at once more, pushing dog and cuffl into a room down on the other side of the hall, and raced back to the comparatively safety of our furniture stronghold.

And, after securing the bathroom door also, I lay awake. Wishing myself thousands of miles away, with Ley on South America. Feeling I must protect Linda. Promising myself a talk, and what a talk, with Linwood in the morning. Trying to figure out the motivation of the prowse, the possible return of the intruder . . .

But nothing happened. There was only the drowsy gurgling of water in the gutters and the trench roof, now and then the heavy "plop" of a big rain drop, weighted with calcimine, splashing down from the leak in the corner of the ceiling. And, very faintly—perhaps I only imagined it—Stray's muffled howling.

My travelling alarm clock woke us at seven-thirty, all too soon. We tumbled out of bed, exchanged sleepy good mornings after which Linda went to her room to dress while I took an icy and somewhat rusty shower to shock myself fully awake. Soon we were wading through wet grass, both in slacks and sweaters, and drenched to the knees before we'd even gained the road.

The weather was perfect. Sunny and bright, with the sky far off and pale blue, and every leaf sparkling with green by the storm. All together the world looked so serene and peaceful, last night's dark adventure seemed fantastic, a nightmare one didn't care to talk about.

The next morning, we had almost arrived at the inn before Linda mentioned the subject.

"Are you going to tell Uncle about it?" she asked, carefully avoiding both "it" and "them" undefined.

"I'll tell him some of it. I'm not going to ask him to lunch and tell him a lie. When I'm through I'll know where we stand, and where he gets off. The coward. He'll have the nerve to call for me yesterday! Didn't even come to the door to see how I'd got hold of him before his dear friends had carved out their schemes of mayhem. Oh, I'll tell him, all right. And the old Mack and Ada hadn't warned us, as it—"

I stopped short. Speaking of Mack and Ada had reminded me of Stray. "Gosh! I clean forgot him! Stray's still shut up in that room!"

I blurted out guiltily.

"So did I—forget him." Linda said. "Funny the dog didn't make noise."

We stood for a moment, debating if we should go back for the little dog and decided we couldn't without being late for the first rehearsal. But I didn't feel happy about it and asked to see Ada about feeding, in for breakfast.

But the time we were eating—pie, of all things!—and laughing when I told her: "Stray sang all night." The storm must have upset him. And so I put him in the empty room at the hall and that is where he still is."

"Don't you worry about the little scamp. It won't hurt him, staying by himself for a while," she consoled me. "I'm going over there as soon's your new wardrobe arrives and I can put rid of Mack and his wheelbarrow to fetch you your trunk. I'll let him out."

Linda and I smiled at each other in relief and went over to the theatre.

Linwood was waiting for us on the pillared steps as we crossed the square. A different Linwood from the one we had met in Mc-Vane's office.

He had been just another tall, well-built man in his forties then. In his dark business suit and conservative tie. Now he had dressed the part of "director" in pale gray slacks and light blue sweater—the latter exactly the same shade as his rather prominent light blue eyes—a Basque beret, set rakishly on his mouse-colored hair and a yellow doeskin gloves. All a little too artistic and early Hollywood to be good taste.

His reception also was just a shade too effusive to be sincere. He almost died with regret about having "absolutely forgot" to write to see me the previous day and accepted my lumpy invitation with such disproportionate delight, it made me more suspicious than ever. But I sent Linda, the critical once-over, hoped she would justify McVane's confidence in her and after five minutes of this, on the stroke of nine, led us into the theatre and down the right aisle of the orchestra to the stage, where the cast of my play was assembled.

The sight of the group of people there, waiting for me, the author, to begin rehearsing my play, almost overcame me. Nothing had mattered but my play and the man and woman on the bare stage who were going to make my characters live and breathe.

They were all there. My amorous young playwright: Orne Paulding, the sympathetic: Ruth Sherwidered bride, Linda Barolle. The former heart-throb, Dorothy Marshall. The producer, Wells Colby-Smith, who had refused to help sabotage my play. And the agent, Ione Wellard, a brunet blonde in a tailored suit, turned out to be Mrs. Linwood in private life—had not come down from the director's married. Along with the various supporting cast of the lesser roles; the other pretty blonde for the new heart interest, a middle-aged comedian who were to be the servants and a group of two young men and a girl to be sent down on the stage for a second act as reporters. One of them, a likable red-haired Irishman called Steve, was also the "property manager."

They were all perfect type-casting, just as Burns Loring had said last night. That is, all but the young man who was going to play the important part of a young banker who helps restore the neglected bride's self-esteem by his attentions to her.

The banker of my play was in his late thirties—not old by any means, but, after all, an important thing of distinction, whose bequest was a feather in any woman's cap. And no amount of make-up could change the gangling, grinning youth at all. I certainly did, as you sure? What I mean—lightning struck twice strange things, and I love look like a man, if one's nerves—"

HAS EYE ON FUTURE

Bredhurst, England—(CP)—This Kentish village hopes it won't be overlooked by the post-war planners. Bredsbury, five miles from Maidstone, is without gas, electricity, water sanitation except on its tiny main street.

RECOVER VALUABLE JEWELS

London—(CP)—A mail plane last summer crashed and burned out in the Sudan. None of the crew or passengers of the party was injured in Iwels. Six months later, a detachment of a British unit, since company organized a search party, recovered $300,000 worth of precious stones.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma belongs to the Gils with 8 other ladies, Gils meaning Gity Litts to Survivalism, and today after she said to pop, I had the most baffling case in my life, pop said, William. You know one of our prime objects is to lift the entertainment morale while were giving them an ordinary humorous lift from place to place. Well, after this afternoon pop I could think of to say seemed to shake his head slowly in deep moody silence. I asked him where he came from and no finish and so on, to make him feel at home, but all to no avail. He gave me the shortest answers I ever received in my career as a Gil, and then picked up his hat again into the personified clan, ma said.

Did you tell the time honored dodge of knocking the army food? pop said, and ma said, Oh, I'm. I told him I understood that the boys in camp were given all the they wanted to eat, and I told him I understood that they had a new plane to see with unless the nearest to what the coffee tasted like, but all he said was, The food aint so bad.

The boy couldn't of been human, pop said, and ma said, So at last I played our trump card, I told him the little poem about sargent that Hanna Jefferies made up as a morale booster. It never failed yet to get a hearty laugh. It goes like this: Oh the sargent has a fanny cuss, He may get better but he couldn't get wuss. He cant give all the order without making a fuss. We dont love him and he dont love us. Oh the sargent he's a fine fellow and well my dear his only response was a kind of a moan, a groan, and then a sudden intuition induced me to look at his face and low and behold he was a sargent himself. So of course that explains why Hanna Jefferies' poem fell on the run soil, but why didn't he respond to any of our other overtures ma said.

Maybe he just wanted to be left alone, pop said and ma said, Goodness, that never occurred to me. Help me back to the school.

DEMAND FOR FLOWERS PUTS PRICES WAY UP

London—(CP)—It could a lot a word to say it with flowers in London these days. Prices for cut flowers, high at best, have been further taken another leap upwards, dealers report, blaming the rise on the broaching spring which had crested Easter-Shrove week-end.

Bunches of violets, about as big as a baby's fist, are selling at five shillings (about $1.00) and while other prices are equally as high, but that hasn't stopped the demand—several flower dealers have reported queues at their shops.

POLICE COURT

Clifford McDonald, of Belleville, was sentenced to three months in the common jail after being convicted on a charge of breaking and entering, before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd here today.

On a second charge of being found in illegal possession of liquor McDonald also pleaded guilty and in default of $100 costs was given another three-month sentence. The two terms ordered should run concurrently with the initial sentence.

A charge of assaulting Abraham Vanderwater was dismissed against Harry Vechter, 285 Front Street, when both men left Dr. Bell's office. Donnan and Magistrate Lloyd agreed that the lack of corroborating evidence submitted by Mr. Donnan.

It was purely a personal matter, which Mr. Donnan suggested never should have been aired in police court.

"He has threatened my life for the past 17 years, but I can stay out of trouble myself," held Somberg, but the court was not convinced and dismissed the charge against Mr. Vechter and ordered Somberg to pay the costs, which amounted to $33.50.

"Don't stretch your stories when you come into this court", Mr. Donnan later warned Somberg.

Belleville Boy Home From Sicily Pays Fine Tribute to Medical Services

Pte. Fred Temple Suffered Head Injury When Hit by Truck

IN SICILIAN BATTLES

After going "unscathed through the entire Sicilian invasion only to suffer a fractured skull following being returned to North Africa for a rest, Pte. Fred Temple, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Temple, 89 Bridge Street, West, has been returned to Canada and Sunday evening saw other members of his family for the first time in over four years.

The happy has done a fine job for Fred and the casual observer would not dream he was wounded a dozen or more square inches of silver plate where the wheels of an army truck crushed his skull.

Aside from the fact that his eyesight is slightly impaired because of the injury, Fred has not let eye being damaged, would still be in the army. He had high praise for the medical services.

"Definitely, it was the greatest thing ever," he told the reporter in December, 1939," stated his mother Monday afternoon as she spoke of the family re-union. In the four-some was Fred's father, Fred Sr., Fred's oldest brother, Clarence, who is with the air force and who will enter the air force next month, and Fred's sister, who was not recognized at the station. Mayor Wallace visited with the Temple home to add his welcome to the returned soldier.

To Take Tilting Boy

"I think I'll just take things easy for a while," stated Pte. Temple, formerly a member of the provincial police service in Toronto. "It's still rather hard to realize that I am actually back in the army and it will take some time to accustom myself to the surroundings. But I'll soon see again the boys that are still overseas."

A former star of collegiate gridiron and basketball fame, Pte. Temple was born in Belleville but was working in Toronto at the time he was called up. He almost immediately he enlisted in the Toronto Scottish and after a brief training went overseas with the 1st Canadian Contingent. He spent his Christmases overseas.

Sicily Easy Compared With Italy.

Speaking of the Sicilian invasion, Pte. Temple indicated he considered the Allied forces had had a bit of a stinch as compared with the fighting now going on in Italy.

"We thought the going was tough in Sicily," he said, "but we were assured, "but since talking with some of the boys coming back from the Italian front, I have changed my mind. We went into Sicily with the element of surprise and the initial opposition had been cleaned up by the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. Those fellows have got a hell of a job."

"Tribute to a fine officer and respected commander was paid by Brigadier Graham to Major Graham of Trenton, former brigade commander in the Hastings Mounted Regiment, in the words, "Brigadier Graham took a real interest in the men under his command and shared with them the dangers of battle."

"The key to Hill 10 was designed to learn of his new appointment as brigadier chief to the general staff at Ottawa."

Praises Modern Surgery.

Another Belleville man Dr. Mildred Graham, prominent local physician, came in for praise from Pte. Temple, both as a doctor and as a member of modern surgery. In speaking with the reporter in North Africa, Pte. Temple stated he had been assured, that a marvelous advance in surgery had been carried out of the present war. Citing an instance, the Belleville soldier stated he was having a new chin grafted on. Another case he had noted was taking place and in both cases the finished work appeared perfect. Pte. Temple also praised the marvels of surgery being practised on severely wounded men. Pte. Temple performed his own operation of having several scraps of shell fragments plate inserted into his skull as being "very easy to do now that I remember how the accident in which he was injured occurred. The first thing he knew of it when he woke up in a British base hospital after two days, was that he was transferred to England.

C.P. News Eagerly Looked For.

The Canadian Press News, an overseas publication of the Canadian Canadian news, is eagerly looked forward to by the boys in the forces according to the returned soldier. His related how a few days before his leave was up for Canada there appeared in the C.P. News a sports column written by Lt. Jack Harkness of the Ontario Intelligencer. "When I saw that," he said, "I knew I was home." He said, "and I really had some fun with the boys reading some of the stories that was really some town."

Still appearing younger than his age although he is 30 birthdays would indicate, the Belleville boy laughingly told about his duties during English girls prior to his going to the Mediterranean battle area. The English girls would just take one look at me and shrug their shoulders and say 'I'm not going along young boy.' A chum of mine, only 21, very well developed moustache and was often taken for 30."

Quinte Friendship Chap. Holds Irish Night Program

Last night Quinte Friendship Chapter, No. 227, of the Royal Arch Masons held its annual "Irish Night" celebration. There was a varied and most interesting program and a very large attendance of members and visitors.

Worshipful Master Fred Thirsk principal Bruce Smith was appropriate to the anniversary with Irish story at the place de resistance.

The dining-hall was bountifully decorated with green as the prevailing color. Shamrocks, Irish mottoes, messages and illustrations, which had been prepared by Ex. Comp. Isaac Stephenson, extended an expressive welcome to the guests.

Ex. Comp. Charles W. Bird, first principal of the chapter, graciously presided as toastmaster during the post-prandial program.

The first number consisted of Irish music, lyrics and dances by Miss Barbara Pound in the person of lively company of youthful artists. Each number was heartily received and a vein of movement been witnessed than was attained during the whole session of the evening. Enthusiastic applause marked the conclusion of each exhibition. Musical features also gave much evidence of Irish talent among the performers. Mrs. Harold Taylor was the very capable accompanist for the evening.

The Program.

Following is the list of numbers and those taking part: Song and dance, "Irish Jig", Miss Barbara Dimento; "Irish Lullaby", Miss Norma Vaughn; "Irish Lullaby", Miss Norma Vaughn; piano solo, Miss Loreen May; tap dance, Barbara Dimento; "Irish Lullaby", Miss Norma Vaughn; tap dance, Miss Norma Vaughn; "Irish Lullaby", vocal solo and dance by Miss Barbara Dimento and her company of pupils.

J. G. Hertzy, Guest Speaker

The principal of the evening was Rt. Ex. Comp. J. Owen Hertzy, who chose for his theme, "Ireland and Irish Characteristics". The speaker paid tribute to the inspired leadership given by members of the Irish race in many parts of the world, and in the British Empire in particular to the upbuilding of Canada. Rt. Ex. Comp. Hertzy cited the Irish Christian missionary of all time and also as one of the Irish race, the reformists and educators. He also gave a dramatic description of the heroic sacrifice of Captain Fogarty Fegan, a native of Ireland, who was a passenger vessel and who was posthumously awarded the Victoria Cross. He also told of the tragic death of the "Jervis Bay," the ship Captain Fegan commanded with 190 German prisoners of war on board, the sacrifice of the "Jervis Bay" and of Capt. Fegan enabled 32 ships in the convoy, to reach a British port in safety.

Rt. Ex. Comp. Hertzy spoke to the "Visitors" brought to a close one of the most successful Irish Nights ever arranged by Quinte Friendship Chapter.

Robbers Have Work for Nothing

Robbers broke and entered the service station operated by J. B. Noyes on Front Street, early this morning, but attempts at robbery were foiled when nothing of value was found on the premises.

The break-in was discovered by Mr. C. Rathbun, who is on the night patrol shortly before three o'clock this morning. Entrance was gained through a door and footprints inside the building were quite noticeable in the snow which covered the floor. Nothing was disturbed in the cash register. However, W. J. Moore, service station employee, makes a practice of removing all cash and valuables from the building at time of closing time. After P.C. Rathbun had made his discovery Mr. Moore and Mr. Armour were notified and an extensive search of the premises for any clues or finding of value was taken after the marauders disappeared. However, no clues or finding of value was taken after the marauders disappeared. However, no clues or finding of value was taken after the marauders disappeared. However, no

Recommendation and Petition To Increase Salary of Firemen Again Referred to Committee

More Than an Hour's Discussion Results in Little Progress Being Made on Question

INQUIRIES MADE

After more than an hour's discussion on a petition signed by a number of ratepayers and firemen asking for an increase in salary for the Fire Chief and Deputy Chief of $20 a year and the increase of the department $52 a year and recommended by Ald. Woodley, Chairman of Fire, the council at present sitting on Monday evening voted to refer the whole matter back to the committee for further consideration, during the discussion Ald. McDougall introduced an amendment that all increases be deferred until the committee on the question has submitted their report to council, while Ald. Follwell moved an amendment to the amendment to refer the whole matter back. Practically the same arguments were put forward by members of the council as the previous occasion when the question was before the council.

Chairman Opens Discussion.

Ald. Woodley, as chairman of the department, was first given the first opportunity to open the discussion stating "that two years ago I brought this matter before the council and tonight I am presenting this petition signed by 150 of the leading ratepayers and industrialists of the city in the hope, that the matter will be received favorably. I thought, by presenting this petition that many, who voted against the increase in the last meeting would change their opinion and give an increase, which we believe the members of the Fire department deserve. The firemen were not forced to sign the petition, but there is no pressure in the petition. I am sure every member of the council will agree that we have a good department and their scale is low and I am only asking a dollar a week increase for firemen. I think it is unjustifiable the council may be required to hire six or seven men more on account of the hours the men are not obligated to work the full 24 hours. The men are not retained to return to the job in case of a fire or other call. If they take this attitude, it will be necessary to increase the staff and the council will be obliged to do it because all the present time we are under strength as mentioned by Ald. Woodley. The raise will probably offset this contingency. The men are also willing to help in the collection of salvage and other war efforts without remuneration".

HUMPHREY MITCHELL, Minister of Labour.

A. MacNAMARA, Director, National Selective Service.

Amendment Introduced.

Ald. McDougall in introducing his amendment to refer the matter back to the committee stated that the committee had reported to council said "I believe Ald. Woodley's estimate is a good one. I congratulate him for his presentation of his case and I agree with the petition in the suggestion and I am in favor of the increase. For the past few years the department is getting more money but I also believe, that the pension plan will give them the same amount of money and will also give them protection. This is why I am opposed to the cash. Personally I do not think the committee, as they have to sign against this increase. It is in the best interest of the firemen to accept the pension plan. I think the system is taken in even those over 65 years of age. I think the system is going to be inaugurated I think it is time to make a start".

Defends His Department.

Ald. Armstrong, Chairman of Public Works, and also a labor man being associated with unions would have to defend his department and said if raises were going to be made in Public Works departments they must be considered. "This question", said Ald. Armstrong "should go into public opinion and I am not arguing that the firemen are getting too much. In January of 1943, the council considered the raising of wages and the firemen were given a $10 a month raise. In April of 1942, the firemen again made application for an increase and they were given a straight $90 a year increase. Now we are asked in 1944 to supplement this by $52 a year and this will make $262 increase that has been given. In the Public Works department it was found given of five cents an hour and $10 a month and at present time there are 141 men working overtime and drawing over $1,600 a year and two over $1,200. For twenty years previous there were five drawing over $1,400 and three years ago ten. All cases are not replaceable, while the remainder are eligible for $1,200 a year. It is only fair that if one gets it they all should get it".

Ald. Hall, a labor man I believe the cost-of-living bome is the main factor. "I am in favor", said he "because the government has so decreed. We are all getting more for everything every man, that is an employee, that is working or even living bonus but to ask for an increase for the firemen and let the others go is not fair. I have filed of one 8th of an other. The Public Works and the man who is a fireman. Both are getting the same bread and a pound of butter and the cost of everything else. Not only petitionable question".

Ald. Harvey—"I am in favor of giving the raise to the firemen and if the firemen were figured at the same basis as those who are at work against the hourly rate of the Public Works employees we would find they are very much underpaid. The taxpayers are paying the firemen and they are not objecting to this increase and I think the public will back us because of the facts and grant the increase".

Makes Suggestion.

Ald. Chamberlain:—"I am not opposed to the petition of the city employees and suggested to council at last year, that the question of increases in salaries be taken up, that a committee be set out from that council to investigate all civic employees salaries and wages and make a recommendation to the next year's council so that the matter could be fully discussed and it is was thought advisable to appoint a board to fix the estimates for this year. I may say that I realized that provision for all expenditures had been in my opinion been provided for, I voted against it for the reason that I thought the estimates have been struck, I cannot see how we can approve any increase during the present year and I am opposed to it. I am not opposed to investigate salaries and wages throughout the municipality".

Ald. Clarke:—"This matter was first brought out when we were preparing the estimates and the majority voted against an increase for this department. We cannot change the estimates, unless according to the by-laws two-thirds of the council is in favor of the change, I have no objection to the increase but if we raise one department let us go all the way and raise all the departments. I think we made a binding agreement with the firemen last year, when we took off the $10 cost of living bonus and substituted an $80 a year increase. We also gave the $10 as basic salary". Ald. Jull—"Question".

Ald. Woodley:—"Is it not a fact, Ald. Clarke, that you and the Mayor stated there would be no possibility an estimated $21,000 of a surplus and if this was a fact they would be willing to consider the increase". Ald. Clarke—"Ald. Woodley and Ald. Clarke denied the allegation".

Ald. Allin:—"This has been a tantalizing question and I admire Ald. Woodley for his fight for the members of his department. If we deal with one group we must deal with them all. I do not agree, that the minority should be coerced by the majority, Ald. Allin made a remark of a conversation with a citizen and Ald. Woodley asked him to name the citizen which he refused to the support of Ald. Allin believing, that anything told to an Alderman in confidence should not be revealed. "No one group in this council", said Ald. Allin "should take all the credit for having an interest in the firemen. We all have an interest in that department and some one must pay the piper. We are here to consider the affairs of the city and in fairness to all, I don't think that a petition was in good taste because it appears as if some were trying to force the issue. Again in fairness to all, why did not Ald. Woodley wait until the report of the auditor was received to see if there was any estimated surplus? I think Ald. McDougall has the right solution to the whole question and I don't think we need a petition to show us the way and I don't think the firemen did right by presenting it. If they have anything to say to the council let them come before the council in a body or a delegation and we will consider all the questions on their merits. If we give an increase it will mean an increase all around and I would like to analyze this pension plan before its not to be voted, said the Alderman, "and some of these trees are interfering with the sewers". Ald. Armstrong stated his department was very busy on the streets and that he was clearing flooding conditions but that he would give the question his attention.

Ald. Butler Replies to Question.

Ald. Pringle inquired about the motion passed, requesting the auditor to show cause, why the auditor's report had not been received. He stated that the mover of any motion in council should be a member of the committee, otherwise they and also act as Chairman. Ald. Butler said he would be glad to do so, stating, that he had introduced the motion but that Ald. McDougall, Trudeau and Clarke had been appointed. On being learned, Ald. Clarke did not wish to act on this committee and learning that Ald. Butler's motion should be a member and chairman of the committee, he immediately got in touch with the Comptroller and was informed that the auditor would not be in town for a couple of weeks. After he comes I will immediately go into the matter with him and I can assure you, gentlemen, as chairman of the committee, that a report will be made to the next meeting of the council", said Ald. Butler.

No Time to be Purchased.

Ald. Allin wished to know if a new tax was being planned for everyone that had been cut down and the answer given by Mayor Rollins, that the Parks Board had decided not to purchase any trees but that a number that were there would not be any planted. "That is too bad", said Ald. Allin, "I would also asked about the entrance of the parkway, he was told by Mayor Rollins, that the question was being taken up at the Police Commission meeting on Saturday but that Judge Cameron was not present. At the next meeting would be held the latter part of March, when I will bring the matter up". Ald. Allin further asked what was being done to provide a bathing beach for the city. "It seems a shame, that women and children have to go to the city and soldiers should have to stand on the corner near the market for hours at a time waiting for a bus", said Ald. Trudeau.

Ald. Armstrong suggested, that a room be prepared underneath the City Hall and that the bus proprietors be asked to contribute to the work, that would have to be done. Ald. Butler did not think the proprietors would contribute. Ald. Chamberlain was of the opinion that the terminal was in an unsatisfactory layer owing to the congestion on market days. Ald. Armstrong said, that something could not be done to relieve the flooding conditions near Hawthorne Ave. and Ald. Armstrong promised to investigate the conditions there.

Will Extend Sewer.

The main sewer on Ponton Street will be extended approximately 60 feet to drain the property in addition to Mr. Cranting. Part of Lots Simcoe Street, which were sold to Morley Smith for $100, Mr. Smith to assume the cost of advertising the sale of the property and also the cost of supplying and laying of the sewer. This is subject of an open ditch. The city will reserve a 20 foot right-of-way. It was decided to hold the annual tax sale, and the Mayor was given the permission to sign the deeds. Application for the holding of such sale. The proval or a broadcasting station being established in Ottawa. To afford an opportunity to local talent for broadcasting and also for general broadcasting business. There was no discussion on any of these questions.

Series of Questions.

A series of questions were posed for the several chairmen of committees and also for the City Clerk some discussion but nothing of importance resulted. Ald. Pringle as chairman of Light, stated he and Mr. C. V. Corbett were trying to make a survey of the city and would welcome suggestions as to where more lights were needed. Ald. Woodley asked for another light on Hilldale Street and Ald. Pringle into asked, that the highway roads through the city be given a close check and also, that he would like the Front Road lighted. Ald. Follwell stated this was impossible owing to war restrictions but that other roads mentioned would be given attention. Ald. Pringle would know why the South African Veterans' picture was not hung in a more suitable place in the chamber and that the names of the veterans be placed on the photograph. Ald. Chamberlain and Ald. Butler were appointed to make the necessary arrangements.

Some Supplies Turned Over.

Ald. Follwell wanted to know how much work had been done about the A.R.P. work in the city and Mayor Rollins stated, that all medical supplies had been turned over to the St. John Ambulance Brigade but the other equipment was still held by the city. Ald. Harvey inquired of Ald. Allin what was being done about the bonding question and Ald. Allin stated, that he had been in touch with the by-law department for this riding and that complete data would be ready for the next meeting of the committee and council. Ald. Woodley wished to know, why the auditor's report for West Hill had not been cut. Ald. Armstrong stated his department was very busy on the streets and that he was clearing flooding conditions but that he would give the question his attention.

Ald. Pringle Inquired.

Ald. Pringle inquired about the motion passed, requesting the auditor to show cause, why the auditor's report had not been received. He stated that the mover of any motion in council should be a member of the committee, otherwise they and also act as Chairman. Ald. Butler said he would be glad to do so, stating, that he had introduced the motion but that Ald. McDougall, Trudeau and Clarke had been appointed. On being learned, Ald. Clarke did not wish to act on this committee and learning that Ald. Butler's motion should be a member and chairman of the committee, he immediately got in touch with the Comptroller and was informed that the auditor would not be in town for a couple of weeks. After he comes I will immediately go into the matter with him and I can assure you, gentlemen, as chairman of the committee, that a report will be made to the next meeting of the council", said Ald.

Many Suggestions Advanced As Industrial Development Bank Bill Nears 2nd Reading

Discussions Just Part of Varied Bill-of-Fare for the Session

ANNOUNCEMENTS MADE

By FRANK FLAHERTY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Ottawa, March 14.—Suggestions are offered every member who speaks in the Commons on the Industrial Development Bank finds something new for the bank to do in helping Canada's transition from war to post-war period.

Last night as the bill neared second reading a few news broke on the horizon.

John R. MacArthur (PC—Toronto, Davenport) said he wanted it to finance power developments in Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Gordon Inner (L—Halifax) said he thought it could assist fishing fleets on both coasts and John Turner (L—Northumberland) said he thought it could think about the reopening of the famous Tyndall stone quarries. Ralph Maybank (PC) claims the decorative limestone for the parliament buildings.

The discussion of the financing of the Dominion Coal Board's proposed bank was just part of a varied bill-of-fare for the day which included announcements on beer, wage control, medical services, child legislation, the effect on the closing of air training schools, with straight arguments on the desirability of increasing old age pensions.

Bank Bill Debate.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King said that the 3½e government had not approached him with a view to his asking the United States to withdraw its name as one of the closing of the German and Japanese legations.

He said he declined to intervene on the ground that the Canadian government was not identified with the object of the United States approach. But he expressed the belief the discussions which took place between Prime Minister Eamon De Valera and the Canadian high commissioner in Ireland, J. K. Starrey, in which he himself and the Eire high commissioner here, had resulted in a steadying influence what was at the time a difficult situation

Industries Report Made.

Tabling a voluminous report on a survey of the supply of materials, personnel for the forces and civilians, Defence Minister Ralston said it was the most complete study made in any country and would be of importance both during the war and in the future.

Air Minister Power tabled a schedule for the closing of 28 air training schools during the summer, the following arrangements made at his recent conference in Ottawa with the R.C.A.F. overseas four, British Undersecretary for Air.

He assured the House the disbandment of schools would not reduce the flow of trained aircrew for replacements in front line squadrons, but was necessary for operational formations. R.A.F. Bomber Command, established as the first to be closed and their staff overseas will return to Britain, Air Vice Marshal Wasle Mare Pressley.

The Old Age Pension discussion was opened by Stanley Knowles (C.C.F.-Winnipeg North Centre) who demanded a more generous scale of pensions and reducing the minimum age limit to 60 on a motion to go into Committee of Supply, but before other speakers take part Speaker James Glen ruled the discussion out of order. He said there would be more generous scale of pensions and dignified relief for the needy to 60.

On the Industrial Development Bank Bill most speakers said they hoped small industry and industry in the Maritime provinces of the east and west could be foster-ed.

Establishment of a co-operative bank to provide credit for co-operative enterprises was urged by Clarence Gillis (C.C.F.-Cape Breton South).

The House learned that the Guild of Arts, a work centre started at Scarborough, Ont., near Toronto, has been taken over by the Pensions Department for treatment of members of the forces suffering from neuro-psychic disorders. This was disclosed in an Order-in-Council tabled by Pensions Minister Mackenzie.

Alderman Give Reports.

Ald. Trudeau—"I and Ald. Trudeau were in Ottawa last week and Ald. McDougall stated that he interviewed the manager of civilian aviation there and was informed that the Government Airport might locate an emergency landing field for the Trenton R.C.A.F. that it could be used in peace time. The whole question has not been received but no decision arrived at the Alderman stated that as soon as any move was made, the city would be notified". The members greeted the announcement with cheers. Ald. McDougall stated, that Ald. Trudeau and himself as Tourist and Publicity had some interesting data to offer but as certain stated plans were not completed and Ald. Trudeau would receive this information until a later time. Ald. Woodley congratulated Ald. Trudeau and Ald. McDougall for their report, that he submitted to the Rotary Club on their return from the Post-War planning. Ald. McDougall stated he was glad to supply the information and thanked Ald. Woodley as chairman of the committee for the laying of the groundworks to introduce the report.

Committee Named.

Mayor Rollins named the committee who will consider the adoption of a Russian city by this city—Ald. Woodley, Harvey Hughes and Pringle, Ald. Ryde, W. H. Morton, James Armstrong, Jack McVeigh, Jack Deacon, Matt Currie, B. C. Slater, Thomas Dredge, Irving Rochon, Ald. Allin, Ald. Jull, Ald. Fetterly, M. P. Duff, Harold Bateman, O. W. Duff, Dr. O. H.

DREW DEFENDS GOVT. ACTION IN BEER QUESTION

Premier Claims Prime Minister Misrepresented Facts in Case

LETTERS TABLED

Toronto, March 14.— (CP)—Premier Drew defended administration day night defending action by the Provincial Government in regard to liquor, beer and wine stores and beverage rooms throughout Ontario, signs and supplies were restricted because of an order imposed by Dominion authorities. The signs were criticized yesterday by Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

The Premier's statement, issued last night, said Mr. King "misrepresented the facts when, in his announcement of the lifting of restrictions on supply of beer to the provinces, he criticised the action of the Ontario government.

"The Dominion announced the Federal restriction-lifting order on March 3 in a lengthy statement, but later shortly after 3 p. m., after the House had risen from its prayer, a letter was received by the council from Ex-Mayor Jamieson. Bone will be referred over to this committee for investigation. Ald. Allin introduced a motion that all the minutes of the meeting be typewritten and a copy handed to each Alderman before the next meeting was not considered because the required majority was lacking. The motion was not obtained. Ald. Allin contended, that the minutes of each meeting should be read before any business is transacted. Three by-laws concerning the transfer of property were passed through the various stages and the council then adjourned.

J. W. Connell, managing director of the Dominion Temperance Institute, said:

"My honest opinion is that it will mean less drinking."

John Pritchard, Director of the Moderation League of Ontario, described the Dominion Government move as "a belated but most welcome extinction of the distinction between beer and spirits, which everybody else could see."

PRESTO CLUB

The meeting of the Presto Music Club was held last night at the home of Mrs. F. E. Houston when the following program was given:—

Mrs. piano solos played by Mr. Hurst, "Night in May" by Palmgren and "Rustle of Spring" by Sinding. Mrs. Fred Houston sang "Ich liebe dich" by Grieg, Mr. Richardson played "Polka" by one of his own compositions, and worthy of publication, Mr. C. W. Casement sang Herman Lohr's "Where my Caravan Has Rested" and Wm. Grieve played "Rhapsody No. 14" by Liszt. Mrs. Franklin Wilson gave a paper from the Life of Clara Schumann.

A donation to the Red Cross of twenty-five dollars was voted from the club funds.

WANT MORE TIME TO PAY

Ratepayers affected by the Tyrone Labor Council last night endorsed letter to a lengthy application asking Minister Ilsley either to permit income tax payable April 30 to be paid over a period of time or that the Government be permitted to deduct the tax from the income of the employee when standing to their credit.

STONE AGE DESIGNS

Moccasin designs dating from the Stone Age have been discovered in the mountains of Gara Ak Kaya in Turkestan. They are cut into the rock and represent the hunting of the primitive man.

1,400 TONS BOMBS REDUCE CASSINO TO RUBBLE

Explosions Shake Houses in Naples 50 Miles Away

Allied Ground Forces Immediately Charge Into Battered City To Oust Germans

BEACHHEAD STRONGER

By EDWARD KENNEDY
(Canadian Press War Correspondent)

Naples, March 15. (AP)— Allied air power devastated Cassino today with history's greatest concentrated bombing attack, and Allied troops immediately joined the battle in to drive the Germans from the rubble of the fortress town.

More than 1,400 tons of bombs were hurled on a target area of less than a square mile by every type of Allied plane in an Armada of 2,000 sorties.

Its goal was destruction of this stronghold where the German army had been blocking the main 5th Army advance since early January, the British and American artillery launched in a heavy barrage after the aerial bombardment stopped.

Cassino, on a main highway to Rome, is 75 miles southeast of that capital, and only 50 miles east of the Anzio invasion beachhead.

A Gigantic Blow.

The Allies threw every plane of the Mediterranean Allied air forces into a gigantic blow to smash the German grip on this town once and for all. They started in shortly after daylight and continued pounding the town until noon.

Then the artillery opened its fearful barrage and the waiting infantry was ordered into battle.

Allied troops who had been holding about one-third of the city were withdrawn quietly during the night to give the bombers a free hand.

First reconnaissance photographs developed after the attack showed that Cassino was levelled.

Every House Destroyed.

The tremendous attack had one objective—to destroy every building in Cassino and pulverize the ancient stone houses concealing countless guns from the 5th Army advance—and to kill every German in the place.

The attack began the bombing shook windows and houses in Naples, fifty airline miles away.

Never before has such a weight of high explosives been concentrated on so small an area in so short a time.

The first waves started at dawn, then returned and reloaded to smash the target in the same time later.

A communique termed it a "bombing operation unsurpassed."

Split-Second Precision.

Timed to split-second precision, the relays of bombers went over at fifteen minutes or ten or fifteen minutes throughout the morning.

Every unit of the Mediterranean Allied airforces was in action, Flying Fortresses and Liberators, fighters to great flying fortresses and liberators.

Loaded to capacity, they showered on Cassino such destruction as the world has never known before.

This operation against Cassino was but one phase of an all-out offensive that continued today and afternoon with increasing fury.

Approximately the same weight of bombs was loaded on towns, bridges, and communications centres to the north and southeast—places where the Germans might withdraw if another defending stand is set at Cassino.

German troops in the Anzio beachhead also were hard hit at the same time.

The Allied fliers hitting Cassino turned against the Germans one of the heaviest bombardments ever directed against psychological weapons—whistling devices attached to the many bombs so that they can see how the enemy stood up under his own type of armament.

Meanwhile on the beachhead south of Rome British troops have wiped out a German pocket of resistance and improved their positions south of Aprilia, 21 miles from Rome, where the Germans last month launched some of the most fierce attacks against Allied lines.

At last reports the British troops still were mopping up the enemy in the area headquarters said. In the meantime engineers other British troops tested the German positions and took fighting followed, but no ground changed hands.

Allied artillery played an offensive role in the valley south of Carroceto where bright sunshine released bad weather, but the ground still was soggy. Elsewhere along the perimeter of the beachhead there was active patrolling by British and American troops and harassing artillery fire.

The Germans have been observed regrouping around the beachhead for the past week and they have not expected to launch a fourth offensive, but so far this has not materialized.

On the main 5th Army front New Zealanders shelled and mortared enemy vehicles in the Cassino area and British troops in the Liri valley reported patrols drove off an enemy patrol with small arms fire, and captured a prisoner. Patrols were active on the 8th Army front.

Enemy Schemes Spoil.

British coastal craft sank a southbound enemy schooner close inshore among the Islands off the coast of the Yugoslav port of Sibenik.

Airforce headquarters said photographs showed that 100 railroad cars were destroyed or damaged in yesterday's afternoon bomber raid against the Prenestina rail yards in Rome — the eighth attack on Rome.

The rail was coupled with medium bomber attacks on rail yards in Orte and Terni, north of Rome, and assaults on Subiaco and Monte Montalto Di Castro, cutting the coastal railway line between and the firing fire to the station. Four enemy planes were destroyed during the day for a total of 400 Allied craft.

German Raids Failed.

Nazis failed Naples early today, dropping flares which brightly illuminated the city and the waterfront with an eerie orange glow which was reflected in the sky for the glimpse of Vesuvius. Anti-aircraft batteries sent up a heavy curtain of fire.

Fighter-bombers attacked German gun positions northwest of Cassino and south of Littoria.

Spitfires over the Tyrrhenian coast left a small fleet of Messerschmitt bomber and shot down a Messerschmitt 109 off the Italian east coast. Light and medium made night attacks on rail and road traffic at Civitavecchia and Grosseto.

Fighter-bombers dive-bombed the railway station at Vara Sabinia, 15 miles north of Rome. Two of three attacking Nazis Wulfe were shot down. Mediums again bombed German tank repair shops at Terni.

The Nazi-controlled Rome radio claimed Mussolini's editor of Il Giornale D'Italia in the heyday of Fascism, was killed in Rome yesterday by a direct bomb-hit on his house, and that residential sections of the city had been damaged, with a number of civilian casualties.

Lord Mountbatten Slightly Injured

With the Americans and Chinese in Northern Burma, March 15— Riding a jeep along a trail being hacked through the jungle, Lord Louis Mountbatten recently was injure slightly in the left eye, Allied headquarters announced today. Him.

The Allied commander-in-chief in Southeast Asia, who has on inspection tour of the front, was flown to a stunned and temporarily blinded by the accident.

A New Delhi report said Lord Louis was treated in a field hospital by an American specialist.

Freezing Rain Sheathes Roads In Western Ontario With Ice

(By The Canadian Press)

Rain which froze as it fell today sheathed highways and city streets in Western and Central Ontario with ice, making level difficult and in some districts the task was made all but impossible because of road conditions.

In London, which the ice storm was described as the worst of the winter, there was also a thick coating of sleet in some sections of the city and hundreds of residents were marooned in their homes. Stratford reported that bus service from London was cancelled and that the only doubtful whether buses could get through to Stratford because of the state of road conditions.

In most centres the rain began to fall during the night, freezing as it came. It was accompanied by a high wind which helped coat everything still more slippery.

Hydro officials were with no reports of serious accidents due to road conditions although in London two persons suffered possible fractures from falls on icy sidewalks.

Points in Eastern and Northern sections of the province were free of the ice storm. Sudbury re-ports light snow and less than 10 miles from the mouth of the southern Bug river and Soviet guns now control the east from Nikolaev.

To the north, Soviet units were said to have forced a crossing of the Bug river near Oslein, a town about 50 miles southeast of Vinnitsa, pulling them within 60 miles of the Rumanian frontier. The Soviet communique said Oslein was captured and the river crossed to the north and east of it.

The Russians also announced the capture of Bakhalovka on the banks of the Bug 14 miles south of Vinnitsa. They declared the Red Army had swept up more than 200 localities in its advances on three Ukrainian fronts, 90 of them after heavy fighting west of Kirovograd, and including Pervo Zakharyevka, 36 miles southeast of Uman.

The announcement of the enlargement of the Nikopol bridgehead on the Dnieprovka followed within three hours of Moscow's announcement that 10 Nazi divisions were wiped out in the Nikopol area, about 180 miles north of this area.

JOIN 'AS EMPIRE' IN PARLEYS ON CIVIL AVIATION

Sir A. Sinclair Uses Words 'Motherland And Colonial Possessions' in Speech

UNIFIED POLICY

By SYDNEY GRUSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, March 15—(CP Cable)—Air Archibald Sinclair, Air Secretary, told the House of Commons last night that Britain would join an impending international conference on civil aviation "as an Empire" and significantly added immediately, "the mother country and the colonial territories."

The air minister gave this assurance for members who had asked assurances that Britain would hold a strong hand for the conference for meeting the United States and others with a unified empire policy and talking in terms of "Empire aviation."

Sir Archibald's failure to include the Dominions by name in discussion of Empire for conference purposes was noted in the light of Prime Minister Churchill's Canadian objections to joining any hard and fast British aviation policy that might prejudice position for separate agreements with the United States.

The Air Secretary however clearly included Canada and the other Dominions are not at loggerheads over policies, even if matters are sensitive are to speak separately.

73 P.C. Is Raised Of R.C. Objective

Toronto, March 15 (CP)—As the Canadian Red Cross Society's latest campaign neared the final week, officials announced today that subscriptions received up to last night totalled $7,343,412, or 73 per cent of the $10,000,000 objective.

While Red Cross officials expressed satisfaction with the progress of the campaign, they pointed out that the objective represents minimum requirements and they would like to surpass it.

With Prince Edward Island already over the top with its objective of $50,000, British Columbia today moved into second with 87 cent of its $800,000 quota, with subscriptions of $787,464.

Subscriptions from the other provinces: Nova Scotia, $296,000 ($350,000), New Brunswick $195,824 ($250,000), Quebec, $1,907,782 ($2,200,000), Ontario $3,192,848 ($3,800,000), Manitoba $350,000 ($450,000); Saskatchewan $225,000, ($350,000), Alberta $239,000 ($400,000).

Russians Liquidating Several Trapped German Divisions

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow, March 15 —(AP)— Red Army troops are liquidating several trapped Nazi divisions in the southern Ukraine, the Russians said today, and in a smash along the Black Sea coast have cleared the harbor of Nikolaev, leaving Odessa as the only major port in the southern Russia still available to the Germans.

Two thousand Germans have been killed and 4,000 captured already, a Soviet communique said, while trying to break out of the trap sprung by Gen. Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 3rd Ukrainian Army about 46 miles northeast of Nikolaev in the Kherson-Voznesensk area. Columns driving in from the north and south forged a ring of steel around the Nazis.

The 3rd Army troops pushed 18 miles beyond captured Kherson to cut the German line of escape southeast to Nikolaev harbor into the Black Sea. They captured Shirokaya Balka, 36 miles southeast of Nikolaev and 10 miles southwest of Kherson.

HARDER TIMES IN PROSPECT FOR SOUTHERN IRELAND

Dublin Comment Indicates Britain's Stand "Means Blockade"

ACUTE COAL SHORTAGE

London, March 15 —(CP)— The people of Eire looked ahead today to less timely with the grave word on "ill skies in Dublin that Britain's stand means blockade."

Prime Minister Churchill's blunt warning, the Irish, no further information on the Allies' plans, but set specifically that Britain would discriminate supplying coal, purpose attaching conditions to exports to Eire, the Prime Minister said in Commons today: "It is not to be said by this statement which I made in the House yesterday."

He gave similar same answer when asked if he was aware of the indignation of British shipping workers over the refusal to give Eire the use of the station at the disposal of the United Nations.

Asked whether the British note handed to de Valera was supported by any threat, Churchill said: "I have stated explicitly their positions in Dublin, Mr. Churchill added, "I would not be in the public interest to discuss what information or British government is regarding activities of Axis agents in Southern Ireland."

Mr. Churchill told Commons yesterday that travel restrictions on Eire ports are the first step in a policy designed "to isolate Southern Ireland from the war and to prevent the critical period which is spinning the critical period which is spinning.

The government of Eire, which has refused to declare itself with the Allies, still full British support. to close the German and Japanese legations, was officially silent. The Irish Dublin doubted that Mr. Churchill's remarks were a secret to anything but blockade.

The Dublin Irishman said stops of coal coal alone would almost paralyze Eire's industry. Already coal shortages already has forced a 50 per cent cut in the use of electricity for the night newspapers said.

Farmers Asked To Deliver Milk To Factories

Ottawa, March 15—(CP)—Farmers who supplied milk to cheese factories before March 30, 1943, but who are now selling to fluid milk distributing companies, or to milk concentration plants, are required to resume their former supply relationships as soon as possible, the Agricultural Food Board announced today.

The Board also said that farmers who were supplying cream to creameries or milk to concentration plants before Sept. 1, 1943, are required to resume their former sales to their former markets or to other dairy producers manufacturing butter, cheese and April 30. Purchasers of milk are responsible for making these arrangements, said the Board.

QUINTUPLETS BORN IN SUBURB OF BUENOS AIRES

Came Into World Eight Months Age but Births Kept Secret

ALL DOING WELL

By EWALD L. ALMEN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Buenos Aires, March 15 —(AP)— Quintuplets were born eight months ago to a 27-year-old housewife and her 43-year-old Italian wife, who have become the world's most public sentiment such as attended the birth of Dionne quints, but the mother, pub hoax—but exhibited photographs, of the five babies, two boys and three girls, men, a fish house. Their names, it was said, are Mary, Ferdinando, Maria Esther, Maria Cristina, Carlos Alberto and Francisco.

The largest said the children were born at home last July 11, with the help of a midwife, Senora Maria Ines Vidal, who is the mother of Senora Ines Fernandez de Gatica, declared the quints are in excellent health, weighing between 20 and 25 pounds.

Claims to Have Seen Quints.

Senora Vidal said the birth was told first by Miss Leila Shaw, society writer for the Buenos Aires Herald, an English language newspaper. She said she went to the home and also interviewed the mother.

"We have had such a climate that there was no danger," she declared the mother as saying.

Senora Fernandez followed first publication of the report, "is it true that you have had five babies?" Quintuplets in our capital has been kept under cover eight months to avoid publicity and possible kidnaping. At the office of birth registry, where newspapermen usually check the births, clerks professed to know nothing except what was in the newspapers.

On Duty Since June.

A neighbor of the Dilgentis said that "everybody in the neighborhood will tell you that the quintuplets are genuine." And a gas company official said employees attempting to see the parents, said he had been on duty there since June and that: "We remember how Senora Dionne left for Canada to her home in Canada."

One of Senora Dilgentis's three other children is the surviving member of triplets. The trio are: Senorita Ana Maria, 6, and Mayra, three.

Canadian Quints Ten Years Old.

It was almost ten years ago that Yvonne, Cecile, Emilie, Annette and Marie Dionne were born to Oliva Dionne, a farmer of North French-Canadian farmer at Callander, Ont. Since then the quints had to be posted pt their mother home to continue the nurses.

Ottawa, March 15 (CP) — War Services Minister LaPlache today suggested appointment of the government of a full-time chairman of the Board of Governors of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

GOLD-BASED FUND TO STABILIZE FOREIGN EXCHANGE

British, American, Russian, Canadian Experts Expected in Full Agreement

FOR AFTER-WAR ERA

Washington, March 15 — (AP) — Nearly 40 experts completed agreements British, American, Russian and Canadian treasury experts on a multi-billion dollar, gold-based fund to stabilize post-war foreign exchange was announced today.

This belief grew following the disclosure of parallel conversations have been in progress here with British authorities while a Russian delegation was being acquainted with the American plan for currency stabilization plan.

An official who told of the new world-wide monetary talks said one more meeting was expected to eliminate the final points at issue, describing as a minor one and unrelated to the question of gold.

Question of Gold

Heretofore the White (American) and Keynes (British) plans have been at wide variance on the question of gold, Keynes's leading or suggestion role in balancing international trade and credit transactions.

Henry D. White, monetary expert of the United States Treasury, proposed an $8,000,000,000 fund to be contributed by the local currency contributions of participating participating countries. Lord Keynes, British Director and Economic Adviser to the British Treasury, proposed a plan to shed a clearing house arrangement without original assets and subject quota payments based on foreign trade volume.

Canada's Plan

Canada already has drafted its own plan, strikingly similar to the latest White proposal.

The Monetary official said he expected at least a couple more Russian-British-American meetings before the agenda before the State Department experts would be completed, so an international monetary conference to consider currency stabilization and world bank for reconstruction and development.

Europe Hit Nearly Every Day in Month By Allied Airmen

Incendiary and High Explosive Bombs Showered on London By Nazi Raiders

13 PLANES DOWNED

By GLADWIN HILL
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, March. 15—(CP)— U. S. heavy bombers in "maximum-sized" force smashed at military targets in Central Germany today, indicating that the second strategic Air Force headquarters announced. The blow followed a night raid on the industrial city of Duesseldorf by R. A. F. Mosquitoes, the first to return without loss.

Targets and other details of the new U. S. attack were not disclosed, but the German radio said air fleets swept into northern Germany this morning, touching off "major scale" fighting centering over Hanover's 150 miles west of Berlin.

Radio Silence.

German radio transmitters went off the air as the bombers approached—doing the middle of yesterday's record of heavy damage to London in a fire raid that night. Then the German radio said Germans anti-aircraft defences were "considerably impaired" by weather conditions.

It was the 11th operation this month for the American four-engined bombers, and the 13th in 17 days.

At the same time, medium bombers of the U. S. 9th Airforce pounded at airfields in Northern France and Belgium. R. A. F. Dominion and Allied fighters accompanied them.

Duesseldorf, a city with a normal peacetime population of about 540,000, is situated on the Rhine approximately 25 miles northwest of Cologne and is the centre of important iron industries. It is also a railway junction served by R. A. F. bomber fleets.

The Mosquito force was the only Allied offensive blow in the aerial war over Europe in which the element of maintaining the Allied offensive fell to formations of U. S. heavy bombers carried out low-level attacks on targets in Northern France.

The fighters failed to encounter a single Nazi plane.

Europe now has been hit nearly every day and night this month by Allied airmen.

Berlin was again toiled through smoking ruins in search of dead and injured after the R. A. F. struck after a fierce pre-midnight fire raid that rivaled in intensity the London blitz of the 1940-41 days.

Thousands of incendiaries and high explosive bombs were showered down on the capital in a short, concentrated attack which touched off fires of huge proportions and did extensive damage in two of the best known business and residential districts.

Bombs were also dropped at scattered points in East Anglia and south and southeast England, causing casualties and damage at several places.

The total raiding force was estimated at 150 to 300 planes but how many of these reached London was not announced. At least 13 raiders were shot down, 11 over England and two on route home. A good part of the raiders Germany sends against England are twin-engined, dual purpose fighter-bombers capable of carrying only a ton of explosives under the three tons or more that the Allies' four-engineered bombers tote.

Nazi propagandists exploited the raid on London to the fullest possible extent, the Berlin radio boasting that the assault was carried out on a grand scale and asserting the raiders had unloaded large quantities of new "super-heavy bombs" said to have great destructive power.

The raid, which lasted less than an hour, was the first attack on the British capital since March 2 and touched off the largest similar fire that sent up during last month's "baby blitz."

By the time the last of the raiders turned back across the channel the sky was red with the glow of many fires.

Flames Finally Controlled.

Firemen struggled for two hours to bring under control a huge blaze in the Whitechapel underground shelter in which 4,000 persons had taken refuge. Warden were prepared to evacuate the shelters should the flames finally prove uncontrolled.

A number of large apartment buildings, private homes, private dwellings and many business properties were damaged or destroyed.

Ambulances and military police joined in extinguishing incendiaries and in helping rescue squads dig for victims in the wreckage.

Says Parliament Would Be More Powerless by CCF

Regina, March 15 — (CP) — Hon. W. F. Kerr, Saskatchewan Natural Resources minister, told the legislature that "if the C. C. F. wins power in Canada all opposition parties would be outlawed and parliament would be rendered useless."

He said: "I indict the C. C. F. as an enemy of democracy in the Canadian people." Speaking of the C.C.F. program, he said the supercentralization of parliamentary freedom is implicit in the Socialist program. Parliamentary democracy in Canada faced the warning."

Mr. Kerr would not hesitate in going to any lengths to retain power if it once obtained control of the government.

The minister said Mr. J. Gothwell, C.C.F. M.P. leader, had stated socialists would need a generation to put their planning into effect.

"The last letter I received from J. W. Dafoe, editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, who died before his death, he referred to this dangerous feature in the C.C.F. program," told of a friend who faced a C.C.P. with him and asked how he would have received the reply: 'We can afford to forego freedom for a while.'"

Entries close with the contest will be asked to pay a small entry fee, which will more than cover invitations and will govern all games. Checker players from as far west as Oshawa and east to the Ottawa district regularly do take part in the contests.

SIGNS OF SPRING OBSERVED IN CITY

Signs that spring is fast around the corner and others have been observed this week.

The fact that school children have re-discovered their rubber shoes has been seen skating to school. . . the appearance of pussy willows on the sidewalks and that fact that district farmers are beginning to think of tapping in preparation for the annual make of maple syrup. The robins and crows have been seen and heard in the city for several weeks. And then, too, the Belleville Lawn is showing signs of its impressive annual breakup.

All the above signs simply cannot be wrong and when the boys get out their marbles and are seen rolling them on the walks, it will be known that spring has really been here.

ERROR CORRECTED IN ADVERTISEMENT

An error occurred in the advertisement of the Belleville Civilian Services Committee appearing in Monday's issue of The Intelligencer. It was stated in the ad. that "Savings Committee" but it should have read "Salvage" and the reference "Belleville Civilian War Services Committee."

WHITE SPANIEL DOG KILLED BY CAR

A white spaniel dog had to be destroyed on the road Sunday evening after it had been struck by motor vehicle near the intersection of Stanbridge and North Front St. Constable Bill Gay, City police reported that the dog belonged to Mrs. Wright, 24 Church St. The dog was found to be bleeding profusely by the side of the road when Const. Gay arrived on the scene and was ordered by the city dog pound officer, who was subsequently notified to "put in order" to avoid unnecessary suffering.

BOOM OF WINCH STRIKES BUILDING

While being towed into Riggs Garage on Dundas St. yesterday the boom of a winch on a truck driven by Walter Lovell, 14 Trinity St. Townie, struck the building causing considerable damage. Mr. Lovell's truck had stalled and was being towed into the garage when the boom struck the building.

All the above signs simply cannot be wrong and when the boys get out their marbles and are seen rolling them on the walks, it will be known that spring has really been here.

BOY SUFFERS LIGHT INJURIES WHEN RUN OVER BY TRAILER

While attempting to "catch a ride on a trailer wagon" a lad named Donald Hamilton, son of 1-2 Albert Street, fell beneath the wheels of the trailer sustaining injuries to the face and arms on Monday afternoon. He was attended by Dr. J. J. Robertson.

The accident was reported to city police yesterday by Harry Keller, employee at the County Home, who was driving a team and trailer of children along Pine Street to the grist mill when several children ran into the street and boarded the trailer despite Mr. Keller's shouting words of caution. The Cornell lad stumbled and fell beneath the trailer wheels. Mr. Keller stopped and rendered what assistance possible, he stated.

POLICE SEEK MAN WHO ACCOSTED GIRL

Belleville police are endeavoring to locate a strange man who is alleged to have accosted a seven-year-old girl on Harriett Street Monday evening and persuaded the little lass to accompany him for a walk. At the intersection of Hart and Colborne Streets, however, the man is alleged to have taken hold of the child but she managed to escape and ran to her Grove St. home.

Only meagre details were available as the description provided by the child girl was not in full detail.

CHINESE CAPTURE IMPORTANT CITY

Chungking, March 15 — (AP) — Chinese dispatches announced today the recapture of Hsiangkwan (Siang Dragon) Pass, a strategic gateway in southwestern Shansi province which the Japanese held for six years.

Black Dragon Pass is approximately due north-northeast of Chungking, and opens the door to extension of Chinese military activities.

128 Hastings County Farmers To Return to Farms

Cast of Nine O'clock Opera Company Group of Fine Experienced Artists

Hailing from Ogden, Utah, Grant Greenwood, who plays the role of the narrator as well as the character of Alexander, is an equally versatile artist. He is partly responsible for the staging in the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's production of Menotti's "Marriage Proposal" and "The Old Maid and the Thief," the Gian-Carlo Menotti opera broadcasts. Before entering the studio, however, and giving both performances a finished, polished touch, Grant Greenwood had had considerable experience in the intimate music of the theatre.

Before embarking on the career of a concert singer, he was for a time a member of the original cast of "Porgy and Bess," the all-coloured folk opera by George Gershwin. He also sang with the Theatre Guild on the night of the performance of Gershwin's "Porgy" and has had a great deal of interest in the Nine O'clock Opera, which is now in its fifth season of broadcast appearances.

Before the first piano they were all students at the University of Utah and at the Juilliard Graduate School where Grant Greenwood and Jacqueline Delmas, although given the same opportunities at that time, they were very different types of students. For one thing, they were from different colleges and universities as well as studying at different schools. Jacqueline Delmas had finished at Sarah Lawrence College, Bronxville, and at the Juilliard Graduate School of the city of New York, while Grant Greenwood was at the University of Utah and at the Juilliard Graduate School of the city of New York at the same time. They were also very different in their personalities, although given the same opportunity of working together in a school in Milwaukee and when, after that, they came, by the invitation of the Nine O'clock Opera Company, Mr. Greenwood told how the producer had finished at approximately the dot of three o'clock when the rehearsal had come to the stage to conclude it, a fifteen o'clock was heard to strike that afternoon. Their appearance in Milwaukee, one newspaper in writing the article called it, "Nine O'clock Almost-Night" and other such whimsical and complimentary titles, who had seen and heard the opera and who had pounded on the doors, was related with a great deal of amusement by Mr. Greenwood.

Very, another story that got around after several appearances of the pair, he said "was that of the people thinking and realizing that they had to strike while the iron was hot" because the production of the Nine O'clock Opera was because it contained its performances at nine o'clock!

Appearances

Coming directly from London and Toronto, the Canadian concerts scheduled for approximately sixty appearances in community concert towns during 1944. When the show first began, the work was strenuous throughout the year, but as time went on, it became more concentrated. The troupe now has only sixty-five concerts in about ten weeks what it did before in twenty.

"All the props are carried in two or three boxes," stated Mr. Greenwood, "and are small enough to make it easy for us to handle. We are trying to make the show as flexible as possible, so that we can play in theatres, auditoriums, or concert halls, and therefore we use no scenery. We are trying to keep it down to a minimum of cost and yet up-to-date production."

Manager and director of all-round experience, Mr. Greenwood has been for two years after David Otto, the pianist-conductor, left the show. Jacqueline Greenwood said with a broad deal of enthusiasm, "I can say that we have a wonderful cast, because I am not the foundation boss."

Another interesting point was that "we have a lot more operas in English than in any other language," Mr. Greenwood added, about carrying account of its educational work for the organization he told that he preferred to keep to the idea, made popular by the American philosopher, that of carrying and using as few steps from the platform to the stage as possible, the audience must imagine the scenery and so on, which is a large part of the play. Mr. Greenwood told of a recent visit to Hollywood with Jack Benny, who contributed $1,000.00 and expressed the opinion that it had been just as effective as the original play.

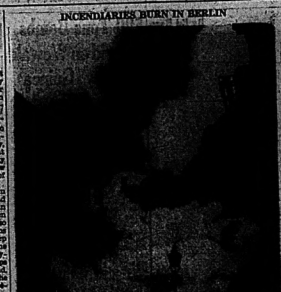
Political Football Made of Hydro Liberals Charge

Simcoe, Ont., March 15 (CP)—Two former Liberal members of the Ontario Cabinet spoke last night at a Haldimand-Norfolk by-election meeting in support of Major W. Murrie, Liberal candidate in next Monday's election, and criticized the Hydro-electric policy of the present Progressive Conservative government of Premier Drew.

Harry Nixon, Premier before the provincial election last June, referred to abolition of the Hydro electric charge on rural users, and said re-classification of rural users had resulted in a 50 per cent increase to farmers. He said there was no necessity for such an increase.

Farquhar Oliver, Hydro Minister, stressed the necessity of retaining Ontario's Hydro-electric commission which would serve as cultural and recreational centres for people living on farms. He forecast that when the war was over Britain would be looking to Canada and that in Ontario but said it would be impossible to distribute them over a wide area while present disparity of Hydro rates continued.

Mr. Murrie said Premier Drew had made a political football of hydro.



INCENDIARIES BURN IN BERLIN

There just aren't enough firemen to cope with the disaster of fires started by Allied raiders in Berlin, capital of Hitler's Germany, as this photo, just received through a neutral source, testifies. Incendiaries, which the German caption describes as "phosphorous bombs," rained down on the city and have been unchecked on the roadway. In the background, dense clouds of smoke billow from struck buildings.

The War Today—
Hitler's Army Suffers Irreparable Losses in Red Ukraine Offensive

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

The Russian army on the Ukraine, estimated at between 400,000 and 500,000 men, is in the clutches of far-reaching disaster.

Even though he salvages some troops from the wreckage, he will have suffered a terrific blow. The battle now raging is the liquid end of Russia's early spring-is bringing the end of the campaign that began in the winter.

The Western war-thrust right wing of this entire line has been swung round so it faces the black north. In this position the Soviet command began to attack Rumania with heavy blows towards Rumania with heavy blows.

The Russians indicate they've killed or captured close to 100,000 men in the last ten days in this region, and that the Germans had been losing places the usually solid and skilful German troops are in panic.

If there's any silver lining to the Fuehrer's cloud, it's hardly identified. He has been banking on the fact that his water-boy, Marshal Von Manstein, has created strong defences, along the Bug River which is the main natural defence of the German line of retreat. This cuts into the Black Sea at Odessa, near the strategic port of Kherson which Red Forces captured Monday.

Von Manstein had intended to make a stand on the Bug in case of emergency. That's the meaning of the fierce battle now in progress in Zamopol in the war-torn land, at the end of what is now the Marshal's left flank. The Russians are hanging to Zamopol for dear life to prevent that flank from being rolled up behind the Bug.

The Muscovites already have cut the Rail line between Zamopol and Port of Nikolaev, and are said to have forced a crossing of the river 50 miles southeast of Vinnitsa. That looks bad for the German Von Manstein clearly underestimates the threat, if the report is true that the Zhukov army is pushing its armoured ships from Rumanian ports to Odessa. That presumably would mean preparations for possible evacuation of troops by sea, either from the Dniester bend or from the Crimea, or both. This would present a further difficulty for Germans to the Dniester river—barrier to Rumania.

Hitler's Rumania satellite, trembling in the path of the avalanche, reportedly has sent Prince Barbu Stirbey, former Premier and confidant of the deposed King Carol, to Cairo to use his peace with the Allies. Britain is to have granted him passes to expedite his trip. Confirmation of Stirbey's mission is awaited, but the report in itself is symptomatic of the feverish confusion in the Balkans, which have had their fill of Hitler.

Single Ration Book Is Out Says Blackwell

Toronto, March 15—(CP)—Attorney-General Blackwell in a written statement handed yesterday to press gallery members at the Ontario legislature denied that any of the restrictions on beer supplies which have been put into effect by the provincial government "cannot be removed by the stroke of a pen" and declared that they would continue to be felt in Ontario for some time.

The Attorney-General's statement said that because Dominion restrictions on the manufacture, supply and use of beer and wine had not withstood that Ontario had found it necessary to continue to be felt for some time, the provincial government with that Dominion Government abandon the intention to have a single ration book for all liquor supplies.

"For the present it is intended to proceed with the system of issuing permits for purchase of spirits and imported wine to the public, and of the issuing of the separate coupon books for beer and native wines," the statement said.

"The statement added: "The ability of the government of the province of Ontario to continue the present system of permitting and rationing will depend entirely on the possibility of the Ontario government.

"In other words, if through other provinces or states gain by manpower controls the restrictions are tightened or if changing shall in circumstances will permit an indirect and effective system of rationing will still be necessary. It is to be hoped that will not happen."

St. Mark's Y.P.A. Entertains Springbrook Young People

Bonarlaw — On Friday afternoon of last week St. Mark's W.A. held a quilting and pot luck supper in the church hall.

On his recent visit to Bonarlaw, Pte. Morley Stickley of the "Lucas Canes" Guards, Windsor, Ont., was presented with a gift watch by the committee from The Springbrook War Service Club.

Sgt. Pilot Doran Given Commission

With his pieces day camp members of Toronto, a German fighter plane to their credit although not yet twenty years of age, Flight-Sergeant Pilot Arthur J. Doran, 24, of 30 Elm Grove Ave., Toronto, has received his commission as a pilot officer according to an overseas R.C.A.F. announcement. His parents in Belleville learned of his promotion by letter at the same time as the announcement was made from overseas.

Overseas since June, 1943, Pilot Officer Doran was a crew member of an operational training unit before he received credit for shooting down the Nazi fighter craft while on a practice training flight over enemy territory. For crewmen of the Bomber Command to bring down an enemy aircraft is considered a worthy achievement to be a distinction.

Born in Belleville and attending St. Michael's Academy, Pte. Doran enlisted in March, 1943. He took his I.T.S. at Toronto, elementary flying training at Windsor, and graduated as a pilot officer at Centralia. He has three brothers in the R.C.N.V.R. and a fourth brother is stationed in Britain with his two younger brothers who are now overseas.

The Day in Parliament

(By The Canadian Press)

TODAY: The House of Commons will not sit.

The Senate will not sit.

YESTERDAY:

The House gave second reading to the Bill to create an industrial development bank, and heard Prime Minister King, replying to Premier George Drew's announcement that the government Monday, say he had not received the Ontario premier's letter suggesting a conference until after he made his announcement. T. J. Richardson (C.C.F., Toronto Broadview) urges the government to obtain the use of Irish ports for the Canadian navy; Sayd Absalom (Lib., Qu'Appelle) is hopeful Canada may eventually acquire the two British aircraft carriers being built in the United States; seamen, and that the pilots and planes are to be provided by the British.

FIGURES GIVEN AT COUNCIL MEETING

In the account of the council proceedings on Monday night it was stated that the firemen had received an increase of $363 since the start of the war. This should have read $363 per month. The other monthly rate employees had obtained a $130 increase. The $363 was the total increase, only been raised five cents an hour since the start of the war. The figures were given by Ald. Harold Armstrong.

Three Other War Brides Report Living in City

Although it may now have to be told, since the secret is generally known, as a piece of memory on the part of the bride herself, that she brought to the attention of The Ontario Intelligencer in the local newspaper last week, that last week it reported Mrs. Cecil Styles, 1st Avenue, as being one of the overseas war brides to have come to Belleville.

Today it was pointed out that there are at least three other overseas war brides in Belleville, all having arrived in the city last summer with their husbands, Corporal Styles, Trooper Ivan Reynolds, Thorne, 12 West Moira St., Mrs. C. B. Smith, 96 Church St., and Mrs. Andrew Knott. The latter two mentioned arrived in Belleville together last August. Mrs. Knott came to Belleville in November, 1942, and Mrs. Smith in March, 1943.

Mrs. Smith is the wife of Sgt. Major Smith, who is now serving in Italy with the Canadian fighting forces, and arrived in Belleville by train with Mrs. Thorne. They also have a young daughter, Yvonne, who was born in Belleville last November.

Tito's Partisans Smash German Attempted Drive

London, March 15 (CP)—Yugoslav Partisan forces have smashed a German attempt to encircle them in Bosnia, Marshal Tito's headquarters announced tonight after a six-day battle.

The communique said the Germans started their offensive from Prijedor, a railway junction in the district of Bosanski Novi, heavily reinforced with tanks, armoured cars and six prisoners.

The Partisans' communique said the latest Allied air raid on Sibenik, scene of the Allied attack on the port of Ancona, destroyed two German merchant ships.

Two Germans, a 1,000-ton armed patrol boats and Nazi sailing vessels, the communique added, and the Yugoslavs took 29 prisoners, the Partisans said.

Three Canadains Awarded U.S. Medal Of Legion of Merit

Ottawa, March 15 (CP)—The United States Legion of Merit medal was awarded here today to three prominent Canadian servicemen in recognition of "conspicuous meritorious service" in connection with the organization and operation of the Canadian-United States Ogdensburg agreement, it was announced by the Canadian Army.

Brigadier-General Leonard Murray, Commander of the engineer's training centre at Petawawa Military Camp, Ont., was made a Commander of the Legion of Merit.

The Legion of Merit is one of the highest honors awarded to persons who are not citizens of the United States. It stems from the badge of Military Merit, America's oldest decoration, established by George Washington in 1792.

Arrest Is Made For Questioning In Double Murder

Finley Forks, B.C., March 15—(CP)—Provincial Police here have arrested a man for questioning in connection with the murder of two trappers near this northern British Columbia outpost and it was believed today the man was being flown from the district to await appearance in police court.

Police had been organized earlier to search for the slayer of Eugene Beamser, 32, and Hans Pfeuffer, 43, whose bullet-riddled, bodies were frozen into slush ice on Finley river. Their cabin had been looted. Furs, guns and supplies were missing.

Police at Prince George, 300 miles south of Finley Forks, had said Saturday that the arrest in the double murder had led them to believe the murderer was an Indian. The brutal slayings occurred in the rugged mountain country of the North-Central Interior of British Columbia. The victims' cabin was a Vichy radio broadcast.

Origin of Hybrid Corn Explained To Kiwanis Club

The origin and history of hybrid corn was given members of the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon in the Quinte Hotel on Tuesday by C. F. Maxwell, field representative of the Stokley-Van Camp factory at Tremton. A considerable amount of business was transacted with the president, McVeigh in the chair. Jack March collected the fines and how he made the grade is now known. Elmer Dunk was in charge of the community singing with Jack Bell at the piano. Words of thanking to the club was expressed to the guest speaker and the organization for their donation of breakfast tables from the annual track meet. Dr. Hoskins was also thanked for the interest of the community Kiwanis Centre in providing material for the Kitchen at rest room.

Herb Bunn of the Ways and Means Committee told the members of preparations being made in the annual meeting slated to be staged at the armouries on Wednesday night next when Frank Turner is bringing three excellent wrestlers to this city, and the fee is under $1 for all of the blood Denis Clinch is in charge of the contest and a most favorable contract with the club and a good sum will be realized by the club. Another city meeting will be held with the Kiwanis Club of Napanee, one of the district on March 30th. This will be in charge of Ernest Mc. Banks of the Publicity department of the C.N.E. will be the guest speaker. Frank Dominelli reported on the social evening to be held at the Kiwanis Centre on Monday evening next. This will be the first of a series to be held for the members. This is an informal party for the members and their families and all are expected to be present. The women of the members down to the latter's 17th year will be in charge of the refreshments and a pot luck supper is provided.

Dinner for Victory Campaign

James Barclay told of the "Dinner for Victory" campaign that is to be inaugurated by the club. Boxes will be placed in the several stores on Front Street and a number of them at a local theatre at least once a week. More particulars will be given in the near future. The speaker of the day was introduced by Gordon Barclay and Kiwanis appreciation was expressed by Ernie Finkle. Mr. Maxwell dealt with the company for some years coming from the United States to Napanee, where the first factory of the company was started and when Trenton factory was opened he was sent there as manager and field man. Another factory was opened at Whitby last year. The company established in Napanee and the first canning was 4,000 jars and since that time there has been a rise in the position of the business of the company in the world. In 1941 there were 54 factories and they produced $21,810,000 worth of produce but this has increased in 1943 to 65 factories producing $42,112,000. The Canadian Company is a direct subsidiary of the parent company", said Mr. Maxwell.

Explained Field System

The speaker explained the field system under which the company works, they having contracts for crops at all stages of the growth. Each grower is given a field card upon which all data is placed and a survey of these cards over a period of years brings the crops to almost perfection. Mr. Maxwell stated that peas were the most precision crop of all grown because they have to be taken off at the moment of being right because they might be right one day and not the morrow. He stated that peas had the control of the market and that canning and winners were placed in convenient places throughout the country so that growers would have short haul. He showed that corn could stand a day or two and not be affected. It should be taken about a week after it is ripe for table use and the field men can tell when they will be in advance what the corn will be like.

Mr. Maxwell explained that all sweet corn now used is hybrid and in minute detail the speaker traced the various processes by which a hybrid corn was originated. Breeding and cross-breeding was used in detail and in years a corn was developed that was better than the better that made for good eating. The talk was most instructive and interesting.

In South Russia

Russian successes have proved during recent days of the most important character. News from the Black Sea area indicates how hopeless is the German position in Southern Russia. Two great Russian armies are within 75 miles of Odessa, the great Russian sea port, which is in German hands and the peril to that port is constantly growing more and more since the Russian victory at Kherson. Reports tell of the death of 75,000 Germans in ten days through the great Russian offensive in Lower Russia.

An Istanbul dispatch yesterday told of the position of a Russian collapse on a gigantic scale and the possibility that the Germans would try to make a getaway by sea route from Odessa, with the probability of a Nazi disaster of the greatest proportions, and the throwing of the German line far back into Rumania. It appears that great events are in the making which may mean another great disaster to the record of the Hitler armies.

Even the tone of the German dispatches indicates the grave danger that faces the Germans and in one Nazi statement there is a reference to "the course of planned disengagement movements after the destruction of all military installations." That phrase has been used again and again and plainly indicates withdrawal.

The history of the last year will be remarkable for the deep advance of the Russians and the effective character of their strategy.

Canadian Farmers Praised

Lord De La Warr paid an eloquent tribute to wartime Canada in a speech to the Guild of Agriculturists in London, a few weeks ago after his recent visit to the Dominion. He told his audience "of feeling the warmth of their Canadian friendliness, of seeing what their farmers have been doing, of seeing too how interested they are in what we have been doing on our farms, in our increased production, in how we have to live in the matter of living and above all perhaps in how we faced and overcame the grim days of 1940. Their intense interest in conditions over here, including anything that helped them to see the our personal lives, made one realize what a family affair the Commonwealth is, with that curious mixture of independence and unity that is perhaps the outstanding feature of the British Commonwealth."

"The immensity of the war effort of the individual Canadian farmer attracted his attention. He said that Britons could get their hats off to the Canadians who with a net loss of over 400,000 men from the land have increased production by over 45 per cent. and recalled "one old veteran of seventy who told me of his annual sales off the farm, his only help his wife, a daughter and a son-in-law. I asked him how he could possibly have managed. His reply was simply that they had worked a bit harder—and by heaven, so they had—four of them on 800 acres, 700 of which was in grain and carrying, a pedigree herd of Aberdeen Angus and feeding 100 or more pigs."

He held up the high standard of Canadian livestock, the pedigree and the general stock of the country, and he carried home the message "we cannot—the fact we have no right to expect to be able to—build a prosperous British agriculture on scrub stock—especially as Great Britain is essentially a stock raising country." He also remarks, "I cannot easily forget meeting in a wayside inn 12 or 15 farmers of less than 100 acres and of hearing them discuss milk records, butterfat tests, time breeding and contagious vaccination. Their whole area was tubercule free." So he went back to Britain suggesting that the Minister of Agriculture should call a meeting of farmers, war agricultural executive committees and the breed societies and make plans for a far more drastic attack on the problem of better breeding of cattle and of tackling disease.

He said that the Canadian farmers realize that the problem is not one of production but of under consumption.

Canadian pundits have also said it seem to have to have learned "that what we call agricultural policy is in fact the basis of world trade—wheat alone being one of the largest single factors in world raw materials prices and that to wheat we have to add such commodities as meat, dairy products, wool, sugar cotton, tea and so on. The question of course we are all asking ourselves whether, businessmen or farmers—is whether a genuine attempt is going to be made to give the industrial stability—planned markets and stable prices or are we to return to what has been described as the law of the economic jungle."

Lord De La Warr expressed himself in these words. "Let our Government give a lead, a dramatic lead, in the direction of a long term policy, with a genuine plan aiming for stability. It will not be easy. The problems and the difficulties are colossal but so is the danger of the alternative. The alternative is return to pre-war conditions, to the frustrations, the insecurity, the booms and the depressions that gave us that state of economic chaos in which political madmen could thrive and gain control of their nations. If our Government could only give us a lead away from these things, there will be no doubt about the position of Britain in the Commonwealth or indeed in the world."

Three Writers Pass

Three great American writers of mature years and writers of great productivity passed away within a forty-four hours of one another last week, Irvin S. Cobb, humorist, Joseph C. Lincoln, teller of tales of the sailing era of New England and of the Cape Cod folk, and Hendrick Willem Van Loon, a native of the Netherlands who wrote in English popular works of history. All these voluminous authors had messages for the Americans and the English-speaking world of great sanity.

Cobb had many callings, newspaperman, author of short stories, actor, writer for the stage, and many other callings. He had written many books all marked by his type of humor.

All these men have served their day and generation well and their marks left on the reading public will for the good by reason of their clear, simple and natural appeal to the people of this day.

A New Nickel

(Hamilton Spectator)

It is announced that a new five-cent piece is to be made at the Royal Mint from cold-rolled nickel produced at the local plant of the Stanley Steel Company, Limited. Not only is the steel being supplied from Hamilton, but the design, which has been approved by Mr. Ilsley, Finance Ilsley, was also worked out here. A considerable saving of nickel and tin will result from the minting of the steel coin, though at present very few are in circulation. It is to be curious that, in the interests of metal conservation, the method of piercing coins has not been tried at the Royal Mint. The old nickel coins, with a hole in the middle, to distinguish them from silver coins of approximately the same size, which used to be current on the European Continent, were not merely economical, but very convenient. No confusion could arise, under any circumstances, in the use of such coins, which were so easily identified by touch as well as sight. When the Government makes new dies it may be worth while to be worth while to give this experiment, which has already abundantly proved its merits in other countries, a trial?

Content not thyself that thou are virtuous in the general; for one link being wanting the chain is defective. Perhaps thou art rather innocent than virtuous and owest more to thy constitution than to thy religion.—Penn.

500 Tons Bombs Poured on Wewak in New Guinea

Allied Headquarters, Southwest Pacific, March 15 (AP)—Japan's main base in northeastern New Guinea of Wewak is beginning to feel the treatment from the Allied Air Forces which has reduced Rabaul, New Britain, to helplessness.

Almost 500 tons of bombs fell on Wewak and its Japanese airdrome fields in the last three days, Allied headquarters announced today. Between 33 and 66 Japanese planes that tried to intercept the attackers were shot down.

The new account, by Allied planes' command, says that the pounding at the big air and supply base 300 miles westward of Madang by Australian and American forces have been carried out both night and day, touching Madang for the last month, driving up from Salamaua.

The Prime Minister announcement also said that 121 tons of bombs were dropped on Rabaul by seventeen bombers Sunday. Five Japanese planes were shot down. A report on casualties in the fighting around the Empress Augusta beachhead on Bougainville Island in the Solomons disclosed that the Japanese lost 5,000 men in the 10 days during five days of landing.

Associated Press War Correspondent Yara Haagland reported from General Stilwell's headquarters in China that 96 dead in the Bougainville fighting, while more than 1,000 Japanese died.

Australia's Army Minister Answers Paper's Criticism

Canberra, Australia, March 15.—(CP)— Australia's Army Minister, Percy Spender, K.C., said in a 10-page review today "It is galling to the Australian people after 2½ years of conflict during which Australian forces fought in nearly every world theatre, to read in a newspaper the report that 'Australians better get into the Pacific war immediately.'"

He said his comment was prompted by an article appearing in the Chicago Tribune.

The Tribune in an editorial March 12 said: "Rather than carping about the pay of American soldiers, Mr. Curtin should be better getting into the Pacific war immediately and removing the restrictions against sending drafted troops beyond the area of Australia's direct interest".)

"Australia has fulfilled every obligation in the war. She has won not only in the Pacific but in all theatres and will continue to do so until final victory", Fyrde said.

"In proportion to the population Australia has as many men under arms as any allied or enemy nation".

Members Now Awaiting Budget, Which Will be Brought Down Friday

LIBERALS GIVE SUPPORT

Toronto, March 15—(CP)— With the Throne Speech debate ended and the address in reply adopted by 51 to 31 votes after a full day's session, the Ontario Legislature today gives attention to various bills while awaiting the budget provincial treasurer Leslie M. Frost is expected to bring down Friday.

New bills will be introduced and others advanced toward passage, adding to the 24 measures which received royal assent from Lieutenant-Governor Albert Matthews yesterday—described as a record number of bills to be passed in two weeks by any provincial House. Royal assent leaves the House with the government of Premier Drew in the position to proceed with its plans of planning and development.

In yesterday's division the Liberals, two Labor-Progressives and Independent Farmer, Premier Drew's majority was 20.

Associated Press War Correspondent Yara Haagland reported from General Stilwell's headquarters in China that 96 dead in the Bougainville fighting, while more than 1,000 Japanese died.

FIRST DIVISION IN LEGISLATURE WON BY GOVT.

Dr. Newton Rowell, K.C., Leader of the Opposition, Moves Amendment to Address in Reply Which Is Defeated by Vote of 51 to 31—Premier Drew Speaks

Toronto, March 15—(CP)—Premier Drew's first division in the Ontario Legislature was won by the government by a vote of 51 to 31 when Dr. Newton Rowell, K.C., leader of the opposition, moved an amendment to the address in reply to the speech from the throne.

The amendment, which was defeated on the first division in the House, read:

"That this House regrets that the speech from the throne contains no announcement of a bill to make Oliva Mooney Dionne, the surviving quintuplet of the quintuplet daughters in place of the three-man board of trustees at present in charge since a year after their birth, May 28, 1934, at Callander, Ont.

Conference With Dionnes

Mr. Conservative Rowell said the step was taken after a conference with the Dionne father, and related to bring his family up as a unit. He read to the House a letter from Mr. Dionne, declaring that people and government of Ontario have been "very kind" on behalf of the Quints and saying the family's desire was to bring up their children as a credit to their country both from the English and French point of view."

Financial affairs of the Quints of 1941 will be handled, under the Ontario courts under the bill, which was given first reading.

Premier Drew, dealing with Prime Minister Mackenzie King's promise to remove restrictions on the movement of Mooney during restrictions on supply of beer to the provinces, Mr. King had told the House of Canadian patriotism on the part of Ontario people that they were willing to do their part to co-operate with the Dominion. Inspection Made in Ottawa

Premier Drew said Prime Minister King's main argument had been "inspection made in Ottawa" and that the government of Ontario to cooperate with the Dominion Government in this matter. That is an imputation too often and too readily made by the Prime Minister of Canada."

He said, however, the most "offensive feature of Mr. King's statement is the implication that the government is not actuated by the same patriotic motives which is the Dominion Government in questions of this kind."

No one knows better than Mr. King he said, that the people of Ontario had fully demonstrated their patriotism in this war. Mr. King's statement about co-operation with the Dominion was, in fact, which spoke for themselves.

Mr. Drew then reviewed his efforts to arrange a Dominion-Provincial conference on this rule. They usually die singly and for from the asterisk. Sometimes they may even seek relief in the rivers and creeks and lakes in the vicinity of their death.

Climatic conditions in Africa and southern Asia cause the carcass to decay rapidly. The native, cow-herding Masai, antelope, carrion eating hyenas and insects make quick work of the flesh; rodents frequently complete the task. The vast deposit in the jungle would quickly disappear. But the bones, stripped clean of the flesh they are soon scattered far and wide. Within a year or two the remaining parts, such as the skull and jaw bones, are by comparison insignificant, unobserved amongst the undergrowth and other vegetation.

Many ivory hunters have dreamt of finding this place with its untold wealth of ivory.

Needless to say the belief is a myth. There is no great graveyard of elephants. Collectors for the American Museum of Natural History report that the bones of individuals of any kind are rarely found in Africa. The same is true in most other regions.

There are several reasons for this. Wild animals commonly feel death approaching. Elephants are no exception to this rule. They usually die singly and for from the asterisk. Sometimes they may even seek relief in the rivers and creeks and lakes in the vicinity of their death.

Federal Action Impossible

Mr. Drew said that the Dominion Government could not take action without consultation with the provinces and said "in Canada, with its federal system, it is impossible to put into effect many of the things which should be enacted in the interests of all."

He said Mr. King had taken occasion to refer to the Ontario Legislature, beer and wine outlets since saying that many resolutions and petitions had been received from Ontario citizens asking for restrictions. These signs, he said, represented the views of "a man and the Prime Minister of Canada that they will remain in force until they are removed by the Dominion restrictions".

"The Province of Ontario has accepted its full share in the administration of this war and as leader of the government of Ontario I must express my most vigorous condemnation of the statement made today by the Prime Minister of Canada that either the government of Ontario or the people of Ontario are not fully conscious of the patriotic duty at this grave hour in the life of Canada."

Hepburn Heard

Mr. Hepburn, speaking for the Liberals, said the party's reference in response to be had with Dominion authorities regarding liquor and beer restrictions was not a criticism of the government of Ontario.

He said the Dominion had broken its promise to the people by failing to remove restrictions on alcoholic beverages and declared: "You can't co-operate with a government that we as Liberals don't like."

Angus Mac Innis, most incompetent, vacillating, hypocritical government we have had."

Mr. Gordon said he rose to go on record that the Liquor Control Board of Ontario had at all times co-operated with the Dominion. He read from a letter that Hon. Hugh Gordon, former Liquor Commissioner, on the beer policy of the Dominion, sent to the Commission of a bill to make Oliva Mooney Dionne, surviving quintuplet of the quintuplet daughters in place of the three-man board of trustees at present in charge since a year after their birth, May 28, 1934, at Callander, Ont.

ELEPHANT GRAVEYARDS

It is often said that the remains of elephants that die a natural death are never found in the forests, jungles and on the open countries of Africa and Asia account for this fact by saying that all wild animals go off to a certain place to die.

This supposed elephant graveyard is known as the Valley of Ivory.

Many ivory hunters have dreamt of finding this place with its untold wealth of ivory.

WEDDINGS

FOSTER—REID

A wedding of general interest took place in Carleton-Sherbourne United Church, Toronto, on Saturday, June 22nd, when Muriel Reid, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Reid, Toronto, and formerly of Belleville, became the bride of Gerald Foster, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Foster, Bloomfield. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Hazlett. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was attended by Mrs. Earl Foster, who wore a navy blue crepe dress with white accessories and a corsage of sweet peas, and by Miss Betty Reid, sister of the bride, who was gowned in pink crepe with white accessories and a corsage of pink sweet peas. The bridal party and guests numbered fifty. The latter part of the ceremony at the King Edward Hotel.

MAKE-UP BASES POPULAR

Now that make-up bases have become more popular than ever, dressing table along with her powder, and lipstick and rouge, Mrs. Ed. Hall, wife of Belleville's popular and glamorous ex-army pilot, has started a new line in cosmetics, mildly at first, but she is confident she is ready to test different make-up bases. Powder alone will tend to be a thing of the past, she says, and other aids should stick to the popular wet cake foundations, which have been responsible for the dry skin so prevalent in Canada, there being no moisture base used especially to benefit and protect as well as to beautify the cuticle. As yet Mrs. Hall is bothered with the occasional blemish, try a liquid foundation. This gives a somewhat heavier finish and is fine for use on those days when with the new nose necklaces.

TO KEEP KITCHEN DRAWERS CLEAN

Nothing is more annoying to Mrs. Tidy Housewife than kitchen drawers which are dirty and dull-looking. To keep them clean and bright, after painting the inside with a good, hard-drying white enamel, glue a bright square of oilcloth on the bottom of the drawer. This can be easily washed with soapy suds and save time lost in changing papers.

Scene from Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro" presented before the Belleville branch of the Community Concert Association on Tuesday evening by the Nine O'Clock Opera Company.

'Figaro' in English and Modern Dress Reveals Vitality of Mozart Opera, Delights Large Belleville Audience

Dress to piano accompaniment and with a narrator keeping the audience in stitches, Mozart in modern dress was brought again on Tuesday night when the Nine O'clock Opera Company came to a large audience in the Collegiate Auditorium its jury from Mozart's immortal "Marriage of Figaro".

The cast, brought to Belleville by the Community Concert Association, is an all-American troupe on tour this season with its production of "Marriage of Figaro" and Handel's "Merry Wives of Windsor". This group of young, gifted singers, which had a theme audiences from coast to coast, did not fail in its first Belleville appearance.

Produced in English, one can laugh at the story of "Figaro" at the same time that they enjoy the music. The story came across the footlights in such a way that the audience chuckled with delight. In fact, the performance was more Mozart about. The opera, given in two acts instead of the original four, with each excellent diction, with a single piano assisted by a few light pieces of furniture for sets, curtains for scenery, an unfailing and humorous tant narrator to set the tone and keep the audience informed of what is taking place, made it possible for one to understand it without difficulty. Stripped of operatic trappings, Mozart's sight and sound still remain the same. The recitatives were delivered in clearly enunciated English and more can a demand desire than a bulging pocket-book, a streamlined automobile and a handsome wife.

When he comes back home, even the Maples can't look like a beautiful garden to the boy who has been trekking across Flanders fields and the tropical jungles; and a friendly hole-in-the-wall on Main Street will seem more glamorous to the boy home from Italy, than Piccadilly Circus.

An old-fashioned man is one to whom apple-pie is one of life's essentials and mother is synonymous with love, just as snow is with Christmas, or turkey is with Thanksgiving.

The Marry-Go-Round

In my mail, today, I find the following verses from that popular bard, Berton Braley, whose "IN-FLATIONARY MARY" is known from coast to coast, as the Big Moment Message:

Inflationary Mary

Gives her airy fancies play

And gets a lot of raiment

By the Way Payment way.

She gathers slathers

Of whatever else she can

A lot of utter riment

On the Easy Payment Plan.

Inflationary Mary

Spends her income—and beyond

(Well, for the Duke's behavior!)

Are YOU saving?

— Bought a bond!)

Thanks, Mr. Berton Braley.

It is the easiest thing in the world for a girl to turn a man's head — in another girl's direction. The trick is to keep eyes front.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

Why We Need So Much Water Daily.

For years we have been advised by health authorities to drink plenty of water. In fact the secret of "water each one of us needs her" prescription, however, everybody needs water in order to live.

All the chemical or other processes of the body require water. In fact cannot do without water. If the amount of water is curtailed, yes lets with the kind of work we do. Thus the average person at light work requires 7 to 8 glasses of water per day and more in the area of heavy work.

Water is necessary to cool the body; bathe the skin, flush the kidneys, flush the bowels and all the internal of the body and to provide the medium in which the chemical reactions of the body take place.

It is by means of water (in the blood) that nourishment — oxygen and food—is carried to all the tissues of the body. Likewise water will keep life in the body for many days after food is not available. It is by the water, drawn from the side walls of the large intestine and squeezed from the waste lying in the large intestine, that enables the large intestine to push the wastes of the food downward and out of the body.

If the average individual at light work requires 6 to 8 glasses per day and more in summer months, it is known that the average individual at heavy work or drink these six or eight glasses daily, why does he still keep well?

The average person keeps well despite not drinking the water needed because he gets this amount of water in tea, coffee, milk, soft drinks, beer and wine and (very) from) green vegetables and fruit. Even an over fat or cool water and even a dry soda biscuit may contain 7 to 10 per cent water.

Generally speaking, most of us would enjoy better health by drinking two pints or three glasses of water daily aside from the water in beverages, soups, vegetables and fruits.

There is, however, as pointed out before, one type of individual who would do well to: his heart and blood pressure by avoiding water or eating drinking. It is small quantities when thirsty.

This individual is the fat, middle-aged woman. The fat in overweight acts like a sponge in holding water. For every 100 pounds of fat there are three pounds of water. Therefore overweight needs no water because he is already water-logged.

The March meeting of the College Hill Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. R. Mills. Mrs. R. Bowerman presided. Mrs. Mackenzie gave a very interesting paper on "Health" and Mrs. Mills also led a discussion on the same subject. Readings were given by Mrs. Gay and Mrs. C. Mills. Mrs. Lois Mills played a piano solo. The roll call was a quilt donated by Mrs. R. Finkle was won by Mrs. H. Gay. Mrs. Gay received the quilt having been donated by the junior girls' group. The junior girls gave a demonstration of the sewing done at their meetings, which, of course, is under the leader. At the close of the meeting the hostess served refreshments.

HOW TO REMOVE STAINS

Don't use a dishcloth to wash your hands! Use a handkerchief! Don't despair! Almost any stain is removable. Here's how: Fruit stains: Pour boiling water through the cloth. Tea stains, sprinkle salt over stain, moisten with lemon juice, then expose to strong sunlight. Tea stains can be removed by sponging immediately with warm water. If the stain is a bad one, moisten with water, sprinkle enough borax over to cover, fold in thick pads and let stand for eight to ten minutes, then rinse in hot water. The best way to remove scorched spots is plain soap and water. Wash in the usual way, thoroughly in warm water and soapy-rich suds and then rinse in clear water. Paint and varnish stains are removed by applying with turpentine, benzine or gasoline. Keep away from the stain. Work out from the edges, stretch fabric over a bowl and pour boiling water through.

HOW TO LIGHTEN DARK ROOMS

Rooms which are bright and cheery-looking gladden any woman's heart. Here's a suggestion: If the room which a girl student enters Johnny's bedroom or that upstairs sewing room, or your own guest room, one or two pieces the colour of the walls. Cheer yellow or cream-coloured curtains, neatly washed to gentle, fine-fabric note, will give the illusion of sunshine. Very light window shades will add to the effect. Don't use dark curtains or shades if you can help it; be sure they hang at the outside of the window frame so that as much sunlight as possible only shine into the room.

Good Grooming Requires Faithful Beauty Routine

Jean Arthur is both smart and beautiful

By HELEN FOLLETT

IT'S ALL RIGHT to talk about beauty that comes from within, but that skin deep stuff is important, too. Get a woman slack up on the daily routine of keeping her appearance up-to-the-minute, and before you know it, she's pretty well done for. If she doesn't care how she looks she doesn't care much about anything; life has lost zest and flavor. To lay around in a frock that is in a state of disrepair, when the time in the check book would mostly a purchase or two, by the best stores, is to give up the ghost before a slouch. The stringy coiffure is a sure sign of self respect, makes the lady in the looking glass as mad as all get out; that's not playing fair with her. When the fingernail polish goes patchy, hands are untidy.

Keep Well Groomed

Keeping well groomed, attending to the good looks chores are obligations that we owe our fellow creatures, especially the members of the family circle and those we see every day. No doubt Daddy loves Mama when she's clad in a mole skin coat, but she is a lot nicer to the eye, and romance does not thrive upon unattractive appearance.

When a woman sits before her mirror at bedtime, creams her complexion her fingernails she should have a sense of inspiration. The house is quiet, children asleep, birds come out of her nervous, she is content.

A Beauty Schedule

Plan a beauty schedule and stick to it. Don't postpone the shampoo or the manicure because of dark days and bob tails show up in your hair, his yourself to the shop where you'll get the permishent wave.

Above all other needs is that of going every six months to the dentist's office for examination and repair work on your teeth. Seven pairs and nature in the long run. All this will make you feel right-eous and look lovely.

Ice, Snow, Biting Winds are Winter Companions of Canada's Merchant Marine

Before the war, Joe Smith, 28, drove an oil truck in Saskatoon, Sask., but now he is a petty officer (gunlayer in the R.C.N.V.R. Pictured here aboard a merchantman, Petty Officer Smith has seen duty many times at sea, including the battle of Crete.

The breath of the sea frons as it struck the deck of this Canadian merchant ship, and it is not a pleasant job to get rid of the ice that encrusts everything exposed on deck. But the ice must be removed at once or all rigging can be put into action only at great delay in case of an emergency.

It isn't that Mrs. Roosevelt's South Sea nose-rubbing event has affected the Canadian Merchant Marine. These men on an ice-covered merchantman at sea exchange lights for, on a wind-swept deck, it is out of the question to keep a match going.

To the average civilian, there's something wrong here. The lad, wearing only light swimming trunks, smiles as he sits on a cake of ice. But to those sturdy men of the Canadian Merchant Marine, this is only one of the many methods they use to prepare themselves for wintry weather on turbulent waters.

Campaign Speeches Tabulated.

The greater portion of the assembly this week was devoted to the presentation of the platforms of the various members of our school, who are running for offices on the current Students' Council elections. Some very original points were detailed down and the choice of candidates should prove to be a difficult and thought-provoking undertaking. Speeches to be tabulated.

No sooner had Mr. Turner announced that the school was to be honoured by a number of the symphonies than a hearty drum introduction sounded from the wings and in trooped this organization in colorful costumes to the tune of a well-known martial air. After an attempt to keep in the middle of a line of the surprised applause of the listeners, those musicians (?) took up the lively air of "Mademoiselle from Armentieres" and swung through several verses with a rousing finale by cymbalizing and drumming from the tambourine corps. The trombone chorus was especially beautiful and showed a promising sound in an forthcoming fashion for the Victory Pit-Dance Combo.

Mr. George Manjaris stole forth from the ranks of the politicians, to announce, with the aid of a few preliminary drum shots services, that a Tea Dance would be held in aid of the Greek War Relief on Wednesday, March 15. Never was a better cause presented in the school and a record crowd should be in attendance.

SPORTS

Flash!!! B. C. I. Senior Basketball Team captures Bay of Quinte O.S.S.E.A. championship.

Yes, its true. After losing by one point to the Albert floor on Monday night, then coming from behind to win Tuesday night on their home floor on Wednesday, our team came through like the champions they are, defeating Albert by the largest score of the series to win the title. The entire series was very close all through the first half, with both teams playing cautious basketball. It was in this part of the game that Stew Wood, the team's floor guard, kept B. C. I. in the fight by scoring ten points when they were trailing by six on set shots. Then in the second half, cheered on by over two hundred of the student body, the "crimson tide" started to click and rounding into shape over the symphonies (that's a hasty drum introduction) scored from the wings and in trooped this organization in colorful costumes to the tune of a well-known martial air. The BLITZ BLITZERS

A hard day's work is just a "push over" when Meat Pie with H.P. Sauce is "polished off for dinner. Whether it's bacon and eggs, cold meat, fish, cheese or stew, a little H.P. Sauce does the trick. Your whole family will bring out all the flavours. Even the remains of Sunday's roast will "go over big" with the family when served with H.P. Sauce.

Pat Thurston, Vice-President.

"I am uncertain how much authority the vice-president has but if I can assist in it, do my level best to cooperate with the council and produce the finest goal for all greatest number."

Cleone Masters, Secretary.

"Don't be a timid soul looking to your locker directions. Vote the way you wish. I would like to see the school "Elevated" reminded more about spirit in school activities and a public speaking and debating club. My motto is "Hard work for the progress of this undertaking."

Mary Marsh, President.

"There must be many changes in the constitution, which I hope to make a foundation. The following are the most important amendents: (1) No student may be president for more than one term. (2) A Bulletin shall be put out every two weeks stating the progress and current ideas of the council. (3) Only girls and tenth grades shall have an equal number of votes in student elections. (4) Organize and set up a bureau, which will locate lost and lodging for country students."

The girls of 12D alias Special Commercial decided to break the monotony of their every day life by having a sleigh-ride, acting as hostesses to a number of 12'S personnel. Arriving back at St. Andrew's Church Club Rooms with straight, stringy hair (caused, incidentally by being upside down in a snowbank) the party settled down to begin the dancing by announcing "Ladies Tag."—"These shy men, you know!!!)

Mr. and Mrs. Archibald acted as chaperones and Miss Marion dropped in to add more joy to the jamboree.

All in all the party was a great success. During the evening refreshments served by Marion "Shindig" Lashbrook, who has left our happy surroundings to occupy a position in Dr. Locke's office—Good-bye and good luck, Shindie!

Obituary

MRS. EDWARD REYNOLDS

(Mazie.)

(Contributed.)

The whole community was shocked on Friday, March 10, to learn of the sudden death of Mrs. Edward Reynolds, who passed away at her home from a heart attack.

The late Mrs. Reynolds, whose maiden name was Emma Jane Glover, was in her 71st year. She was born in Marysburgh, the daughter of the late Alexander Glover and Ann Jane Fargey. She was married in 1892 to Edward Reynolds of the Township of Hallowell, who predeceased her fifteen years ago. To them was born one son, Francis, who died when five years old.

For about ten years after her marriage she lived with her husband on a farm in the White Lake district and in Picton and Strathroy in Middlesex County. In April, 1926, she returned to this vicinity where she since resided.

Surviving her are four brothers: Phillip M., of Belleville; George H., and William C. of Meaford; Orrington A. Glover, John A. Glover of Hastings, and one sister, Mrs. Harry F. Lyons, of Meaford. Two brothers and two sisters died in infancy, a brother Sgt., Winfred A. Glover was killed in action during World War I, and a sister, Mrs. George D. Moorman passed away in Belleville in 1939.

The deceased was of a quiet, retiring disposition and a faithful member of the Methodist, now United Church.

The funeral which was largely attended, was held on Monday, March 13, from the residence of her sister, Mrs. Harry Lyons, thence to Hanson's United Church. The services were in charge of Rev. W. W. Fallsway, of Queensboro and Rev. Alfred Poulter, of Meaford. Mrs. Lyons was a very comforting message, basing his discourse on Matthew 24:46. The hymns sung were her special favorite, "What a Friend we have in Jesus", and "Abide With Me." The choir sang "Does Jesus Care?"

The pallbearers were George M. Love and A. Kincaid, two schoolmates of Mrs. Reynolds' days and William, Robert and Percy Downey and Ernest Holland, four nephews of Walter Glover, nephew of the deceased.

Many beautiful floral tributes bore silent testimony to the esteem in which the deceased was held.

Federation Holds Annual Banquet

Picton, March 14 — More than two hundred attended the first annual banquet of Prince Edward Federation of Agriculture banquet in the Picton Town Hall here, R. J. Scott, president of the United Farmers' Co-operative was guest speaker. Following the banquet, Dr. O. D. Kennedy, M.P.P. president, was chairman. Carson Scott, Consecon, sang solos and Miss Helen Yarwood sang. The speaker was introduced by Harold Wright. Mrs. Warden Earl Ondercork extended a welcome on behalf of the county Steneg Organization.

The Federation of Agriculture is a non-political organization the farmer has ever had, it seeks to serve agriculture without reguard to the right or left. It enables farm people to face frustration and despair with organized confidence. Individually farmers will get no where, organization means one voice for agriculture, said Mr. Scott.

Floor prices are not as simple as they sound, Mr. Scott warned in he pointed out possible features of such a plan. He stated that the United Farmers' Co-operative has 105 affiliations in Ontario doing business through a central office and business last year totalled $3,000,000. They explained the work done and said the movement was now a twenty old.

Farmers Must be Distributed.

The political lessons of all countries must be fairly distributed to bring about world peace that will endure. We can do this. We have often sacrificed for war, Harold Wright asserted, we must sacrifice for peace for once. If we tried it, it might work, he stated.

Bonarlaw

Bonarlaw, March 14 — There was a splendid turnout at the meeting of St. Mark's Young People's Association in the Parish Hall on Thursday last, week when they had as their guests the officers and members of the Springbrook Young People's Society.

After the opening exercises, president Alden Wilson welcomed the Springbrook Y.P.S. and turned the meeting over to the president of the visiting Y.P.S., Mrs. Geo. Williams who thanked the St. Mark's Association for their invitation and proceeded with the program which consisted of a short worship period, music and readings and contests which were enjoyed by everyone present. Solos were rendered by Mrs. C. Thompson followed by a reading by Rev. R. S. Haldon. Rev. Holden then contributed a beautiful vocal solo. Reading by Mrs. Green-ville Mellekjohn and singing concluded the worship period.

The topic of the evening "Religious Festivals" prepared by Mrs. Alden Wilson was read by Mrs. R. S. Holden. A piano solo "The Bells of St. Marys" was given by Mrs. Johnston and a reading entitled "Christmas" by Mrs. Mellekjohn.

The recreation period in charge of Marjorie Prest consisted of contests and group games in which about forty of those present participated. A delicious lunch was then served by Rev. A. B. Caldwell of Marmora and while lunch was being prepared community singing was enjoyed with A. Thomson at the National Anthem closed a very enjoyable evening.

FORMER FOXHOUND OF ROYAL NAVY NOW WITH R.C.N.

H.M.C.S. Qu'Appelle as Foxhound Travelled 240,000 Miles During War

PRESENT DUTY

Ottawa, March 14 — (CP) — H.M.C.S. Qu'Appelle, formerly H.M.S. Pothound of the Royal Navy, has been refitted and converted for anti-submarine duty with the navies of the Royal Canadian Navy and in the North Atlantic, Mary Minister Macdonald announced today.

In Pothound, she was one of the ships which escorted the first contingent of Canadian troops to Great Britain. She will be commanded by Cmdr. D. C. Wallace, of Halifax.

Lieut. Macdonald said the transfer of six vessels of the river class from the Royal Navy to the R.C.N. last July. They are H.M.C.S. Kootenay, Ottawa, Gatineau, Saskatchewan, Chaudiere and Qu'Appelle, Qu-Appelle being the latest to be commissioned).

As Foxhound, H.M.C.S. Qu-Appelle has steamed 240,000 miles since she was launched, and claims also a record unequalled by any other ship of the Allied navies or merchant fleets now afloat.

Helped to Sink U-boat

She was with the British Home Fleet when war broke out, and was in at one of the first U-boats' kills when she and her sister ship H.M.S. Fredrabe, sank U-36 near the Orkneys.

Later she escorted the Queen Elizabeth, world's largest ship, on her wartime maiden voiage to New York.

In the second battle of Narvik Fjord, Pothound steamed in with the battleship Warspite and in the action that followed blew up a German destroyer by gunfire. Next month she was among the escorts for the British forces which occupied Iceland.

Steaming into the Mediterranean, Foxhound then became part of the now-famous "H" force when the task was to disable the French fleet at Oran. She was with the aircraft carrier Ark Royal when seven aircraft bombed Cagliari in Sardinia.

Many convoys were among her jobs and early in 1941, with battleships and cruisers of the Mediterranean fleet she bombarded Genoa.

CURTIN REFUSES MEMBER'S REQUEST

Canberra, March 15 — (CP) — Prime Minister John Curtin today refused a parliament member's request to ask the United States government to reduce the pay of American forces in Australia to the Australian soldiers' level.

"It is not a matter which properly falls within the Australian government's jurisdiction," he said. "I do not think the U. S. government would welcome such a recommendation."

Ontario Budget Is Expected To Be Presented Before Weekend

Toronto, March 14 (CP) — Debate on the Throne Speech outlining the program of Premier Drew's Progressive Conservative Government, winds up in the Ontario Legislature today with prospects that Provincial Treasurer I. M. Frost will present his budget before the end of the week.

Dana H. Porter (PC-Toronto Dovercourt) will end the debate which has occupied the House since it was resumed February 22. Premier Drew is rife whether H. B. Jolliffe's C.C.F. opposition will offer an amendment and bring the House's first test between the closely-allied party groups.

With the debate almost at an end there seemed little doubt that the provincial budget would be brought down. A government spokesman predicted that it would be presented before the House takes its week-end adjournment.

Drew Speaks Tuesday

No debate speakers were heard in the Legislature yesterday, but Premier Drew made a brief statement of his government for allowing suspension of the Active Service Elections Act, 1942, for the Halliburd-Northcliffe by-election, March 30.

A committee of the Legislature advanced to third reading, after an amendment, the government's bill to prevent publication of discriminatory matter relating to race or creed. It also gave first reading to a bill making changes and additions as to their present levels.

Second reading was given to a bill to provide for the Ontario Municipal Board, who opposed the discrimination bill on second reading, to hear appeals from boards against it. He called for elimination of a section dealing with "discriminatory matter which he believed the provincial government had no control.

Amendment in Bill

The government added an amending section to the bill, providing that the measure would not interfere with free expression of opinion on any subject by means of writing, and would not confer power to censor books, periodicals or letters. Mr. Murphy dissenting on a vote which followed. Mr. Jolliffe's whole reported the bill as amended for third reading.

Before the orders of the day, Premier Drew called attention to a letter in a Toronto newspaper (Saturday Liberal Leader Harry C. Nixon) as saying Drew government had shown "inconsistency" in sanctioning suspension of the Active Service Election Act for the Halliburd-Northcliffe by-election, on request of government member-elect W. W. Walsh.

Drew Says Not Inconsistent

The Premier said he was surprised Mr. Nixon had brought the matter up, although he himself considered the act as much as ever.

Taking the overseas vote in a by-election had never been considered because of the cost and other factors. He did not see what other right soldiers in Canada, but outside of the riding concerned — had in regard to the by-election.

He added he had taken the mat-

Captain George Laughlin Tells English Boys' Club Of Canadian Education

The following article appeared in the Oxford Chronicle, Tuesday, 25 January, 1944, under the heading "Canadian Impressions" and was written by Milton Advertiser publication and was founded in 1885.

An interesting article appeared after Captain George Laughlin, R.C.A., and formerly of "The Lads' Club" of Christ Church, Oxford, had addressed members of "The Lads' Club of Christ Church, Captain Laughlin, whose parents live at 164 Church Street, was educated at Christ Church Cathedral Choir Institute prior to the war and enlisted with the 34th Battery, R.C.A., as a Lieutenant. He was promoted to the rank of Captain while in England.

The report of Captain Laughlin's talk on Canadian Education, read as follows:

On Saturday evening, the 29th January, members of the Lads Club were privileged (and privileged is the right word) to receive a visit from Capt. Laughlin of H.M. Canadian Forces.

Introducing Capt. Laughlin, the hon. secretary of the club said that the lads in the club paid attention to anything they might hear about Canada as it was his opinion that great opportunities would be offered by that country after the war to those who were skilled at their jobs, and industrious craftsmen, to assist in the industrial development of Canada. Last say last night think it is quite right that we should have one to Canada, the secretary mentioned that on Wednesday afternoon they had received a visit from an old member of the club, who had in the course of his duties in the forces been to Africa, and had visited Gibraltar, Sicily, Italy, Scotland, Northern Ireland, and many other places. He was quite sure that if anyone had suggested to the lads three or four years ago that he would have travelled so far by 1944 he would not have believed it.

Capt. Laughlin is in civilian life principal of Bloomfield Collegiate, a large co-educational high school in Canada, and addressing the meeting primarily he talk to the lads about permanently in the country, the boys in his own words (meaning the lads of the bunch that come to him each fall, with their home paper and ask if they have got the boy that he suggested that he should go to) in Canada, and the school life in Canada, and just tell them about the country a little bit afterwards.

He explained the difference between Canadian public schools and our variety, the difference being that they (the boys) have to go to them, if not somebody comes along next day and takes up the job and says "you go you off." Over here you can't go to a public school because you have to only if your parents can afford it.

Public school education starts at five years of age and goes on until you are fifteen, when you go to the collegiate institutes or high school but different names for the same thing, corresponding largely to British secondary schools. Education in the public schools is compulsory till the age of 16, most say until 18 when they have finished their secondary.

Capt. Laughlin spoke of the curriculum of young people working in their vocations in the public schools, and said that their outlook on this sort of thing was entirely opposite to ours. They look upon everything, and if anyone could work with their hands they look down upon if they didn't. Hence practically every kind of work is considered honourable. Consequently MY pot a job during vacation. All sorts of jobs performed, even down to the cleaning of cars did practically every kind of job under the sun.

Dealing with the subjects with which he was connected there were about 900 boys and 800 girls. They had two days a week manual training, and every student could do physical fitness and military training as part of education. He was impressed and enthusiasm for the job with which he was connected after Captain George Laughlin, R.C.A., had left. He had installed a system whereby when each new lad came to the school he was given a physical test, measured his biceps, thigh and calf muscles, and his weight. A 10-tier card index system with all these records at the end of term another measurements were taken again, and over a period of four or five years he could see the progress of the students' physical development was remarkable.

"Woah! I hope the fellow that's doing my job don't do that to me," was the comment of Captain Laughlin when he saw the "mysteries of science and its origin" were explained to him. He was quite satisfied once who were also told of the popularity of basket ball and ice hockey.

Speaking of the country generally Capt. Laughlin said there were the prospects for skilled men, especially those who may life in Canada. People were just expected to come over and have new jobs and find that they'd get on. Industry in Canada included fishing (halibut in particular), lumbering and especially electrical engineering. Owing to the great water power, electricity could be produced cheaply and to the last question he could look a degree in electrical engineering Canada could offer a marvellous opportunity. Over 3 million acres of wheat so there was still plenty of room for expansion.

The marvellous work on the St. Lawrence waterway was mentioned and, which when completed will allow large ocean going vessels to sail from the Atlantic into Canada to load the grain and other produce from the prairies. Capt. Laughlin said it. Talking of the St. Lawrence, he pointed out that it was interesting to remember that this river saw one of the first homesteads on the North American continent about as much to-day. He told the lads of the exploit of Jacques Cartier, who sailed his ships up the river, and during the night he and his men rowed up to the Indian settlers heights to capture the Plains of Abraham, and that at Quebec, Montcalm woke up in the morning to find the English fleet in the river, and the battle was on.

HOCKEY SERIES BETWEEN B.C.I. ST. MIKES EVEN

Green - Sweetwood Squad Defeats Students 4-3 in Second Game

ALWAYS ON TOP

It's all even in the Bay of Quinte hockey schedule between C.O.S.S.A.A. hockey playdowns between St. Michael's Academy and Belleville Collegiate Institute at one game each having the students into a third and final to decide the district title champion for the year title. B.C.I. won the first game, but St. Mike's got even in the series by the wire-to-wire win the second when Coach Jack Sweet's "green and white" cleaned both the second game of a two-game total and the 1443. A crowd of The third and deciding hockey series will be played this afternoon.

Jerry Sweetwood and Derrick Meagher's pass to give the Irish the winning start in the first game and then Doug Green set one up for Meagher to score the winner as the St. Michael's kids took a commanding lead. However, Bill Hobday and Al Mills rallied in the record in with Wood's blue line pass to bring the Collegiate Institute students at the middle session ended 3-1 for St. Mike's.

Each Team Scores Twice.

The bulk of the scoring was registered in the last stanza when each team scored a pair. Pinsent broke the ice then Doug Green set one up for Meagher to score the winner. Forward Wood ripping home Coleman's pass to make the score 3-2 for St. Mikes. Then Jerry Mosher sank what proved to be the winning blow when Green and Billie Holway rammed in a scramble and pick-up to bring the count 4-3 for the Irish. Coach Harold Mott yanked goalie Mackey Hallinan in the dying minutes in the last two minutes of play and despite the fact the students carried the territorial play goals "rub" down. The final whistle found the Irish net.

Jerry Mosher with two goals paced the Irish while Billie Holway got two of the Collegiate Institute counters. Dave Green Coleman were credited with two timely assists each.

The lineups:

Belleville Collegiate Institute: Goal, Hallinan; defence, Philp and Holway; centre, Coleman; wings, Bishop and Lyall; subs, Wood, Strachan and McCarthy.

St. Michael's Academy: Goal, Sopinka; defence, Kelleher and Fitzpatrick; centre, Mosher; wings, R. Meagher and McNally; subs, A. Meagher and Green.

Referee: Glen Robertson of Belleville.

Summary:

1st period.

1.. St. Mikes, Mosher (R. Meagher) 14:51

Penalties—Holway and Kelleher, 2nd period.

2.. St. Mikes, R. Meagher (Green) 10:31

2..Collegiate, Holway (Wood) 13:45

MAULIN' MANUEL ORTIZ DEFEATS ERNESTO AGUILAR

Mexican Retains Bantamweight Title in Fierce and Colorful Bout

10,500 FANS ON HAND

Los Angeles, March 15 — (AP) — Manuel Ortiz, 25, of Mexico, bantamweight champion of the world, successfully defended his title last night, repulsed the vigorous challenge of Ernesto Hernandez Aguilar, a clever and resourceful southpaw, who made things interesting for the Mexican Pantaleon in the 15-round contest.

Twelve Aguilar jabbed Maulin' Manuel in a corner of the ring and kept him there for a few minutes in the first of the seventh round and about half of the 144lb. A crowd of 10,500, sending the partisan title champion was to be crowned, was treated to a fierce, hard-fought session, and the two-to-one verdict in favor of Ortiz was not popular with the spectators.

In close quarters Ortiz got in the better punches, but he was not to be tagged Aguilar several times with rapier rights to the head. Even in the seventh, Aguilar went to the canvas from a stinging right, but he bounced right back.

The action was slow in several sessions, but Aguilar broke from an occasional exchange, it was faint and clinch, with both damaging punches evident. At the finish Ortiz' nose was bleeding slightly and Aguilar had a minor cut.

Referee Charley Randolph voted Ortiz winner by 8 rounds to 7, while Van and Reggie Gilmore voted for Ortiz.

Ortiz came in right at the bantamweight limit, 118 pounds, and Aguilar scaled 116½.

Chicago, March 15 — (AP) — Dick (Dutch) Meyer, Texas Christian football coach who is supervising the civilian players to go with four holdovers, says he'll use only a dozen plays against the All Stars in Chicago Aug. 2.

"We do not plan to use more than that in the limited time we work at T.C.U. Nov. 1," Meyer said. "Last year we started with only having our team wrecked with mid-season cured us of that."

Today's Guest Star,

Bill Stern, radio announcer, Illinois (Ill.) Courier: "For obvious reasons Bernard Darwin Young has been tagged 'Mr. Five by five', but since his record-breaking performance at the Illinois-Purdue-Notre Dame meet, we suggest that the new nickname be known as 'Mr. Five by .706 1".

Sheets and Shells.

Bill Stern, who announces fights at Madison Square Garden, also does ring announcing in New Jersey and hires an announcer for his shows. . . . Reports reaching Chicago about all-star Army football eleven will fly to Moscow to play Russian Army team.

Coach Curley Lambeau of the Green Bay Packers has received 20 applications for the like coaching job left vacant by Red Smith, Chicago Bear. It likely will take all 20 to fill the space usually filled by Smith.

Twelve Strikes is Out.

Bowler Marge Worth of Wyoming, Pa., is a lucky lady. Such a dozen strikes in one game but failed to get a perfect score. . . . On her last attempt hit Marge fouled and when she knocked 'em down again the score stood as a spare . . . After two more strikes she had an eight pin left but last ball and finished with a 268 score.

Toronto, March 15 — (CP)—Red Dutton's advice to Lorne Carr to relieve the tension of a tough hockey race with a few beers would be good for more to most players except for one thing: Dutton doesn't pay their salaries; it's the club manager who slaps on the fines for breaking training.

The idea has possibilities however. Alan (Brantford Expositor) Rose has an idea: "Maybe we'll see the day when instead of a waiter boy we'll have a beverage room waiter at the bench handing out foaming glasses to the tilting players." Alan's vision includes this possible newspaper headline: "In his cups he wins the cup."

Dutton's suggestion that Carr bolts a few may make with the Leafs Lorne's scoring slump was due to over-training. Maybe the Dominion Government is pulling for Carr in the scoring race. Anyway, they're not pulling the restrictions right after Dutton's advice was disclosed publicly.

Another Revelation:

Bill Beveridge looked back over 20 years of professional hockey goaling and told Bill (Ottawa Journal) Westwick he doesn't agree with those who figure a goalkeeper is 75 per cent of any hockey team. "I figure a goalie is just about as good as his team is in front of him," said Bill. "If they're not playing well, their nervousness gets us lethargic, (that's a $3 word for a goalie) and we get tired and yourself gripped by the same feeling in the nets. Sometimes you solve yourself or you try to overdo your assignment to make a few fatalls up front. That's the way you get into trouble."

Incidentally:

Clay Puett, inventor of the slashing glasses used on many Canadian and United States race tracks, has designed a ranch near Kamloops B. C., and is residing there. . . . The Chicago-Montreal hockey series has possibilities. Dink Carroll of the Montreal Gazette says the Hawks have been numbered among the Habitants for the last two years without appearance. The Canadiens-Hawks battle in Chicago March 2 may make the Hawks the first of Leafs pushed out my No. 1 at the Forum . . . Syd Thomas, a Hamilton . . . will write this column hereafter. BOSTON BRUINS CAN STILL CATCH CHICAGO HAWKS

Cowley and His Mates Plaster 6-4 Defeat on Thompson's Club

HAWKS NEED POINT

Fourth-place Stanley Cup playoff berth is still unsettled. The Chicago Black Hawks' point total is 43 by a 6-4 win over Chicago and with two games left to play are still catch the Hawks before the National Hockey League season closes next Sunday.

In the individual scoring race, Doug Bentley added two assists to boost his total points to 76, a new league record, and Gus Bodnar of the Chicago scored one goal and one assist to total 30 points.

Cully Dahlstrom scored two of the Chicago goals and Bill Mosienko added the other. Cowley, Al Richards, Bob Callahan, Pat Egan, Bill Cowley, Bep Guidolin and Jack Hamilton were the Bruins' marksmen.

The Black Hawks need only one point to clinch the play-off spot and for the greater part of the 3rd period it seemed as though the game would end in a deadlock, but since his receiving the pass when he scored after 14 minutes in the final frame.

The Elizabeth C. Dufresne trophy, awarded annually to the player voted by Boston sportswriters as most valuable to the Bruins, was presented before the game to Cowley.

GAS RATION IN U.S. CUT

Washington, March 15. (AP) — The basic family car gasoline ration was cut to two gallons a week for the whole United States Tuesday when the office of Price Administration reduced the "A" card ration from five gallons a week to the midwest and the far west areas, effective March 22.

REJECT PROPOSAL

Washington, March 15.—(AP) — The American Federation of Labor flatly rejected last night President Roosevelt's proposal for a labor truce as a forthcoming meeting of the International Labor office declared equally by the A.F.L. and the Congress of Industrial Organizations. The Federation has been the sole American labor representative at previous I.L.O. meetings.

Doctors Order Montgomery To Take Eight Weeks Rest

By The Canadian Press

Philadelphia Bob Montgomery yesterday was ordered to take a rest of eight weeks by physicians of the New York Boxing Commission of which he is the recognized lightweight champion. The Quaker City negro had said he was too tired to fight Sammy Angott on March 31 at New York after the latter had lost his N.B.A. lightweight crown to Maxie Rosenbloom last week in Hollywood. His own physician found Montgomery was too tired to meet Angott in the bout which was to bring about undisputed possession of the title. Members of the New York Commission agreed that Bob was too tired, making it unanimous.

The developments left promoter Mike Jacobs smiling because he has lined up another fight At Madison Square Garden for the same night between Zurita and Beau Jack of Atlanta, Ga., who was the one who lost the N.B.A. title to Montgomery. The order of the New York Board touched out the Montgomery-Angott go and, in sight week, either Zurita or Beau Jack will probably be ready to exchange blows with Bob — if he isn't still too tired.

According to published reports at St. Louis, Mo., members of the U.S. armed services, both overseas and at home, want the major baseball leagues to continue but are critical of players who are holding out for more money in 1944 contracts because of a man-power shortage. One comment was: "Keep baseball alive but don't put up with any fairy baloonist. A lot of guys in other uniforms won't like it."

Henry Armstrong of Los Angeles, one-time holder of three world championships, made still another ring appearance at Miami last night when he knocked out Johnny Jones in the first round of a scheduled 10-rounder. Hank weighed 146 while Jones was 142 3/4 pounds.

President J. Elliott Hudson of the Maritime Amateur Hockey Association stated that players ordered Truro Bearcats and R.M.C.S. Cornwallis to meet Friday night at Truro, will be in the first of their best-in-seven for the Maritime senior honors, the second game to be played Saturday night.

The New York State Assembly at Albany yesterday passed a bill which will permit the participation of 17-year-old contestants in boxing bouts and wrestling exhibitions. The present minimum age limit in the state is 18 years. The bill now goes to the Senate for approval.

Hip Flan Bombers, only civilian team surviving in the Saskatchewan hockey league playoffs, have been lost to Allan Cup competition thru the decision of the Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Company, Limited, that the manpower situation will not permit the players to be absent from work for long trips.

COMPLETE DATES FOR SENIOR O.H.A. SERIES ARE SET

Toronto, March 15 (CP)— The Ontario Hockey Association announced complete dates for the best-of-five game all-Ontario senior play-off between Oshawa Generals, O.H.A. senior champions, and the Sudbury junior O.H.A. title holders.

The series opens Wednesday night in Hamilton with the second game scheduled for Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto, Friday night and the third game back in Hamilton next Monday. If further games are necessary to settle the series they will be played in Maple Leaf Gardens March 22 and in Hamilton March 24.

It was also announced that the best-of-seven series for the junior O.H.A. title will open in Oshawa next Saturday night with Oshawa Generals playing the winner of the St. Michael's College-Hamilton series. The first game is scheduled Wednesday night. St. Mike's and Hamilton now are tied with one win apiece in their best-of-three semi-final series.

A two-game total goal series in the intermediate play-offs between St. Catharines and Niagara Falls opens in Windsor Wednesday night with the opening game in St. Catharines March 21.

CASUAL COMMENT

A Genius

He was the sort of fellow who always knew.

"One of my ancestors," he was saying, "was a battle against the Normans by skilful use of his archery."

"Don't be silly!" retorted his bored companion. "Gunpowder wasn't known then."

"I'm well aware of that, and so was my ancestor."

"Then how did he win the battle?"

"He aimed the artillery at the Normans, and the 'silled,' as soon as the guns thought gunpowder had been invented. So they hopped it!"

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 32

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The way I heard it, you matrons were guarding a small island in the Mediterranean where they were playing bridge when the force of the hurricane hit land on the south coast.

One of the leathernecks stood up and said: "I'm dummy. So, I'll go. Don't let my partner revoke while I am gone."

It could have been a deal with a perfect partnership hands something like these:

	SOUTH	NORTH
	♠A K 9 3	♠ 10 2
	♥G 8	♥ 7 6 5 4
	♦Q 6 4	♦ 7 5 3
	♣K Q 10	♣ 9 8 7 4
	WEST	EAST
	♠Q 10 9 4	♠ 8 6
	♥A	♥ K J 10 9 3
	♦K J 8 2	♦ 9 6 4
	♣J 6 5 3	♣ A K 2

The bidding goes like this:

SOUTH	NORTH
1 ♠	1 D
4 D	4 NT
5 ♣	6 ♠

The three diamond one-jump takeout by partner is a bit tricky, enough to help make a game. The four diamond splash is a raise that shows a trick in addition to the five promised by the opening.

Having thus discovered 12 tricks, North bids Roy Rogers and the Sunset Trail over to Dodge City. The Kibitzer chuckles.

Leaving that there is an ace and a king missing, South is willing to risk going to a grand slam. And he realizes that even if both aces may not be there, skillful handling.

West started with an opening lead of the heart king. If opponent speaks of diamonds break four and two, it looks as if the declarer in the south has no worries except in the trumps.

But a bad split, either trumps or diamonds, will give him trouble. And a sound player provides for such a probability if he has the chance.

Suppose it turns out that one opponent has four diamonds. What plan would you make to try for the grand slam in the face of a diamond trick?

AT THE BELLE

Laid in English and Scottish locale, and played by a selected cast of British players, "Lassie Come Home" (Roddy McDowall and Donald Crisp) dog's thousand-mile quest for the young master she adores is now closing at the Belle Theatre, Belleville, today (Wednesday) and Thursday. Based on the novel by Eric Knight, author of "The Above All", and movie beauty is added by the use of Technicolor.

Roddy McDowall and Ronald Crisp, father and son in "How Green Was My Valley", key reunited in the story, with the role of Whitby of "Mrs. Miniver", Dame Edna Everage, Elsie Bassett, Nora Lanchester and Elizabeth Taylor among the principals.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Arizona"

The story of Tucson in 1860 was a lusty, brawling saga, born into pandemonium both, the Indians and the Confederates, when the very strife that had brought into the dry frontier the terrors and hardships of the Civil War, also brought the opulence of the Confederate officer and fame in every direction. Into this setting, with its rip-roaring, absorbing spectacle of a nation in the throes of birth, is sent an adventurous young Army officer, Phoebe Titus; lone white woman in the Arizona territory, and her romance with the man who like land will be at peace, free from savage Indian raids and the lawless gunmen, killers, and who courageously battles both to bring this day to pass.

William Holden, brilliant new star who appeared in "Golden Boy" and "Our Town" appears to advantage as the casual, laughing young officer who becomes Jean Arthur's partner in the superlative cast of thousands that includes Warren William, the gambler-killer, and Porter Hall, as a renegade saloon-keeper.

In addition to its tempestuous love story, "Arizona" presents a great, authentic picture of blood-stirring dramatic incidents, vistas of rich grandeur, lovely, heart-lifting scenic peaks of fair training terror, arresting beauty. Indian battles and thrilling clashes on the streets of a city accustomed to the use of guns and powder material, Wesley Ruggles has fabricated "Arizona" an epic of the west, an epic in motion picture history.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Gaslight"

With a star-studded cast, boasting such names as Gene Tierney, Bruce Cabot, George Sanders, Ray Collins, Barbara O'Neil, Cedric Hardwicke, Walter Wanger's big production "Gaslight" will open here at the Capitol Theatre through United Artists release, based on the Stage play Sweeting Post serial by Barre Lyndon, "Numdown" pictures an exciting new background, the hinterlands of Britain's Kenya Colony in Central East Africa.

The picture, which was directed by Henry Hathaway, revolves around a small group of white men who rule over several hundred thousand natives in the rich, resistant danger of annihilation by semi-savage tribesmen, especially when the latter are provided firearms by enemy agents. His role as the villain, Cedric, is played by the lovely dark beauty, Gene Tierney. Supposedly the half-caste daughter of a rich Arab trader, the hauntingly beautiful Miss Tierney has a dramatic role to provide the story with spirited romance and breath-taking suspense.

"The Texas Kid"

Johnny Mack Brown, one of the screen's most popular western stars, comes to the Capitol next week in a double bill "The Texas Kid," is the Monogram western drama in which he is starred with Raymond Hatton in his usual spot as the best of the two-gun pair. Titled "Rattling Fists," Shirley Patterson plays the leading feminine role and the cast is filled with Maynard, John Judd and Cyrus Ring. Lambert Hillyer directed for Monogram from a screen play by Barry Shipman and William Lively. Original story was by Robert Emmett.

LONDON LETTER

By DOUG HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

London, March 15 (CP)—A defence of the front page of the Times, which many consider indefensible in this day of towering headlines, could build its case around the simple point of asking the critic to read it.

For those who haven't heard, the Times is probably the king-pin among those papers which still insist that the proper page one of a page given to classified advertisements. In a moment of high excitement it stoops to modern practice to the extent of inserting a small heading at the top of the page to announce a story that can be found inside.

There is news on that front page, a hodgepodge of it, but there it is, a small town like yours or mine might hit the top of the local page; news of big shots, and little shots, news that makes you wonder what parts behind the scenes have been played in the news.

The Times personal columns tell many a story in a couple of lines. Like this one:

"McLaren, Micky—postcard received, Prisoner of war in Japanese hands. Unwounded and well."

Or this one:

"Champ F. G. M.—Mail. G. S. C. Powell, R.A., reported safe in Switzerland."

Or this one:

"Stephen P. G. M.—Mail. Denis Gurney, safe and well in Germany, having been reapprized within the day's walk of British lines, with his friends, Lieut. Robert Curran and 'George'."

Your paper back leans would grab stories like that, put good headings on them and run the man's picture. It would turn them under a passage from the scriptures like "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us—1, Samuel XVI, 12" and an announcement that the charge for announcements in the personal column is 7s 6d (about $1.50) per line...not additional charge of 1s is made to cover box No. and postage of replies."

Your paper would glost, too, and send a reporter to inquire about an item like "the Board of Inland Revenue acknowledges receipt of £96 from anonymous sender, postmarked Bath."

Maybe there is not much news but there is interest in items like that inserted by "women of the Times" who sought a position and listed among her attributes "a sense of humor," or that put in by somebody wanting to sell a "silk blister shawl, 6 ft. by 4 ft. 10 ins. and fringe. Over 10 years old. Perfect condition."

In column after column day after day there are three—or 10-line stories which tell the fill of war, like the death notice of the Lieutenant killed fighting with the Guards in Italy or the notice calling for claims against the estate of a brigadier killed in Tunisia.

You can read of marriages of the aristocracy, "Thomas—Lady of the Elephant Trading (South Africa) Holdings, Limited," the advertisement of "City of Regina five per cent consolidated registered stock," because the page mirrors this nation from the 'Blood in its financial interests throughout the world.

To the critic, the modernist, the front page of the Times is out of date, too conventional, too pompous. To the 300,000 Englishmen who buy it it is "standard as much as tea in the afternoon or the pub down the lane.

Credit Facilities in Small Business Aim of Proposed Development Bank

Designed to Supplement Activity of Loan Lending Organizations

(By FRANK PLANKETT)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 15, (CP)—Credit facilities for small business enterprises which cannot normally raise money by public issues of securities is one of the main objectives of the proposed industrial development bank, Douglas Abbott, Parliamentary assistant to the Minister of Finance, said last night in the Commons as the bill to create the bank received second reading.

It is the first measure to be approved in principle by the House this session and now goes to the banking and commerce committee for study. It is also the first of several post-war economic and social measures to be laid before Parliament from the Throne to advance to such a stage.

Purpose Of Bank

"The purpose of this bank is not to make ordinary bank loans, but to supplement the activities of existing lending institutions," said Mr. Abbott. It was not designed to compete with existing agencies and hence its capital, criticized by some members as too small, should be considered adequate for its purposes, he answered later by parliament.

Passage of the bill measure and a resumption of talk about the navy on Flory Minister Macdonald's war appropriation estimates with a side excursion into conscription in the House throughout the Tuesday sitting.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King, replying to Premier George Drew's questions on his boat conference next Monday, said he had not received from the Premier's lawyer requesting a conference until after he made his announcement. Mr. Drew is in Nassau.

In Beverage Rooms

He reiterated his objections to notices placed by the Liquor Control Board of Ontario in beverage rooms and stores saying the quantity of beer sold was controlled by federal government order and repeated his statement that curtailment of beer sales in beverage rooms to 75 per cent was not the result of the Dominion order already restricted total sales in all Ontario to 90 per cent of the amount sold in the twelve months ended October 1943.

The Prime Minister gave a detailed description of government steps in reply to a statement by Mr. Drew Monday in which the Ontario Premier said it was "ironic", of Mr. King not to have mentioned the matter sent to him last Friday when he announced lifting of Federal restrictions Monday.

Mr. King said Mr. Drew's statement was hardly "the kind of communication that I would expect in the circumstances". He had announced Friday that the restrictions before reading Mr. Drew's letter.

Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, said Mr. Drew could hardly be blamed for sending the letter to Mr. Abbott's office arrangements respecting mail matter "apparently" are the Premier's letter.

Mr. Graydon said the Prime Minister will not attempt, just because there is a Progressive Conservative Government in Ontario, to attempt to pick unnecessary fights with the province. There will be continuing

Mr. King: "May I say to my friends that I do not intend to have an attempt to make a lot of petty party politics out of this particular matter."

If Mr. Drew sent a letter he proposed to be read immediately he should not mark it "personal," he said. The Premier's lawyer could have sent a telegram drawing attention to the letter or sent a letter by Special Delivery.

Not to Co-operate

In his speech on the bank bill Mr. Abbott answered points raised by members. He said the bank would be in a position to lend to co-operative organizations, operating the type of business it was designed to assist.

It could finance developments at established, producing mines, such as installation of smelters or other equipment, but not prospecting.

To members who feared the bank would compete with private enterprise, he said that was not the intention. It was an example of the kind of partnership of government and private enterprise which held promise for the future.

Harry Jackman (PC-Toronto Rosedale), said he saw no necessity for it if the condition on which it was based, that of high level of employment and national income, prevailed. Then there were ample private funds for all industrial development. He said he feared it would be a "drain" on the taxpayers' money.

The first discussion ranged over a wide field. T. L. Church (PC-Toronto Rosedale) urged the government to obtain the use of Irish ports for the navy.

Alfred Carriere, (PC-Gloucester) said it was hoped Canada might eventually acquire a branch of the fleet air arm. He said the use of Irish ports would be a certain assurance of time and that at least to be training for post-war occupation, this training done in association with the Pensions Department, the Rehabilitation and Reinstatement.

The H.C.N. had not yet established a branch of the fleet air arm but there were certain Canadians who were doing naval flying with the Royal Navy.

EVACUATE INVASION COAST

Stockholm, March 15 (CP)—(Reuter)—Evacuation of thousands of Nazi administrative Departments and officers from the Skagen in the invasion coast has progressed so far that only the departments of Aarhus and a few minor Bureaux are left in that city, it was learned yesterday.

THE LITTLE DOG BARKED

by ANNE ROWE

CHAPTER 7

"A few days of rest are right," said Dr. Conn, and it stays put and doesn't run away. It took a good deal of courage, Lavinia, all it did was a rabbit. A tab man. About your head."

He spoke to me for a second, and then he added—a thing he rarely does—"Nice baby! You don't suppose—" Why I wasn't surprised then I don't know. He was caught in the storm on my walk after the party. I always take Jimmy there to get a little exercise, and he probably wasn't anyone he longed to be found by, except the two Allen-Vickery team hired to play ghost.

So Tom Linwood had been out walking in the storm last night!

I wondered about it as I walked up the stairs after lunch, for a look at Jimmy, new quarters, and to freshen up before going back to rehearsal.

Only, how fervently he had excused himself. And odd for him to have gone out on a night during the show in that drenching storm.

Tom Linwood would bear watching, I decided.

The new rooms were all the old hadn't been; comfortable, cheerful and airy. They lay in the oil of the sun. Or rather, they would be for short all of the all. A window toward the bay and another on the side—side overlooking the theatre wing and, between them, a pink bathroom opened from a connecting passage. Also, pink bows had the run of the place, in the curtains, on the right and left of a half ending there. Really the arrangement looked like a bed turned.

Ada was unpacking our bags when I came in. And Stray was with her, prim in the thick rug before the bed, his head on his paws. He didn't move. Only looked at me out of his puppy eyes.

"Hello, Ada. Thanks for unpacking for me—you're a darling. You, Stray, haven't I?" I said all in one breath, and crossed over to my dog, scratching the little dog's head.

His thumped tail thrilled me and his pink tongue flicked out toward my hand, in acceptance of my apology. But he didn't budge.

"What's the matter with him?" I asked Ada. "Not sick, I hope, after all mornings?"

Ada laughed. "He certainly has. It's bad conscience. He's ashamed himself all over the room—put you him in."

"You didn't punish him, when it wasn't his fault, I scolded, narrowing Stray's silky fur.

"Ah—Sue's little. Ada was amused about my concern for the dog. "He's disgraced himself. Peed on the queen's children. Let them get away with something, and they'll do it again. Don't pet over his busy feelings."

Then she turned to her work, complimenting me on my wardrobe. "Those costumes were lovely. Mrs. Turner, I'll press them out for you. Mrs. Turner, I'll do it. Mrs. Turner, the stage costumes are grand!" and after I'd thanked her, asked slyly: "Really, Sue, how did it all right? No trouble at the theatre?"

"Everything's fine." I assured her. She was a good soul and far superior to the gossip of hotel help, but still. I didn't feel like talking about it. Old Mack was something else again, I wanted to talk to him.

"Is Mack around now?" I inquired, going to the dressing table to repair my makeup.

"No. He hasn't come back. Must be up at the house. Up the Parris boy's. Mr. Parris's the Parris daughter. That's right. Mrs. Parris is dead, isn't she, Miss Sue?"

"Yes, Ada," I said, "and her husband. Sam's Bill Parris is Mr. Parris' boy by his first wife. He married a girl from Hollywood. They have been here yesterday, always. Now they're up at the house and she generally finds a lot of things to do. Mack's probably along, Stray?"

Ada went on and on. I noticed that both her pink cheeks were flushed and that English were wearing off on Glass' acquaintance. Ada, I knew, also had a boy friend. Not Outside of the fact, perhaps, that Bill Parris was only the property of the woman who had, presumably, also been responsible for his existence, I knew little about Bill Parris' play with Alden and Vickery.

"Well, that'll have to do," cut Ada into her conversation with a last dab at my nose. "Back to work I go. If you can call it work. You coming along, Stray?"

I had half expected the split to go on sulking. But he jumped to his feet immediately, with an eager whine and came with me. Sticking almost too close to me for comfort, in his rediscovered affection for me.

"Now you be a good dog and don't bark," I admonished him at the theatre entrance.

The rehearsal was in full swing. I must have dawdled longer than I'd thought in my room, for the first act, and the first half of the second act, working on a scene leading up to climax.

Ora Paulsen, Wells Colby, Ione Welland and Sonia Marshall were having a quarrel centre stage—almost. Jonathan Linwood, perched on some mark made by Linwood or the stage manager, stood looking, supposedly unseen and listening to everything the four at centre stage were saying—for her.

The scene was important and the actors knew it. They had all memorized it already. Not one of them, I knew, but had his lines down pat. I tiptoed toward them noiselessly, but absorbed the vast way gained on the stage to pay much attention to Stray.

And so I was totally unprepared for what I heard. Except the seat I had occupied in the morning, he suddenly gave a ferocious growl ending in a shrill bark, and then past me and onto the stage in a flurry of rage. Straight against Linda, who jumped back with a startled cry, and hurled himself toward the other actors.

In the second which there was a deafening crash. And the telephone booth I had seen securely anchored to the floor flew her on the stage in a splintered heap, exactly on the spot where Linda had been standing only a second before.

Sonia Marshall was running toward Linda, with excited questions and exclamations. "Are you hurt?" she cried. "How did it happen?" and "Gosh, you might have been killed!" and "Say what is Stray?" and "Dog barked."

Linda had not one to get to Linda. My feet wouldn't move for a while, and then I was at the centre of the stage again and again, "accident," kept hammering in my head—with a shuddering in my.

But in the end I managed to disentangle myself up to lump and to Linda who stood beside the wreckage, pale but confidence, with horror in her eyes. She didn't believe it was an accident, either.

"You're right—a terrible shock, dear. Let's go to the inn, to our dressing room. I'll get you an hour," I said, patting my arm around her.

She shook her head and said, "That's all right. I'm all right," and under her breath: "I want to stay here and find out—help me find out."

Linwood could only hear the first part of my speech. "You're a real trouper!" he praised. Adding, in general: "All right. We go on with the rehearsal. Someone clear the broken glass—you, Ora—you have to find us another telephone booth for tonight."

"Where's Stray at Stray's bark. Had the dog sensed what was going to happen, or why had he flown into that sudden rage? And why he'd bark here? Where was he?

I looked around and, when I couldn't see him, made a few steps away from the crash around Linda, toward the rear of the stage. And tripped over something. The rope that had held the telephone booth. I discovered when I'd regained my balance. I picked it up, looked at it carefully.

It wasn't old and worn and frayed as it should have been if it had breaking were the "accident" everyone was chattering about. It was quite new; only one strand of it was frayed. The rest had been cut cleanly, with a sharp knife.

For the second time that day I forgot Stray, in a hot flash of anger and dread. I found myself back at Linda's side without knowing how I'd got there, dragging the rope behind me, and saying wildly: "Stop it! Stop calling it accident! Look at this rope! Look at it. It's cut! Someone caused the accident by cutting it!" and brandished the evidence around.

There were gasps — a forward surge to examine the rope.

Linwood started hysterically: "Why dear me, Turner—" And Sonia Marshall asked stupidly "Cut, you mean?" and Mrs. Parris-Conn, hoarsely: "Cut, husband. Sam's Bill Parris is Mr. Parris' by his first wife. They married last year. They have been here yesterday, always. Now they're up at the house and she generally finds a lot of things to do. Mack's probably along, Stray?"

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking the last end of his cigar with a loving reverence, and me said, After all, William, it's the unwritten law that are the most powerful influences in the world today.

You said a doubtful my dear, pop said. The torn fragments of soldiers treaties, Gilbert and Sullivan, the winds of chance. The crown jewels of ancient Egypt. Mother's recipe for Shoo-fly pie. Unwritten laws are like that, pop said, and in fact they're still held civilization together, he said, and me said, Unwritten, pop said, Planned syllogisms is family life. For instance it's one of the unwritten laws of the family I hold for me to religiously refrain from smoking cigars for you on any all occasions that call for gifts, and I can truthfully say that for several years I've haven't presented you with a single cigar for your birthday or Christmas or for any other occasion, she said.

You have been a model of thoughtful abstention in that respect, and I'm sure you'll continue to be for many more years to come, pop said, and me said, I'm supposed to be, I assure you, but today is no occasion of any kind, so when I saw a package of genuine cigars at half price in Hookbenders cigar department, I didn't see any reason for not picking up a box for you, and here it is.

You mean, what's the name of them? pop said, and me said, Now William, you must smoke that cigar of a cigar, and pop said, No, but pardon me, I'm not sure that there is unfailingly correct.

Well the name of them is Plantation Specials, so go ahead and judge, me said and pop said, I have for five years, return them and get your money back, and after this please remember that is the only loopholes bored into unwritten laws than in the flood that destroyed the Roman Empire, he said.

Being almost the end of the subject but not quite.

Report Finland Rejects Russian Armistice Terms

Stockholm, March 16 — (AP)— The Finnish parliament decided today to continue at war with Soviet Russia, rejecting Russia's final terms of armistice, according to reliable information available here tonight.

The vote is understood to have been 180 to 40, only two more members of the Finn parliament being willing to accept Moscow's peace conditions.

This parliament supported the government position outlined by Premier Edwin Linkomies, to whom, it's secret session yesterday, he described the armistice terms as unacceptable.

It was understood no reply will be sent to Moscow before Friday or Sunday, but the Finnish government was expected to issue a statement later tonight.

Hand-to-Hand Battle Rages To Clear Japs

New Delhi, March 16 — (AP)— British troops have fought fierce hand-to-hand battles, some in underground positions, to clear the Japanese from the last two north of captured Buthidaung, a southern Burma road junction, military headquarters announced today and the 130 enemy dead were found in one position.

Other Japanese pockets are being mopped up elsewhere around Buthidaung, and counter-attacks farther south have been repulsed, the communique added. Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters said.

Farther north, Japanese attacks were reported on the Maungdaw and Kabaw Valley, while in Northern Burma, Chinese troops are advancing steadily in the Hukawng Valley with artillery and mortars on both sides active.

In the air war, fighting intercepted a Japanese fighter sweep, downing three and damaged another, Hurricane fighter-bombers and fighters hit nearly all enemy installations in northern and central Burma, including an airfield at Shwebo and exploding an ammunition dump.

Small Nazi Supply Ship Has Been Sunk, Another Damaged

London, March 15 — (CP)—British naval units sank a small German supply ship and damaged another and hit three E-boats last night in the Straits of Dover, the Admiralty announced today.

The communique said light coastal forces intercepted a German convoy strongly escorted by E boats and "a sharp action" ensued, in which a small supply ship was torpedoed and sunk and a second supply ship and two E boats were severely damaged by gunfire.

Later a second group of E boats was encountered and one "was hit repeatedly by gunfire."

Enemy shore batteries fired ineffectively and the Royal Navy all returned safely to harbor, suffering no casualties.

LORD BENNETT'S GIFTS EXCEED MILLION DOLLARS

Educational Institutions of Maritimes and Western Canada Recipients

Halifax, March 16 —(CP)— Gifts totalling more than 1,000,000 to educational institutions of the Maritime Provinces and Western Canada were announced during the last year by Lord Bennett, former Prime Minister of Canada, the Halifax Mail said today in a statement.

Dalhousie University, Halifax, of which Lord Bennett is a graduate in law, heads the list of donations given by the New Brunswick-born statesman, with $700,000. It was also said, from other gifts at:

Mount Allison University, Sackville, N.B., $300,000.

University of Alberta, Edmonton, $300,000.

In addition, smaller amounts in various law associations and schools in Canada.

The Mail said the terms of the gift to Dalhousie stated that it was to form part of the endowment fund of the university, the income from which was to be used to pay the annual salary of a professor of constitutional and civil law in the university; the salary of a professor in the law school, and the salary of two professors in the law school.

The gift to Mount Allison was to form part of the endowment fund, the income to be used for the purpose of founding a scholarship in memory of his father, mother and brother, who were graduates of Mount Allison and also Captain and Mrs. Mowbray Bennett, who are members of the Board of Regents.

The Mail said the Canadian Association of Law Teachers' resources valued at $20,000, the interest to be "expended in the endowment fund of the association for the purpose of a high standard of legal education, training and ethics."

Dairy Farmers Protest Proposed Subsidy Reductions

Ottawa, March 16. (CP)—A delegation of the dairy farmers of Canada protesting proposed reductions in government agriculture officials against the government's proposed intention to reduce present subsidies on dairy products in the near future, met with the delegation.

The delegation, numbering thirty men and women, from agriculture department's food board and later with Agriculture Minister Gardiner.

The delegates said they were given a "cordial reception and the situation was frankly discussed with all its problems." Mr. Gardiner was urged to prevail upon the Federal Cabinet to continue the present level of subsidies before May 1, the date when payments will be made, and also now, being paid with respect to cheese.

The protest followed Mr. Gardiner's announcement in the House of Commons Feb. 24 that, with the exception of the butter subsidy, most subsidy payments will be terminated May 1 for the summer months.

The butter subsidy is the subsidy for fluid milk, milk for cheese and concentrated whole milk.

PO. K. McAdam Taking Course at Trenton

After serving with the Y.M.C.A. Overseas Branch in England and North Africa as director of physical education and "Y" activities for the servicemen overseas, Ken McAdam has returned to the Belleville district where he is now on course at the R.C.A.F. station, Trenton, the station where he was one-time "Y" supervisor.

The R.C.A.F. and the R.A.F. syndrome of the British where Canadian personnel were located. At the end of this period he was in the Canadian wing of the North African front and then was in charge of "Y" entertainment. On an average of five nights a week he was putting on entertainment to the men, the audience made up of Canadian, R.A.F., U.S. Air Force and First and Eighth Army personnel.

During his time in North Africa, PO. McAdam went on at least one occasion to Italy, and every country with the Canadian wing. A Giles Effingham Limited, Toronto, Ont. Gilles effingham limited, Toronto, Ont. Gilles effingham limited, Toronto, Ont. Gilles effingham

Picton and District

Difference Seen Between Young, Old Nazi Soldiers

Picton, March 18.—"There is a noticeable difference between the old German soldiers and the younger ones," stated Pte. Horace Thompson, who has just returned from overseas. "The older man, when taken prisoner, seem relieved that he is out of the fighting, but the younger Nazis remain cocky and arrogant." Pte. Thomas said that the discipline of the enemy is excellent and that weather and rough terrain made fighting difficult.

Pte. Thomas enlisted at Picton with Hastings and Prince Edward in 1939 at the age of 36 years, being one of the original members of the unit. He went overseas the same year. He served steadily before going to Italy and while there was stricken with malaria, and this was responsible for his return to Canada. While overseas he was married to an English girl and he expects his wife and infant son to join him here soon. He is spending 30 days' leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Thomas before reporting to Kingston.

Wounded Eight Times.

Pte. Gerald Milner suffered eight wounds, he reveals in a letter to his father, Arthur Milner. Dated March 2nd, the letter was received Monday. It also reveals that he has not received air mail or airgraph letters sent him to advise of the death of his mother early in December last. The last letters had dreamed to her. His last letters had been received just before Christmas and he had not received any parcels since this time though they were sent regularly. He served in Sicily before going to Italy and it was the second time he had been wounded in action.

In his letter he states, "I am feeling fine and am able to get around fine and am quite well in my leg. My left leg is not quite right as yet as I can not bend it all the way back. My right hand is not right either as I cannot move the thumb or index finger as they are still stiff, but I am told they will come out alright in time. I was in hospital but most of the wounds are healed by now. I was hit in eight different places, right ankle, right knee, right thigh, right hand, left hand, left knee, left hip and left arm, but most of them were small wounds.

"I was hit by two different mortar bombs; the first one hit me when I was fighting the enemy. Then they carried me about a mile and a half to the rear of the front line, when I was again hit by a mortar bomb which hit near by. This all took place on the night of Dec. 12 and the morning of Dec. 13th."

Pte. Milner went overseas in 1939 with Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment but was transferred to the Three Rivers Scotia Regiment. He is in a North African hospital.

New Bakery.

The Bata Shoe Company has definitely decided to open a branch in Picton. Operations will commence as soon as electric wiring, plumbing and painting can be carried out. The company will manufacture several lines of sports shoes.

The Bata Company has leased the market building in Picton for a five-year term. Negotiations with town council were completed last night, the rent being a nominal one.

The lease contains a provision for termination of same if inside the four-year period the company's factory or builds its own property in town and permanently establishes in another location here.

It is understood 25 women will be employed on opening with 50 or more later. They will be secured locally where there is a good supply of such labor.

The Bata plant at Batawa is engaged largely in the manufacture of war materials at the present time.

500 Baby Chicks Burned.

Eight hundred baby chicks were burned when fire destroyed a building on the farm of S. J. Martin, east of the town. Ben house was being used as a brooder and heated by a stove, which is believed to have been responsible for the blaze. The fire spread quickly and there was a strong wind blowing directly towards the house. The fire departments at Picton and at the Royal Air Force station were sponded to calls and prevented the fire from spreading to other buildings. A modest change in the direction of the wind assisted their efforts.

POINT TRAVERSE

Fire Destroys Hen House, 700 Chicks

Point Traverse, (Special).—A fire which took fire on the farm of Sam Martin, North Marysburgh township, early Saturday morning destroyed a large hen house and seven hundred baby chicks and a quantity of coal. Fanned by a brisk southwest wind, the conflagration at one time got out of control, and an alarm was put in to the R.A.F. fire department at Picton and the Picton fire department. Pumpers from both stations responded and assisted in keeping the blaze under control. Volunteer fire fighters from the Hamilton vicinity assisted in checking the fire, which endangered the farm buildings, located nearby.

Poor Catches Muskrats.

Muskrats trappers in the Black Creek district are awaiting for a general break-up of ice in the river as it is ice bound at the present time, and very few rats are being taken. Trappers stated that they anticipate an average catch of muskrats, and prices per pelt may run slightly higher than last spring.

Declares Gordon Approved Signs In Beverage Rooms

Toronto, March 18 (CP)—Attorney General Blackwell of Ontario said today that signs in Ontario beverages rooms about restrictions on the sale of alcoholic beverages were approved by A. St. Clair Gordon, Liberal member of the Ontario legislature for Kent West, when he was Provincial Commissioner of the province.

Mr. Gordon, former provincial treasurer in the Ontario Liberal government, also gave the order for the printing and posting of the signs said Mr. Blackwell in a statement.

The attorney general said the signs, saying a Dominion government Order-in-Council was responsible for curtailment of the supply of alcoholic beverages, were put up because "many people, unable to distinguish one government from another, were blaming Ontario."

We felt Mr. (Prime Minister) King should receive the credit or odium as the case may be. When Mr. King found it was not credit but odium, he immediately shed the 'armor of God' that he placed upon himself in the speech in which he introduced the restrictions and decided the restrictions were not necessary after all for a total war effort."

Basic German Food For Prison Camp Reduced 30 P.C.

Authorities Claim Canadian Officers and Men Threw Away Good Food

Ottawa, March 15 — (CP) — Canadian authorities, claiming the prisoners threw away good food, have reduced basic German food rations by 30 per cent in a prisoner-of-war camp in Germany where more than 100 Canadian officers and men are interned, it was disclosed Tuesday in the report of an International Red Cross Committee.

The report, made public here by the Wartime Information Board, described the camp as "Oflag VIIB," and said the German High Security Command now is insisting on bringing the ration back to normal.

"It was found further that the bread ration formerly given to German civilians in September had not been maintained at the camp," it added.

Camp Visited

The International Red Cross Committee visited the camp in December, and investigated the German claims that prisoners had thrown away food. It was after this investigation that the German authorities were asked to restore the ration.

Brig. W. W. Southam-Gibson, Toronto, former Officer Commanding the 48th Highlanders of Canada, who was captured at Dieppe, is named spokesman for the 90 Canadian officers and 32 other ranks included in the total of 1,061 officers and 171 other ranks in the camp.

Other officers include Lt.-Col. R. Tabeth, former Officer Commanding Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, Hamilton; Maj. E. F. Lasher (Ont.); Maj. C. G. Parry, Hamilton; Capt. W. L. McGregor, Walkerville, Ont.; Capt. Alexis R. C. Wright, Vankleek Hill, Ont.; and P. D. Ambery, Windsor, Ont.

The prisoners are usually "well nourished" due to the collective Red Cross parcels received, the delegates reported.

Clothing Situation Good

The clothing situation is "good" with parcels arriving regularly from Canada, but a "rather urgent need" was found for large-size overcoats, pyjamas, underclothing, razor blades and shaving soap and brushes.

Ten doctors and two dentists were working in the camp and the general health of the men was found "excellent," the medical surgeon, typical cracute and chronic of potassium were on the badly needed list.

Canadian parcels were reported arriving without loss but mail from Canada takes six weeks.

Morale was found good among the prisoners who are allowed daily "walking parole" outside the camp. As many as 30 to 60 men are escorted on these walks by only one or two German officers, and without wood for their cooking operations.

Dominion-Wide Red Cross Total 67 P.C. Objective

Toronto, March 18. (CP)—Canadian Red Cross Society headquarters announced today that the Dominion-wide campaign in the Society's $10,000,000 appeal stood at $6,715,489 or 67 per cent of objective yesterday, 12th canvassing day in the campaign, which opened Feb. 26 and ends tomorrow.

The current total compares with $4,932,960 or 47 per cent for the same period in last year's drive.

British Columbia and Nova Scotia are closely lapped in the race to determine the third province to reach its objective. To Monday night Manitoba, Columbia had subscribed 89 per cent of its provincial quota of $500,000 with $715,483 while Nova Scotia reported $990,000 or a $1,100,000 quota for 84 per cent of objective.

Khaki Closeups

By DOUGLAS AMARON

Canadian Press War Correspondent

With the Canadian Corps in Italy, March 15 — (CP) — The strangest type of newspaper in the Canadian Corps in Italy is "The Decorated Sculpel, a two page mimeographed sheet, published by soldiers of a casualty clearing station.

Typical of most unit papers—and there are many in the corps — the Decorated Sculpel features breezy items about personnel around the clearing station, but editor-in-chief Pte. Nick Obey of Winnipeg.

Pte. J. J. Gorman of Toronto, provides patrons for each edition while other members of the staff include Privates Len New, Edmonton and Bert Silvester, Ottawa, who write "The Human side of the News," and C. W. Clark of New Sarepta, Alberta, who does the mimeographing "and the other dirty work."

The Maple Leaf, published in Italy by the Canadian Army, public Relations unit became a daily Feb. 21. About the same time, the Spur, weekly paper of a Canadian division, ceased to function for it, was felt that the Maple Leaf filled the news bill satisfactorily.

A new service club catering to troops of this division was named "The Maple Leaf and Spur" and the signboard at the entrance bears both these emblems. The Knights of Columbus, supervised by Ray Mulvihill, Arnprior, Ont., and Mike Quinty, Perth, Ont., run the club.

It is located in a town near the front in a big, dilapidated building which serves the Italians as a cafe. Tea and pastry, prepared at the divisional catering school, are free for all 8th Army soldiers and as many as 2,000 men have been served in a day.

An Italian orchestra plays two hours a day and features a girl whose singing of "Ave Maria" stops the boys hushed until she is finished—then their applause brings the plaster down from the airy ceiling.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, MARCH 16, 1944

NET PROVINCIAL DEBT REDUCED $12,072,721

Ontario Budget Address Forecasts No New Taxation

Burden on Real Estate For Education Eased

Toronto, March 16 —(CP)— A reduction of $12,072,721 in the net provincial debt for the fiscal year ending next March, $21,500,000 decrease "in the history of the province" was announced today by decrease "in the history of the province" was announced today by Provincial Treasurer Frost in his final budget address in the Ontario legislature.

Mr. Frost also announced a reduction of $97,609,976 in the gross provincial debt, a surplus of $6,636,877 on ordinary account and a consolidated over-all surplus of $20,561,975 on both ordinary and capital account —all based on 10 months actual and two months estimated receipts and expenditures.

Double Taxes as Ruling

Of the chief financial critic for his party while in opposition, the new Provincial Treasurer said provincial treasurer also announced: an increase of one cent in the gasoline tax; a small subsidy to municipalities to be applied to the cost of education; new home loan plans; a subsidy by a Royal Commission of the whole field of real estate taxation including education costs; doubling of the present five per cent tax on race track mutuel tickets; and the freezing of universities at Toronto, London and Kingston of debts thru grants totalling $1,316,000.

The grants for the race track impost was the only taxation change mentioned in the $130,000,000 budget which Mr. Frost announced that "no new forms of taxation will be imposed."

Areas of Increase Are Named

"The government feels that with our present level under the great weight of wartime taxation that the greatest service which it can render is by adding to that burden but by reducing it," Mr. Frost declared in his address.

For the fiscal year ending March 31, 1945, Mr. Frost said, the estimated revenue of $107,333,000, plus on ordinary account of $300,000, based on estimated expenditures of $107,033,000 and estimated revenue of $117,333,000.

Although he made a figure of an over-all surplus for the present fiscal year, the treasurer made it clear he did so only because such over-all surpluses have been presented in the previous two budgets, last year by A. St. Clair Gordon (L.—Kenora-Rainy River) and this previous year by Mitchell F. Hepburn (L.—Elgin).

"I find this combination of financial and ordinary receipts and expenditures creates a wrong impression," he explained. "A capital surplus does not necessarily reduce the net debt . . . however for the purposes of comparison I now present

. . . figures giving an interim over-all surplus for the year ending March 31, 1944, of $20,561,975.

The interim over-all surplus, he added, is shown in the figures giving the reduction in the net debt.

Tribute to Former Treasurers

At the close of his address, Mr. Frost referred to the "brilliant budget addresses" delivered by Hon. Leopold C. Macaulay and Hepburn, both former provincial treasurer from 1934 until last March, and the address of this year by the man who held the post from March until last August. "I am sure you will feel a deep satisfaction in having rendered signal service to our province."

He outlined the background of the war agreements with the Federal government, . . . under which about 95 per cent of the income tax income is fixed, with the Dominion guaranteeing provincial revenues from their sources at the level previously abandoned for the duration of the war.

"We have suffered the loss of income which would accrue to us from the general prosperity which has obtained in the country due to wartime expenditures. We must therefore be borne in mind that the province of Ontario has made great sacrifices to assist in the war effort.

"I hold that the time is at hand when the province should take stock and inventory of its financial position, to the end that the best position will be at the termination of the war hostilities with how long it will be before it may expect to receive sufficient revenue to meet the increasing fields of taxation to discharge the normal functions of government; and what plans the province has for carrying fields of taxation which normally are occupied by the Dominion government. We feel that this is a very necessary subject of an early Dominion-Provincial conference."

One of Ontario's greatest problems is its net debt — estimated at $483,368,569 as of next March 31— and its interest charges of about $20,000,000 annually.

Progress Being Made

Mr. Frost proposed as a post-war plan that a sinking fund be established which would tend to diminish the net provincial debt "over a period of not more than 50 years." Coupled with this was a suggestion that revenue-producing debt, such as that incurred in hydro-electric construction be retired from such revenue.

In a discussion of public accounts the minister recommended "as a temporary measure" that the treasurer and cabinet rule barring questions by members about accounts for the current year should not be enforced although he asked members to co-operate and not make "unreasonable requests."

The government has appointed a budget committee comprised of three ministers and three senior civil officials to "keep our expenditures always under review and to eliminate waste and duplication wherever found."

Unemployment Fund

The grants to free the universities from debts totalling $816,000 to the University of Toronto and . . . $260,000 each to the University of Western Ontario and Queen's University— will enable them to take an active part in the post-war following the war.

Matters "dealt with the operation of the Farm Loan Adjustment Act under which farmers may ask the board to review their mortgages and said that adjustments totalling $1,317,423 on 431 applications heard since last November.

Recalling that the government invested $6,000,000 in the Fifth, Sixth and Seventh Victory Loans provincial sinking funds "are in good order" and his recommendation that no cut in our sinking fund provisions for this current year as amount in excess of $6,000,000 for . . . retirements by $4,000,000.

Mr. Frost said that the total revenue for the coming fiscal year total $2,302,000 exceeding that at this year's figure by $3,697,583; corporation tax $1,256,549; Hydro, $777,821; succession duties also anticipated, including $775,000 from income tax and succession duties from the new Race Track Act.

Liquor Revenue Increased

Liquor revenue, "in case forecast are the amount of profits which we go to guarantee to the Dominion for the base year ending March 31, 1942, amounting to $12,816". Profits for the present year will be $14,000,000. . . . For the 1942-44 fiscal year the Federal government collected of net profits $9,000,000 and . . . 50, liquor sold in the province. He reported that the net profits from the sale of liquor in Ontario had increased from 16,500,000 in the 12 months.

In a lengthy discussion of plans for relieving the real estate field tax burden, Mr. Frost said the government "declares its faith in the municipal system of constituting policy" and announced a three-point program for relieving the burden.

First step will be examination of the whole field of real estate taxation by a royal commission; the second, provision of greater assistance to municipalities through increasing by $400,000 the government's annual contribution to the teachers' and inspectors' superannuation fund; and third, payment of an additional

Repatriates Recall 'Hell Train' Horror

Concentration Camp Privations

By GEORGE MILLER
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Jersey City, N.J., March 16 (AP)— After 32 months of life in Hell . . . Allied internment camps and the terrors of a "hell train" on which they left the Reich, 274 non-official Canadians patiently waited today aboard the Swedish motorship Gripsholm to set foot on free soil again.

Dissatisfaction on the official part of the diplomatic attaches, Red Cross personnel and newspapermen was completed last night when the ship sailed after the Swedish ship docked.

No Canadians were aboard.

Still aboard were some who told of the "hell train" journey. Staff member at Vichy and himself a distinguished lawyer, ending anti-collaborationist. Frenchmen, shot dead by Nazis near the Compiegne internment camp; or seeing Augusta Bisaillon, a Montreal nurse, being a blazing inferno after an Allied bombing and of being sealed in heatless cars in a "hell train" enroute to Liebau, Germany.

Some travellers shoonced the train for being refused drinking water and being kept without food for 24 hours.

RUSSIANS DRIVING RELENTLESSLY ON TOWARD RUMANIA

Whole Central Sector Of German Front In S. Russia Appears In State of Collapse

Moscow, March 16—(AP)—The whole central sector of the German front in Southern Russia appeared in a state of collapse with Russians today, at Marshal Von Kleist's army group, Konev's Red Ukraine army driving relentlessly on toward Rumania.

advance units of his troops reaching positions less than 100 miles from Rumania.

(The Rumanian frontier as described in dispatches.)

Front Moscow is the border set up in 1940 after Russia had taken Bessarabia from Rumania, actually, according to official Russian reports on the Soviet advance, Red Army troops are within 30 miles of the Bessarabian border.)

Field dispatches said two great Soviet drives were making speedy progress toward Nikolaev and Odessa and that the German armies were in danger of being cut off from those potential evacuation ports.

Nikolaev, Russian naval base, is about 100 miles north of Odessa, while Odessa was almost cut off from the Black Sea by Russian big guns covering Bug Lake, south of the city.

Gorgeous Mary Ambrose Railway dispatches said Nikolaev were in danger of being the most northern of the Red Army's railroad stations in their hands which run into Bessarabia and Rumania, via the Bessarabia railroad line. The Russians said their troops were only 30 miles north of the junction.

The Army newspaper, Red Star, said Stormovik bomber bombers were blasting a way for Konev's cavalry as it moves forward through the 25-mile gap on the western side of the Big Bug. The Soviet's Ukraine army pushed 20 miles beyond the river in some places and slightly more than 50 miles southeast of Pervomaisk, junction of the Southern Bug with strong forces. The dispatches said the Germans were covering their withdrawal with a fierce defense of the

VERANDAH DAMAGED WHEN HIT BY CAR

Entering a garage resulted in a verandah at the front of 94 East Dundas Street, early Wednesday evening, when a motor driver lost control of the street curb and crashed into the building.

The street was a glaring sheet of ice on the back of the evening rain that froze as it fell, when Cecil Keller, 41 Bonisteel Street, made a turn off John Street, to proceed west on Dundas. On the slight grade, driven even with the aid of control and sticking some distance on the street, the street would have crashing into the verandah. Damage to the value was negligible, but damage to the home was estimated at $35. Mr. Keller was arrested police, and Mrs. A. Johnstone who resided in the home, that the would make restitution and have the damage repaired immediately.

BOATHOUSE ENTERED AND ARTICLES TAKEN

Sneak thieves broke and entered a boathouse on the Belleville harbor early one day last winter and stole a number of articles. Missing included an axe, two rubber tire mats for shock absorbers in the boathouse and a fire extinguisher. The boathouse is the property of C. Sandwell, 30 St. Paul St. The last Mr. Barkley had occasion to visit the boathouse was over three months ago when everything was found to be in order, he reported to police.

Obituary

MRS. ECKHART (CORBETT), LOOS
(Formerly of Belleville.)

Word has been received by relatives here of the death in Hamilton, on Saturday, of Mrs. Eckhart Loos, formerly Miss Lena Corbett, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Corbett of this city. For many years she lived in Hamilton. Of friends here will regret to learn of her death.

The late Mrs. Loos is survived by her husband; two daughters, Laura and Jean and one son, Corbett; of the R.C.A.F.; one brother, Mr. William Corbett, Oshawa, and one sister, Mrs. John Callaway of Burlington, Ontario.

Mrs. Loos, a native of this city is a niece, and Mr. William Mills and Mr. Harry Mills of this city are nephews of the late Mrs. Loos.

MARGARET ANN PEART
(Canseco)

Trenton, March 16 (Special)—Margaret Ann Peart, age twenty-two months, daughter of Squadron Leader and Mrs. Arthur Peart, died suddenly at home on Saturday, March 11th. The funeral took place on Tuesday, March 14th, and the service in the home and at Carrying Place cemetery was conducted by Ft. Lieut. Cameron, the Protestant Chaplain at the Trenton Station of the R.C.A.F.

MRS. JOHN LYONS
(Kingston.)

Mrs. John Lyons, wife of the Rt. Rev. John Lyons, Bishop of the Anglican Diocese of Ontario, died in the Kingston General Hospital today after a lengthy illness.

To many friends in this city the death of Mrs. Lyons has brought much regret. During her residence in Belleville, when her husband was the Vicar of St. Thomas' Church, Mrs. Lyons was active in the work of the women's organizations in connection with the parish and held a high place in the regard of the parishioners and many personal friends. Prior to coming to Belleville Mrs. Lyons resided in Picton, where the present bishop was the Rector of the Church of St. Mary Magdalene. Thirteen years ago she left Belleville to reside in Prescott, later moving to Kingston, when her husband was made Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario.

Mrs. Lyons was born in Portland, Ontario, and prior to her marriage she was Miss Helena Bolton.

Surviving to mourn her loss and to whom the sympathy of many friends will be extended are her husband, Bishop Lyons; two daughters, Mrs. C. B. Richmond of Picton, and Mrs. A. J. Anderson, Kingston.

Temporary Com. At Rehabilitation Meeting Named

Capt. G. I. Rosser, Veterans' Welfare Officer, Explained Legislation Contemplated

SMALL ATTENDANCE

A temporary organization committee of the Rehabilitation Committee was set up on Wednesday night at a meeting held in the Y.M.C.A. for the rehabilitation of returned men and women in the district, and their following the cessation of hostilities. Capt. G. I. Rosser, Veterans' Welfare Officer, Ottawa, addressed the meeting and explained many various legislations governing rehabilitation of returned men. Major R. J. Wallace presided over the meeting as chairman and Mr. Lorne McDougall acted as secretary.

It was decided that there was not a sufficient number of citizens present at the meeting to appoint a permanent committee, but those who were present were asked to form the nucleus of a committee for the next meeting and make arrangements to have a representative from none of the churches or the Salvation Army represented, and only one of the various organizations was represented. The committee, as appointed, will be composed of representative citizens, representing retail merchants, the Chamber of Commerce, legal and medical professions, and labor. It was decided to call, with 36 members in all.

Rehabilitation Stressed.

The word "rehabilitation" was stressed throughout again during the meeting by the principal speaker, the object of which is to bring a returned man back into civilian life in a job he could do, or be trained to do where he could be interested in his mind and be able to support himself and the family depended of, living, not just have a job that would keep him alive. Amputation cases are being taken care of by the Kiwanis Club at the request of the government, which is part of the Kiwanis International program this year. Working in conjunction with the General Citizens' Committee, which will be formed, all cases, the amputation cases would be turned over to the Kiwanis Club.

Captain Rosser explained the rehabilitation regulations for servicemen and women after their discharges from the services, that after clothing allowance is payable in accordance with regulations, gratuities and a grant of thirty days' pay and dependents' allowance to those with over 183 days' continuous service. In post-discharge medical treatment the ex-service man would receive treatment with allowances for a permanent disability and while in hospitals of the Pensions Department for conditions which are related to service and, for conditions not related to service, free treatment is also available for any remediable conditions, with one or more dependents, a pay period equal to length of service, with a maximum of one year.

Have Obligation to Veterans.

Subject to certain reasonable safeguards, employers are required with respect to those, who left their employment to enlist, to reinstate them in employment under conditions not less favourable than those which would have been applicable had enlistment not taken place. Benefits such as unemployment insurance benefits are payable to discharged persons who are capable of employment but for whom no work is available for a period not exceeding their length of service with a maximum of twelve months.

Vocational training is available to all discharged persons, who have a trade or desire to follow courses in their trade. Maintenance benefits on married and single basis may be paid during such training. Maintenance benefits and allowances may be paid to those who pursue education which was interrupted by their enlistment. Preference in employment is provided in all war contracts to those who have served in the Forces, and preference is provided in the Dominion Civil Service on the same basis as that applying to ex-members of the O.S.

The temporary committee without function until such time as the permanent committee is appointed at a later date. They will work in conjunction with the Dominion Selective Service and the Department of Pensions and National Health, serving in an advisory capacity in all cases which come before them. The meeting was adjourned by the chairman following Captain Rosser's talk.

Transports Collide On Slippery Road

The tractor of a Smith transport was completely demolished in a two-unit crash at the intersection of Foster Ave. and East Dundas St. here early today. The tractor and trailer were travelling in opposite directions when the west-bound vehicle skidded, causing the the crash that resulted in estimated damage of $1,000.

Sidney Mayes, Prescott, told police he was driving a Cunningham and Wells truck loaded with sheep skins, in a westerly direction and following another of the company's trucks. "The street was a glare of ice and as our lead truck passed the city bus, I went to follow. Then I saw the other truck coming apart sprawling and as I passed the bus and retarded my speed the rear end of my truck look-hinted and swerved to the left and into the path of the other transport," Mr. Mayes told police. C. Clegg, 53 Belgians, and a Swiss.

Only Two Days Left To Raise Nearly $5,000 For Red Cross

Figures released by Mr. M. P. Dutt, President of the Belleville Red Cross Society, shows that the sum of $5,000 is the objective of the local campaign committee up to and including March 18th, the end of the first of the drive set on March 6th, which was raised to $10,000 and which is expected to be over-subscribed dollars, with the total to be raised in Belleville and district the national drive for $15,000,000. Figures released by Mr. Dutt at the end of the first week of the campaign might easily be done with the full support of all.

The local campaign committee reports that the response has been gratifying, but they are thoughtful that everybody have donated according to their means. Figures released by Mr. M. P. Levy St., Toronto, was driving the Smith transport and had no trouble avoiding collision. The left front portion of the Smith tractor was driven beneath the rear of the wheels and radiator was driven back into the engine block.

As the result of the impact sheep skins were strewn over the roadway, as the rear of the skidding Cunningham and Wells truck struck shattered, allowing the load to shift and dump into the street. The load was loaded back on the truck and the only damage repaired was to the cab.

The damage estimated to the Smith transport, Prescott, totalled $600. The icy condition of the street was attributed the main factor in the crash.

Thirteen Persons Forced to Escape In Night Attire

Thirteen persons, including four small children, were forced to escape in their nightclothes early Thursday morning when fire, at an unknown origin almost completely gutted a four-apartment brick dwelling house at 31 Bridge Street. The fire, which broke out in the basement of the building, caused considerable destruction to household effects of the four families.

Five persons in the upstairs apartments jumped from upstairs windows, when they discovered that the stairway was blocked off. One man, Sanford Hughes, received a cut on his leg requiring stitches, and a grunt of thirty days' pay and dependents' allowance to those with over 183 days' continuous service. In post-discharge medical treatment the ex-service man would receive treatment with allowances for a permanent disability and while in hospitals of the Pensions Department for conditions which are related to service and, for conditions not related to service, free treatment is also available for any remediable conditions, with one or more dependents, a pay period equal to length of service, with a maximum of one year.

Consider 8-Hour Working Day For Garage Mechanics

Establishment of an eight-hour working day for garage mechanics as a means to absorb more skilled labor as part of a rehabilitation plan in the post-war period is being considered by Queen's Park members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Automotive Association were told Wednesday evening at their regular monthly dinner meeting held at the Y. M. C. A.

One of the best attendances in recent months was seen at the meeting with members being present from all parts of the district. It was the first time that the newly-elected president, Don Brown, had assumed his position as chairman and he called a program schedule calling for meetings to be concluded at ten-thirty. It was decided, that the usual cash door prize donated by the association, would be withdrawn and in its stead, members and operators would be invited to sponsor games for each night.

Errol Greenleaf spoke briefly to the meeting indicating he liked the idea of the 48-hour week but stated he did not think it good policy for operators to stop work after eight hours, although it might be all right for the help. Fred Douglas intimated that he considered the measure was intended only to affect employees.

Absent Mere Mechanics

Lorne Vaughan stated the measure was being brought out purely as a rehabilitation program to absorb more mechanics into the industry in the post war period. It was thought that the hourly work rate as charged by garages might have to be adjusted to meet with increased operating costs should the eight-hour mechanics' week ever be brought into effect.

Garage Operators' Associations across the province have been invited to communicate with Hon. Gordon Daley, Minister of Labor, regarding their views on the matter or an eight-hour day for mechanics. A majority of the members were in favor of the 48-hour week when the matter was put to a vote.

Guest speaker for the evening was Levy St. Transport Co. Driver

Transport Traffic was completely tied up in the Belleville area with the coming of spring, their trucks unable to negotiate the roads. Weather reports from other parts of the province began coming in, the traffic there pointed to the roads also delayed despite the fact that the provincial highway department went all out in its efforts to keep highways sanded.

One driver of a Burford truck was heard to state that it took him over two hours to travel the eight miles of highway to Belleville from Port Hope. Conditions in Belleville for a period as well sanded but the highways were found to be in good shape, in an extremely slippery condition. From Oshawa to Belleville the same was reported with some sets were warned to proceed with extreme caution.

Moderating temperatures at midmorning Thursday began to eat the ice on the highways, however, reports by eleven o'clock transports were again beginning to roll. As direct aftermath of the icy condition of the streets and highways, several accidents were reported at both provincial and city police offices.

Attention Pres. Shortt And Other Anglers

Toronto, March 16 —(CP)— Establishment of a separate game and fish department for the tourist industry was suggested by Len Stapleton, representative of the Northern Ontario Tourist Association, speaking to members of the Standing Committee on Game and Fish and Game Commissioner Mr. Hughes and northern outfitters believed such a department should be set up to look after fish as any other department, with a minister in charge. His believed that rural resources of the province had been too long neglected and that a department could determine that there was an end to exploitation.

The government is now on survey of the recommendations laid before it. You will need again to-morrow.

John McGuire of Comber, vice president of the Essex County Sportsmen's Association, asked the committee that steps be taken to set up a game department.

Mr. McGuire said the association wanted "stricter enforcement of the game laws." He believed that private property should be permitted to assist in making enforcement of the game laws more stringent and widespread than at present.

Mr. Stapleton, speaking for the Georgian Bay Association, told the committee commercial fishermen should be brought into game fish and Protective Association who asked protection of fishery. A. E. Smith, for the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters who presented a brief making recommendations regarding game and fish and reforestation in Ontario.

Mr. "Mac" McCarthy, representative of Bayfields at Peterborough, contended that operators direct their advertising in an apologetic manner toward the holders of A-1 gasoline ration books, who, he said, would not be considered the life industry in the post-war period. The matter of garage supplies and waterline suppliers to garages, he also brought up for discussion.

Slippery Highways Delay Traffic

Highways in the Belleville district and throughout the eastern part of the province presented a potential hazard to motorists and potential transport over Wednesday night when an early morning snow flurry turned to sleet and rain covering pavements with a coating of greasy ice which kept motorcars and transbarin. It would be impossible to assume equality among them under existing conditions, the Ontario government had been advised that any attempt to arrive at equality of opportunity for all citizens would aggravate the inequalities which now exist."

The most difficult aspect was the "tremendous difference in methods of administration between the province" which in itself represented an insuperable barrier to the immediate solution of the problem.

Settlers Encouraged

The premier said he revealed Wednesday night what the government proposed in the way of the sum-total of misleading statements made in the past few days which have been circulated by the press.

He outlined what he had said in the last election campaign of last August about revision of the whole question of real estate taxation, assuming 40 per cent of the cost of education but said it was never assumed that it could be done overnight.

There at any time, however, had there been any suggestion of departing from those principles of the government for the undertaking given, the statement said.

After Five Years

Five years ago Hitler committed that act of aggression and transgression which indicated in no uncertain manner that he was set on the path of war and that the sooner or later there would break out the greatest struggle of all time with the Nazi Germans attempting the conquest of the world. In March 1939 he destroyed as far as aggression can destroy the prosperous little state of Czechoslovakia. A year before he had seized Austria and about six months earlier before the seizure of Czechoslovakia he caused the Munich crisis. The outcome of this latter event left no guarantees of continued peace.

With that the encroachment began upon Czechoslovak independence. Hitler was bent on evil and he soon showed the sheer diabolism of Nazi policy. In treachery and faithlessness Hitler has never been equalled in all time.

The Czechs were first to feel the brutality of Hun oppression and tyranny, its murderous, vast scale, wanton starvation of the people, looting and deliberate efforts to wipe out a race. The total of terrorism he has since created, the untold heart woe of mankind, has not any scale which can compute such a toll of inhumanity and bloodshed as he has caused.

Victims of the Hun terrorism have ever resisted the enemy. That is to be said to their glory. They have never yielded and have never lost hope. Now they have the very important facts of allied victory in support of their faith and stouthearted defiance of Hitler. The Czechoslovaks see victory nearing.

They have the hope that will not be disappointed, soon to be realised in the restoration of liberty and the punishment of the evildoers, Hitler and his gang, and the overthrow and elimination of Germany as a state that will no more be able to war upon the peace of humanity.

The Czechs have the proud knowledge to support them that they never quailed before the brutal henchmen of the Nazi leader. Czechoslovak honor has stood the test and merits the victory that will not be long delayed.

Czechoslovakia is a symbol of all the United Nations which have never bodied from the path of duty but have stood bravely facing the enemy.

Czechoslovakia has suffered greatly for the cause of right and moral order on earth and will have her great record of her soldiers in free lands serve the cause of democracy and the Czech underground lives to punish the Hun.

The flood of evils which Hitler released upon the world will serve him nothing except through the righteous indignation which these evils have stirred up in the free world and in the Allied underground to bring him to the judgment hall of the world. Valiantly the Czechs and the other Allied peoples have fought. The tramp of their victorious troops can be heard.

Two Big Battles Won

(Buffalo Courier-Express)

Two direct indices of the course of the war against Germany are the report on 1943 lend-lease to Russia and the safe arrival of another huge American convoy in Britain.

Foreign Economic Administrator Lea T. Crowley reports that since October, 1941, a total of 8,400,000 tons of supplies valued at $4,243,804,000 has been moved from the United States to Russia, 6,000,000 tons of it in 1943 alone. A total of 7,800 planes has been sent to Russia, more than 5,000 of them in 1943—and at least 3,000 of these went all the way by air.

His Simple Funeral

Irwin S. Cobb characteristically wanted a simple funeral and his wishes were met for the members of his family and about sixty friends gathered in an undertaking chapel in New York for a private funeral service. Twice the organ played Negro spirituals, "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot" and "Deep River" while the minister recited the words of Robert Louis Stevenson's

"Under the wide and starry sky,
Dig the grave and let me lie,
Glad did I live and gladly die,
And I lay me down with a will."

Service closed with the benediction.

Et requiem for him who had written so humanly of life. Truly of him it could be said,

"Home is the sailor, home from the sea,
And the hunter home from the hill."

His ashes rested in an urn on a small stand hidden by a bank of red roses and dogwood blossoms formed the background. The ashes will be taken in about three weeks to Paducah, Ky., for burial at the foot of a dogwood tree as he had directed.

But his friends in his birthplace, Paducah, have already laid plans to raise a memorial to the late humorist, possibly a Cobb museum to include furnishings from the Cobb homestead in that place, manuscripts of his stories, letters and other mementoes. So the melody of his life will linger on.

When It's Time to Tap

(New York Herald Tribune)

Here's what you need when it's time to tap:
A wood shod sleigh with an ironwood tongue,
An elm-hopped hogshead with a funnel in the bung.
And a spigot in the end to draw off the sap:
A bit and an auger and some sumac spiles,
Some buckets and barrels and an old sap pan,
Some flannel to strain the syrup in the can
And the sap wood stacked by the arch in piles;
A slow yoke of oxen and a gangling guy,
And bright as a chipmunk and noisy as a jay,
But ready for work on a good sap day,
A small boy hustling to hang the buckets up.

—Ines George Gridley.

What Price Spy!

(Ottawa Citizen)

From Sweden comes word that the Nazis are offering $57.90 a week for male spies in Denmark, and only $28.95 for women. This is a rude jolt to our treasured fancy of European espionage, where lovely Mata Haris turn men and countries to their doom, risking death for failure but richly rewarded for success. It seems, in fact, a direct slap at Hitler's vaunted Nordic womanhood.

On second thought, however, it is even more of a tribute to the spirit of the Danish underground. It is likely that the Nazis realize that it takes more than a pretty black dress, ropes of pearls, veiled glances and insinuating wiles to entice the Danish patriot from his duty. What the job probably needs is strength, endurance and a taste for cold-bloodedness, and the Nazis seem to be paying accordingly.

Naming Children

It is in the naming of the young that the Acadian heart is joyous, Harnett T. Cox, writes in the Saturday Night of Louisiana." The most dazzling feats of nomenclature are those in which a family sets itself a goal in uniformity and never loses sight of it. A letter or a syllable is chosen, and names must conform, or needless of whether such names exist in any language. Down Lafourche way I learned of four children: Carm, Carmel, Carmelite, Carmandie. Down Pontier came a classic case: Valmir, Valmore, Valsin, Valcour, Valerien. Others have told me of the resourceful Mayards of Abbeville, in the 20's line. Their children were Odile, Odella, Odalia, Odessa, Olivet, Olivia, Ophelia, Odelin, Octave, Octavia, Ovide, Onesia, Olite, Otta, Omea and Opta.

British war finance aims at raising the maximum possible sum by taxation, and after taxation, by war savings. More than 50% of the 1943-44 expenditure is being met out of taxes, and war savings account for a large part of the remainder.

SEED TIME

Next it will be seed time.
White the earth with snow.
All who toiled and tilled
Past disputing know
Winter's soon to go.
Sun and stars have planned it;
After some the rule.
Wise men understand it;
March brings spring again.

Sage and scholar know it,
Fixed as moon and star;
Rhyming to a poet—
To vassel, sail and spar,
Zone and season are.
So the laws arrange it,
Tempests bite and sting;
Time will never change it,
After them—the spring.

A Pioneering Country Young and Vigorous

By VERNON M. KIPP
(Special to Ottawa Journal and The Ontario Intelligencer)

London, February 16.—Until we saw in Scotland, in Northern England and the Midlands, was a sketchy picture of Britain at work to beat the Boche, and it was an impressive impression of the determination of the British people to win the war at no matter what sacrifice.

We are slight more than Scottish girls doing heavy work in an Edinburgh tramway. We saw girls and women building aircraft, so intent on their precise tasks that most of them barely looked up as we went by. We saw rivers filled with the world's shipping, of shipyards turning out ships that will be heard from a little later as we come to final conclusions with Germany and Japan.

And what we saw was essentially a young and vigorous country—in the throes of total warfare. Here were gigantic industries on ground that was bare a few years ago. Here was the spirit of improvisation and adaptation and imagination which will be taken Britain around the world.

Early one morning they took us, from Glasgow, in a police launch for a survey of the Clyde. For miles the river was lined with deep-sea ships flying the flags of many nations, but mostly British. The destination was John Brown's, the now famous shipyard in the world, where we tramped the decks of the nameless ships and saw the berth from which the enormous Queen Elizabeth had been launched into the river hardly as wide as her great length. There was a call at John Brown's offices (there is now no John Brown in the firm, but his sandstone images are there), and we saw, among other things, a model of Canadian places being unloaded for the British breakfast table. Canadian apples, hotels we frequent, it seems, when in Liverpool said, we had the privilege of visiting the headquarters of Western Approaches organization of the Royal Navy which guards the sea lanes of the Atlantic and directs the daily battle against the U-boats in that area. "The Queen" said a high officer, "is a dead duck" and he spoke with quiet confidence. Then in another place, another naval officer advanced the view that the real explanation of the collapse of the enemy's submarine effort lies in the fact that his best underwater commanders have been killed or captured. The conquered submarine commanders, he said, must have three or four years of training; Germany has few men left with such qualifications, so devastating has been the British defence and attack.

Postscript: I am writing now to the accompaniment of sunfire and bombers' roaring.

This afternoon Mr. Brendan Bracken, the Minister of Information, gave a tea for the Canadian editors, and Viscount Bennett was one of the guests. He looks well, just back from Canada, another Liverpool visit has given him new spirits, was most affable, and much interested in Canadian affairs. He lives in the country, but comes to London by train—first class—every day to his office.

Lord Beaverbrook is the one who is luncheon by the Newspaper Proprietors' Association. Lord Rothermere spoke of the importance of standardizing and economizing the bonds which unite Britain and Canada, but thought sentiment rather than formal acts. A reception at the Admiralty, with many important officials present, completed the program.

Meanwhile the Battle of London proceeds. There is a steady rumble of guns, like distant thunder, with periodical blasts from some nearby, and the sky-battles are often witnessed in the momentary silences. London is under fire.

VICHY RADIO STORY DISCOVERED BY FRENCH SOURCES IN LONDON

London, March 16, (CP)—The German-controlled Vichy radio, elaborating on its report of the seizure of the leaders of France's underground army, said today an automobile license plate provided the clue that led to their arrest, but French sources here discounted the whole story as a flimsy fabrication of the Vichy radio.

Vichy security police questioned 20,000 people in vain before a police agent noticed a piece of an automobile used in a raid, the report said.

YOU'D BE SURPRISED!

By GEORGE W. STIMPSON

Protected, 1944, by The George Adams Service.

ENGLISH SPARROWS

The millions of English sparrows now in America are descendants of the few birds brought across the Atlantic with the deliberate purpose, of establishing the species in this country.

The first English sparrows were brought to the United States in 1850, when eight pairs were imported under the auspices of Nicholas Pike and other directors of the Brooklyn Institute.

The birds were released in Brooklyn the following spring, but they did not survive.

In 1853, while on his way to assume the consul-generalship of Portugal, Pike made arrangements for a second shipment of English sparrows to America.

Some of these birds were released in the city of Eastern New York harbor, while the remainder were kept in captivity until the spring of 1853, when they were liberated in Brooklyn.

These two shipments involved a total of about a hundred birds. The purpose in bringing them to America was to protect the shade trees from injury-eating insects, particularly the "span worm," which is the larva of the cankerworm.

Geometrid moth.

In 1872, Biological Survey has records of 15 direct importations of English sparrows between the years 1852 and 1881, they were received at Cincinnati, St. Louis, San Francisco and other places.

In 1899 the city of Philadelphia paid out two thousand pairs of sparrows.

Only those importations were not made by persons interested in introducing the foreign species through the bird, to America simply because they wanted to see the birds that they had been used to seeing in the Old Country; others did it for the mere novelty or the enterprise.

It was soon learned, however, that the birds were of little value as insect destroyers and that they were a nuisance to the community.

They multiplied rapidly and in the course of a few years spread to all sections of the country.

It is believed that these birds are now decreasing in number in America, both in urban and rural districts.

Nature, it seems, has taken them in hand and is giving them their proper place in her system of economy.

NATIONAL SELECTIVE SERVICE

IF YOU EMPLOY MALE PERSONS

Have they all complied with the Military Call-Up?

Under an Order signed under authority of the National Selective Service Mobilization Regulations:

1. Every employer of male employees must make an examination of the documents of these employees, and forward advice to the effect to fail to produce documents showing good standing under Mobilization Regulations.
2. This examination must be completed by May 1st, 1944.
3. "EMPLOYER" includes industrial and commercial employers, and also farm operators.
4. "MALE EMPLOYEE" includes all male persons working for you, including relatives.
5. A booklet, "EMPLOYERS' GUIDE", has been sent to industrial and commercial employers. A return post card has gone to farm operators.
6. If you employ any male person, and have not been notified of the survey booklet or post card, contact the nearest Employment and Selective Service Office and ask for the booklet.
7. Obligation to make the examination rests on each and every employer of male persons, and employers must act.
8. Penalties are provided for failure to carry out this examination, and for male employees failing to assist by refusal to produce documents.

Interfaith Meeting Held at Kingston

Kingston, Ont., March 15—(CP)—For the first time in local history an Interfaith Fellowship meeting with members of the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish religions attending was held last night.

Sponsored by the B'Nai B'Rith, Kingston Lodge, the meeting had as guest speakers Father R. B. Plunkett, editor, Canadian Register, on behalf of the Catholic Church; Rev. B. S. K. Seeley, dean of Ontario, representing the Protestant Church; and Dr. Harry J. Stern, Rabbi, Temple Emanuel, Montreal, who spoke on behalf of the Jewish Faith, with Dr. R. C. Wallace, Principle of Queen's University, as chairman.

Father Plunkett stressed the fact that cooperation between the three religious could only be for social, economic and temporal purposes.

Dean Seeley pointed out that members of the different religious could either spend their energies fighting a civil war or join against a common foe.

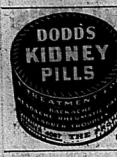
Dr. Stern declared that there should be united religions. They had the same beginning and the same hope. There were 4,000,000 in Canada and the United States who were saying Hitler's game and were breeding racial hatred. They would have to be watched in the post-war period.

Overseas Shipments Of Meat Continue At High Level Mark

Ottawa, March 16—(CP)—Overseas shipments of meat from Canada's at present are believed to be making records and every advantage is being taken of shipping facilities because of the danger that less space may be available later on, Agriculture Department officials said today.

The shipping situation had improved recently, but there still were insufficient vessels to move the vast supplies of pork and beef being marketed in Canada.

Officials said the experience had been that shipping space varied, with heavy movement possible one week and only limited space accommodated the next and they had no assurance that the recent improvement would continue.



RATPROOFING AN ART

Ratproofing of ships has become such an effective art that those built to ratproofing specifications do not have to be fumigated to destroy rats.

Jack Miner's Bird Sanctuary Featured In Weekly Magazine

Feeding 50,000 ducks and geese a year has brought fame to Jack Miner, one of Canada's best known private citizens. Last year he was decorated with the Order of the British Empire by King George and this week the story of his bird's work and his famous bird sanctuary at Kingsville, Ontario, is told to the millions of readers of The Saturday Evening Post.

In "A Yankee Best Friend is Jack Miner" the Post article tells of the thousands of visiting who have marvelled at the two acre lake on the preserve so crowded with geese "it looks like Coney Island on a hot Sunday."

Over 100,000 of the 150 birds have flown away wearing a leg band that included a postal verse. "Putting on that vest out of the Bible was the thing that made my bird banding work famous and spread the author, John Burton Tigrett, quotes Jack. "Most came in my traps, but many came was reading a calendar I had bought in Chicago. It was a Bible-text Army basis. I got to thinking about their work and the mighty task they had ahead of them and the need of my birds and the strange places they'd be flying. So I had printed on us they could become food for both body and soul."

These banded birds have later been found from South Dakota to Tennessee, from Labrador to South America. Thousands of the same birds came to my traps. I put on a banded and repaired and have left a bird sanctuary that has since made Jack Miner an international authority on migratory birds, available is illustrated with color photographs of Jack and Mrs. Miner and some of their thousands of winged visitors.

Picton Airman Killed in Car

Pickering, Ont., March 16—(CP)—One man, an airman from the R. A. F. School at Picton, Ont., was killed and two other men were injured last night when the automobile in which they were riding skidded on an icy curve and skidded into a transport truck.

The men were en route from Toronto to Ottawa at the time.

In hospital at nearby Ajax are Cpl. Orville Stewart, 23, of Lindsay, Ont., and Robert Holton, 26, of Ottawa. Neither is seriously injured.

Next-of-kin of the dead airman have been notified and his name will be announced shortly.

Suspects Captured Thru Sale of Pelts

Finlay Forks, B.C., March 16—(CP)—Sales of 16 marten pelts led to the arrest of a suspect in the murder of Mrs. O. Chisholm in Beaumer, 32, and Hans Pfeiffer, 42, in the remote mountain country of north-central interior British Columbia, police disclosed yesterday. The name of the arrested man was not disclosed. Police said the man had arrested Tuesday on a "holding" charge under the Indian Act while in the district they have been closely watched after it was learned that $1,000 in fur sales had disappeared from the lonely cabin belonged to the two trappers.

GREATER CHANCE TO RECOVER

Toronto, March 16—(CP)—Mrs. Mal-Geo. Gerrard, Deputy Surgeon-General, United States Army Medical Corps, told the American College of Surgeons meeting here yesterday that because of progress in war medicine and surgery a soldier wounded in this war has a three-times-greater chance of recovery than in the First Great War.

FORMAL CHARGES LAID

Montreal, March 16—(CP)—Formal charges of murdering Det. Sgt. Henry Farmer of the Montreal detective force were read to two teenage youths yesterday, a short time after a coroner's jury had held them criminally responsible for the policeman's death.

Leo-Paul Boisvert, 17, and Fernand Clermont, 18, were remanded until March 23 after the charges were read.

Three Arrested On Fraud Charge

Toronto, March 16 — (CP) — Three men were arrested here today on charges of conspiracy to defraud laid in connection with the recent collapse of Canadian Commercial Corporation.

Max Silverman, 39, of Montreal, was arrested at the Royal York Hotel here by detectives from the Toronto City Police and Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Later Joseph Weissner of the Ottawa Citizen Press Gallery, and Maurice Sinclair, 39, of Montreal, were arrested on the same charge.

Silverman was released from custody on $1,000 cash bail.

Shortly after the arrests of the alleged "ring," the Ontario Athletic Commission announced the suspension of Silverman's boxing promoter's license. Among three men, whose names they did not announced had been given for assistance in halls where boxing bouts were being staged under the jurisdiction of the Athletic Boxing Commission.

The Athletic Commission submitted the names of the three to the boxing authorities but their names were withheld.

Since that time police have been investigating the case.

O.A.C. officials learned of the "fixing" of Saturday night's hockey match at Massey Hall, Feb. 26, when the Commodores defeated the Varsity Blues, and paid a sum of money to "throw the match."

WEDDINGS

LYNCH—HENRY

A lovely wedding was solemnized in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Toronto, on Saturday, March 11th, at 3:30 o'clock, when Rev. A. L. D'Orsonnens performed the marriage Helen Margaret Henry, daughter of Mrs. Henry and the late Mr. Edward Henry, to Ronald Eugene Lynch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lynch, Readymans and Daffodils, contrasting colorfully to a background of ferns, decorated the church on the occasion. Miss Dorothy Lynch presided at the console of the organ and delightfully rendered "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother."

Given in marriage by her grandfather, the bride looked charming in picture as she entered the church to the strains of the Bridal March from Lohengrin. Her wedding gown was a lovely brocaded satin, beautifully simple in style, fashioned on princess lines falling into a full skirt, sweetheart neckline and tight fitting sleeves ending in pointed cuffs over hands. She wore a cape length veil of embroidered tulle illusion caught to her hair with a Mary Queen of Scots headdress dusted with white velvet forget-me-nots and carried a bouquet of Better Times roses.

Miss Helen Cecchetti, as bridesmaid, was dressed in dusky pink georgette and matching shoulder-length veil of tulle falling from a headdress of pink velvet roses in her hair. She carried a Colonial bouquet.

Mr. John Sean acted as groomsman and the ushers were Messrs. Martin Hayden and Martin Prendeu.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the "Ye Old Tavern" when the bride's mother received guests attired in a navy gown of sun dack blue crepe with matching feather hat and corsage of Talisman roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother who was wearing for the occasion a dinner gown of black velvet accented with sequins and corsage of Rapture roses.

The bridal couple motored to New York City and points south for their wedding trip, the bride travelling in a Russian green wool suit and hat, brown muskrat coat and brown accessories. On their return they will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were from Watertown, N.Y., Toronto, Kingston and Madoc.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

The Tired, Weak, Exhausted, Depressed Feeling

I recently met a physician whom I had separated from years before in his University training. It informed me that he had been so impressed with the results of his treatment of a number of cases of allergy that he had given up general practice and was now a specialist in Allergic Conditions. His description of what appeared to me to be cases caused by infection or by some other condition which he found were really caused by allergy, seemed clear.

Recently an article appeared in Chatelaine Magazine, Toronto, on a longer article which appeared in the Journal of the American Medical Association. It was called "The Tired, Weak, Exhausted, Depressed Patient," written by Dr. Alvin E. Tumbull, Boston, Mass.

Many people who are tired, weak, exhausted and depressed are suffering from poisoning due to allergy. These symptoms are not imaginary but are caused by substances. These patients are ill. They suffer and need care and treatment. Understand the underlying causes of their trouble.

The symptoms are many and may affect any or all parts of the body. There is headache, confusion, irritability, change in disposition, heavy feeling in the head, "distress" across dry throat, "distress" across chest, "smothering" or "air hunger" feeling, sleep poorly, and are not rested in the morning.

What brings on these symptoms? Almost any substance may cause them, strain, wear and tear or life, infection or disease, emotional upset, fatigue, overwork may occur, they open up the way for the appearance of the symptoms. Dampness—tiredness, depression, etc.—

Mental and physical illness can be caused by the stress, strain, fatigue of excessive, on an allergic individual.

These patients are given skin tests for all the foods in the product arranged, by avoiding the foods to which they are sensitive (allergic). After relief is obtained, the foods of allergic foods can bring on the symptoms again.

Dr. Tumbull, Boston, finds different food substances in testing each patient as in his opinion everyone should be tested for allergy before they do not know it.

Every patient is thoroughly examined — blood, teeth, metabolism tests, eyes and throat and given instructions as to diet and other health habits.

C.C.F. LEADER HEARD

Simcoe, March 16. (CP)— H. B. Jolliffe, Leader, C.C.F. Ontario, said last night in a Haldimand-Norfolk by-election campaign here that the Progressive-Conservative Government of Ontario "had not faced the fundamental issue of the times and was not prepared to act and see how to deal after the war with men and women now in the armed services and war industry.

BEAUTY

By Helen Jameson

Floating Manicure Made Pleasing Phase.

There's enough conflict in this unhappy world without complainers and fault-finders, so glad to get out of their own wherever they go. Shopping is no fun, and it is just as bad when you're called in to help your busy, busy conveniently-forgetful sisters. A manicure flitter once told me that it is not unusual for a customer to hand along a flutter of her family history, tell about her children and her dog. The time has to appear interested she must be the perfect listener. I think there are few fussy customers, who find and fume about the placement of a button.

Be punctual if you have an appointment with doctor, dentist or hairdresser. Reality shop proprietors say that their greatest trouble is with patrons who come thirty-two minutes to half an hour late and upset the operator's schedule for the day. Make it a point to arrive ten minutes after the time; you can use those minutes for a much-needed breathing spell.

Keep plenty of small change in your purse for bus fares and taxis. Handing out a five dollar bill may be a sore trial to conductors. Do all these things, and you'll keep young and young and be a treat to the eye.

USE QUICK-SERVE BEANS OFTEN

HOME-BAKED BEANS WITH TOMATO JUICE

Try this recipe for Old-Fashioned Home-Baked Beans, ready in only 30 minutes! Use Quick-Serve Beans!

2 slices bacon or 2 tbsps. bacon dripping
½ cup chopped onion
¾ cup tomato juice
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon salt

1 can Van Camp's Quick-Serve Beans

½ to 1 tsp. dry mustard
1½ cups Tomato Juice
1½ cups boiling water
1 or 2 tbsps. brown sugar

METHOD: Cut bacon into pieces, fry. Remove bacon and cook onion in frying pan. Add tomato juice, seasonings and blend well. Add beans and bring to boil. Add to casserole and bake uncovered, along with the remaining bacon pieces, for one hour. Bring to a full boil. Then cover and simmer 30 minutes. Add boiling hot water, stir and serve. Cooking time 30 minutes. Serves 6.

Or, if you prefer, add boiling water to beans, cover and cook for 30 minutes. Remove cover and cook for additional 5 minutes. Then add remaining ingredients and proceed as above.

Van Camp's Quick-Serve Beans are perfect if you prefer beans with less sauce.

IMMEDIATE BREAK IN BALKAN FRONT NOT LOOKED FOR

Russia Though Closely Bound to Germany is Anxious to Get Out of War

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 18, (CP Cable)—Reports from abroad of peace moves in the Balkan nations to get out of the war before the Russian avalanche hits them are making the biggest diplomatic news in Britain but informed opinion here is not optimistic that there will be any immediate break away from Germany by Rumania and Bulgaria.

Peace rollers put out by itinerant politicians and diplomats in Ankara seem to have fizzled out and now the intrigueing Prince Paul, his Slovak Minister, Tatarescu and the Italian friend of the late King Boris of Bulgaria, are in the Middle East, with what appears to be Rumanian Premier Antonescu, to see his chances of quick success in this diplomatic manoeuvre are remote.

While Russian and possibly Allied attacks probably will knock down the German Balkan bastion during the spring and summer campaign, any break in the Balkan front as the participants picture is not looked for.

London's Attitude

London is generally inclined to view the many rumors from the Balkans about peace efforts with a jaundiced eye but the emergency of Stalingrad, a man with more stature than any previous opposition Nazi gives the hardy sons of peace, is more ominous than usual.

The Daily Express, saying most people believe Germany is desperately near than any other paper here, goes on:

"We have seen Italy make the most of her chance to get out of the war and we must add in and half-out. Finland made a separate peace on the swinging doors. So we shall not be in too much hurry to make room for the Russians."

Beneath Cheerly

Beneath the cheerful

Bound to Germany

Rumania has been more closely bound to Germany than any other Balkan State. She provides one-third of Germany's oil and many of her young men are soldiers fought on the Russian front and on the Stalingrad front. Her Premier Antonescu is the man from the Eastern front, she is personally anxious to get out of the war.

Germany is the current hope for this step and it will have to be determined by Allied reprisals if it may be a regrouping. He might be acting for the government or for a strong opposition. Before the war he was the link between the Royal family and the Liberal party, and a confidante, too, of the strong peasant party.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the R.C.A.F. Somewhere In England, March 18—(CP)—Sgt. Richard Quaife of Beverly, Sask., one of the more recent winners of the D.F.M., is a member of a bomber group, wasted no time striking the destruction of Berlin in his first operation, an attack on Magdeburg—one trip, one combat, one Jerry down.

He was mid-upper gunner in a Halifax squadron. Making the journey plane, an MKLLO, riddled the Canadian plane with cannon and machine-gun fire and shattered Quaife's turret. But he kept firing with his three serviceable guns and saw the Messerschmitt turn on its back burst into flames and crash.

Another immediate D.F.M. winner is Fl. Sgt. Alex Cilberry (733 Rae St., Regina). He was on the plane as skipper of "Z for Zombie," the pane which Flight Lieut. Cam Brown won the Victoria Cross. When the Jerry plane which Quaife knocked down was attacking Cilberry was just making his bombing run. Aside from wrecking the gunner's turret and many night fighter removed the Astrol hatch, set the navigator by Very cartridges and destroyed all the pilot's instruments except the compass, holed the undercarriage brought about loss of one propeller blade and the intercommunication system and put one engine out of industry which was started in Regina early after the outbreak of war has increased very rapidly and sugar crushers are now operating in borne, Ont., with 13 operational bombing trips back of his record. He went from accounts to airgunner and from corporal to Pilot Officer in a hurry. Now he's navigating with the Thunderbird Squadron.

Gazing at the Prayer Rug, the first Canadian operational base formed overseas, with three huts fields and three squadrons, each officers' N.C.O.'s' and airmen's—is in the sandy lands of Lincolnshire. Its C.O. is Wing Commander J. Wilson of Saint John, N.B. Its P.O. M.W. Mitt Warren of Dereham, Ont., who recently finished a tour of operations with the Fighter Command and received the D.F.C., now is instructing at an R.C.A.F. Conversion Unit.

A Toronto lad who came to Great Britain 10 years ago on a six weeks' holiday and stayed to become a well-known vocalist with a top British band now is a flight lieutenant in the R.C.A.F. which manned of a technical training command station. He is Fl. Lt. Charles Clifford Fitzgerald who used to sing on the Canadian radio and was a tenor soloist at Sherbourne St. United Church, Toronto.

Wings Abroad, R.C.A.F. overseas publication, suggests that what they need over the Bay of Biscay now is a traffic cop. The suggestion came after a Fortress, manned by five Canadians collided head on with an unidentified plane. P/O. H. E. Hillocat, the pilot, managed to regain control after plunging 2,000 feet.

LaFleche Denies Coldwell's Charges Of Interference With the C.B.C.

Ottawa, March 18—(CP)—War Services Minister LaFleche yesterday denied charges by M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F., leader, that he was guilty of interference with the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

At the opening business session of the House Radio Committee Mr. Coldwell said Gen. LaFleche, in participating in a cancellation announcement of an open forum broadcast entitled "Things to Come" and in passing on job applications to the CBC, was violating CBC ministerial relations and was guilty of interference.

Gen. LaFleche said he had merely asked for information regarding the program after receiving a considerable number of critical communications on it and that the decision to cancel the program was the acting general manager's and not his. The program had already been revised and was still continuing.

He had merely passed on applications for jobs which had been wrongly addressed to him.

"I never attempt to use my influence on any appointment," he added.

Mr. Coldwell asked for production of a letter sent out by the committee of a list of staff members who had been engaged at the CBC during the last six months because "I want to do a little checking."

Spirited Exchange

Mr. Coldwell said Gen. LaFleche had admitted his guilt of interference by his admission of having referred the matter of criticism of the program to the CBC management.

"Don't you put words into my mouth," retorted Gen. LaFleche, rising. "Would it be that you were dissatisfied with the results of the broadcast as far as your own interests are concerned?"

Mr. Coldwell jumped to his feet. "I don't like the inference of the minister's remarks and all I can say is I took part in the broadcast which was in connection with the said."

Gen. LaFleche said he would take into consideration a suggestion from G. N. Boucher (PC-Carleton) that the minister might later make some recommendations on whether his relations with the CBC should be varied in any degree.

W. Ross MacDonald (I.-Brantford City) said he thought that any recommendations on the CBC setup should come from the Radio Committee and not from witnesses.

Mr. Boucher asked if Gen. LaFleche was ready to suggest any changes which could be made in the CBC's policy of handling political speeches.

Calls Publicity "Stick"

The minister said he believed Mr. Bogcher was referring to the speech which John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader was not permitted to broadcast from Hamilton, Ont., a few months ago.

"I wouldn't believe that Mr. Bracken was responsible for that publicity stunt, but it was a slick piece of work," said Gen. LaFleche.

"The minister wouldn't be trying to express an opinion as an expert on slickness?" asked J. G. Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre).

Gen. LaFleche said he was "sorry and I didn't wish to hurt anyone's feelings."

Mr. Diefenbaker asked if any consideration had been given to the appointment of a representative of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association to the CBC Board of Governors.

"Consideration was given to such an appointment long before you were kind enough to make the suggestion in the House a few weeks ago," said Gen. LaFleche.

"Can I take it then that the remaining governor to be named will be a representative of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association?" Mr. Diefenbaker asked.

"It is up to you to take it the way you like. The remaining governor has not been named yet," replied the minister.

AIR FORCE GARDENERS

LONDON—(CP)—Produce worth $1,881,000 was supplied to 33 R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. stations from allotments on spare ground at airfields in the United Kingdom in 1943. All the work on the gardens is done by R.A.F., R.C.A.F. and women personnel in their spare time.

Beef Producers Ask Embargo be Lifted on Shipments to U.S.

St. Thomas, Ont., March 18, (CP)—Stewart Brown of Sheddon, president of the Ontario Beef Producers' Association, said today the Association has received from Hon. Dana Porter, Department of Agriculture to life the embargo on shipments to the United States or to supply allies for exporting some of Canada's beef supply to the United Kingdom.

Brown said there are "too many beef cattle in Ontario not getting marketed because of restrictions." The Association believes granting of requests made to Ottawa would go considerably to prove the situation for producers.

The embargo on cattle has been in force since it was clamped on by the United States for 18 months because of the embargo. He said many farmers were hopeful their best steers would be about 12 cents a pound if the United States markets were opened.

Feels 'Moral Shock' Over Beer Situation Says Federation

Toronto, March 18—(CP)—The Canadian Temperance Federation today described yesterday's unanimous agreement by Canada's Provincial Premiers to refer Canada Prime Minister Mackenzie King's statement yesterday that restrictions on supply of beer by provinces have been removed by the Federal Government.

"The statement, issued by Secretary J. G. Hall, said that "among the causes leading up to this action undoubtedly is pressure from provincial governments and public opinion in favor of relaxation of restrictions due to the reasonable requests for co-operation made by the Federal Government.

"The various cases of the Ontario Government to utilize the matter for party advantage was a disgraceful exhibition of irresponsible government."

Oliva Dionne As Sole Guardian

North Bay, Ont., March 18—(CP)—Judge J. A. Valin of North Bay pronounced on his 58th birthday last November as chairman of the Ontario guardianship committee board of guardians, said he approved Magistrate Kirk's decision of last May that restrictions on supply of beer by provinces have been removed by the Federal Government.

"The statement, issued by Secretary J. G. Hall, said that "among the causes leading up to this action undoubtedly is pressure from provincial governments and public opinion in favor of relaxation of restrictions due to the reasonable requests for co-operation made by the Federal Government.

"The various cases of the Ontario Government to utilize the matter for party advantage was a disgraceful exhibition of irresponsible government."

ANCIENT ART

Dancing is the most ancient of all arts, and is practised by almost all the primitive tribes.

(Under provisions of the bill, introduced by Premier Campbell Lawson Sinclair, the administration of financial matters of the estate of Oliva would still be handled through the courts).

Judge Valin said he had always backed Olivia Dionne in his wish to have the little girls who will be 19 in May, united with their sisters and brothers under the sole care of their parents.

"There is no better guardian for the children than their father, but I am sure that the present arrangement will be highly satisfactory," he said.

SPOTLIGHT ON CHICAGO HAWKS AT PRESENT TIME

Team Tangles With Canadiens While Boston Meets Detroit Squad

BOTH MUST WIN

By The Canadian Press

With Montreal Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings definitely assured of a spot in the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup finals, the spotlight today — for the second time this week — was on Chicago Black Hawks.

On the other hand, hockey fans will be keeping a close tab on Boston Bruins when they meet Detroit on the Wings' home ice tonight. Chicago tangle with Canadiens at Montreal in the only other League game.

A loss for Bruins will write "30" to their chances of making the play-offs, whereas a win will keep alive their slender hopes of a berth in the finals. Last Tuesday, the Bruins downed Hawks 3-2 to give them a mathematical chance of catching the Detroit team. However, Hawks must lose their three remaining games and Bruins win their last three to make the grade.

All six teams will see action over the week-end when the regular schedule will be completed.

The unhappy thought facing Hawks is the fact that facing Toronto Maple Leafs — which of the two will finish last — hoped

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 238.

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Timing is not fashion in any fighting game, including bridge. The following entries takes the spotlight in this deal:

NORTH
♠ Q 10 9 4
♥ A
♦ A K 9 4
♣ 8 7 6 3
WEST	EAST
♠ J 7 2	♠ 8 6 5
♥ K Q J 8 3 2	♥ 10 7 5
♦ 8	♦ J 10 6 3
♣ 5 3 2	♣ K 10 4
SOUTH
♠ A K 3
♥ 9 6 4
♦ Q 7 5
♣ J 9 5

South is declarer at six spades. West leads the heart king. Declarer trumps and discards two losers and two, his only problem is to lead enough times from dummy and find ace or jack in east.

Dummy seems to have plenty of entries. So, careless declarer might see this contract as one that takes three trumps tricks and then two diamonds with king and queen in that order.

When he learns he must lose a diamond trick, he desperately needs a second heart to set up dummy. A dummy club is to be ruffed by the ace of spades with the queen.

To enter dummy again for another club lead, south must lead a diamond and use up his dummy trump. Both hops up on this club lead with his ace and leads his fourth diamond for the defeating trick.

But declarer could make his contract by leading clubs before so many of his dummy entries were gone. He could take three trumps ending in dummy, leading the eight quick from there on.

Then, if east ducks the first club, there is still plenty of time to prevent the loss of a diamond. A diamond to enter dummy with the king and the second club led from there.

Sooner or later east takes the club ace. But by then the king of clubs and the lead up to both spade and dummy. On fourth round of clubs, south can shuff his fourth diamond in plenty of time. Don't worry if you missed this one so far ahead. Some of us do not have enough experience and bet you should know timing is important. Look at how it worked in Africa.

AT THE CAPITOL. Albeing Gene Tierney, who has reddish brown hair, is expected to play the glamorous and mysterious heroine of "Sundown," new at the Capitol. — On the left Reggrad: "The Texas Kid."

CATCHER DICKEY ASSIGNED TO NAVY BY DRAFT BOARD

New York Yankees May Also Lose Gordon to the Armed Services

OTHER LEAGUE NEWS

New York, March 16—(AP)— Bill Dickey is passed intentionally, and Joe Gordon is coming up, the stage is set for a double play.

Which, freely translated, means the great catcher of the Yankees, world baseball champions, was accepted for Armed Service yesterday and assigned to the Navy, and that the star second baseman was ordered for his physical today out in Oregon.

Thus is the war gradually whittling away at the teams which defeated the St. Louis Cardinals in the World Series last fall. Should Coach Joe Gordon be called he will be the first Yankee in service.

The loss of Dickey, is a severe blow to the club. A cool, efficient workman he is right out of the finest catchers of all time. Last year he enjoyed one of his best seasons.

Other Major League news:

Detroit Tigers—Ervin (Pete) Fox donned his old Tiger uniform yesterday to outhitter with the Detroit baseball forces reporting for duty with the Boston Red Sox.

Boston Braves—Bob Coleman, new pilot of the Braves, gets his first look at his 1944 talent during the opening drill at Choate School today.

Washington Senators—The Nats may be warming up a dark horse for the hot corner, as Jake Powell, erstwhile outfielder, ... He looked good in a workout yesterday.

Cleveland Indians—The Indians held their first batting drill in Purdue University field house yesterday with every hurler in camp taking a turn on the rubber.

Pittsburgh Pirates — Only five Pirate candidates for first day at the Muncie Camp was pitcher Max Butler, who suffered a mighthead attendon. Frank Colman sent word from London, ... he had been called for an Army Medical re-examination. He was rejected earlier because of a bad leg.

Philadelphia Athletics — Connie Mack picked an infield yesterday while the squad again was idle because of a heavy rain. He named Dick Sibert, 1b; Irv Hall, ss; Edgar Busch, up from Elmira, 3b, and Georgia Boss from Lancaster, 2b.

TO SPEND MILLION

Delhi, Ont., March 16 — (CP) — The provincial government plans a $1,000,000 post-war expenditure in Haldimand-Norfolk riding, Hon. George Lenardie, Ontario Highways Minister said Wednesday night at a meeting of Progressive Conservative Association in the March 20 by-election in the constituency. "Arrangements have been worked out long before this by-election was called," said Mr. Doucette.

USED AS PRESERVATIVES

Spices still are used to preserve food in parts of China and North Africa.

AT THE BELLE — Lelee Rainer, only two time Academy Award winner, and Arturo de Cordova in Paramount's exciting drama, "Hostages." The film is based on Stephen Vincent Benet's Pulitzer Prize novel. Actress is Academy Award winner and Wm. Bendix.

Cradle-Snatching by Pro Clubs Frowned on by Judge Landis

(By The Canadian Press)

Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis yesterday at Chicago stepped down on cradle-snatching by professional clubs by warning that any contracts for youthful players, still eligible for American Legion Diamond Competition, would be declared null and void and a fine of $500 would be imposed on any major or minor league team for any dealings which might lead to the signing of such recruits. The maximum age limit for American Legion leagues is 19 years.

In giving his ruling, Landis declared Legion baseball was of great value to the boys and their communities and the organization "must not be deterred from that service by professional clubs".

Instead of crying the Blues, the baseball moguls have been doing some post-war planning on their own hook.

For the first time in baseball history, a major league club has established its High School coaches in the United States, some 30,000 asked for recommendations of boys interested in pro baseball as a career and got them.

The fruits of those 30,000 letters are represented by a contingent of youngsters who answered "present" when the roll is called at the Dodgers Near Montauk Training Camp and a complete card file on 2,000 lads for post-war reference. Most of the boys are destined for the Dodger links in the Branch Rickey system in 1944 but they, and others who passed the rigid scholastic requirements of their scouting, represent a definite forward step. None of the 2,000 have actually signed out of the High Schools.

Branch Rickey, Jr., head of the Dodgers' Farm Organization, started the idea.

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and my cousin Artie had a court battle with us on account of going a strand together and the girl being the change, and we bought 2 sourballs with it at the stationery and candy store, Artie saying that I can remember when sourballs were 2 for a cent.

I can remember when they were four, I said, and Artie said, Good night you must of been pretty young that long ago.

Maybe I was, but I wasn't too young to buy sourballs, I said, and Artie said, Anyways we've only got a penny apiece so we better stretch them instead of sucking them fast. Think about having a slow race to see which one can make theirs last the longest? he said.

Okay, and if we take it out of our mouth even once to see how it's doing, we lose. Okay? I said, and Artie said, Okay.

And I counted 3 and we both stuck them in our mouths at the same time, and we were walking along sucking careful, and some man carrying a package said to us, Do you boys know where Mrs. Hinshaw lives?

While we did, being up in the next block in the last corner house, but we started to point and tell him, not talking very good on account of not wanting to take our sourballs out and lose the slow race, and the man said, Well, thank you, any way of finding is that? I know where she lives all right, I just might go and find out if you boys or you could make $ cents by taking this package the rest of the way for me because I'm in a hurry, but now I wouldn't trust you with it, I'll finish delivering it myself, he said.

Which he kept on doing, being a fat man and probably lazy himself, and I felt so disappointed I wasn't only bit my sourball and broke it and bet the race, and after stopped pop made me feel still worse by claiming he remembered when sourballs were 3 for a cent.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Sundown"

The screen's strangest adventure begins at sundown, Yes, the most dangerous woman in Africa! Too beautiful, too alluring to be trusted, that was there when that shot rang out of the desert night and started one of the most dangerous manhunts you've ever seen. But you know more than she would tell about that—taut, hidden cave where this strange story reaches its climax in one of the fiercest struggles ever witnessed! Thrill, mystery, exciting love, breath-taking drama and the thrill of living dangerously all "Sundown" with great adventuramance of today! "Sundown" starring tonight at the Capitol starring Gene Tierney, Bruce Cabot, George Sanders, Harry Carey, Joseph Calleia, Reginald Gardiner, Carl Esmond, Marc Lawrence and Sir Cedric Hardwicke. The Saturday Evening Post serial that thrilled millions, brought to the screen by Walter Wanger who gave you "Foreign Correspondent" and "Stagecoach."

"The Texas Kid"

With a novel plot and a wealth of exciting incidents, "The Texas Kid" opening tonight at the Capitol theatre is one of Monogram's most exciting western dramas of the season. The story is ably narrated and played by fast action and magnificent horsemanship.

Starring Jack Brown is seen in the starring role, and still further clinches his standing as one of the screen's most engaging western stars. His efforts are ably assisted by Raymond Hatton, who is featured as his vastly amusing sidekick on the side of law and order.

A colored cartoon and the serial "Secret Service in Darkest Africa" complete a grand double bill.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Arizona"

A glowing romance set amid the sun-drenched splendor of the Arizona desert, amid the stirring adventures of a mighty cattle empire, "Arizona" opened today at the McCarthy Theatre with Jean Arthur starred in the most triumphant role of her accomplished career. Never before has the screen captured in all its brave, wild magnificence a story so filled with romantic drama of Arizona's thrilling pioneering days. Never before—not even with "Cimarron"—has Wesley Ruggles produced and directed a motion picture so great in conception, so memorable in scope.

That "Arizona" is destined for cinematic greatness is a reasonably obvious conclusion. The colorful, spectacular efforts made by Columbia and Wesley Ruggles, by the cast and crew of "Arizona" is apparent in every foot of the stirring film drama. It's rich with the romance and the color lure of its characters. Burlington Boland's magazine serial. A masterly understanding of all that makes for breath-taking entertainment underlies the Indian raids and the cattle stampede. The sun-drenched vistas of magnificent beauty and the contrasting squalor of the fortune city of Tucson, with its gold-seekers and homesteaders, its dance hall gamblers and killers, with its lounging Mexicans and rugged cowboys.

That Miss Arthur's choice for the major role in "Arizona" was the only possible one is attested to by the brilliance of her performance. As Phoenix, indomitable fighter and pioneer, lone white woman among a thousand half-breed and bad men, Miss Arthur exceeds in emotional and dramatic effort anything she has ever done for the screen. As the crawling Peter Muncie, Macmillan's bound for Califonia, William Holden is equally to be praised; young Holden proves again his right to the stardom he won in "Golden Boy" and in "Our Town."

Munitions Health Plan Investigated by Minister of Health

DREW GIVES ANSWER

Toronto, March 18. (CP)—The Ontario Legislature today will receive the first budget brought down by the Progressive Conservative Administration which took office last August.

Provincial Treasurer Leslie M. Frost will bring it down this afternoon and budget debate is expected to begin next Tuesday.

Mr. Frost's budget will deal with legislation now before it, including a government measure for the establishment by Health Minister Mr. Virtue.

Under this measure municipalities on a monthly basis of their collections will be permitted to levy taxes for health services. Residents have to be co-ordinated by a provincial Health Services Board. Provincial funds will be given to areas where adequate taxes cannot be raised through local levies.

The main items of the Budget, through second reading bills to return the province's finances to the sole guardianship of their father ar-range its financial matters; to consider a choice of bills suitable to their present levels; and to amend the Credit Unions Act.

Premier Drew replied to a published statement of the Canadian Temperance Federation that Ontario and other provinces had failed to co-operate on the beer question with the Dominion government and had resorted to statements that "misrepresent the facts".

The Premier termed these charges without foundation and declared that, although the Ontario Government was opposed to intemperance, "intemperance is not limited to any one particular activity of mankind. Ontario", he said, "is not going to be dominated either by beer interests or by the intemperate advocate of any special cause."

Mr. Drew also revealed that his government was attempting to arrange with the Dominion Government control over export of milk feeds and bran to the United States to prevent a shortage here. Farmers had been complaining of lack of these foods, he said.

Jolliffe Questions Premier

Opposition Leader Jolliffe questioned the Premier as to the validity of the action of Chief Electoral Officer Alex Lewis in suspending the active franchise of 1,042, for the Haldimand-Norfolk by-election March 20.

The Premier said that Mr. Jolliffe would put his question on the order paper, he would get an answer.

"That by-election is to be held next Monday," Mr. Jolliffe replied.

Mr. Drew and Mr. Jolliffe also had a brief exchange when the Opposition Leader expressed fear an early budget might interfere with Opposition Bills now on the order paper. He hoped important legislation would not be held back until the last minute and then presented with appeals from the government to rush it through.

"I hope," Mr. Jolliffe declared, "that Opposition Bills would receive simple consideration later.

"The House will sit every evening if Mr. Jolliffe desires," Mr. Drew said. There will be no attempt to rush things in the last days of the session.

To Create Sound Plan

Introduction of the government's Health Bill, Health Minister Dr. R. P. Virtue said, it was intended to make it possible to render health services to municipalities through municipal taxes and provincial grants and to create a sound plan for future expansion.

"It is obvious that an over-all provincial plan at the present time is not possible," Dr. Virtue said.

On introduction of the Health Bill, C.C.F. Leader Jolliffe asked the legality of presenting it in view of the William Donaldson (CCF-Toronto St. David) had already introduced a similar plan in the House.

Read Bill in Order

Dr. Virtue replied that the Government Bill had been in the course of production for a year. Adequate but extensive surveys had been made and that it was "quite clear" than the opposition measure in providing for "free" had also "not only a government measure could do.

Speaker W. J. Stewart ruled that Dr. Virtue's Bill was in order.

In a statement, Dr. Virtue said there were 44,480 physicians in Ontario in 1941 now there are only 3,895, with more than 1,200 doctors on active service. This limited facilities for adequate acquate service.

"The services required to fulfill an adequate program", Dr. Virtue said, "include the right type of beds for acute, convalescent and chronic cases, hospitals, specialists, nurses, dentists, etc. These services will be co-ordinated through a Health Services Board, which will study technical and professional personnel performing these services.

"This board will be appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council and will be responsible through the Department of Health, to the people of the Province."

Government to Assist

The statement said it was not the government's intention to force upon any area a service not desired. Where satisfactory plans already were in operation, it would not be necessary to dispense with them.

Municipalities would be helped to obtain Health Services available by raising the necessary funds through a choice of taxation.

"At the present time", the minister said, "some areas with the taxable to raise the money. To assist such areas, the provincial government is prepared to pay limited grants based on need."

Under the Bill municipalities will obtain the specified services at a definite cost by expressing the decision of electors through a majority vote. The contract for service will then be in force for a trial period of three years. The contract can be terminated by a vote of the people on the same terms as it was put into force.

Dr. J. W. Mocutchen, secretary of the Ontario Medical Association, Dee-ar Gives Statement in a statement handed to the Press Gallery, said whether or not the government's new Health Services Bill is accepted or not, Ontario's doctors will continue to pursue their present objective of providing the best possible medical services for the people.

"If the people vote for a collective method of raising funds for medical care, the doctors will insist on the same rights for collective agreements as accorded to others", the statement said.

This, it said, meant that with a municipal approach to the health problem, the local medical societies will act as bargaining agents.

"The situation can be left to exist in where a municipal doctor is forced into the unfair position of having to bargain by himself with the local council or government board", the statement said. "A collective plan should apply equally to those receiving and those giving the services".

The War Today—
Finland May Be Making One Of Momentous Decisions of War

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

One of the momentous decisions of the war is in the making—perhaps has been irrevocably cast—in Finland. Will the little Nordic Finnish government has been struggling with the fateful question of whether to accept Russia's armistice terms or to defy the invincible Soviets?

The little country is generally credited with the blunt rejection of the Soviet conditions. An Associated Press dispatch says the terms are preparing everywhere for the resumption of war, the final word, upon which hang great eventualities, is expected to go forward to Moscow at the weekend.

Finland's rejection of the armistice proposals must have grave consequences for all save the world's worst enemy—Adolf Hitler.

Granted that this brave but mistaken small country will have to undergo a tragic bloodletting, the ultimate surrender which, at the best, will mean a miserable military occupation of Finnish territory by Red forces.

Takes Guards German Flank

In effect it is a major military defeat for the Allies at the most critical moment of the war when they are marshalling all our resources to administer the coup de grace to Germany. As things now stand made its appeal.

Finland continues to guard Hitler's flank on the Arctic. Hitler can count the Russians to maintain in northern Finland powerful forces which are needed elsewhere for the great offensive.

From the same token it is for Hitler a military triumph. But it's more than that, for it will have a far-reaching moral effect. It will bolster the flagging morale of the German people. It may deter wavering Axis satellites in the Balkans from deserting the Axis and compelling neutrals to continue granting Hitler favors over their business.

Only One Gateway

Unless Finland recedes from this position at once, the immediate effect presumably will be a fierce bombardment of Helsinki and other cities by the Red air fleet. In due course that will be followed by a land offensive.

There can be only one outcome to blitter defeat for the Finns. The British Broadcasting Company has gone to the extreme of terming the "final warning" to the Finns to accept the terms. But in the meantime the alternative is the prospect of "national suicide."

One wonders whether the people of Finland as a whole really know all the facts about the situation, or whether they have been kept in the dark. It is significant that with this thought in mind that the BBC

Parents Told How Son Died

Marmora, March 18.—(Special)—Received are letters received by Mr. and Mrs. Percy Wright, Marmora, since their son, Corporal Alvin Wright, was killed in action in Italy on February 5th. Lieut. R. Scott Cobbett writes:

H. & F. E. Regt.
Cdn. Army,
CMF
Feb. 18th, 1944.

Dear Mrs. Wright,

I can't tell you how badly we all feel when Alvin was killed on the night of Feb. 5. Bob was in command of a standing patrol that evening. The Germans launched one of their counter attacks and shell fire was some activity on our front and a number of shells fell down behind a barrage and a shell landed right in the middle of our men, killing Bob and one other man instantly and mortally wounding several.

It will at least be some relief to know that Bob did not suffer at all. I am only expressing the feelings of the whole platoon if I say that men like your son are irreplaceable. He was one of the best men in the whole battalion, and as a soldier—well it's men like Bob who have built up the great fighting tradition which the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment holds today. I know that every man in the battalion would wish to join me extending to you and Mr. Wright our heartfelt sympathy. May God comfort and sustain you in your bereavement and may He strengthen the faith of us all in the cause for which your son gallantly laid down his life.

Yours truly,
J. F. Goforth,

DECISION NEAR

In the 2,500 sorties sent against Cassino and other targets in Italy yesterday, the Allied air forces lost eight planes, it was announced officially.

Although 5th Army forces on the beachhead threw back first enemy attacks to regain the two enemy strongpoints taken yesterday south-west of Carroceto, latest reports today said fighting still was going on under harassing enemy artillery fire.

During the height of the air attack on Cassino yesterday, Gen. Clark's men rocked French forces with a strong assault on the north flank of the battered city but eventually were repulsed. Another enemy assault launched itself against an Indian army formation near Casino with equal unsuccess.

Allied aircraft made far-ranging attacks yesterday. Spitfires bombed Durazzo harbor in Albania, hitting a large ship and also attacked ammunition dumps north of Rome and small ports along the Italian West coast. Light and medium bombers attacked the railway station at San Benedetto, on Italy's Adriatic coast, and fighter-bombers also attacked the railroad west of Terni, north of Rome.

Sofia Again Bombed

Following the Allies' attack on Sofia, the sixth time Allied planes have bombed the Bulgarian capital, was carried out by R. A. F. Wellingtons. Other Allied bombers struck three German Siebel ferries and three other coastal craft off the Dalmatian coast while Boeing bombers reported hits on highways north of Rome and in Velletri.

The communique said about 40 aircraft in all were sighted yesterday over the Italian battle area during daylight hours. Six Allied aircraft failed to return from all the day's operations, which the bulletin said totalled 2,500 sorties.

Official photographs released last night showed the buildings left in Cassino after what was described as history's greatest aerial assault. Nearly every plane of the Allied Mediterranean Air Force took part in the assault, flying a total of 3,000 trips.

PARTY LEADERS TO CONSIDER USE OF FREE AIR TIME

CBC May Appoint $15,000-a-Year Chairman and $13,000 General Chairman

WHITE PAPER ISSUED

Ottawa, March 18.—(CP)—Leaders of the seven political parties qualifying for free radio time in the forthcoming Dominion election campaign before the Commons Radio Committee, today received committee permission to examine a copy of the paper before making any statements as to the use they intended to make of the time.

Chief Services Minister LaFleche, Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, and M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, all said they had not yet had time to study the paper.

Highlight of yesterday's committee session was the evidence of a new Canadian Broadcasting Corporation setup, which would see a $15,000-a-year chairman of the board in charge of policy and a $13,000-a-year general manager in charge of day-to-day operations.

The setup was suggested by Rene Morin, the present part-time chairman, who proposed the new chairman's position be made a full-time duty.

The ranking executive would be known as assistant general manager at an unspecified salary.

Gen. LaFleche supported the full-time chairman suggestion, but said nothing on the division of authority between a chairman and general manager.

Into Effect Immediately

The new CBC policy, which comes into effect immediately, provides that the Liberals will receive two hours and 34 minutes annually, the C.C.F. will each get one hour and 46 minutes, the Conservatives and C.C.F. will each get one hour and 46 minutes.

Dr. Frigon said over a 10-month period, for instance, the Liberals would receive four half-hour periods while the Conservatives and C.C.F. would receive three half-hour periods.

One period will be allotted one half-hour one month and another party a half hour the following month in the proper ratio. The parties will be obliged to use the time in the month they are not to be allowed to build up free time for a program like a Saturday night for a party leader.

SOME PARTIES DON'T QUALIFY

Parties like Hon Stockwell, New Democracy, and Canadian, with only a few candidates each in the Commons, do not qualify for free time.

Parties qualifying for the time must meet these requirements:—

1. Have policies on a wide range of national issues.

2. Have a recognized national leader.

3. Have a nation-wide organization established as a result of a national conference.

4. Seek the election of candidates in at least three of the provinces and put into the field a minimum of 40 candidates.

The CBC will also provide "over

DIGESTION OFF? Jittery? Pepless?

—Your Nerves May Need Feeding

Every act—every movement of your body depends on the food you eat and how well it is digested, assimilated and carried to nerves. When nerves lack nourishment, they're starved. Then you may suffer from indigestion, nervousness, poor appetite, poor sleep, tired depression, physical fatigue, nervous headaches.

An impoverished blood condition due to lack of nourishment may be corrected in part by nervousness, for nerves may then fail to receive the nourishment they need.

Ostrex Tonic Tablets are designed to help with stomach, digestion and bowels because they contain Vitamin B1, Hypophosphites and Iron. They not only help build up the blood but also help nourish the nerves. Ostrex Tonic Tablets also stimulate the nervous system and the digestive tract, to help give a difference you'll notice. Proposal Endorsed By County Council

Kingston, March 18 (CP)—Frontenac county council yesterday endorsed a proposal to erect a war service monument in the Kingston district at an estimated cost of $400,000. The building will have 100 beds.

The Ontario government, through Health Minister Virtue, has agreed to pay $75,000 for the cost of the construction and the municipalities, including the counties of Frontenac, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington, Frontenac, Leeds and Grenville and the incorporated cities and towns in that area will be asked to provide the remainder of the money.

al one-mill subsidy to municipalities, to be spent on the cost of education. The present one-mill subsidy applies to the general rate.

Will Reduce Expenditures

Some reductions in expenditures in the coming year were reviewed, $1,130,400 to the Attorney General's department largely accounted for by the fact that costs of an election are not included this year, spending of $2,945,300 less on ordinary account in the Highways department and reduction of $953,000 in grant cost of foreign exchange and interest on the public debt.

Highways Minister Dunbell has this arranged his work that despite this reduction $1,000,000 extra will be spent on municipal roads".

Mr. Frost referred also to increased health costs of $1,216,300, additional costs of $2,800,000 for Mothers' Allowances and Old Age Pensions, extension of the eight-hour day to cover 44,000 shop and mercantile workers at a cost of over $300,000, expenditure of an additional $500,000 by the department of Lands and Forests for preventive service and conservation, $100,000 for the new provincial department of Planning and Development, extension of rural hydro lines would cost $500,000 and the cost to the Provincial Treasury which bears half the capital cost would be about $400,000. The 300 miles of lines to be constructed would serve an additional 3,670 customers.

Formal St. Patrick Dance at Trianon

A very enjoyable dance was held at the Trianon on Tuesday night in the form of a St. Patrick's dance, sponsored by the Red Triangle Hostess Club. The young ladies looked most attractive and charming in their many colored evening dresses. Many were seen wearing flowers in their hair and also as corsages. After several worthy games had been played by the jolly Boys' Orchestra in order to have the service men meet the different girls, special attention was called for by Mr. Richard Hodgson who, as master-of-ceremonies, made a presentation of a silver bracelet on behalf of the club, to Miss Catherine Murphy who has left to reside in Belleville, whose office its origin. Catherine Murphy in leaving this district is and communities new duties in Belleville she is very much esteemed by the not only filled an important position as the secretary of the club treasurer of the club. Every member regrets the loss of the splendid assistance Miss Murphy so willingly gave at all times, but is hoping to see her dropping in at the different events when at all possible. The evening was brought to a close with spot and novelty prize dances, also the singing of some well known Irish songs. Appreciation is expressed to the White Group who acted as hostesses of the evening and to Miss Marjory Cook for publicity.

Picton and District

Farmers' Night At Rotary Club

Picton, March 16 — Mr. G. Mc-Fraud, principal of Kemptville Agricultural School was guest speaker at the local Rotary Club meeting when "Farmers' Night" was observed.

Mr. McFraud stressed the need of agricultural education to keep the young people on the farm. There had been a decided increase in the number of those remaining on the land and the speaker felt that the agricultural policy for the future should be designed to remedy that condition.

The war has hit rural areas hard, said the speaker, and he pointed out that this is due to enlistments and higher wages paid in war industry.

Agriculture must be made attractive and prosperous if it is to attract young men returning from the war.

Agricultural Representative P. J. Webster introduced Mr. McFraud, who was thanked by Hugh McDonald.

George Welch reported plans for a Chicken Club with 35 boys to receive 25 chickens each from the Club. Prizes will be offered at Picton Fair.

E. E. Johnson was presented with a birthday cake. Pte. Sgt. Griffiths, R.A.F., gave piano solos.

SHORTAGE OF HELP

Toronto, March 16, (CP)—Officials at two Ontario sanatoria last night said that although a long list of tubercular cases await accommodation, shortage of help has forced the Toronto Hospital for the treatment of tuberculosis at Weston, Ont., and Muskoka Hospital, Gravenhurst, Ont., to leave 186 beds empty.

SLOW MOTION

Moth eggs hatch more slowly in winter than in summer, often taking as long as four weeks in cold weather instead of four to eight days.

PLANES UNPOPULAR

There was so little demand for airplanes after the First Great War that a new plane, never uncrated, could be bought for about $75.

700 P.C. Increase In Number Liquor Permits Issued

Toronto, March 16 — (CP) — Liquor permits issued in Ontario from the start of rationing in January, 1943, to the end of January, 1944, increased 700 per cent, provincial treasurer Leslie Frost disclosed today in budget address to the Ontario Legislature.

When the first ration of 160 ounces monthly became effective there were 150,296 permit holders compared with 12,117 the previous month, December, 1942, which marked discontinuance of the single-purchase permit system.

"It provided food for thought, however," said Mr. Frost, "that from that time, which is coincidental with the imposition of Dominion restrictions (on gallonage releases), that the number of permit holders has reached the total, as of Jan. 31, 1944, of 1,277,459."

Mr. Frost's figures showed a progressive monthly increase in permits as rationing moved to its present 26-ounce quota.

Advocating that price and proper control, the provincial treasurer held out no promises for an early cut in cost to the consumer but declared that, "when the Dominion government raises its wartime restrictions affecting spirits and wine, the Ontario government will be prepared to revise its prices to a proper level and to emphasize proper distribution and control."

Mr. Frost described liquor profits as "a legitimate source of revenue," and of revenue accruing from taxation on the sale of spirits he said:—

"Dominion taxation on the sale of liquor consists of customs duty, excise tax, and the general sales tax. During the fiscal year 1942-1944 the total amount collected by the Dominion government under the above headings from Ontario sale exceeded $34,000,000. During the same period the profits of the Ontario (Liquor Control) Board were approximately one-half of that amount."

Any attempt by Ontario to lower the present price of liquor would affect the Dominion guarantee which it is necessary that the province should have to ensure the continuity of its income in these abnormal times." This guarantee, he said, from six to eight cents a gallon on the gallon tax.

Mr. Frost's financial statement accompanying the budget address showed that in the current fiscal year ending March 31, 1944, the liquor tax was $1,000,000.83. His forecast for the 1944-45 revenue is $1,000,000.

Govt. to Extract Double Tax On Winning Tickets

Toronto, March 16—(CP) — The first budget announcement in five years in the form of taxation in Ontario came today when Provincial Treasurer Leslie Frost told the legislature that $2,000,000 annually, instead of $1,000,000, will be extracted from holders of winning tickets at the province's race tracks.

The treasurer announced that beginning the fiscal year next April 1—with the new racing season just around the corner—the government in his coffers will be 10 per cent. doubling the present 5 per cent. tax on winning tickets.

Not since 1938, when a few months before the war started, a provincial treasurer applied a taxation measure from his budget bag, in that year Premier Mitchell Hepburn, who also held the treasury portfolio, imposed a 5 per cent. tax on winning tickets.

THE LITTLE DOG BARKED

By ANNE ROWE

CHAPTER 2

A bum followed us. Just as we passed through the door to the foyer, I heard Linwood call sharply: "That's enough! Back to the hearse!! Scedro—your scene with the reporters!"

The news of the "accident" had preceded us, and the personnel of the inn was out in full force to receive us, including the Kilborns themselves, which underscored for me how they had heard it, until I saw Tom Wicked, talking excitedly with the desk clerk.

I didn't answer any of the questions showered on us, and neither did Linda. Cora Paulsen had fled from the hall to the theatre, once she had seen us safely across the square, and I paid no outward attention to the laments with which Josie Kilborn greeted me all the way upstairs and into my room. About rushing the inn and the theatre with my "silly" demand for the police.

I did become really angry when she tried to prevent me from putting the hurt dog on my bed, reaching for him roughly, with a scandalized: "Land sakes alive! Not on the bed! Not a dog, on my new spread!"

"Yes, a dog. And yes on the bed," I told her firmly, pushing her away and holding Stray where I wanted him to be. "He won't hurt your precious spread. And if he does, I'll pay for it." Then I turned pointedly to Linda, "Get out," and lapsed into a large armchair and asked: "You're all in. You want quiet; close the door."

Josie Kilborn wasn't very strong at taking hints. She only retreated as far as the door and made a last stand.

"Okay. I put the spread on the bill if I find the least little spot on it," she threatened. "But I don't see why you make such a to-do about that Stray. It ain't your dog."

"He isn't yours either," I reminded her. "Only — go away. Please!"

Josie glared at me and marched out, with a few parting shots about the tribulations of innkeepers in particular.

I thought Linda had gone to sleep and was anxiously watching Stray's labored breathing, when she suddenly said miserably: "The poor little pup may pay His. Will he die, do you think?"

"I have no idea," I told her. "I don't know what's the matter with him. I can see it hurts him to breathe, but I don't know why. He's conscious though. His eyes are open and he knows me, anyhow. I'll—"

"Then you tried to answer me. But his tail only thumped once feebly and his pitiable attempt at a pleased whimper died in his throat.

Linda sighed: "It's dreadful! If only the pet would come!" and dropped back into her apathy.

And I sighed in answer and began pacing the room. Worrying about Stray. Wondering what to tell the police. Asking myself why I had caused the booth to drop.

The whole thing had been on the stage, Linwood included. But I had no way of knowing how long that had been there. The winch operating the heavy rope could be set for far right. I wasn't sure, but I thought I had seen a door near it, leading outside. If so, that was one it would have been an easy thing for anyone to sneak in and cut the rope. Aiden Vickery, their henchman at the right.

Why had Stray barked and hurried himself on the stage? What had the dog seen that—if not I—had missed? And Linda . . .

I stopped, before the girl. She was still huddling in the big chair with closed eyes. But I was sure she wasn't sleeping. was wide-awake indeed and thinking tricklely. Unpleasant thoughts.

Thoughts I hadn't believed the intruder meant only to frighten me. Stray's discovery of something about "filling." And today her-her calamitous reaction to the incredible and fantastic to think that an actress' life was endangered—and that Linda had played a vital and important role in my play. Or was my play the scene in which it had happened?

I blurted out involuntarily: "Linda, tell me: Is there any reason for "Wicked" to—outside the plot against my play . . ."

She didn't let me finish. "Any reason at all!" she cried, jumping up, her eyes wide and jerking upright in her chair.

"For the booth falling. For someone trying to kill you," I said lamely.

She glanced at me for a second with a queer expression. I could swear she was on the verge of telling me something. And then she changed her mind.

"I'll be a reason in the world. Not a single solitary reason," she assured me. "The booth must've—I think it would be a good idea, just the same—"

Then the veterinary arrived, quite a while before the police, Dr. Gates was a wiry, short man of fifty. He had heard Knut Linda's nervous escape, helping from the way he divided his attention between his four-footed patient and her.

Touching the furry little body on my bed with gentle fingers, diagnosing at Linda shrewdly at the same time. She understood—I could tell—

"Concussion all right. Can't tell what it done to him offhand. Ribs ain't broke. Cracked one, mebbe, but—"

"But there's always the chance he's injured internal. Also, this here pup's had a bad shock to his nervous system. Same's you, young lady. Going to give him something for it right now. And you take a couple of my pills too, if you got sense. Won't hurt you. What's good for a dog's good for a girl, and vice versa, says I."

He foraged in the capacious black bag he had brought with him, produced a small phial and beckoned to me. "Here. Give her two now and two in three hours," he ordered, shaking a number of tablets into my hand and pouring water. The pooch'll take 'em dry."

Stray he administered up when he smelled the pills and the vet had shown him them lost none in the mouth.

Linda, too swallowed the stuff obediently—I don't think she realized she was taking dog medicine. Then she got upward and listened with me to the talkative little vet.

"I'll take him to my place, ma'am and keep him overnight. Have to give him some to give your dog. Can't tell what's broke inside, without an X-ray. Costs a couple dollars extra. Okay, ma'am. So long you don't mind the expense, you don't worry. He'll be took care like a person," etc.

At last he went. Carrying Stray in a shallow cough, hung around his neck by a strap. A few minutes later Ada knocked at the door.

"The sheriff has come, Mrs. Turner. He's over to the theatre, waiting for you and Miss Barolle," she announced importantly. "And the player's benefit, no doubt. And Mrs. Turner's in lower tone. "Oh, Ada! I knew something was going to happen! I felt it in my bones! It's Mrs. Turner's fault. Barolle made killed and poor little Stray kicked around! I'm glad I hadn't given it away! He would have found out sooner or later—but on and stopped it in time!"

When we came in, the sheriff was standing on the stage beside the wrecked telephone, thoughtfully turning the end of the cut rope in his hands. He was a tall, lean man who looked as must have been interrupted at some rural chore. He hadn't bothered to change into more dignified garb, but pinned his star of office to his jacket.

Beside him a uniformed constable—Ed Corey, the one and only, of North Harbor—was following every movement of chief's genial hands attentively. And so did all the players for that matter, from a respectful distance, standing in a semi-circle in the background.

Only Linwood was near the sheriff — Herb Weymouth was his name. Linwood had apparently been the spokesman so far, and was standing on the opposite side of the shattered booth, bereft, gloves and all.

"So, you're the one made 'em call me," the sheriff addressed me after Linwood had performed the introductions. "Let me see now. Something about 'killing.' And today her-her calamitous reaction to the incredible and fantastic to think that an actress' life was endangered—and that Linda had played a vital and important role in my play. Or was my play the scene in which it had happened?

I blurted out involuntarily: "Linda, tell me: Is there any reason for "Wicked" to—outside the plot against my play . . ."

Old Mack dead—murdered!

I felt ice-cold and sick—as sick as Wells Colby looked. Good God, that's how what the sheriff was saying made me feel.

"Murder and attempted murder. That's what's been happening here. And I don't like it. Like it. Nothing like it around these parts long. I been elected, all mixed up with the theatre and summer people too. I'm an old guy, and I don't like it in all honesty and humbleness: it's way over my head. I need help. And I'm going to get me help.

The old sheriff fell silent for a moment. Then he looked around: "Either from the State or the County. Guess I'll call County first. They got a man over to Chilton port on the city police, name of Inspector Pettengill, caught a double murderer in Boston—summer folks. Bounty can borrow him from the city for me."

The rest of the afternoon was more or less unimportant, and only a few episodes in it are worth mentioning.

First, the uproar on the stage, once the numbing shock of the sheriff's announcement had worn off. Horrified denials and pointed questions concerning Old Mack's violent end and "the play" of his being in the old inn. An argument between Linwood and the sheriff about the removal of the smashed booth from the scene of the performance—which Linwood won.

The sheriff nodded his assent reluctantly, after a good ten minutes of heated wrangling. But not before he had set off the telltale rop end and put it in his overall pocket, and Linwood was shut out through the stage door in the rear, with ominous relief, calling a sharp: Have the area cleared away," to his stage manager and the moment the theatre and grounds supplementing the demand with an even sharper: "Scedro, I'm releasing everybody. We've lost enough time."

Attack of Flu Left Him With Weak, Upset Stomach

Afraid to Eat Because of Gas Pains, Bloat and Sour Acid-Risings; Had Backache and Dizzy Spells. Tells of Good Results Syntona Gave.

"It is a real pleasure to tell you how much Syntona has done for me, and I hope other sufferers will read this and benefit as I did," said Mr. Edward Wells, Sr., Hamilton, Ont., who is the well known foundry worker at Wells Tinsmyer Co.

"I had the end it let's my whole system feel in perfect nervous condition," said Mr. Wells. "I had so much distress after eating, sometimes would be afraid to eat. Gas pains and bloat would cause me to suffer untold misery. I had a tired, nervous feeling and bad pains at times. Constipation and sour acid would come over me and spots darted before my eyes. I had backache, dizzy spells, aching pain across my back and nerves. Rheumatic pains in my arms and limbs. My nerves were so upset I couldn't sleep well. I lost weight till I was down to 140 lbs.

"I tried a lot of different things but nothing helped me until I began taking Syntona. In a week I was better, and in a month I had regained my health. Constipation and bloating of bad, sour stomach left me. I got free from dizzy spells, dizzy feelings and spots coming before my eyes. Backache and pains went away. My appetite is much better and I have improved in strength and weight. My nerves are steady and much better I am looking.

"I am glad to recommend Syntona too highly and hope many people who suffer as I did will try it and find relief as I did."

Syntona is made from 12 of Nature's finest herbs and roots and acts on stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels. Many who take it say that soon after the first few days the whole system takes on a new feeling of strength and vigor.

Go to DOLAN THE DRUGGIST, 6 Bellevue, and find out how Syntona can help you too.

ORCHARD OWNERS PRUNING TIME TREES

District orchardists are busy giving attention to the pruning of their apple trees this being especially true in Northumberland and Prince Edward counties, according to the weekly crop report issued by The Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food. Trees have waited until danger of really cold weather has passed as early pruning now does not result in considerable damage to district orchards. Weather conditions have been ideal for this activity.

Double Municipal Subsidy, One to Be Used for Education

Toronto, March 16. (CP) — The additional $3,000,000 Dominion Government grant from the Ontario Government in 1944-45 will be added to the Teachers' Superannuation Fund and some $3,100,000 of the municipalities' annual doubling of the one-mill municipal subsidy, Provincial Treasurer Leslie M. Frost said in his budget address to the Ontario legislature.

He added that the bigger grant is "only the first move in the planning for the post-war revision of our taxation system in the history of our province."

The announcement of extra help from the province was made last night by Premier Drew. Today Mr. Frost said:

"The Province will immediately raise its contribution to the Teachers' and Inspectors' Superannuation Fund by paying dollar-for-dollar with the teachers. This would cost the province $400,000 a year. Teacher representation on the superannuation commission "to arrive at a basis for better and more equitable benefits and for considering ways and means to extend benefits to widows of deceased teachers".

To Appeal Commission

He referred to planned appointment of a Royal Commission to study real estate taxation and education finance and to report to the next Premier Drew. Pending its report and action by the government, the province will pay municipalities and by way of an immediate reduction in taxation on real estate, it was planned to increase the existing provincial subsidy to the public schools.

"This will involve an additional payment to municipalities of more than $3,100,000," Mr. Frost said. "The total of $6,200,000, divided by municipalities, one mill to be applied to the general rate and one mill to the public school rate, would be in excess of $6,200,000".

Municipal aid had been reduced from the high point of $504,000,000 in 1932 to $300,000 in 1943, but despite the improvement "it has been felt that more could safely be done," he said. The province was pledged to sweeping revision of real estate taxes and "this is a step, to assumin: "at least 50 per cent of the cost of schools now charged against real estate."

HONKING OF GEESE ON WAY NORTH HEARD

In addition to the robins and crows, robins have also shipped ropes seen over the weekend and which contained honking geese, this that Spring cannot be far away, additional and welcome signs were noticed Wednesday night and early Thursday morning, according to reports.

A resident is adamant in his assertion that he saw a flock flowing wriggling in a water puddle outside the Y.M.C.A. on Wednesday evening, while another city resident reports hearing a flock of wild geese flying over the city on their way to their Summer haunts in the far north. He could not estimate the number of geese could not be seen because of the darkness but thing it was estimated there was a considerable number.

DOGS DISTURB COURT PROCEEDINGS

The peace and tranquility of today's police court at the Court House today was suddenly disrupted by the snarls of dogs in an adjacent room. Court officials hastened their sedate proceedings to lend an ear to the rude interruption.

Court officials proceeded to ascertain the cause of the disruption and found two dogs engaged in each other and snarling with apparent intent. One was removed from the premises as the presiding magistrate cleared his throat and remarked "proceed."

GERMANS BEGIN RETREAT INTO BESSARABIA

R.A.F. Hammers Several Targets in Occupied Territory

Russians Pursue Germans Across Dniester River

Enemy Said Unable To Block Russian Drives on Odessa And Nikolaev

CLOSE ON VINNITSA

By HAROLD KING

Reuter News Agency Correspondent

Moscow, March 17 — (CP-Reuters) — Marshal Ivan S. Konev's 2nd Ukrainian Army has already reached the Dniester River, frontier of Bessarabia and present border of Rumanian territory, at several points on a front that is retreating across the river at Mogilevpodolsk with Red Army forces hot on their heels.

Marshal Fritz Von Manstein, it is believed, now has his headquarters in Ha Hajci.

Around Proskurov the Red Army line is giant bulge is slowly grinding German forces to powder. Northeast of the town the thunder of Soviet guns never ceases from dawn to dusk. Many of German counter-attacks are being launched in the attempt to hold this vital communications centre.

At Tarnopol, also, defences are being overwhelmed as the Russians surge forward.

Vast Pocket Wiped Out

Two hundred miles to the south, where the last German in trap east of Nikolaev has been killed or taken prisoner, Gen. Rodion Malinovsky's forces are concentrating their assault on the Odessa Sea port.

One Soviet correspondent described the state of affairs in the Nikolaev area as "unimaginably bad," but somehow Red Army guns are being rushed forward with the advancing infantry.

There is increasing panic among the enemy as Russian tanks operate across the rear of German position, according to a late dispatch received by "Izvestia."

The German army appeared unable to hold the Red Army drives on Nikolaev and Odessa, and Nazi troops seeking escape by rail and sea have left up piles of communication in the rear of the Ukraine.

Expand Hold on Railway

Russian units are about 70 miles northeast of Odessa, big Black Sea port, and are drawn up in a great circle around Nikolaev and are already battering at the defences of Northwestern Odessa and Nikolaev, the Russians are rapidly expanding their hold on the line of the Lwow trunk rail line, main north-south communications route for the Field Marshal Fritz Von Manstein's German armies in southern Russia.

The battle for more miles of this railway line is one of the fiercest fighting on the Ukraine front, but only in the Proskurov sector—where the Nazis are trying to protect the railway leading westward toward Czechoslovakia — were the Germans apparently able to hold the Red Army line.

The most important stretch of the Lwow-Lwow line, from the Germans' point of view, is that section running from Ozerna to Zborov, Podgorzy and then run two escape railways westward into Bessarabia. The Nazis are grave danger of losing the northernmost, for Marshal Konev's cavalry, light tanks and infantry are already advancing upon that line.

The Nazis are relying on the Tiraspol escape railway for this is closer to the Dniester River bridge for large-scale evacuation which is heavily defended by the German position of the Germans at Odessa and Nikolaev.

Front dispatches to Pravda said Konev's fighters are "already breathing the air of the Dniester River and Carpathian Mountains."

Revenue Minister Predicts Election

Hamilton, March 17 — (CP)— Revenue Minister Gardiner, in an address to Hamilton West Liberal Association, said last night "it is generally known that an (federal) election will be held early next year, if not late this fall."

He urged his audience at the association's annual meeting to organize and prepare for any eventuality.

(Prime Minister Mackenzie King said in the House of Commons Jan. 21 that his government proposes to stay in power until the war is won unless it is prevented from properly carrying out the business of government.

He said there might be situations in which it would be "impossible" for the government to carry on with the authority it should have in wartime, but he had no thought of seeking an election.

(Should it be necessary, the present parliament might continue until March 31, 1945, time of the constitutional limitation on its duration.)

"The Liberal party believes in democracy," the prime minister said. "It believes that citizens should participate in the government by physical effort but that there should be controls to prevent exploitation."

Congress Against Relaxing Pledge Of Great Britain

Washington, March 17 — (AP)— Congressmen looked askance today at current diplomatic discussions looked toward relaxing the Lend-Lease pledge given Great Britain's three-year-old commitment to refrain from exporting materials similar to those received under the land-lease from the United States.

Senator Patrick McCarran (Dem., Nev.) declared he is "against any complete violation" of the spirit of lend-lease law, saying the pledge given by Anthony Eden, Britain's Foreign Secretary, and chairman Sol Bloom of the House of Representatives Foreign Affairs Committee said:

"Any question arising relating that pledge and neither will the Congress."

It became known yesterday that preliminary negotiations are under way between the two countries to permit Great Britain to resume limited export of automobiles and that has been unable to furnish because of the pledge. Under the agreement, which is not part of the lend-lease law, Britain promised not to export any commodities received from the United States and not to substitute for them articles from British materials and use the latter for commercial export purposes.

The question of relaxing the agreement arose after the United States Board of Economic Warfare, right from Britain in reverse lend-lease.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee is slated to vote next Tuesday on legislation to extend the lend-lease authority for another year.

Dublin Thronged But Pubs Closed As Eire Celebrates St. Patrick's Day

By ROGER GREENE

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Dublin, March 17 (AP)—The bells of an uneasy peace rang out in troubled Eire this St. Patrick's day as the warning voice of Prime Minister Churchill that the country would be isolated from the outer world hung heavy over the nation.

Dublin was thronged but all the pubs were closed and the dailies, by order of the government, appeared in the skirt of pipes and the inner lift of a wee drap o'the craiture" was missing.

In Connell Street, where blood ran in the days of "the terror" was jammed with a row-moving crowds in years.

their Sunday finest, all adorned with the green sprigs of shamrock.

There were loudspeakers at street corners blaring Irish jigs. However, the usual parade of Irish-American organizations was not permitted, limited to a small group of Red cross nurses and a column of boy scouts marching to martial music led by half a dozen drummers and seven pipers.

The army, which in normal times is a sizable force, was mobilized to help in marshaling.

The people of Eire are perhaps 90 per cent pro-Allied, with many thousands of their sons fighting the Axis.

A husky Irish policeman guarded the German legation.

"Sure, and nothing ever happens," he said, "but I'm told."

There was no guard outside the British and U.S. legations. The only outward "armament" visible was a tin helmet on the head of a lone air raid warden who had ten hounded his warning siren in nearly two

MILITARY TARGETS IN VIENNA HIT BY U.S. BOMBERS

Strong Raiding Force Meets No German Fighters Although A.-A. Fire Heavy

HIT LAST AUGUST

By RICHARD MASSOCK

(AP War Correspondent)

Naples, March 17—(AP)—American heavy bombers in strong formation today spanned the Alps into Hitler's realm to bomb the Vienna area by daylight from Mediterranean bases.

The United Nations radio at Algiers said "an aircraft factory at Vienna" was hit.

The assignment followed by a few hours disclosure that British four-engined bombers including Halifaxes, are now operating in the Mediterranean theatre. They played a major role in a smashing attack on Sofia last night.

Vienna, on the Danube, noted for its industry, is one of the nearest centres, was bombed for the first time on August 24, 1943, and again on September, 1942. British and American planes hit the area on the first night last month when African-based aircraft struck the Messerschmidt aircraft plant at Wiener Neustadt, 35 miles west of Vienna.

A few subsequent raids were carried out in the same area. The Germans are reported to have shifted much of Berlin's government business to the former Austrian capital, Vienna, because, they were reported preparing extensive evacuations there in anticipation of further raids. The city, which had a population before the nearly 2,000,000 in 1939, is 470 miles from Foggia, and 1,000 miles from Berlin, and 900 miles from London.

The strong raiding force met no opposition from the Nazi fighter formations ran into intense anti-aircraft fire. Other dispatches said the ground resistance was only moderate, and that the end of the attack crewmen reported none at all.

Furious Red drives to the "roof of the Black Sea," at Nikolaev and Kherson, shown on map (1), bring the Russians to the doorstep of the Rumanian oil fields and the Black Sea fleet (3) to take the harbors and greater portion of the Rumanian army in part in offensive action. This threat to Odessa and Nikolaev also threatens to Rumania (2), in particular, since Red armies from the north are also at her gates and invasion is just around the corner. Also endangered is the Rumanian capital of Bucharest (4) and Ploesti (5), the undecided Turkey must look. From the Proskurov front (4) and Lwow (6) the Red armies are occupying the ruins of ancient Monte Cassino Abbey overlooking the town and from where were directing artillery and mortar fire on Allied positions in the valley.

The Germans were reported fighting hard to retain their hold on Ozerna west and northwest of the town, which is commanding the Allied forces also were making progress.

On the beachhead south of Rome, American troops beat back German counter-attacks launched at regaining two strong points taken yesterday near Cerasola, and Carroceto. Casualties were inflicted on the Germans and some prisoners taken.

FINLAND'S REPLY TO RUSSIA'S TERMS IS DELIVERED

"I Do Not Hold Much Hope for Peace," Says Finnish Diplomat

PRESERVE RECORDS

By ROBERT N. STURDEVANT

Associated Press Staff Writer

Stockholm, March 17 — (AP) — Finland's reply to Russian armistice terms was delivered to the Soviet legation in Stockholm today and a Finnish diplomatic source told the Associated Press "I do not hold much hope for peace."

The reply presumably was handed to Minr. Alexandra Kollontay, the 75-year-old Russian diplomat, for transmission to Moscow. The terms for the Finnish surrender to Russia's final proposal is Saturday.

The action followed a meeting attended by President Roosevelt for Finland to "withdraw from this baneful partnership" with Germany. King Gustav of Sweden urged Marshal Baron Carl Mannerheim and other high Finnish government figures to accept the Russian conditions.

It is understood that Finland will communicate the contents of its answer very soon after receiving assurances that the reply from Finnish parliament was reliably reported to have rejected the terms in principle on Wednesday. Russian insistence upon internment of seven German divisions, and loss of Petsamo nickel mines, which have been in chief stumbling block. Finnish dispatches told of peasants to preserve church articles and believed were dropped off from these planes were shot down. Reported, New Britain, got a 175-ton plastering.

At Empress Augusta Bay, on Kiriwina, where new ground attacks by the Japanese were repulsed with heavy losses, 148 tons of bombs blasted the Nipponese positions.

LESS NEWSPRINT USED

Montreal, March 17 — (CP) — Newsprint paper apparent consumption by United States publishers in February at 394,316 tons was the lowest for any month since 1933, when the total was 342,139 tons, Newsprint Association of Canada's monthly report on the industry disclosed today. Compared with February, 1943, the decrease was 34,-000 tons. Consumption during the first two months of 1944 was 13.3 per cent less than the like port of last year.

Apparent total stocks of United States publishers at the end of February registered their sixth consecutive decline, a total of 422,000 302 tons, which compared with 483,700 tons a year ago, the Association stated. Total stocks in all North America were 832,200 tons at the end of February against 791,-927 tons in the like month in 1943.

BIGGEST ISLAND IN ADMIRALTIES INVADED BY U. S.

Troops Hack Away at Koreagan Airdrome on Manus Island

LIGHT RESISTANCE

Allied Headquarters, Southwest Pacific, March 17 — (AP) — Battle-hardened American troops hacked away at mixed Japanese defense today at Koreagan airdrome on Manus Island, headquarters reported today, after a new landing designed to wipe out the last organized Japanese resistance in the Admiralty Islands in the Bismarck Sea.

Going ashore under cover of a heavy bombardment by rocket guns, land-based artillery on nearby islets, and machine-gun strafing planes, the assaulting force broke light Japanese resistance in the first hours of the operation.

They pushed within one-half mile of Lorengau village and the big airdrome after landing near Logue Mission on the northeast coast of Manus. They had minor casualties, some from land mines and booby traps left by the Japanese.

A headquarters spokesman said the Allies was consolidating positions on Japanese wood and dirt pillboxes and machine gun nests.

Second Week Concludes Campaign

Capture of Lorengau air strip would have concluded the Admiralties' early campaign. The remainder of the island is long and low, 14 miles long and 7 miles wide, is largely jungle.

The communique today told also of a 500-ton aerial offensive against Japanese from Wewak, New Guinea, to Rempi, Gasmata, on New Britain positions. Over Wewak 140 tons of bombs were dropped and five Japanese planes were shot down. Rabaul, New Britain, got a 175-ton plastering.

At Empress Augusta Bay, on Kiriwina, where new ground attacks by the Japanese were repulsed with heavy losses, 148 tons of bombs blasted the Nipponese positions.

Aid Agreements Praised in London

By ROSS MUNRO

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 17 —(CP Cable) — Canadian mutual aid agreements with Britain, Australia, New Zealand and Australia were welcomed last night as a further advance in reciprocal assistance among the Allies which has been fundamental to the war effort of the United Nations.

The three agreements, tabled in the Canadian House of Commons in Ottawa by Prime Minister Mackenzie King, were viewed as "historic documents" in London.

Authorities were impressed also by the Prime Minister's statement that negotiations for similar agreements are under way with other countries, including China and the French Committee of National Liberation.

CASSINO ATTACK SPEARHEADED BY NEW ZEALANDERS

Troops Meet Strong Resistance But Drive Enemy From All But One Corner of Town

HOLD THREE-QUARTERS

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK

(AP War Correspondent)

Naples, March 17. (AP)— Fifth Army forces Germans fighting back every through bomb-demolished Cassino in the southwestern outskirts and have captured several strongment heights and dominating the valley of Rapido, Allied headquarters announced today.

New Zealand troops who plunged into the rubble immediately after Wednesday's 1,000-ton air-sea bombardment encountered strong resistance from Germans fighting back from the ruins but finally drove them from all except one corner of the town.

From that point strategic route to Via Casilina, leads into the Liri Valley and on to Rome.

The New Zealanders were occupying the ruins of ancient Monte Cassino Abbey overlooking the town and from where were directing artillery and mortar fire on Allied positions in the valley.

The Germans were reported fighting hard to retain their hold from every street, including Via Friedrichstrasse, the only one remaining intact. Some of the Allied forces also were making progress.

On the beachhead south of Rome, American troops beat back German counter-attacks launched at regaining two strong points taken yesterday near Cerasola, and Carroceto. Casualties were inflicted on the Germans and some prisoners taken.

Hunger Strike In 23rd Day

Belfast, Northern Ireland, March 17 — (AP) — Joe McKeater, 32-year-old chieftain of the outlawed Irish Republican Army who is in the 23rd consecutive hunger strike, which he began in protest against his internment on a treason conviction, was in the 23rd day of his "hunger strike to death" began in the prison here Thursday, and he is given the status of a political prisoner.

McKeater has lost about 10 pounds since he began his strike, prison officials said, but has been drinking large quantities of water and taking some nourishment in the form of tea.

The status of political prisoner would entail his release on parole if the hunger strike is carried to death, but this now is denied — including better living conditions.

'Factory Busters' Used On Michelin Works

London, March 17. (CP)—It was announced today that the R.A.F. dropped 1,000 tons of its new 12,000-pound "Factory Buster" on the Michelin works in a precision attack last night.

Canadians "Go Forth to War" In Transport Crossing Atlantic

By CHARLES BRUCE

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, March 17 — (CP) — Atlantic crossing, manner with which Canadians are tied up with the common crusade and the unbreakable link between Canada's youth are well known. But it was brought home with new emphasis when I found myself one time ago to observe and report the movement of one of the open decks of transports carrying them to war.

Only under an Atlantic sky, with the vibration of the ship's engines throbbing through the steel of the deck, the cruel gale of the winter weather woodwork pervasively present, could I realize the full significance of this "going forth to war." It is then you realize what it means to have left home to take a hand in an upsurge of the human spirit what is referred to in peacetime terms as international decency.

It is then you begin to take an interest in the home town's peacetime occupations — to which they want for the most part to come back when it's over — of these citizen soldiers from the farms, the beaches and the factories.

You talk to Lieut. Glen Gemmell who was a clerk in the Bank of Montreal, Ottawa, before he was enlisted in the ranks. He rose to commissioned rank after going to Canada to be commissioned. He was glad to get back to Eastern Command.

There are subalterns like Ernie Musgrave of Windsor, Ont., and Walter Bell and Jack Wheelston of Toronto.

This is all old stuff, for it has been going on for four years. But it is always interesting to see the young men and women involved every time a troopship casts off from an east coast Canadian port.

Justice O'Connor Heads Labor Board

Ottawa, March 17 — (CP)— Appointment of the new Wartime Labor Relations Board to administer the new Federal Labor Relations Code and resignation of Mr. Justice C. P. McTague, chairman of the National War Labor Board, supervisory body of the Wartime Wages Control Order, were announced yesterday in the Commons.

Labor Minister Mitchell, tabling an order-in-council, announced that Mr. Justice G. B. O'Connor of Edmonton is to head the Labor Relations Board with Mr. Justice Frank Scott of Montreal as vice-chairman. The other eight members of the Board will be equally representative of employers and employees.

There was no immediate indication of who would be appointed to the National War Labor Board chairmanship.

The other two members of the Board, Leon Lalande of Montreal and Gordon Cushing of Toronto, constituted a forum and can deal with cases for hearing as they are presented, Board officials said.

Mr. Mitchell announced in Hansard that he had accepted the chairmanship of the Labor Relations Board on behalf of the ministry.

The Board has no relationship to the National War Labor Board which administers the Wartime Wage Control Order.

Resignation of Mr. Justice McTague was announced by Prime Minister Mackenzie King following an exchange of correspondence between himself and Mr. Justice McTague. Chairman, Mr. Justice McTague's letter of April 1st referred to reasons for his legal connections; He is a member of the Ontario Supreme Court.

TRAIN WRECK CAUSES 26 NAZI CASUALTIES

Naples, March 17, (AP)—Papers found on a German prisoner have disclosed a train wreck near 100 miles north of Rome recently caused 800 German casualties, Allied headquarters announced today. The prisoner, a lieutenant of engineers, was believed the work of Italian saboteurs.

Seven Forced to Land.

Allied dispatches said seven of the American bombers in yesterday's attack on Sofia, Bulgaria, were forced to land on Swiss soil, three of crashing.

Two British bombers (presumably part of Wednesday night's attack) and one German night fighter also were forced to land in Switzerland.

The communique describing Thursday's daylight attack on Germany said the bombers attacked "in very great strength," the phrase which usually is mean the force probably was as strong as that which struck Berlin March 6-8. An armada estimated unofficially at 800 planes.

The Berlin radio declared a new blast was delivered on the city in the defence and Junkers-88's were observed firing rockets from their tails for the first time.

POMERANIAN DOG STRUCK BY CAR

Struck by a motor vehicle on Dundas Street Wednesday afternoon a black Pomeranian dog belonging to Mrs. Hughes, The Bay, was injured to the extent that it is thought necessary to put a dog soother, but no dog tag is to be found on the animal.

HARD TO KEEP BOY IN TRAINING SCHOOL

Ronald George, a boy-age 14 who was committed to the Bowmanville Training School some months ago, has since given the authorities a merry chase.

Last Sunday afternoon, Ronald escaped from the institution. On Monday, he was captured in Belleville and on Wednesday returned to the school. Ronald was not long in then inside the school portals when he made good his escape again. Bowmanville officials broadcast his description and Provincial Police Officer Harold was recaptured in a local restaurant by P. C. Hall. There is a little more to Ronald's story. He is a ward of the Children's Aid Society, Belleville, but no one has as yet been found willing to adopt him.

REAR-END COLLISION CAUSES $100 DAMAGE

Damage to a motor car, estimated at $100, was caused when a rear-end collision occurred at Bloomfield and Bridge Streets, although it is said miles east of Belleville early Thursday morning.

Ernest Baker of Tamworth, was driving his truck in a westerly direction, and, owing to the slippery roads, was unable to stop when traffic in front of him was brought to a standstill by the overturning of a motor car driven by Mrs. Cummins, R.R. No. 3 Shannonville, whose car skidded on the icy roads and overturned, although no injury to her was noted. The car crashed into the rear of Baker's truck, causing damage to the radiator, headlights and front fenders. Traffic Officer W. G. Milton investigated.

SKUNK IS KILLED IN CHICKEN COOP

In keeping with the current activities in the comic strip, Li'l Abner apparently has a counterpart in Wellington, Belleville Police discovered on one of the cases "little black kittens with a white stripe down its back" Tuesday night.

Early that morning residents at 58 Burton St. complained that a skunk was in their chicken coop, killing their fowl. Police arrived on the scene and with one shot dispatched the chicken coop and with a well-aimed shot disposed of the animal itself. It could be hoped, by way of release that, none-too-well-appreciated odor.

BLACKSMITH SHOP DESTROYED BY FIRE

Fanned by a strong wind which considerably hampered efforts of the fire department, fire of an undetermined origin early Wednesday morning almost completely destroyed the blacksmith shop and mill owned by Mr. Thomas Mullin, in Desoronto. Loss is estimated by the owner at upwards of $1,000.

Discovered by a son-in-law of Mr. Mullin, Mr. Harold Mullin, as he was eating breakfast, the blaze was well underway when first seen and although the fire department's water were quickly pouring into the building it is always considered, Firemen were successful in saving a nearby cement mill which the strong wind was blowing sparks.

Lost in the blaze all of Mr. McMillan's tools gasoline engine and several hundred tonnes of cement in process of manufacture.

LOWER HYDRO RATE FOR DESERONTO

Upon recommendation from the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Toronto, members of the Public Utilities Commission of the town of Deseronto recently voted to reduce their hydro rate to domestic power users. It was voted that the number of kilowatt hours in the first rate be increased from 100 to 110 and that the present charge of 4.5 cents per kilowatt hour be cut to the first rate. The present second rate of 1.2 cents per kilowatt hour will be reduced to one cent.

ELDON D. PURVIS GRADUATES AS PILOT

Among recent graduates as pilots in the Royal Canadian Air Force is Eldon D. Purvis, son of Mr. D. Purvis, 56 Bridge St., Belleville. He had pilot's wings pinned on his tunic at No. 19 Service Flying Training School at Vulcan, Alta., and received his commission as a pilot officer upon graduation.

AIR FORCE OFFICER USES CAR FOR TOBOGGAN SLIDE

An Air Force Officer was seen enjoying himself late Thursday night on Front St. by climbing up to the top of a motor car and sliding down the front of the vehicle and across the hood to the radiator. After completing this procedure several times customers in a nearby restaurant thought it time to inform they were notified before the "flyer" made a one point landing. Upon the arrival of the police the law the airman had disappeared.

Obituary

MRS. W. R. (Veronica) SAULTS
(Formerly of Belleville)

The Morning Albertan of Calgary, Alta., Mar. 10th, 1944, carried the following obituary which will be of interest to many persons in Belleville.

Following a lengthy illness, Mrs. Veronica Saults, wife of William R. Saults, died Thursday, March 9, at noon, in the Holy Cross Hospital. Mrs. Saults, who was born in Belleville, Ont., was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Vermilyea, former residents of Belleville, Ont. She came to Calgary 38 years ago. On Dec. 27th, 1905, she was married to Mr. Saults, also a native of Belleville, who survives her. Mrs. Saults had been for many years interested in the Sunday School work at that church as well as the Women's Missionary Society of the Church. She was also an active member of the Catholic Women's League and a member of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Knights of Columbus, Calgary. Besides her husband, of Calgary; she son, Charles William, Vancouver; two daughters, Mrs. Ed. Pomfrey, Mrs. Vancouver.

Funeral services were conducted at Park Memorial Chapel at 4 p.m. Saturday, March 11th. Rev. J. Ralph Morden officiated.

CALVIN F. SCOTT

Picton, March 17.—A well known and highly respected resident of Picton passed away at his home, operated by his daughter, Mrs. Scott, in the person of Calvin P. Scott.

Mr. Scott was born in Picton in his 90th year. Mr. Scott was born at Cherry Valley, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Scott. He resided at Yerxeville, Ameliasburg, for many years ago. He was widely known throughout the district as a result of his activities in various business pursuits. He was also greatly interested in the fishing industry and was a local buyer, shipping to many markets.

His many friends will remember him for his cheerful smile and kind heart in all his dealings and friendship.

The funeral service was held at the Hinchey Funeral Home on Friday afternoon. Rev. J. F. Heycraft officiating. There was a profusion of floral tributes, silent expressions of respect and sympathy from the Picton Lodge, No. 27, of the Oddfellow Lodge, and the Order conducted their rites under the direction of John Rose, chaplain. Interment was in Glenwood Cemetery, Hillier. Pallbearers were Miller Gilmore, Milton Dulmage, Benson Moore, Oscar Rose, Blanding Jenkins, George Bongard, members of the Lodge.

Mrs. Scott passed away 30 years ago and a sister, Mrs. John Vanalstine, predeceased him. Surviving are four daughters and three sons: Mrs. Percy Hinchey, Picton; Myrtle of Toronto, who resides with Ethel, wife of F. F. Warren, Clarke, Ont.; Eldon of that Ilsley, Gerald E. Kitchener; Ross of Yerxeville, also seven grandchildren and five great grandchildren.

LATE WILLIAM BISDEE
(Ameliasburg.)

The funeral of William Bisdee took place Thursday afternoon from his late residence in Ameliasburg. The service in the home and at Grove Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. C. O. Adamson, pastor of Ameliasburg United Church, assisted by the Rev. J. D. Hall of Belleville.

The bearers were Messrs. Stephen VanOrli, Morris Adams, Murray Dempsey, Harry Redner, Charles Cannon and Ernest Wilson.

MRS. JOHN LYONS
(Kingston.)

The funeral of Mrs. John Lyons, Kingston, formerly Belleville, and wife of the Rt. Rev. John Lyons, Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario, will take place from her home, 600 Earl Street, Kingston, on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, to St. George's Cathedral for service at three o'clock. Interment will take place in Cataraqui Cemetery.

Mrs. Lyons, who died on Thursday in Kingston General Hospital, is survived by her husband; two sons, Dr. C. N. Richmond, (Marian), of Picton; Mrs. A. J. Hamilton, (Gail) of Kingston; one brother, Mr. N. L. Bowerman, Supervisor of Schools, Ottawa; two sisters, Mrs. G. A. Walker, Deseronto, and Mrs. Hamilton Bolton of Woodstock.

ARTHUR JOHN NELSON
(Wooler-Hastings)

Wooler, March 17 (Special)—Arthur John Nelson of Hastings, and a former resident of Wooler, died in hospital at Kingston on Thursday, March 16th, after an illness of two years' duration.

Born in Brighton township forty-nine years ago the late Mr. Nelson was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nelson. For a considerable number of years he lived in Trenton and for the past ten years he has been living in Hastings. During the first Great War he enlisted with the 130th Battalion and served in France, being badly gassed. In religion he was a member of the Anglican church and was highly esteemed.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Lorna E. Hess; three brothers, Benjamin Lunn of Toronto, and Nels at home; two sisters, Ralph Lowe and Sergeant W. F. Nelson, now serving with the R.C.A.F. overseas; one sister, Mrs. Thalia Cillis, Toronto.

The funeral will take place from the home of Stewart Nelson in Wooler on Saturday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. Interment will take place in the Friends cemetery.

LATE ALEXANDER S. (SANDY) WHITE

On Thursday afternoon many friends were present at the funeral of Alexander Scott (Sandy) White, whose sad passing after the illness of but a few days, came as a shock to his many friends. The service in the home at 48 Bridge St. was conducted by Rev. Dr. Daniel Perry, pastor of Bridge St. United Church, assisted by Rev. Dr. Ferguson, Rev. Mr. Stewart and Mr. Robert Irvine.

Reforestation Conn. is Named By Anglers' Assoc.

The reforestation of barren lands, especially those of the Province of Ontario, was stressed throughout Hastings County, via the annual meeting of the Belleville and District Game Protective Association, held Tuesday evening at the T.M.C.A. Thursday evening.

Byron O. Lott, veteran county angler and hunter, who is the representative of Cobalt on Hastings and Lyon Pair of stirring, was the principal speaker. He spoke at length on the matter of reforestation for the replacement of the various woodlands in this district. Mr. Lott said that the cutting of trees on his property in 1904, that today stand 40 feet, 50 feet.

Thursday "Sportsmen of the students in some of our country schools in Ontario, planting 1,000 saplings were placed "Arbor season". Mr. Lott said that this practice assured the anglers and hunters, that the county council would continue the project.

Mr. Lott spoke briefly on the matter of reforestation in the matter. President J. F. Shortt suggested a Reforestation Committee be added to the Association to seeking the co-operation of the Ontario Government in the matter. The committee selected is: Chairman, Cecil R. Davis, Vandervoort, Eric Denyes, D. O. Lott, Jas. Haggerty, A. Sandercock, Fred Thompson and Harry Ketcheson.

The secretary of the Association is to seek the co-operation of the government in the matter of the future reforestation of lands adjacent to district lakes, and streams, and also rehabilitation of wooded areas to assist in the restoration of salmon conditions. Arrangements will be made with the Ontario Government in the matter. The committee selected is: Chairman, Cecil R. Davis, Vandervoort, Eric Denyes, D. O. Lott, Jas. Haggerty, A. Sandercock, Fred Thompson and Harry Ketcheson.

Speaker Refutes Allegations Made By C. C. F. Party

"Great post-war preparations are in formulation with most of the manufacturers throughout Canada at the present", declared Mr. George H. Hunt, general manager of Canadian Agencies, Imperial Life Insurance Company, during his address to the Life Insurance Officers' Association luncheon held Thursday noon at the Y.M.C.A. Mr. Hunt's talk was centred around post-war prosperity and a considerable portion of his address was devoted to refuting the allegations made by the C.C.F. party in their statements concerning the life insurance companies. The statements made by the C.C.F., that the companies were making huge profits by the sale of policies, Mr. Hunt pointed out, is not only wrong, but is proved wrong on the face of it. "Lapses do not make money for the companies", he said. "If the lapses take place in the first or second year and the company has to make much money until about the fifth year."

Mr. Hunt said, that the Aberhart government after having made use of the life insurance business shortly after going into office in 1935, he recalled that Mr. Aberhart made the statement that they would put the life insurance companies out of business. Three days ago it was announced by the Alberta Legislature asking for funds to make up the deficits of the province's government life insurance company.

Mr. Hunt stated, that he believed there was slight danger of any serious agitation arising from the time conditions, such as in 1918-19, when the Communist epidemic swept Europe and the North American continents. A certain few "pinks" to be found at present, which outlined the rise and fall of life insurance in effect in war years, 1914-1918, rising from $225,606,797 in that year to a peak of $876,141,483 in 1929. The total amount of insurance in force in Canada at the end of 1943 was $8500,000,000, or six hundred and twenty-five millions over 1939.

Non-Canadian replacements on the executive which had been vacated by Canadian executives, and several connections with the life insurance business, appointed Donald Williams, Mutual Life, and Vernon Weir, Canada Life, to the vacancies by unanimous approval.

Mr. Hunt was introduced by Mr. John Hunt, Kingston, and the reply of appreciation was made by Benjamin Ogilvie, Belleville. The meeting was presided over by Mr. Ralph Morden, president of the Life Underwriters' Association in Belleville.

TORONTO SOLDIER KILLED IN RAID

London, March 17. (CP Cable)—The Canadian soldier killed in the German fire raid on London on Tuesday night was Private Reginald J. Kellow of Toronto, it was disclosed today. Kellow was killed when two houses in a suburb were wrecked by a high explosive bomb.

Red Cross Campaign in City Still Far Short of Goal

Through the generous contributions of many of Belleville's citizens, as part of a great national drive, Canadians have put the Canadian Red Cross in funds to the tune of $1,500,000 for the year 1944, it was announced by Mr. Ross Carman, campaign director for Belleville and district last evening. Mr. Carman stated that the objective for Belleville and district was $6,000 and that to-date only $2,500 of yesterday's activities.

In the city of Belleville "every man, woman and child" of the Canadian Red Cross means to the British people, to the fighting services and to themselves, they would not hesitate to give and give generously in these final days of the campaign, is the statement made by Mr. C. Bruce Hill, president-elect of the Ontario division of the Canadian Red Cross Society.

Under the conventions of Geneva, the "Red Cross exists by voluntary subscription. It is the only way that great humanitarian work can be carried on," Mr. Hill said.

Last year the appeal was overwhelmingly successful. This year the need is greater. The Red Cross Society has been asked to raise $1,500,000 for the duration of war would not cease. The cutting down of Canadian Red Cross Welfare work for the starving and needy in Europe and Asia, Mr. Hill declared, would be to keep faith with those who gave last year.

Over half of the $6,000,000 which Ontario people are being asked for in the national campaign for funds will be set aside for the benefit of the sacrificed work of continuing the supply of prisoner-of-war food parcels.

Trenton and District

Truck Accident Due to Slippery Road Condition

Trenton, March. 17.—There were no accidents recorded due the icy condition of sidewalks and streets during the past 48 hours, and one serious truck accident.

Cecil R. Davis, Trenton, driving a large motor truck west on Dundas Street, on Wednesday night, came to the intersection of Dundas and Front Streets and started to make a right turn into Front Street. Realizing that a car proceeding south on Front Street had the right of way, he applied his brakes and was stopped exactly on the centre line of the traffic signal. Davis feared if he turned his vehicle into Front Street, he would collide with the car, owing to the severe icy condition of the street. He therefore thought it best to keep going straight on Dundas and when the truck was abreast with the wheels from their slightly turned position, the truck skidded, jumped the sidewalk and struck the plate glass window in the corner of Simmon's Drug Store, Dundas St.

The truck was only slightly damaged, however, and Mr. Davis was unhurt.

Two-Year Term For Stealing Car

Convicted of breaking and entering the Quinte Motors here and stealing a motor car from the premises, Ralph and William La-Rue of this city, was sentenced to two years in the Intermediate penitentiary by Magistrate J. L. Lloyd today.

LaRue, an employee at the Quinte Motors at the time of the offence, received similar trial to a charge of car theft and also of breaking and entering the premises and stealing gasoline. On the car theft counts LaRue was given two years less a month on the breaking and entering charges.

Det. Constable Carruthers informed the court LaRue was apprehended in Cobourg, after he, with his wife, attempting to sell the stolen motor car, which is the property of Percy Dudgeon, proprietor of the Quinte Motors. LaRue was in possession of the stolen car from Feb. 13th until he was arrested in Cobaurg. During that period he toured Eastern Ontario to Ottawa and Montreal before returning.

"I guess we will have to keep him out of the way or he will always be in trouble," remarked His Worship after Crown Attorney R. C. Donnan and Det. Constable LaRue record of previous convictions, that included many previous convictions of car theft here.

Sgt. H. Dracup Awarded Military Medal for Bravery

Wounded through the chest last December 10th, by a German sniper's bullet, while he was trying to round up Nazi prisoners on the Italian front, Sergeant Harold S. Dracup of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Canadian Active Military Medal, according to an announcement from army headquarters. He has been in base hospital in North Africa since he was wounded.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Selbourne W. Dracup, 5 Better Street, Sgt. Dracup was born in Stirling, but later moved to Belleville with his parents. He enlisted in the R. A. F. E. in September, 1939, and went overseas with the first contingent the following December. He went to Europe, with his unit in 1940.

Mr. and Mrs. Dracup have no idea of the action for which they were awarded the Military Medal but suppose that it was for carrying the body of duty just prior to the time he was wounded. Another son, Neville Roy, whose age could not be learned from the family wrote recently that "dad is out for Sgt. Dracup, I would not be living today". In his last letter home Sgt. Dracup informed that he would soon be up and around walk and stand, after he was back at the front.

Besides the other brothers in Italy, Pte. Jack Dracup enlisted in the R. A. F. and was overseas on the same ship until a now in another unit. A young brother, Pte. Percy Dracup is with a Montreal ambulance corps in Italy.

More Men Wanted To Take St. John First-Aid Course

The Belleville branch of the St. John Ambulance Corps will open new classes in first-aid to accommodate the public with civilian work.

These classes are gratis and the course is qualified in every phase to teach first-aid. These classes will be of interest to home players, as well as employees, as the course is open to any in the factory, industry or even a store or office would be helpful in the event of an accident. The response from the women of Belleville to learn first-aid has been remarkable but there has been a slackness on the part of employers and employees to respond to the program of first-aid. Mr. Bert Jordan, district supervisor of the board revealed today. He urged both employers and employees to seek further knowledge of the proposed program. The local office on Pinnacle St. The new classes will be opened late in the month and the public can apply an evening a week to the teachings of first-aid. It will be a course that will save a life. More information can be obtained by contacting Mr. Leslie at his home or Charles St.

Letter Outlines Important Part Jews Play in War

The following article was submitted to the Ontario Intelligencer by A. Shapiro who said at the time that, more people would understand what part the Jews are playing in the war if the article was published for them to read. The article is a letter written by Mrs. A. M. Campbell to the Editor of the Toronto Star.

"The part played by Jewish organizations, particularly the Canadian Jewish Congress, in supplying the needs of Montgomery's army, has not been known. He was a Jewish engineer (from Czechoslovakia) who built the bridge across the Egyptian canal by which the Germans were cut off from the Suez. Twelve Jewish boys voluntarily gave up their lives in fighting for the Cause of Freedom at Tripoli. Fifty Jews captured the French fort and protected it for a week's enlargement in the matter.

Andrew Masterson, no given address, appeared on a charge of vagrancy and was given a week's remedy for one week during which time he may be examined by Ontario Hospital authorities.

Budget Debate to Open on Tuesday, Drew and Jolliffe in Clash

Toronto, March 17 — (CP)—The Ontario Legislature received yesterday the first budget of Premier Drew's Progressive Conservative government but opening of the budget debate has been held over until Tuesday and today the House considers bills and other routine business.

The 1944-45 budget, presented by Provincial Treasurer Leslie M. Frost, reported a net debt reduction of $15,197,751 in the current year — largest out in the history of the province, and an over-all surplus of $59,261,975.

But the two-hour budget address was preceded by a clash between the Premier and S. B. Jolliffe, C.C.F. leader. Mr. Jolliffe said the Premier had wrongly revoked budget information outside the House before the budget was presented. Mr. Drew said he had done nothing wrong and that governments frequently made such announcements to correspondents gathering before being circulated among the public.

The Hastings-Norfolk by-election and Liberal Leader Harry C. Nixon were brought into the exchange which produced the "hottest" scene of the session, now nearing the end of its fourth week.

Interruptions were frequent when Premier Drew was replying to the C.C.F. leader — and at one point Speaker W. J. Stewart said if they did not cease he would "be advised to adjourn the House."

MacLeod Precipitates Clash

The clash was precipitated by A. A. MacLeod (Lib.—Toronto Bellwoods) who said he was amazed to find a statement in the Toronto Globe and Mail announcing a grant of $3,500,000 to municipalities for ward education. The Premier had promised in the House a full statement on the education tax problem and he questioned the "propriety of releasing information during the budget to advance."

Mr. Jolliffe also drew attention to the Premier's announcement in "a newspaper this morning" and commented it "positively a discourtesy to this House."

He said many protests had been heard, from the Premier regarding action of the Dominion in giving advance announcements to the press. He did not know the contents of the budget, but he was sure the $3,500,000 item for education would be found.

Drew Maintains Statement Proper.

Premier Drew replied his issuance of the statement was not similar to the action of the Dominion which he had criticized. The Dominion had released decisions affecting the whole country, including financial arrangements between the Dominion and the provinces.

He maintained his statement to the Press had been proper and suggested if Mr. Jolliffe "sought to learn" he would know it was customary for governments to make announcements on matters causing misstatements to be circulated outside the House.

He concluded from a speech by Mr. Jolliffe in the Haldimand-Norfolk by-election in which the C.C.F. Leader said the Ontario Government had been nothing to halt the profits of Imperial Tobacco Company. The Opposition Leader should know the head office of the company was at Montreal and outside the jurisdiction of the province, Mr. Jolliffe was "misleading the people."

At this there were interruptions from the C.C.F. benches and the Speaker cautioned the House.

Continuing, Mr. Drew asked why the Opposition Leader had not moved an amendment to the address in reply to the Throne Speech and answered his own question by saying "he didn't have the courage to do it".

More Interruptions.

There were more interruptions and the Speaker said if they did not cease he would be "advised to adjourn the House."

Mr. Drew said Mr. Nixon also had been in Haldimand-Norfolk telling the people to look at their tax bills to see if they had received the promised fifty per cent off, education taxes.

The Liberal Leader made no reply to this reference to the government's pledge to accept fifty per cent of the cost of education charged against real estate.

Mr. Jolliffe rose again and said if the Premier had continued quoting his (Mr. Jolliffe's) by-election speech he would have read that section by the government "to protect the province against the tobacco interests had been advocated. This was not a statement in the Toronto Globe and Mail announcing a grant of $3,500,000 to municipalities for ward education. The Premier had promised in the House a full statement on the education tax problem and he questioned the "propriety of releasing information during the budget to advance."

Michael Korzymowski Is Sentenced To Month's Term

Michael Korzymowski, formerly of Dundas, Main and Niagara Falls, Ont., and more recently residing in Belleville, was sentenced to one month in the common jail after being convicted of having failed to report to the Chalk River Experimental Farm on Wednesday afternoon. No objection was arraigned before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd here today. His Worship also directed that at the expiration of the month Korzymowski be escorted to Chalk River and delivered to the authorities there as a conscientious objector.

The accused man in his defence said he was a minister of the Gospel and when the prosecution did not establish evidence to the contrary a subsequent charge of failing to notify the National Selective Service Board of a change in address was dismissed. "I am not establishing a precedent in this case," added Magistrate Lloyd.

In addition to the initial charge, Korzymowski quoted Scripture, informing him, His Worship pointed out that the witness was not giving evidence. "Really you are defending me, not giving evidence," pointed out the court.

Provincial Constable A. A. Kellogg testified "Korzymowski refused to say any more and inquired if I was interested in a subscription to Watchtower published by the Jehovah Witnesses." It was during this conversation that Constable Kellogg arrested Korzymowski on a nominal holding charge. E. S. Polkwell, local barrister, attended the case as special prosecutor.

Young Woman Employee Arrested in Office Of Oil Controller

Toronto, March 17 —(CP)—Royal Canadian Mounted Police said today that a young woman employee in the office of the oil controller has been arrested in connection with a gasoline book racket.

No details were given by police who said the woman, held overnight in custody without bail, will appear in police court and be remanded. They added that further investigations are being made.

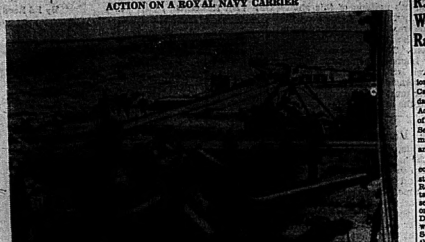
ACTION ON A ROYAL NAVY CARRIER



Mistaken'ation brought about this scene as the pilot throttled back his late and collided with the carrier's "island." Note the self-propelled crane in background. The picture was taken from an aircraft flying over the Royal Navy's new U. S. built Vought Sikorsky Corsair at sea.

23 U. S. Transport Planes Shot Down by Mistake

John A. Moroso, Associated Press navy correspondent, who was aboard an assault transport ship during the night of July 10-11, witnessed the shooting down of American planes by Allied gunners during the confusion heightened by German bombing attacks, and described the tragic mix-up—long sealed by censorship—in the following dispatch.

BY JOHN A. MOROSO

London, March 17 (AP)—Numerous American C-47s — transport and glider planes loaded with American paratroopers — were shot down during the operation of the Sicilian invasion last July by anti-aircraft fire from their own American and British warships. The barrage were apparently touched off by Nazi raiders.

Censors now permit telling how the Germans reached the transports after our ships had as our planes were flying over in the intense darkness of night.

(The army announced in Washington that 37 transport planes and 410 airborne infantry soldiers were lost on the night of July 10-11, 1943.)

The whole tragic incident is believed in respect to have been a Nazi trick. The German planes joined the flight formation in darkness and bombed the ships as they passed over.

There was a report, too, that some ships in the convoy—mainly anti-aircraft—did not get a warning that friendly planes were approaching and that they opened fire before the bombing began.

Some anti-aircraft batteries also fired from above.

Some Americans were able to bail out and were rescued from the sea.

Aboard the ships we had been informed that our transport planes were to fly over at a fixed time—flying at a specified height from a certain direction. We received a second warning as our planes approached, to make doubly sure that gun crews did not open fire.

But suddenly from the darkness above began to be screaming down around the ships. One ship captain reported "these friendly planes are dropping bombs on me" — and soon some ships in the convoy opened a barrage which lit the sky.

More than a dozen planes fell flaming into the sea—some our own, some the enemy's.

Naval authorities criticized our air force at the time for flying transports over ships that were unloading at anchor. They said the planes should have been directed on a course that would have taken them out of the range of our guns.

Surviving aviators said they were puzzled by the order to fly over the convoy.

The army and navy operated under a joint command in this campaign while the air force operated separately and some men aloft certainly and some men blamed lack of co-ordination for the affair.

It should be pointed out that frequently in amphibious attacks of sea-air battles friendly planes are often shot down by our own people when they dive to attack enemy bombers.

Secret For 5 Months.

Washington (AP)—The loss of 410 American airborne infantrymen in 23 transport planes shot down by anti-aircraft fire from their own ground and naval forces during the invasion of Sicily was disclosed today by the United States Army after a sergeant broke the military censorship which kept the incident secret eight months.

Without explanation of the secrecy previously imposed, an official memorandum was issued describing how reinforcements were being borne reinforcements were being flown into the Gela sector the night of July 10-11, 1943.

Sgt. Mark Foote, a correspondent of the army's overseas newspaper, Stars and Stripes, made the first public announcement of the affair in a speech yesterday to the Overseas Writers Commonwealth Club. Foote said "some 30 of our planes went down" from Allied anti-aircraft fire.

Asked about the sergeant's statement at his press conference today, War Secretary Henry Stimson replied that incidents of that nature had occurred during the war, but that he was unable to give positive information on the case and "did not recognize the figures" used by Foote.

Reports of the Sicilian incident had been current for several months, although official confirmation could not be obtained, and the War Department, after requests were made for a more definite reply by the secretary's, made public several hours later the details of the action.

The operation was intended, the army said, to land 2,000 troops of the 82nd Airborne Division as reinforcements within the Allied lines in the Gela area.

This force, consisting of 170 aircraft, received anti-aircraft fire from enemy ground forces and from friendly naval and ground forces, with losses of 23 aircraft and 410 personnel of the memorandum said.

The flight arrived in the battle area immediately following an enemy bombing attack and under the illumination of the approach intended to ward off such attacks. The combination of circumstances was favoring the approach immediately in rear of a hostile bombing attack at night at a relatively low altitude were the responsible factors in the loss of the planes.

"This action was inside the basis of careful study, designed to improve identification and timing and prevent similar losses in the future.

"The navy concurs in this statement."

STREETS ICY, BUT ACCIDENTS FEWEST

Toronto, March 17. (CP)—Police said that the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today when streets were ice-covered and more hazardous than ever before this year—was the safest day of the year as far as traffic accidents were concerned. There were only four accidents and only one person was injured.

However, the hazard remained for pedestrians, 49 persons being treated for fractures received in falls, bringing the two-day total of such cases to 105.

R.C.N. Officer Credited With Holding Two Ranks at Same Time

A Newfoundland Port—His sensitivity as a lieutenant in the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve dates back to September, 1939, but Acting Lieut.-Cdr. E. W. Webster of Picton, Ont., knows that up until September, 1940, he was a quartermaster sergeant in Canada's active army.

Serving at this base as port executive officer, Lieut.-Cdr. Webster now volunteered for service in the Royal Canadian Navy and was taken into the service. He was sent to Toronto in 1939. He went on with his work for the Dominion Department of Agriculture and waited for the war which came in September, 1939. By January, 1940, the navy had not called him.

"So I joined the army as a private", he recalls today with a smile. "Within a couple of weeks I was a quartermaster sergeant".

Lieut.-Cdr. Webster served as a midshipman in the Royal Naval Reserve in the last war. He saw action in an armed merchant cruiser before transferring to coastal motor boats operating in the English Channel. He was born in Helena, Montana, in 1896, and lived with his family in South Africa and Wales and England. He came to Canada in 1926 where business took him to live in London, Windsor, Toronto and Picton. He is thoroughly attached to the beautiful Cherry Valley country.

It was the end of July, 1940, Lieut.-Cdr. Webster was on furlough and received a letter from naval authorities announcing he had been appointed an acting lieutenant and instructing him to report to Halifax. He got his discharge from the army on Sept. 5, and was in naval officer's uniform on September 9, 1940. He has served as a base defence officer, R.C.N. lieutenant of a corvette, and came here as a port executive officer.

Recently the R.C.N. gave certain officers an extra year's seniority—which put his seniority date back to September, 1939. That is why official lists will now show Lieut.-Cdr. Webster as a naval lieutenant and quartermaster sergeant at the same time.

The Need Grows As Victory Nears . . . .

$4500. Needed to Complete Belleville Objective to the Red Cross Campaign!

THIS IS THE YEAR OF SUPREME EFFORT, the year Red Cross will be needed as never before. And as our all-out victory drive gains momentum, as casualty lists mount, as the horrors of war spread wider and sink deeper, this need will grow.

WE MUST SEE THEM THROUGH: the fighting men on every front, the gallant Merchant Navy, the wounded and maimed in Britain and Canadian hospitals, Prisoners of War, the homeless war orphans of Britain and Allied lands, the suffering millions of Europe.

ONLY THE RED CROSS MEETS THIS CALL for vital life saving food for Prisoners of War parcels, medicines, comforts, blood serum that spell survival for so many. There is no one else to do the job.

THAT IS WHY WE CANNOT FAIL: why we ask you to open your hearts and purses, giving to the limit of your ability.

REMEMBER, Victory will not be cheap; the real need lies ahead.

Your donations are urgently needed. If you have not contributed, or if you have and can assist further, please send or leave same at the CAMPAIGN HEADQUARTERS, 224 PINNACLE STREET, Riggs' Motor Sales, or Phone 780 and some one will call on you. Canvassers please complete canvass and make returns not later than SATURDAY, MARCH 18th.

Provincial Budget

The people of Ontario have opportunity now to look into the budget of the Province of Ontario, the fifth in war time. It possesses a number of features of great interest, the increase of the present onemill subsidy to municipalities to two mills, the second mill to be applied to the reduction of education costs as they now are levied against real estate, the proposal of a probe of the entire field of taxation on real estate by a royal commission, the doubling of the race-track betting through pari-mutuel tickets, grants to the three universities of Toronto, Queen's and Western Ontario to lift the debt resting upon them, and in order to help research, the boosting of estimates of the Health Department by over a million dollars and increasing of the Welfare Department estimates over two and a half millions.

It calls attention to net reduction of the provincial debt by over twelve million dollars.

Attention is also given to the question of retirement of the provincial debt by a forty-year retirement plan for the postwar era.

The budget speech states that outside of the tax which increased on race-track betting "no new forms of taxation will be imposed," the point being that "the Government feels that with our people laboring under a great weight of wartime taxation the greatest service it can render is to avoid adding to that burden either by way of increased debt or taxation."

Provincial Treasurer Frost paid tribute to the former Provincial Treasurers, Mr. Hepburn and Mr. Gordon, saying that they must have a deep sense of satisfaction in having rendered signal service to the Province.

Reference was made to the extension of rural Hydro lines 400 miles in length this year which will serve an estimated 5,670 consumers.

Another matter of interest is the spending of $2,840,200 less on ordinary account in the Highways Department and reduction of $853,000 in gross cost of foreign exchange and interest on public debt which $1,000 extra will be spent on municipal roads this year.

Two hundred thousand dollars extra is to be spent in the Lands and Forests Department for preventive services and one hundred thousand dollars for the new Department of Planning and Development of the Province.

Events in Making in S. Russia

Russia's great offensive is showing at the present time more clearly as it sweeps with increasing momentum and devastating power in South Russia. It is the more striking in view of the continued progress of the forces for more than a year, making the operations possibly the greatest military sweep in history.

This is a great power that Hitler scorned thereby making himself the world's worst example of under-estimation of the strength of a nation any aggressor ever attacked.

The worst yet impends for the Germans for Russia is reaping the benefits of her great drive not only from the standpoint of morale but also for the losses inflicted upon the foe as well as from the fact that German forces are perilously near the old borders of Roumania while in the north the Reds are deep in the eastern part of Poland.

The Russians are now fighting in the areas where Hitler's armies early tasted the fruits of aggression by overrunning the western part of Russian territory. With a relentlessness and steadiness of advance the Russians press the enemy backward. It is reported that in the south on the Dneister the Germans may try to stem the advance of Stalin's armies but of that there is no assurance.

Today Hitler cannot boast of what he can do and he makes no claim that he is winning the war by being defeated again and again. Effort to convince the Germans of success would be futile for they must know better. The other day, Heroes' Day, passed in Germany without the accustomed Hitler glorification and thundering against the Allies. He did not even speak, so far as can be learned. The reason is clear, because effort to rant as Hitler did in the old days would be folly. Hitler in the early days of aggression put on every now and then a show to display German power but he has nothing of this ability left now. The appeal is to the German home front and it certainly could not convince the United Nations or the neutral nations. There are no more Rhine appeals, to impress the neutrals. That stage has been left behind and the great spectre of Germany's destruction as a military power must appear very real to the Huns and the satellite states.

Gayda Reported Killed

Virginio Gayda, whose bombastic utterances in the heyday of Mussolini's greatness pomp swelled the Fascist strain, is for the second or third time reported killed, this time in a raid on Rome. Whether the Nazi report is true or not, the story provides the opportunity to recall Gayda's behavior in the time when the Fascists thought they were on the crest of a wave that was going to carry them into an era that would rank Mussolini as a second Julius Caesar and all the rank and file of the Fascists mighty men of the slave world that Hitler the butcher and Mussolini the jackal would swing.

Gayda was the editorial mouthpiece of everything that was false and hateful, infamous and blatant, sham, folly and noise. He beat the tomtom for the aggressors and made himself a willing tool to make her follow a road of suicidal policy.

It has been pointed out that Gayda gloated in bombing for other peoples and peoples until bombing struck Italy and Italians and then he did not like it.

If he did not like it and still lives, he lives to go through the torture of seeing everything that he supported torn up by the roots and destroyed. He like the other Fascists gave the most disgraceful exhibition of leading a nation down the steep road to the pit through the folly of the leaders. It is well that Mussolini, Ciano and Gayda lived long enough to see how they had as evil men always do picked "the wrong horse," supported the wrong cause in their rapacity for power and for the unrighteous booty they could gather in. Confirmed in evil they could not see one iota of good. Thus does life through the fascination of the false spectre of evil lead evildoers to their doom. The glitter of power in the hands and minds of unholy men lures them on to the pit and they are swallowed up.

Their names will live in ignominy and shame, names that are a disgrace to Italy and to the outside world they will live as types of men who climbed into power in a time of weakness of their country and then, as they used their usurped power to feather their own nests and prostitute the glory of their nation. That their end was justified will be the verdict of universal history.

Once again St. Patrick's Day comes and Irishmen at home and in many parts of the globe along with descendents of Irishmen and with Others are celebrating the anniversary of the patron saint of Erin. Differences of clime do not dampen the ardor of those of Irish birth in their observance of the time in dance and song and in the traditional manner and after the Irish spirit. It is one of the great days in the calendar.

REMEMBERING ST. PATRICK'S DAY

St. Patrick's Day again it is! I wonder where they're hung
The harp the minstrel used to play in days when I was young?
When I was just an eager cub, in every parish hall
There always a banquet held, and welcome, one and all!
The ladies served a grand repast at fifty cents for each
And then, from eight till midnight came, the air was full of speech,

I well remember Moynihan—a judge is he today—
And Alfred Murphy—dead and gone—and all they had to say.
There was no parish of the town, from greatest to the least,
But had them to address the crowds at its St. Patrick's feast.
Oh those were days of orat'ry which never more will be,
When gentlemen of eloquence said Erin must go free.

And those were happy hours of song when gifted minds and men
Sang ballads of the harp that would not ever twang again.
And those were nights of merry jest, with high faith in between.
They've missed a lot, who to such feasts must say they've never been.
They talked St. Patrick up and down and round about, as well,
And why they let the custom die is more than I can tell.

Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. L. G.

Nobody would have dreamed of saying: "Step on the scales!" back in 1854, but the wondering gaze of citizens watching steam engines at work on Queen Street in that year expressed the question. Then the power or steam was still a matter of much of a mystery, and to see a crane whipping a 70-ton burden through the air with the greatest of ease was indeed eye-opening. Newspapers of the time were quick to record the fact that the cranes attracted a great deal of attention.

In the 18th century the poet-prophet, Dr. Darwin, praised the power of steam thus:

"Soon shall thy arm, unconquered steam! afar
Drag the slow barge, or drive the rapid car;
Or wide with wings expanded bear
The flying chariot through the field of air."

The power of steam goes back to Hero of Alexandria who was author of a treatise on pneumatics about the first century B.C. Progress during the middle ages was confined to observations and speculations, but the first steam engine was built by the Marquis of Worcester in 1656. The brilliant inventor and James Watt in the late 18th century accomplished the trade and manufactures of the world.

March Twilight

A twilight hush pervades the land,
No wanton breezes wander by
To stir the trees, a dreamy calm
So like grim sentinels they stand,
Clear-cut against the crimson sky.

The toe-bound lake in winter's thrall
Gives no assuring signs of spring,
But as the twilight shadows fall
And wings of dusk encompass all—
We hear a robin sing.

O sweet and welcome season of repose!
Glad herald of twilight time!
When colorful in gold and rose
The sunset's splendor throws,
Inspiring thoughts sublime.

Canadian Land, Sea, Air Forces Will Participate in Pacific War

Navy Minister Macdonald Gives Assurance as He Answers Questions on Navy

By FRANK FLAHERTY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 17 —(CP)— Assurance that Canadian land, sea and air forces will take part in the Pacific war was given the House of Commons yesterday by Naval Minister Macdonald, but at the same time he indicated that operations as to when and how it will be done.

As a prelude to the important announcement of Canadian participation in other countries in the regulation of internal civil aviation, coming today from Washington, Minister Howe, Mr. Macdonald spent some five hours answering questions on his naval estimates.

It was Howard Green (PC)-Vancouver South), consistent advocate of more active participation by Canada in the war against Japan, who raised the question of action on the Pacific. Mr. Macdonald emphasized the big job the Canadian navy has in the Atlantic, and mentioned the big operations pending in Europe in which it will participate.

"We are disposing our fleet to the very best possible advantage in accordance with the plans agreed upon by all those vitally concerned, including the United States and Great Britain," he said.

Value of Two-Ocean Navy.

Mr. Green said he was afraid Canada had not realized how sufficiently aware of the importance of a two-ocean navy. Other countries, such as Australia, Relations with Australia, New Zealand and the United States were better if a more active part was not taken in the Pacific war than that Canada might have little to say about the disposition of Pacific operations after the war.

In this point of view he was challenged by Ernest Progressive Conservative, T. L. Church of Toronto-Broadview, and another Conservative member, Ft. Lt. James Sinclair (Vancouver North), both of whom said the navy's present job was in the Atlantic.

Mr. Macdonald declined to comment on Mr. Green's inquiries about future bases in the Pacific or bases for operations against Japan by British and Canadian fleets, based on reported remarks of Admiral Sir Percy Noble of the Royal Navy and Rear-Admiral Victor Brodeur of the Royal Canadian Navy.

"The strategy of this war to a great extent was to leave the Navy largely to the Americans and to leave the Atlantic to the British," said the minister, "and to the British and Canadian fleets," he said, "was the arrangement that was made and it has worked out with reasonable satisfaction."

Value of Pacific.

He said he did not agree that Canada's interests in the Pacific depended on the extent of participation there. He did say one thing and said that Britain and Russia would have something to say about the use of the Pacific although they were not actively engaged.

The Canadian fleet in the Atlantic, he said, was handled by Canadian officers, with Canadian staff, however, is constantly studying all sources of naval warfare including the war against the Japanese on the Pacific.

Minister Answered by Minister.

Mr. Macdonald said that 27 Royal Canadian Navy Volunteer Reserve Officers had the rank of commander or higher and 70 were acting commanders or higher.

He gave the figure in answer to J. G. Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) who said it was thought volunteer reserve officers had difficulty obtaining promotion to higher ranks because of a ceiling of permanent force officers.

Mr. Diefenbaker asked how many officers with the rank of captain had been retired during the past year.

Mr. Macdonald replied that none in this category had been retired, but two captains now were on leave, prior to retirement.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he was replying to inquiries about the unfitness of examinations faced by would-be officers of 1941-1942 on the high failures out of a class of 19 or 20 would be considered unfit.

He said he believed G. K. Fraser (PC)-Peterborough West) many letters had been submitted when he heard that hardly 15 per cent of the candidates for one course examination had passed.

The Canadian branch of the navy officers came only from the lower deck and more than 1,000 had changed the higher rank in this way.

Mr. Macdonald said he would be glad to give the matter his immediate attention. A similar situation in another service had been dealt with in co-operation with the Canadian Legion.

"If we get similar co-operation from the Government," he added.

Mr. Mitchell continued.

"Now! Now! Never mind delaying policy," shouted Earl Rowmith (PC)-Waterloo South.)

Government Criticized.

Opposition pounded their desks and shouted.

"This matter is too serious a one to play politics," said Mr. Mitchell. "I don't know what you're doing," said Mr. Rowmith.

Mr. Mitchell said he felt sure that the Ontario Government would co-operate.

PIAT GUN

Newest addition to the Canadian infantryman's arsenal is the Piat anti-tank weapon, the unorthodox but simple bomb-thrower that proved so effective in the heavily armored tanks being thrown against him by the enemy in Italy. Called for official purposes "projector, infantry anti-tank," and carrying the name from the first letters of those four words, the Piat throws a bomb of terrific power and will penetrate four inches of armor-plate. It is compact and well protected by armor-plate. It is compact and well protected by armor-plate. It is easily used as a mortar and has its powerful blast; also it may be used as a hand grenade. The weapon weighs only 34½ pounds and can be handled easily by one man. Canadian soldiers overseas have been trained in its use, while here in Canada the weapon is in production and the men of the infantry training centres have courses on the Piat in full swing.

CASSINO ATTACK

Inside Cassino Allied engineers played a major role, filling huge craters in the streets and paths through the rubble for tanks and foot soldiers. At one point it was necessary to build a Bailey bridge to permit tanks and other vehicles to cross a huge crater.

Eighteen Germans were taken prisoner during the night. As the landers entered the town, it was officially announced, the Germans' main tanks were knocked out west of the town.

New Zealand and Indian troops met obstinate German opposition on the hills where the famous Bailey bridge made short advances, occupying some heights not immediately identified.

Occupy Three-Quarters.

The Canadian corps had occupied three-quarters of ruined Cassino by yesterday and were slowly and methodically clearing their way up Mount Cassino to the 1,700-occupied height of historic Benedictine monastery at its summit.

Devastation wrought by Wednesday's bombing and shelling has changed the face of the town into a fantasy and tanks. They had to force their way, foot by foot, through the wreckage under the fire of German tanks and artillery fats from the surrounding hills.

But Allied officers doubted the enemy could withstand for long the new steel-and-concrete emplacements against further destruction.

In support of the Cassino fighting, Allied warplanes in the Italian air force plunged beyond the wrecked town and attacked enemy positions in the Liri Valley in and around Piedimonte and southward to Isernia, center of road net. Fighter bombers also unloosed explosives on German positions in Esperia just outside of the perimeter of the Cassino defenses. In the beachhead sector three small enemy attacks were repulsed the communique said.

Improve Beachhead Positions.

It was announced today that the 5th Army troops had captured two enemy automatic posts in the Anzio beachhead and had held them against repeated German counter-attacks.

In air operations, coastal air force medium bombers hit docks at Leghorn and other Italian ports and attacked shipping on the west coast of Italy.

In all operations yesterday, the Mediterranean air force lost only a few 1,144 sorties, losing four planes and destroying 12 enemy aircraft on the ground, the communique said.

On the 8th Army front, of which the Canadian Corps now forms a part, there was sharp patrol activity, and artillery duels with emphasis on the enemy in several clashes.

Canadians encountered German opposition Wednesday night during patrols into the enemy front forward defence positions in front of the Arielli River, Douglas Amaron, Canadian Press War correspondent, reported.

Among the Maritime troops in the central sector engaged in a brisk fight and artillery duels last nights, elsewhere patrols reported that machine-gunners, alert, and ominous night, again were on the alert.

TOWER OF BABEL

"Babel" means an impossibly high structure, a visionary project, a turbulent assemblage, a scene of utter confusion, or a place of fear.

A confusion of voices, sounds and noises, in which nothing can be heard but the hubbub, is said to be a perfect Babel.

This usage was suggested by the Biblical story of the confounding of tongues at Babel.

But the phrase "tower of Babel," is not in the Bible.

According to the Biblical account of the building of a city and a tower" at Babel.

"Babel" is the English form of the Hebrew "Babhil," the native name of Babylon. In Babylon itself the term literally means "gate of God," but has a lower derivation and is rendered Babilu in the King James Version of Genesis 10:9, where it is said that the beginning of Nimrod's kingdom was Babel, and Genesis 11:9, where it is said that Babel was the name of the city and tower of Babel.

Genesis 11:1-9 says the earth was of one language, and of one speech.

And it came to pass, as they journeyed from the east, that they found a plain in the land of Shinar; and they dwelt there.

And they said one to another,

Go to, let us make brick, and burn them thoroughly. And they had brick for stone, and slime had they for mortar.

And they said, Go to, let us build us a city, and a tower, whose top may reach unto heaven; and let us make us a name lest we be scattered abroad upon the face of the whole earth.

And the Lord came down to see the city and tower, which the children of men builded.

And the Lord said, Behold, the people is one, and they have all one language; and this they begin to do: and now nothing will be restrained from them, which they have imagined to do.

Go to, let us go down, and there confound their language, that they may not understand one another's speech.

So the Lord scattered them abroad from thence upon the face of all the earth: and they left off to build the city.

Therefore is the name of it called Babel; because the Lord did there confound the language of all the earth: and from thence did the Lord scatter them abroad upon the face of all the earth.

It should be borne in mind that Babylon (Babel), ancient capital of Babylonia, was one of the greatest of the cities of the ancient world by its high towers, walls, palaces, buildings and other structures.

Contrasting Addresses Heard by Rotary Club

Trenton, (Special).—There were three speakers at the Trenton Rotary Meeting in Masonic Temple, Norman Johnson; Rotarian Captain Holmes and Rotarian Joe Cossitt. It was a meeting of opposing views from different angles.

Mr. Johnson expressed his views of Trenton as he saw it as a newcomer to the town. He said there is great room for improvement to beautify Trenton, the public parks and a willing hand can do a lot to remedy things and he further stated that the sewage system is far from satisfactory.

Captain Holmes was the next speaker and he gave his impressions of the Rotary Club as he saw it being a comparatively new member. He expressed the need for definite action on the part of Rotary and carry out plans, that would rectify certain things, that have been drawn to the attention of Rotarians from time to time. The Captain also mentioned the great part Rotary plays in the social life of the community in helping where help is most needed.

Rotarian Ken Couch had a wide scope, for his rambling remarks, but actually gave a very concise and profitable talk on what we have planning. He stated there must be a definite place for Christianity and without this there would be no successful planning. Along with this there must be a willingness to put in a good day's work in this operation. The ideal set-up would be eight hours work, eight hours social and eight hours for rest; this is in contrast with the shorter hours some would advocate. The truth of this statement was backed up by a very logical argument, that, we will have to compete with other countries after this war and must hold our markets, and this cannot be done without work."

He also stated the need for manufacturers to have definite postwar plans to expand their business and also for individuals to improve their property. Our standard of living is an obligation that must be fulfilled or the community will be a place worthy to welcome home the boys, who are fighting so valiantly for us.

Rotarian "Mac" McInnes, who was in charge of the program, received his word of thanks to those who took part.

High School Raises $666 For Red Cross

Trenton, (Special).—More than $666 has been raised by the Trenton High School during the past two weeks for the local Red Cross drive.

At the opening of the canvass Principal Wood, in addressing the pupils of the school that the form bringing in the most money would be given two periods off and that was sufficient to start the ball rolling. From that moment on the young people alike set out to find ways and means of bringing in the cash. Some of the stunts held, plus sold, also chocolate rolls, doughnuts, ice cream, hot dogs and other treats while pupils conceived several other ingenious ideas for making money. Some made and sold name plates, for instance, and today one finds scarcely a pupil in remembering the name of Tom, Dick or Harry; Mary, Jane or Betty, with the cash in each case in his or her name engraved on the front of the plate or jacket.

Miss Farley's Grade 13 emerged the winners with a collection of $265. The teachers and pupils of the Public School are highly commended for their effort on behalf of the Red Cross and the boys and girls in the service of their country. The total for the present but for their untiring efforts at this time of year. During the year 1943, $622.56 was donated by the school to various charities including the Red Cross, as well as $200 worth of clothing and articles sent to the Navy League.

The total amount raised by the school to date is $2,048.75 purchased in War Saving Stamps.

The work which is done at T.H.S. in connection with the war effort, in connection with the war effort, in no way detracts from the regular school work as was demonstrated during recent Commencement Exercises when several scholarships and honor diplomas were presented and figures given to show last year's attendance as 98 per cent.

Red Cross Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Red Cross was held on Tuesday afternoon in the work rooms with a large crowd in attendance. During the afternoon a hand-made handkerchief, donated by Mrs. Richardson, who is over 90 years of age, was raffled and won by Miss A. Hayes, $1.40 was realized from the tickets.

Following the work period the regular monthly meeting was held with the president, Mrs. R. F. Joyce, in the chair. Minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Cornell, and the treasurer's report given by Mr. Geo. Speckall.

Reports of the various committees were read and the splendid report showed a total of 2217 articles had been shipped during February as a total value of $725.35.

More than half of the $8500.00 for the canvass has been turned in with many canvassers yet to be heard from, as well as several of the large ones to report. It is hoped that before the books are closed the entire amount will be raised and if possible surpassed.

Pte. Gordon Vieau Has Much Praise For Red Cross

Trenton, (Special).—Pte. Gordon Vieau is in the regiment, but the men of the regiment as well, is the statement made by Pte. Gordon Vieau recently invaded home from the front to spend a few days with his brother Mrs. Vieau and family. Pte. Vieau left for overseas under Brigadier Graham for more than four years ago with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

Pte. Vieau enlisted on March 24th, 1940 leaving for overseas the following August 28th. After training in the Canadian Army and with the regiment into Sicily, came to Italy where they were very far the until July 21st, said Vieau, and it was then the Jerrys got me."

Gets Shrapnel Wounds.

The transports were moving up at Assoro and Vieau, along with several others, decided to walk the remaining miles. Suddenly, he said, the road was completely torn up by shells and mortars. Suddenly, he said, the road was completely torn up by shells and mortars. Suddenly, he said, the road was completely torn up by shells and received pieces of the shrapnel in his right shoulder and arm. Another soldier, a man, Tiny Hyatt, was also wounded just a few yards from him and the same time and two more from home, the Harrington boys, Ernest and Jack.

Vieau spent the next few months in hospital in Africa later being sent to England before returning home. He has great praise for the treatment given him in England and for the splendid work of the Canadian Red Cross.

Speaking of their arrival in Sicily Vieau said, that about 10 a.m. a friend themselves immediately at a watermelon patch, "One can imagine," he said, "what we did to those melons after three years in England without fresh fruit of any kind. Fruit was most plentiful in Sicily as were vegetables of all to eat so that with their canned meat ration we all were really fed in grand style.

Poor Living Conditions.

He does not think, however, that many of the Canadians will ever want to visit that country after the war since living conditions are far from those enjoyed in Canada. Flies, he said, were everywhere, dirt in great measure to the spoilage of fresh fruit through heat, and sanitation conditions were appalling.

Civilians were very poorly dressed and children especially looking as though they needed attention.

Pte. Vieau is at present spending the 21 days furlough with his wife and their five children, and his mother, Mrs. Vieau, Dundas street, is later to report to hospital at Kingston.

He has two brothers in the service Jack in the Royal Canadian Navy on convoy duty for the past three years and Pte. Donald who went overseas in 1941, with the artillery in England. Gordon and Donald were able to spend leave together on one occasion in England before the former left for Sicily.

Speaking of some of the lads he had accidentally met in England Gordon said that before sailing for home he entered a restaurant in one of the large cities and took a seat at a table for breakfast. Looking up he saw beside him Corporal Jim Whitley, a Trenton lad, who too was being furloughed home on the same boat as Vieau. Neither had seen the other since Vieau had left home four years ago, but they were able to be together on board ship all the way back.

LONDON—Since the beginning of the war, 41,000 officers and men of the Royal Navy have been lost—30 per cent of its pre-war strength.

Chas. Carter, 89, Reminisces of His Early Life

A most interesting autobiographical sketch of a lifetime was received in the office of THE INTELLIGENCER from Mr. Charles M. Carter, 89 years of age, of Bay Shore, Long Island, New York, dated Monday, March 20th, at the home of his son, Mr. Charles Carter, Jr., at Ivanhoe. Mr. Carter is in excellent health for his great number of years, and has derived a great deal of pleasure from the many friends he has met during a long life, which included several years residence in Belleville and Trenton.

Charles was born at Halloway in 1856, the same year the stone mill was built, and ten years later moved to Downey's Rapids at the time the large dam was constructed at that point. This was during the gold excitement in Cariboo. At the age of 17, he went into the woods with his two older brothers, John and Carter, where they worked on the log drive under the supervision of a Mr. McDougall. When the river-drives carried the winter's cuts down to Trenton, he piloted the Bridgewater Mill boom.

Went to Stolen In 1873

During the depression year 1876-78, when Mr. Carter was 21, he crossed the international boundary into the United States where he lived for a time in Stolen, Michigan, and he followed a frontier life which took him all the way from there to the Pacific Coast. Before reaching the coast he spent a time in Grand Saginaw and Iowa, Michigan, for ten years and operated a business for a time at Fort Ketcham.

Leaving Michigan he went to South Weber and there he worked in a linseed oil mill operated by the Standard Oil Company. After the close of this sort of work he left South Dakota and went to Rapid City, where during his time in the Dakota settlement, the Sioux were very hostile at that time, which was in 1889.

While in Rinkley, working for the Rinkley Lumber Company, Mr. Carter was forced to flee with the other inhabitants of the town when the great forest fire swept through the district, taking many people. At the time there were two railroads running from Rinkley, one to Superior, Wisconsin, and the other to Duluth, Minnesota. These railroads carried the refugees away from the blazing countryside as panic, driving before the advancing flames. However, the train bound for Duluth was caught in the forest fire and was completely consumed, the passengers escaping to the nearby river where they remained in the protection of the water until the following morning when the fire had passed on. The flames overtook the train about noon in the afternoon which meant that the passengers were forced to stay in the water for about sixteen hours. Mr. Carter related that he spent most of the time in the water-hole in the creek and was badly burned on the face and hands but he was the fourth passenger to report in the morning. He stated that most of them were badly burned so badly they could not be identified. Mr. Hiram Carter, brother of Charles Carter, also survived the fire, clinging to a rock in the narrow escape fifty years ago. Mr. Carter said that two large lumber companies worked for the Rinkley with many camps going, to cut out the burned timber.

Worked For Lumber Company

In 1898 Mr. Carter went to Hayward, Wisconsin, where he lived for seven years with the Ware-house Lumber Company and moved with them west to Idaho, Whocombe, where the company had large tracts of timber. He related that his brother, Hiram, was with him at that time. The company built a large mill, a railroad and a modern town which they named Potlatch. It was after working in Potatch for twenty years that Mr. Carter retired and, after his brother died in 1929, and neither having married, and also their parents, were very active and strenuous life, thirty-two of them, he moved to Ontario.

Before actually leaving the United States to come back to the district where he had spent his boyhood, Mr. Carter made he did a lot of "sight-seeing". He has attended five World's Fairs at the first World's Fair at Chicago in 1893, and was a visitor to the Pan-American Exhibition at Buffalo in 1901, arriving there the day that President McKinley died. He also attended the St. Louis World's Fair in 1904, the World's Fair at Portland, Oregon, in 1905, and the World's Fair at Seattle, Washington, in 1909.

Birthday Next Monday

Mr. Carter was the oldest inhabitant in Potlatch before he left that neighborhood and has lived, or been in seventeen States and five of Canada's provinces. He has crossed the continent five time, the last time in 1941 when he came to Ontario from Potlatch. The grand old gentleman will receive the congratulations of his friends and relatives as they gather to wish him a "happy birthday and many of them" next Monday in the same spirit as he has always shown, and it is with the fondest knowledge that his life has been well spent that Mr. Carter will come to his 89th anniversary. He is hale and hardy spirit of the North American" pioneer, the spirit that has carried civilization deep into the country where hundreds of thousands of square miles of unexplored territory still awaits their footsteps.

Mart Kenny Gives Musical Concert At Batawa Plant

Frankford—Mart Kenny and his Western Canadians presented a radio show in the Recreation Hall at Batawa on Friday evening last. The hall was packed to the doors, the night shift workers being given time off to see this special performance. Mart Kenny and his boys were satisfied to the appreciation of the audience for the many fine numbers on the program which included orchestral selections, vocal solos, comic songs, saxophone, trombone, cornet solos and several numbers by the quartette. A very interesting part of the program was occasioned when three young men, and one lady, all of Batawa, were given the opportunity of leading the orchestra, from the applause accorded the performers, Mr. Kenny's choices was excellent and first prize-winner, leading the players for the number "Whispering."

RYDE—PAUL

The marriage of Elda Marie Paul, R.C.A.F. (WD.), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Paul, Hillier, to Edmund Arthur Ryde, R.C.A.F., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ryde, Rednersville, took place today at Bethel A.M.E. church, Rednersville, Rev. Fitzhugh Lee, Thrasher, officiating.

McCAW—COLE

Picton, March 17. — St. Philip's church was the scene of a very pretty wedding yesterday afternoon, when Rev. J. Cantrell united in marriage Shirley May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cole, Work Board, Toronto, and Lieut. Jack Gordon McCaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton McCaw, of Milford. Wedding music was played by the bridegroom's mother. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a sand and green wool crepe frock with matching accessories and carried snapdragons and carnations. She was attended by the maid-of-honor, Miss Jean McCaw, wearing heaven blue crepe with flower hat. She carried pink carnations. Arthur Simmons was groomsman.

For travelling to points west, the bride donned an air force blue suit and small blue hat and fur cape. They will reside on the groom's farm near Ernestown.

PRESTON—CARLEY

On Saturday, March 11, a very pretty wedding was solemnized at Bethel church, Mill St., when Miss Carley, Consecon Lake, when their only daughter, Dorothy Margaret, became the bride of Mr. Ross Edward Preston, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Preston, Consecon. Rev. Fitzhugh Lee officiated in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. The ceremony took place beneath an arch of evergreens decorated in pink and white, this color scheme being carried out in the various floral bouquets and corsages of the wedding music.

The bride, who was charming in a dress of blue sheer, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a string of pearls, a gift when she was a child from her great grandfather, Mr. Wm. Hillard, Carley and a corsage of pink carnations, tied with silver ribbon.

She was attended by Miss Jean Preston, Consecon, sister of the groom, who wore a floor length dress of ring-bearer, carrying a basket of carnations and a colonial bride's wedding ring. Mr. Clarence Carley supported the groom.

The bride's mother wore black crepe with corsage of pink and white carnations and orchids, while the mother of the groom was in navy crepe with corsage of white carnations, orchids and fern.

Following the ceremony and congratulations, a reception and wedding dinner was served to some fifty guests at the home of the bride. The following young ladies assisted in serving, Miss Lillian Hillard, Miss Doris Blakely, Mrs. Harry Hubbs and Mrs. Clifford Carley.

During the shower of confetti, Pte. and Mrs. Preston left on a brief honeymoon trip to Toronto, the bride travelling in a two-piece suit of navy blue with navy hat to match.

On their return a post-nuptial reception was held in the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Preston, Consecon, on Monday evening at the home of the groom's parents, Pte. and Mrs. Preston left for duty at Barriefield on Wednesday.

The toast to the mothers was proposed by Miss Sylvia Tordale and responded to by Mrs. Walker. Miss Lois Wood led in an enjoyable sing-along which was also a feature of the evening.

The Experts Say

(By The Canadian Press)

Ottawa, March 17.—(CP)—The March sun is getting stronger and there's going to be kitchen window it feels warm and comfortable. But it is still winter, and there are several months to go before the sun can take the place of coal and oil. Under the circumstances it's necessary to make full use of calories, vitamins, strong teeth and bones.

Growing children especially need daily amounts of this vitamin, Dr. L. B. Pett of Nutrition Services, reminds. Vitamin D comes from sunshine, but also from fish oil.

Vitamin D is the only vitamin that the daily ration should contain, until winter is over, if you're subject to moth balls. By starting the fish liver oil dose now lively children will get used to the unpleasant-sounding outdoor play, even though they may not be taking the "sunshine vitamin" all winter.

BUTTER RATION: Housewives have been busily recalculating their dietary ration on the butter ration. Where to be liberal, where to cut down is the problem to be decided, and here are some tips on the subject from the Canadian Government Consumer Services:

SANDWICHES: Any pretty much of a mainstay in the lunch box, and they come in handy for quick meals, too. But when butter disappears. It needn't, for like many other foods, it can be combined with something else. Here are the ones most suitable for packing: Mix butter until soft and fluffy, and gradually cream in half a cup of milk, beating until all the milk is absorbed and [illegible] of butter is left. This spreads better and is good for table use but should not be used for cooking.

Butter may also be creamed with salad dressing, chili sauce, prepared mustard or relish for delicious sandwich fillings. This will make the butter go further and make the sandwiches more tasty.

CANNING SUGAR: In spite of rationing and shortages, civilian consumption of the mainstay foods is at a record level. During the past years, the Prices Board says, Per capita consumption figures of meats in 1943 is estimated to have been 127 per cent higher than the average of 1935-39; beer 39 per cent higher; milk products, excluding butter, 32 per cent higher; eggs 24 per cent higher. Butter consumption was down 10 per cent, and sugar was down 20 per cent.

LEFTOVERS ARE one of the problems for some housewives, especially these days when waste is classed among the deadly sins of the home front. Varieties of making poultry leftovers attractive to both eye and palate, the Nutrition Bureau suggests these for using up turkey:

Bestow being used in sandwiches, slices of turkey or chicken can be reheated in a tasty sauce or baked with a spoonful of dressing on each slice and heated with gravy while baking.

Scallop leftover pieces with corn, cooked noodles, macaroni, spaghetti or rice. Leftover chicken makes just the delicious chicken a la king or goes the fresh fowl. Creamed leftover poultry can be used in individual pastry shells, or on fried Chinese noodles or hot biscuits.

Fads Go Victorian As Modern England Doffs War Styles

By BARBARA WACE
(Associated Press Writer.)

London, March 17—(CP)—British women are buying up Victorian furniture and bric-a-brac which before the war they would have considered hidden in attics, crowded in parlors of suburban villas or relegated to the servants' quarters in the "stately homes of England."

Old-fashioned bedsteads, chairs and cameos, which a few years ago decorated the houses of spinsterish school teachers and maiden aunts or reposed on the ample stomachs of elderly clergymen, now cost fabulous sums and are worn by debutantes and brides of fashionable society.

Victorianism is in vogue—thanks partly to the 100 per cent luxury tax on jewelry and non-essential goods, and partly to sentimental nostalgia against the drabness and severity of wartime "utility" wares.

One big London West End department store has gone in for Victorianism in a big way, filling most of its floor space with a hodge-podge such as can surely never have been seen before outside a seaside auction room or an East End junk shop.

Fans, canes, buttonhooks, miscellaneous ornaments, knives, table napkin rings, bottles, hair tidies, dish covers, artificial flowers, blotting pads, fire irons, table mats and ormulu clocks in glass cases are jumbled for sale.

The richly ornamented, sentimental Victorian styles are a welcome change from wartime "utility" without handles. And a wartime bride would rather have a drawing table set of silver brushes and bottles, embossed with rosebuds or cherubs, than the most modern streamlined sophistication design.

The girl who wears a Victorian cameo brooch is happy to step out in civilian clothes with a heartwarming feeling of being distinctively inscribed "I love you," or "Forget me not."

A particular table set of heavy silver with little hearts and horseshoes went to the home of a newly engaged present the other day," a store assistant said.

In a corner we watched a well-dressed woman turning over a pile of paper mats painted fans.

"I'm making the room entirely Victorian, my dear, as befits my friend. I've bought three hideous vases at 5 guineas each—too absurd for words—and we're converting them into lamps. And don't you think that gilt clock would look divine on the mantelpiece."

One big London department heavy Victorian suites are being stripped of their dark and dismal curtains and given a fresh coat of paint and even cheap sets from maids' bedrooms are finding buyers. Often the wardrobes are painted with flower designs to lighten them.

In the upholstery department piles of dingy rugs and dismal curtains stand in heaps shoulder high on the floor. But although there are still of far better material than can be bought nowadays at reasonable prices.

Victorian jewelry is shown everywhere. Miss "Prince Albert" chains have been hung with earrings, seals, coins, lockets, ring and other Victorian trinkets. They cost at least six pounds.

BEAUTY By Helen Jameson

Toothsome Bits for Good Looks Sesame

Your reporter suspects that the gentle reader would prefer to read about lipsticks than the subject of teeth. Never mind, a little preaching doesn't hurt a bit of harm, and one should keep in mind the fact that when the lips are tinted the color of the teeth, red low, attention is called to the teeth. Beautifying the teeth consists entirely of decoration effects—a fluff of powder, plus a puff and a powder pad, taking care of the pretty tendrils upon one's noble brow. It includes health building, mental hygiene and general good behavior.

There isn't a pretty girl in the movies today who would have made the grade had she not been blessed with beautiful teeth. Nor a lovely lady of high stage. Imperfect and discolored teeth are among the liabilities of personal appearance. They can be corrected.

The rule is that teeth should be brushed after each meal. Certain food elements, especially sugar, combine chemically in a short time after they come in contact with the secretions of the mouth. After these changes take place, they are a menace, acting unfavorably upon the tooth, causing cavities to form.

Diet has much to do with the health of the teeth. Calcium they must have, milk-milk. The girl who drinks a quart of milk a day will get plenty of calcium to meet her needs. If she doesn't like milk she can take calcium tablets that the dentist will recommend. Lime is also found in cod liver oil. Vitamin C seems to give vitality not only to the teeth but to gums that have become spongy and receded. This vitamin is found in citrus fruits, lemons, limes, grapefruit, oranges. Tomato juice is a good friend to the distrusted toothpick. Also fruits that teeth often need professional attention.

It is a mistake, when the gums are sensitive, to use a brush with harsh bristles. Get one with bristles that are only moderately firm. Brush from the gums of the teeth to the ends, using a rolling motion so that the gums of the teeth will be massaged. Dip the finger in a dentifrice, massage the gums briskly. Be as careful to brush food away between services.

Y.P.U. Meeting Hears J.B. Boyce As Guest Speaker

Holloway St. Y.P.U. had as guests at their regular meeting on Tuesday evening, the young people of Canniffon United Church. The program was in charge of the Missionary and the Citizenship Group. Taking part in the inspirational worship service, the theme of which the theme was "Service," were Marion Daniels, Emeline Woodcock, Malcolm Scott and Isobel Richardson.

The guest speaker of the evening, Mr. J. B. Boyce, was introduced by Ray Gunnell as a "citizen of the community, a friend of many." Mr. Boyce chose as his subject, "Harmony in Human Relationships," linking it up with what he called was the greatest hope in life and the determining factor in all friendships, home and life and others, "our thinking."

"Kindness towards others," he said, "is the greatest thing in the great teachers of all time and was held by Jesus as the highest." The future should be the all-important concern of each, for the past can not be changed and the present is but a moment in time. Christian Correct friendly attitudes in human relationships make business and social life pleasant, successful and happy. Service above self should be our daily motto. Service is the profits most who serves best." A very delightful part of the program was the recording of Ethel Smith's voice to be forwarded to her brother Allan, now overseas. Accompanied by Mrs. Downey, Miss Smith sang "A Little Bit of Heaven" and "You'll Never Know How Much I Miss You." Isobel Richardson played an instrumental, "Trees," which was also rendered. Ralph Orsetti led in a game following which refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

Glaucoma

Glaucoma is usually called hardening of the eye. It is a condition in which the pressure of the fluid within the eyeball is increased. Just why this disorder develops is not definitely known, but it is known that it occurs because the amount of fluid in the eyeball does not just why this happens has not been determined. When the fluid builds up the pressure increases in amount the pressure closes the pathway from the back of the eyeball to the front part of it so that the fluids do not circulate properly.

Glaucoma is a destructive disease and it has been responsible for more blindness comes from this condition than from syphilis, tuberculosis, pneumonia, or accidents injury to the eye. In fact, six out of every ten cases of total permanent blind lose their sight because of glaucoma.

One kind of glaucoma is called acute. It occurs more often in women than in men and most in older people more than in younger ones. It sometimes runs in families. Before glaucoma actually develops there may be headaches and for every severe nature which last for from one to two days and occur again in attacks several months apart. During these attacks the vision may become misty for a short time. Lights look as if they have rings around them. Frequently there is nausea or sickness to the stomach and vomiting. The eyeball itself is reddened and congested. The cornea, the front part of the eyeball looks cloudy, and the pupil or opening through which light passes to the eye becomes dilated or stretched. A person with the condition is unable to see properly and blindness may result in a very few days.

Because of the sickness to the stomach and vomiting, the glaucoma may be mistaken for a bilious attack or for gallbladder trouble, but the real cause of glaucoma is known as chronic simple glaucoma. In this type there is no inflammation of the eye nor is there any pain.

In so far as the treatment of the disease is concerned, there are certain drugs which may be put into the eyes that may help temporarily, in most cases an operation is necessary.

25TH ANNIVERSARY IS CELEBRATED

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Twiddy Presented With Silver Tea Service by Friends

West Huntingdon, March 7th—On Saturday evening over fifty friends and neighbors assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Twiddy to assist them in celebrating their wedding anniversary. Rev. Mr. Hagerman was master of ceremonies for the evening's entertainment which consisted of readings and musical numbers.

At the conclusion of the program Mr. and Mrs. Twiddy were presented with a silver tea service and other gifts. During the evening a number of cards and telephone calls were received. Although taken completely by surprise they rallied to the occasion and thanked those present for the gifts. A delicious lunch including a wedding cake was served and a social hour spent. Mr. and Mrs. Twiddy are residents of the Ivanhoe district and take an active part in church and community activities. Their many friends wish for them many more happy years of wedded life.

Why Pay More?

Health Insurance Plan Will Cost $242,235,000

Ottawa, March 17—(CP)—Operation of a health insurance plan in Canada would cost approximately $242,235,000 annually, J. T. Marshall, chief of the Statistical Branch of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, said Thursday.

Speaking before the Commons Social Security Commission, Mr. Marshall said that the annual additional cost of the plan would be about 22 per cent.

Under the plan now being studied by the Committee, every person would pay $4.75 annually. Single persons with an income of more than $600 annually would pay an additional contribution of three per cent; wives would be collected as incomes tax. Married persons with an income of $1,200 or more would pay an additional contribution of five per cent which also would be collected as income tax.

The contributions and Dominion Government grants would pay for operation of the plan.

Table Presented

Mr. Marshall presented to the Committee a table showing the estimated annual cost operational per province, net yield of the $13 contributions per province and the amount to be raised annually as provided by the income tax contributions and the Dominion Government grants. The estimated cost per province and the yield from the $13 contributions per province were outlined as follows:

Province	Operational Cost	Contributions
Pr. Ed. Isld.	$ 2,091,000	$ 781,000
Nova Scotia	$12,308,000	$ 4,854,000
New Brunsw.	$ 9,726,000	$ 3,588,000
Quebec	$77,727,000	$28,943,000
Ontario	$79,783,000	$32,863,000
Manitoba	$13,181,000	$ 4,644,000
Sask.	$12,874,000	$ 7,117,000
Alberta	$12,874,000	$ 6,444,000
Br. Columbia	$16,783,000	$ 7,567,000
Yukon	$ 79,000	$ 33,000
Northwest Territories	$ 179,000	$ 65,000
Totals	$242,235,000	$94,480,000

Lord Tweedsmuir Writes Mrs. Read About Husband

Picton, March 17.—A rise in temperature late yesterday reduced to a comfortable degree the fire in Hallowell township which existed on highways and roads throughout Prince Edward County. Rain from as it fell, caused no damage, but it delayed traffic and resulted in many cars being driven off the fire with spectacular results. A Burford transport trailer was ditched near Bloomfield and the driver, Cpl. Ernie Boyer had a narrow escape from injury. The heavy vehicle left the highway as the driver turned out to pass another transport. Boyer was thrown from the cab as the driver turned out to pass another trailer, it jack-knifed and went into the ditch. When it came to a halt, the trailer was standing on end with the cab in the air so that the driver was able to telephone for help. The trailer was badly damaged.

Lord Tweedsmuir Writes.

Mrs. Charles Read this week received a letter from Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor General, telling of the death of her husband, Sgt. Read, who was recently killed in action in Italy. He revealed that he formerly commanded Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. "Charlie was one of the finest soldiers it has ever my privilege to know. He was always cheerful, always ready for any job and he had the gift of leadership," Lord Tweedsmuir wrote, in a lengthy tribute which expressed his own grief as well as that of the regiment. He stated that he would never forget Sgt. Read who had placed him on a stretcher when he himself had been wounded, given him a cigarette and a drink and sent him down the line with cheering words.

Noted For Longevity.

Prince Edward County is becoming noted for the longevity of its residents. Ten persons marking 90 or over birthdays in the past few days. Three more celebrate this week. Mrs. E. Massey who resides on Bloomer Park Road, marks her birthday Monday. She remains active and does her own housework. Mrs. Louise Durland, who resides in Picton, will be 91 on Friday, enjoys health, but is confined to bed. She recently suffered a fracture of her hip but is making a good recovery. She is a native of Surland, the village now known as Milford. Mrs. Phoebe Buttan, another Picton resident, will be 90 Wednesday of this week. She is a wonderful woman for her age. Mr. S. Chinneck, former mayor, is her brother.

Rehabilitation Committee.

Plans for rehabilitation of service men and women were discussed at a meeting or business men and citizens on Wednesday afternoon. Capt. Risser of the Veterans' Welfare Office, Ottawa, outlined plans of the government. He pointed out that all men returning from overseas will find changed conditions and will have lost their former contacts. A rehabilitation committee can serve a useful function, he said, in helping returned men and women to get their bearings socially and in a business way. Often such committees assist in securing treatment for some with suitable occupation.

A local committee was formed with John Bleasdell as president; Edwin Williams, vice-president; J. P. Williams, secretary and Miss James Hedges as women's representative.

Frank Lamb.

Frank Lamb was born this week on the farm of Herbert Scott, near Cherry Valley. There was a perfectly formed beard. From the chest extended two separate bodies, each having four legs. Both were perfectly developed. The animal lived only a short time and was found to have but one heart and one set of lungs for the two bodies. Its mother was a yearling.

Police Court

Traffic Cases Occupy Court

Traffic cases dominated Thursday morning's Police Court here before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd at the Court House with five such matters being heard for trial.

James A. Sine, Belleville, pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to report an accident and was assessed $15.00, including costs. The charge arose from an accident on Dundas East, Charleston Road on March 3rd., when a motor vehicle driven by Sine struck a parked car of the city. The driver did not report the accident. Police Constable Robt. O'Brien investigated and told the court that a tail light found at the scene of the accident was the clue used to find the responsible party. At the request of Crown Attorney H. C. Hagerman, Sine was also fined $5.00 for failing to remain at the scene of an accident was dismissed against Mr. Sine.

Charged With Speeding.

J. Gill, Belleville, was convicted on a charge of driving a motor vehicle at a speed $12.50 including costs, while H. Scott, Point Anne, was fined $10.00 and costs after pleading to a charge of speeding under the War Measures Act. At the request of Constable W. Miller of St. Catharines, Ont., Scott's full name was obtained when it was called charging him with speeding. Mr. Scott explained that he was in service in the matter of a summons.

Harold R. Symmons, Tweed veterinary, was committed to the Ontario Hospital, Brockville, for a period of 60 days' observation at the request of Mr. Hagerman. Mr. Symmons had been a patient at the local hospital for some weeks past.

Turns Down Offers For Ceramic Secret

Woodstock, Ont., March 17—(CP)—Ceramic chimaeras manufactured here by a Budapest refugee, Dr. Fedor Petrick, a master of the little factory is unable to cope with the flood of orders.

Petrick got his start as an University of Budapest, Petrick came to Canada in 1939 in search of manufacturers fleeing the threat of war and, seeking a livelihood, Petrick turned to pottery. Chimaeras, which was an art he had taught in Budapest.

Petrick experimented with clay and formulas for more than a year, but after settling down to the first floral chimaera of high vitrified grade on this continent," he said.

At first he imported clay from England but soon found suitable clay in Quebec where he now buys it in bulk.

Petrick's wife, "also an artist, helps him turn out candlesticks, brooches, earrings, statues, floral centrepieces and all sorts of little things. United States firms would like to know his trade secret of baking delicate flower petals and heavier objects to which they are attached at the same time and with the same terrific heat.

Eight of Petrick's many eager pupils have become employees at his plant. Thirteen-year-old Elizabeth Dow makes $1 to $1.20 in two hours after school following a year of practice at ceramic-making.

Three Canadian firms with coast-to-coast connections buy his total output while he has refused offers for his formulae and for positions both from Canadian and American firms.

Petrick refused an offer of $16,000 a year from a United States ceramic firm, "Canada has been good to me," he said. "I want to stay here."

Marriage Service Along New Lines

York, England, March 17—(CP)—Dr. C. F. Garbett, Archbishop of York, writing in his diocesan journal, has suggested a new type of marriage ceremony—a rededication service with a renewal of marriage vows for married couples reunited after long separation.

Such a start, Dr. Garbett has said, would help husband and wife make a fresh start.

"Where there has been unfaithfulness on one side or the other, the Christian must refuse to accept the position as hopeless," he said. "There must be readiness to forgive.

Clergymen of some other denominations were not quite in agreement with the archbishop.

Dr. Scott Lidgett of the Methodist Church said: "I should be against such a service if it seemed to suggest that the church expected or encouraged a lack of affection or respect between married people. If, however, this was the case of the unforgiving for reunion, I should heartily approve."

Main Objectives In Mediterranean Area Achieved

Washington, March 17—(AP)—War Secretary Henry Stimson, in reporting today on the progress of the campaign in the Italian campaign, said that the main objectives of the Allied forces in Italy have been achieved.

Mr. Stimson said the achievements he listed as:

1. Opening of the Mediterranean to Allied shipping.

2. Knocking Italy out of the war as an Axis partner.

3. Seizure of air bases in Southern Italy.

4. Allied control of a large part of the Italian fleet.

5. Indirect help to the Soviet winter campaign by pinning down 24 German divisions on the Italian front, and

6. Inflicting casualties on the German forces substantially in excess of Allied casualties.

Weather alone, the secretary said, has caused slow progress in the mountainous area.

Detroit Physician Given 16-Year Term for Espionage

Detroit, March 16 — (AP) — Federal Judge Edward J. Moinet today sentenced Dr. Fred W. Thomas, Detroit obstetrician convicted of conspiracy to violate the Wartime Espionage Act, to 16 years in Federal prison.

Dr. Thomas, one of eight persons indicted on charges of espionage conspiracy, was convicted two weeks ago by a Federal Court jury. She pleaded guilty and is awaiting sentencing. Charges against the eighth, Helmut Hentschel, German merchant marine seaman, and native of St. Thomas, Ont., were dismissed when he died on the ground that he was mentally incapable of understanding the charges.

Dr. Thomas was accused of supplying Hentschel with information on war production, and troop movements and regarding the manufacture of certain invisible ink to Miss Grace Buchanan-Dineen, native of Toronto, described by the Federal Bureau of Investigation as the leader of the espionage ring.

Dr. Thomas throughout the trial denied the accusations.

Judge Moinet deliberated more than 30 hours over a five-day period before reaching his decision. He commended leniency, the maximum penalty for violating the Espionage Act is death.

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 16—(CP)—Parliamentary Labor Party meeting this week-end simmered mostly with Sir Stafford Cripps, Britain's ambassador-at-large now secretary who has developed to the stage-door keeper's liking plus the middle of most House of Commons storms. A classic example was last week's wrestle debate on soldiers' pay.

It is doubtful that even the most co-operative, friendly, compromising war secretary could have avoided trouble with the labor party but Sir John's presence as the central figure didn't help matters. To the members, he seldom appears courteous or friendly and he has yet to show the politician's ready grasp of the word compromise.

Here are a couple of examples of Cripsian answers:

To a member asking about some army reports: "I do not know about these reports, but I should think that we would be even more hesitated than the honorable member thinks if we failed to take advantage of any information of that sort we get."

To a member complaining of army tardiness in making canteen and hostel facilities available to troops: "I do not think that Westminster, because of the manufacture labor and facilities for hostel accommodation more than anybody else."

Sir James Grigg, crying uncle, not yet, but soon.

The government wasn't at all happy about the chemicals of the Army Council, Air Council and Navy division. Government whips and Sir James, Minister of Production, Minister of the Exchequer, and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden have been sitting on the bench at their front bench at the time, have all mentioned 'rockets' by the Cabinet Harvie Wash, Prime Minister Churchill's Parliamentary Secretary, recently made a separate report to his chief.

The Prime Minister and the Cabinet wanted to know primarily why Sir Archibald Sinclair's Commons House were present to vote when it was apparent early in the debate a division would be forced. The answer, it was generally agreed, is that party discipline has become so slack the whips can't keep the members in check.

70 Japanese Planes Downed in 4 Days' Raid on Wewak

Allied Headquarters, Southwest Pacific, March 16 — (AP) — Undersoaring the growing power of Allied air forces, 70 Japanese planes were destroyed in air force headquarters today announced raids on Wewak airdrome and bombs were dropped on Japanese positions ranging from Wewak, New Guinea, to Bougainville Island in the Solomons.

Nearest hit was Wewak, Japan's big air centre and supply base on the North New Guinea coast.

It was the fourth consecutive daily strike on Wewak, and the total of planes dropped, bringing the four-day total there to more than 600 tons. Eight more Japanese intercepting planes, making more than 70 in the four days, were shot down.

In the New Guinea area, Australian ground troops pushing along the Mintiyn Valley south of Madang reached a cocoanut plantation, road leading to Madang's main outpost, the town of Bogadjim and now are 25 miles from Madang.

At Pearl Harbor, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Commander-in-Chief of the U. S. Pacific fleet, announced that navy search planes on Monday delivered the first bombing attack of the war on Central Africa in the Carolines, 190 miles east of Truk.

On the same day, army and navy planes continued the stepped up air campaign against Ponape and Kusaie in the Carolines, dropping another hundred tons of bombs on the two bypassed enemy atolls in the Eastern Marshalls were hit by army, marine and navy aircraft.

U.S. Makes Direct Appeal to Finland To Get Out of War

Washington, March 16—(AP)—The United States joined Great Britain in a direct appeal to the Finnish people today to end what President Roosevelt termed their "unfortunate partnership" to war with Nazi Germany.

A formal presidential statement was issued at the White House after Britain had urged the Finns to accept Soviet Russia's armistice terms or court national disaster. This appeared the ultimate effort to prevent complete collapse of Russian-Finnish peace negotiations, which in the President's name:

"It is always second cold to me and to the people of the United States to find Finland a partner in Nazi Germany, fighting side by side with the sworn enemies of our freedom.

"The Finnish people owe it to themselves to withdraw from this hateful partnership. The longer they stay at Germany's side the more sorrow and suffering is bound to come to them. I think I can speak for all Americans when I say that we sincerely hope Finland will take the first opportunity to disassociate herself from Germany."

LONDON—(CP)—Hospital authorities here are calling the porter, but Wilfred Smith, 23, couldn't resist taking cases of the anti-typhoid inoculating germ because it gave him such "agreeable sensations." A short time later he was footed dead.

Boston Bruins Eliminated From Stanley Cup Playoffs When Defeated By Detroit

Leafs Hold Third Place After Hawks Were Downed by Canadiens

RECORDS SHATTERED

(By The Canadian Press)

New records for the National Hockey League are cheap this season—it would seem they range about a dime a dozen. At least that is the impression one gets in assessing teams and players set up new standard of play.

Montreal Canadiens last night broke the total-points record, previously held by Boston Bruins, in defeating Chicago Black Hawks 13-7 at Montreal. The Canucks lifted their total for the season to 78, two more than the previous high; Toronto Elmer Lach drew an assist out of the encounter to boost his total to 71, that column to 70 two more than the previous high.

At Detroit, Herb Cain scored one goal and assisted in four other counters as the Wings defeated Boston Bruins 10-6, to lift his total in the individual scoring race to 80. He already has set a new record in a game Tuesday night at Chicago, that Ticket Dome Stadium.

The loss by the Bruins wiped out all hope the Boston Club had of making the post-season Stanley Cup playoffs. Hal-Irkin also came easily, with Bill Cowley and Harvey Jackson of Bruins both ringing in three goals each Carl Liscombe adding a similar tally for Detroit. Johnny Crawford and Art Jackson scored the other goals for Boston and the remaining goals for Detroit were netted by Syd Howe, Don Grosso, Bill Sweeney, Doug Emmerson, Flash Hollett, Brown and Thomson.

Boston came out on the low end of its series with Detroit this year, winning one and tieing two of the games.

At Montreal, Chicago took a 1-0 lead in the opening frame on a shot by Paul Meredith and in the second frame, Maurice Richard and Fernand Majeau sent Montreal ahead until Bill Mosienko tied it at a 2-2 deadlock. The score remained even until Kenny Reardon got one end of the session when Richard slammed his second goal of the night. The third period was scoreless.

The question of who will be third or fourth when the season closes Sunday night will be unsettled. Chicago with two games remaining, are one point behind the third place Toronto Maple Leafs, who have only one game left on the schedule.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

CARL LISCOMBE, Detroit, who bagged three counters for Red Wings when they defeated Boston Bruins 10-6.

BOSTON'S CENTRE PLAYER, BILL COWLEY, and Winger Harvey (Busher) Jackson, who scored three goals each.

MAURICE RICHARD, Canadiens who bagged two counters, when Montreal defeated Chicago Black Hawks 13-7.

PITCHER MOANS BECAUSE RAIN HALTS BATTING

Hurlers Only Look Good With a Bat During Spring Training

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

By FRITZ HOWELL

Associated Press Sport Writer

New York, March 17 — (AP) — Lilah Grove Walters, Philadelphia Joe Beggs, Cincinnati Red Reiser, likes his base hits.

Last year Joe's output was five singles in 26 trips, for a not too robust .192. Maybe that's why, out at the Rocky Bloomington, Ind., training camp yesterday, the Fireman moaned because it rained.

"This is the one week all year that the hitting pitchers get a chance to hit." Joe Complained as he checked rosters, "and it rains. Say, next week nothing short of a machine-gun will keep our so-called hitters away from the plate."

Pitcher always look good with a bat during spring training.

At Evansville, Ind., Detroit Tigers Outfielder Hank Greenberg trained casually as Infielder Joe (G. F.) Gordon completed a 4-mile run. Joe who hit a rousing .322 last year, said his aim "hasn't been right since I broke my wrist with my car window out the window of a train" in 1941, while in the Texas League.

Elsewhere, in the baseball realm, here's the score:

Chicago Cubs—Lon Warneke, vet-eran pitcher, advised Vice President Leo Gallagher from his Hot Springs, Ark., home that he had been ordered to report for induction March 22.

New York Giants—Gus Mancuso and rookie catcher Joe Stephenson signed contracts, then went through four-hours drills on fielding and "pepper" session with rest of squad.

Boston Red Sox: First baseman League club to sign all its players as outfielder Bob Johnson, last year with Senators, comes to terms.

LONDON—Though laborious attempts are being made to put in condition the crippled battle-cruiser "Tirpitz" in Kaa Fiord, not a single day of work has been done for 18 months to repair the "Checkmate," sister ship to the sunken "Scharnhorst". She lies with her bows and gun turrets above water in the Pe-tsh port of Gdynia, which has replaced bomb-battered Kiel as Germany's naval base.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, March 17 — (CP) — It's an old argument, always good for hours of heated debate, and the question whether a goalie makes the team or the team makes the goalie. Showing of Montreal Canadiens and their marvelous goalie, Bill Durnan, this year added fuel to the discussion.

Without detracting from Durnan's performance, Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson suggests the Habitants' bruising defenceman, Butch Bouchard, can be ranked as the most potent tank trap keeping opposition forwards away from the Durnan line. Fergie picks Bouchard as one of his all-star blueliners on the strength of his husky blocking, even if his scoring feats and play-making aren't so spectacular.

That and the enthusiastic backchecking and follow-up play of centre Emest Peter Lach and forward mates contributed in no small measure to Durnan's goals-against average of 2.87 which has helped to pick out the stars on Canadiens, because most of their starthmen come from Hampton, and Dafy's mine pays off.

Valer's Better Fact;

A motoric drove up to a Brantford, Ont., filling station and found another car taking on gasoline. In a few choice, if inebriated, words the motorist told the squatters to vamoose. Then from the other car stepped the bulky figure of Joe Malloch, well-known Brantford wrestler. With a gulp and a sickly smile our hero backed away, muttering, "Ain't it funny what a few beers will do to a chap like me?"

Incidentally,

Dick Irvin told Joe (Windsor Star) Bums that N.H.L. hockey this year is far better than its critics admit. Dick says the youngers are getting a chance to make good they otherwise, would mine, and for that reason wartime hockey is a "blessing in disguise." Dick prefers the enthusiasm of the younger players to the tiring legs of old-timers . . .

Page the Brooklyn Dodgers. The International Basketball team, from Saint John, N. B., had two games slated for one night, a provincial semi-final against Moncton Clan Ruse and a service play-off with Scoudouc R.A.F. Regals. Despite Scorning the Moncton entry, Saint John Crusaders, key players for the game, Poulo soon sliced into the line-up until in the dying seconds of the game, Saint John had only one man on the floor. They lost, 36-45, but won the, two-game

KINGSTON SQUADS WIN AND LOSE AT LOCAL 'Y'

Girls Defeat C.W.A.C. While Army Team Takes I.T.S. by Close Count

GOOD CONTESTS

Kingston Army basketball squads won and lost in a dual bill of fistic hoop game played at the Y. M. C. A. last night. The Kingston Army (R.C.O.C.) defeated the No. 5 I.T.S. "Pipers" of the R.C.A.F. 35 to 34 while the C.W.A.C. "I" girls trounced the Kingston C.W.A.C. lasses from Kingston 40 to 6.

The army game proved to be a rough match with heavy checking by the "Soldiers" of the Pipers. Hunt and Clark were the chief scoring aces for the army squad while Wilson, Marsbbe and Jackie Hamilton featured for the Royal Flyers' points.

In the girls' game the competition provided by the Kingston C. W. A. C. squad was far below their opponents. The Belleville girls' girls shot out but a four-point win in Kingston, last night Ed Shortly "s" girls scored almost at will to lead 18 to 6 at halftime and then run up 24 more points in the last half of the "Army basket" notched their lone two baskets. Although Belleville's scoring was divided, Captain Salisbury headed the attack with eleven points. Ruth Oliphant scored ten and Dot Mansfield one eight.

The Belleville line-up reads—Salisbury, 11; Lasenby, 3; Romsky, 7; Oliphant, 10; Mansfield, 1; Fisher, 2; Newbotham, Wonsacott; Gilbert and Stoliker. Tom Burnett of Belleville refereed both games.

WRESTLING SHOW TO BE STAGED BY KIWANIS CLUB

Bouts Will be Held at Armouries in Aid of Blood Donor Clinic

SERVICES GIVEN FREE.

The philanthropic endeavors of Trenton Kiwanians in staging a big group of professional wrestlers are accepted as second nature by local fans, especially when it comes to assisting in the war effort.

Most of long ago the officials of the local Kiwanis Club approached Promoter Tommy Turney regarding the staging of a top-ranking grappling bout at the Belleville Armouries with all receipts to be given to the local Blood Donor Clinic. Skipper Turney didn't need a second asking and without hesitation assured the Belleville Kiwanis Club of a top-ranking show.

Today Promoter Turney carried out his promise to the fullest of the letter in that he has arranged with the six-time-bout Queensbury A. C. card at the Armouries next Wednesday night, featuring Canada's "Velocity Vic" Holbrook, the Texas adept in natural "Strpper East" Davis, the Kansas tornado.

Besides we have the perfect bout with Holbrook as the hero and Davis as the ring villain, "Stripper East" stoops to the lowest depths with his bouts and cares little what actions he has to perform to bring Holbrook on the other hand, is a tall, handsome lad from the great open spaces of Texas, who has wowed fans and who can wrestle with the best of them. Incidentally, Vic and Holbrook stands a good chance to be the main event at the Trenton Armouries and here's a bout I can personally guarantee the wrestling public will be the most undecided encounter Tunney.

With semi-final that crowd-pleasing Frank Sexton meets Jan Gotch while Tom Zaharais and Pat Zalarais tangle with Pat Flanagan. Incidentally Zaharais is the young-ster who defeated Sexton recently. The place is the Belleville Armouries and the proceeds go to the Blood Donors' clinic.

What's Doing in Sport

Calgary — (CP) — New Westminster Lodestars, Canada's Coloured basketball hockey champions, last night took a two-game lead in their best-of-three Dominion finals with Edmonton Vics by whipping the Alberta champions 6-3 in the second game. The winner won the first game 7-3. The third encounter will be here Saturday.

Moose Jaw — (CP) — Manager Lloyd Campre of Moose Jaw Victorias, senior hockey champions of previously eliminated, is seeking permission from the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to replace Goal-keeper Bill Hatchewan in Allan Cup playoffs.

Albany, N.Y. — (AP) — After it had been buried in the state legislature assembly, a measure to permit the signing of 17-year-old boxers and wrestlers to professional contracts was rejected yesterday by the Senate by a vote of 31 to 19. Action was taken on the ground that the move would benefit Hitler's selfish promoters peddling in flesh.

CASUAL COMMENT

By K.J.C.

"The sweet young things were distressed," Tommy Tucker said.

"So you've accepted Tom?" said one lady, "I suppose he didn't happen to mention that he had previously proposed to me?"

"Well, not exactly," replied the other hastily; "but he did confess that he'd done a lot of silly things before he met me."

We'll soon be finding out that it pays is when Lindbergh where it looks like a swell place.

(News or McCabe.)

Ralph McCabe, Belleville's gift to professional baseball, underwent a successful knee operation in the Sudbury hospital recently. McCabe went to Havana to pitch in the Cuban winter ball loop last fall, but the knee started to twist his knee during a game. The Cuban league officials agreed to pay the expenses for an operation and left it optional as to where McCabe was sped to hospitalize. He chose Sudbury where the operation was performed and he expects to report to the Toronto Maple Leafs' training camp at Lansdowne, Pa., on March 27th.

En route from Cuba to Sudbury McCabe stopped off at Toronto, where in May, 1944 contract terminated with the Toronto Maple Leafs. President Peter Campbell giving him a handsome boost in contract crease in salary over last year. Last year McCabe was property of the Albany "Senators" of the Eastern League. This year Peter Campbell assured the elongated Ralph that when he and Manager Frankie Graham were depending on the local moundsman as a starting pitcher for the Maple Leafs he'll visit his parents here en route from Sudbury to the Leafs' spring training camp.

(Remember him?)

Oldtime baseball fans will remember Alex Kay, who was one of the C.O.B.L. umpires in the key city of the old Central loop. Alex's son, Mr. Kay's son, Rev. Fr. Kay of Lindsay. The article is headed Mayor Moynes, Mr. Kay, sports scribe in the Watchman-Warder, Lindsay, somewhat to the effect: "We had the pleasure of meeting Mayor Moynes, Mr. Kay, sports scribe in the Watchman-Warder, Lindsay, somewhat to the effect: "We had the pleasure of meeting a number of prominent citizens in various circles of sport, including curling, as a member of the Bobcaygeon club, Rev. Fr. Kay's father was a great one at the pet. Baseball fans in particular well remember Alex for his work behind the plate in the day of the old Central Ontario Baseball League. He was also a fine curler, but his decisions, audible to the entire crowd, and impartial manner in which he else had that requisite so necessary to an umpire, the confidence of always "boss of the job"...

We recall one outstanding instance when Alex umpired a ball game at Bell Park between Stirton, a town of rabbit fans. It was quite apparent from the start that the umpire had made a mistake, a rather glaring infraction and soon after all the fans in the park were prone to do. The management of the Stirton nine and players rushed from the visitors' dugout with bats and gloves, much swelling and bursting with verbal abuse. It looked like trouble, but Alex Kay waved them aside, at the same time yelling: "See page 43 of the rule book section 6—play ball!" Well, by the time the scrap looked up the page and section the (which had caused the wrong decision) the teams were in the next innings—and the incident was dropped. It was a case of an Umpire using his head to escape an awkward situation."

(Baseball babble.)

Young Joe Wood, who will pitch for the Boston Red Sox this summer, is reversing the pattern set by his famous dad, Old Smoky Joe Wood, Sr., started as a hurler, became one of the best in the business and then when his arm failed, turned to the outfield where he also starred . . . Joe Wood was an outfielder at Yale until his arrow when he switched to the mound and, among other things, struck out 13 Harvard batters in a single afternoon . . . Clem Dreisewerd averaged 14 hours sleep per night when he was chattering mile records...Charley Keller, now out of circulation until the war is over, had the satisfaction of hitting at least one homerun in every ball park in the American League last season.

(Remember when.)

Rattling Sid dared at St. Patrick's day crowd at Dublin, Ireland, 21 years ago today when he climbed into the ring against the Irish middle, Mike McTigue. Soldiers were posted around the arena but they weren't needed. Mike stripped the gallant Senegalese of his worldly light-heavyweight crown after 15 torrid rounds.

(Here yes ars.)

"Speedy" St. Louis journeyed to Canangcie to referee the Oshawa Generals-Toronto C.M.T.A. junior series game on Tuesday, when Oshawa won 10 to 7. "Speedy" is of the opinion that the Oshawa team was seriously better, but it was a fast, fairly staged "sweep" for their downfall.

It was amazing the knowledge these 16-year-old kids possessed. Praise either "Chuck" or Oshawa could have beaten any team in our junior league, regardless of whether their tender age. They knew all about the new forward passing rule and certainly made full advantage of the new rules at all times, they stated "sweep."

There is one thing certain Belleville junior squads failed dismally to take advantage of the forward passing rules.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 236

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Some bridge players should have their heads examined, others should mind their noodles, I wonder. Do ideas play in the noodle spaces? Do any thoughts ever stop in you spoon?

I was kibitzing a foursome at a club when this pair of hands came up in a partnership:

SOUTH
♠ Q 6
♥ K 7 2
♦ Q 9 3 4
♣ K 9 6 3

NORTH
♠ A J 5 3
♥ A 8 5 4
♦ 6 5
♣ A 10 7

The players were above the palookas class. According to their own self-estimations, they were experts. Which seems to be a common method by players who know when not to take their partner's ace.

South dealt and passed. North opened with a spade. When the south came in right there with a jump to two spades, north considered a venerous look at his partner and passed. Her face didn't change a bit. She just looked into the fault is generally their own.

When west started out with the deuce of spades, north slapped his dummy cards face up on the table. At the game started, north said: "I'm sorry I had that kind of a bid open."

He continued: "If you can't open and can't show a takeout suit, you can't have a jump no-trump."

That north player was all wet. He belongs in a barn for mules. How dare he assume that his partner's gift to him is bridge partner and a decider of what his partner must hold.

A player can be without an opening and still have game, help for an opening partner. It happens that way often. And it is not uncommon to find slam in such a pair.

South did not have enough of all the stuff it takes for a true opening. But he certainly had enough of the kind of stuff it takes for a no-trump game if north has the right kind of hand.

The signal for jumping enough for game is a one-jump, the fact that the one-jump is in no-trump instead of suit does not change the effect of the signal.

North knew. He gave me a pain in the medulla oblongata. They presume to anticipate when just a venerous look at his partner's face would let him know what he looked into, the fault is generally their own.

North had no business to pass. He should have bid three no trump. But what can you do with a guy like that? Remember, crime does not pay.

AT THE BELLE

"Hostages," Thrilling

Paramount's outstanding contribution to movies, "Hostages," is now at the Belle Theatre. This picture marks the return of Luise Rainer, the only actress to win two consecutive Academy Awards, after a four-year absence.

William Bendix has the outstanding character role of the year to date. Paul Lukas' fresh from his triumph in "Watch on the Rhine" that won his the coveted award in 1942, gives a memorable performance. Also a formidable list is supplied by Luise Rainer, and Arturo de Cordova of Carmen Cavallaro fame, is getting to see a lot.

"Find the Blackmailer"

"Find the Blackmailer," an action packed mystery drama with an unusual twist is the second hit feature, where as in most "who-done-its" the problem is to find the missing body, in this new Warner Bros. picture its "Find the Missing Bird."

A new Community sing film completes the program.

One of George Formby's Best.

Coming to the Belle Theatre this weekend is a comedy in the best Formby tradition, produced by Anthony Kimmins—the team responsible for all George Formby's recent achievements—it is by far the best film he has ever made. "Trouble Brewing" is his outstanding success, "It's in the Air."

George is cast as a compositor whose burning ambition is to be a detective. Investigator. Aided and abetted by Google Withers and Gus McNaughton he succeeds in running to earth a gang of counterfeiters whose exploits have been baffling the police.

Before George achieves his triumph, however, he and his fellow assistants are involved in and through a series of hilarious misadventures in pursuit of their quarry. Then the tables are in turn to a racecourse; an all-in wrestling match, in a George surprise, finally proves the victor against a bearded champion of the art; a party given by a famous opera singer in which George is called upon to rescue an incriminating piece of paper from a most embarrassing hiding place, and finally they find themselves in a brewery, the headquarters of the gang of forgers, in which a never-to-be-forgotten battle ensues. In a climax fraught with thrills and amusement George manages to trap the counterfeiters in a huge vat full of beer, the men becoming gloriously drunk before they are finally carried off by the police.

George Withers and Gus McNaughton have the chief supporting roles. Three numbers are rendered by George Formby in his newest comedy "Twilight Fancy" and "Riding the High Spots Now" and "I Can Tell by my Horoscope."

2 Serial Feature Hits

Three swell featurettes are announced for exhibition on the same program including the Canadian Paramount News, a Donald Duck cartoon "How to be a Sailor" and a timely and entertaining miniature "Lieutenant Smith."

On Saturday matinee the fourth chapter of "Gang Busters" serial will be exhibited.

AT THE McCARTHY

"There's Something About a Soldier,"

Something different and exciting in the way of contemporary entertainment is promised patrons of the McCarthy Theatre when Columbia's new film drama, "There's Something About a Soldier" opens next.

It's the particular camp that forms the background for the action in "There's Something About a Soldier," story interest is focussed on two men who are as unlike as two humans can be. Wally Williams (Tom Neal) and Frank Malloy (Bernard Nedell) are both alike but their methods of reaching the goals they have set for themselves that won his the coveted award in 1942, gives a memorable performance. Also a formidable list is supplied by Luise Rainer, and Arturo de Cordova of Carmen Cavallaro fame, is getting to see a lot.

New York, March 17, "AP"—The National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs, by way of demonstrating that it isn't solely concerned with those 16 "dead" leagues and that $300,000 in the treasury, is calling the attention of all members to the Fayetteville, N.C., Jaycee Victory League. . . Ross W. G. Eranham urges all leagues and club presidents, especially in the suspended circuits, to "get busy on such a project in your community at once, that a similar league may be organized for the coming season". . . From here it appears that the Judge might do well to revive his dormant promotion department and put it to work luring men who would maintain active interest in the kid leagues and helping them to organize.

Just to show how important the baseball tournaments are regarded, Muhlenberg College's annual basketball party here from Allentown, Pa., last week for a workout on the Garden floor. . . And, faced with the problem of checking Footballs Kurland of the Oklahoma Aggies next week, Coach Allied Seelbach of Canisius, borrowed his former All-Scholastic eleven goal tender, Joe Dudzick, from a Buffalo war plant team for practice. . . Up to last night, Dudzick, that is, Joe had left DePaul's George Mikan hadn't allowed any opposing centers more than eight points during the time he faced George. . . . . .

Series Extended By R. A. F. Win

Picton, March 17. —Picton Royal Air Force hockey team forced a third and deciding game for the championship of the Quinte hockey league championship, when on Wednesday night, they defeated Bloomfield 4-3 in an exciting game witnessed by 70 fans. Bloomfield, however, the game to clinch the title, played inspired hockey but the fliers were just as determined to save off defeat, and managed to extend the series with a last-minute goal. Bloomfield opened the scoring when Flatford got one past goalie Hodge. Weigar and Bushy scored for the airmen. In the second, Hickmann scored for the airmen. Bloomfield opened up in the third and Abbott and Parks tied the score. A deadlock appeared certain but Scott slammed in a pass from Weigar half a minute before the final bell rang. Spectators, who has plenty of excitement at the rink, had nearly as much excitement the trip home over the icy roads.

Premier Criticized By E. B. Jolliffe

Caledonia, March 17 — (CP) — E. B. Jolliffe, C.C.F. leader in the Ontario Legislature, last night criticized the Drew government's announcement regarding the setting up of a Royal Commission to investigate education in the province and the income of one mill in the present one-mill subsidy to municipalities to be applied to the cost of education now shouldered by real estate. . . "If they (the Progressive Conservative Party) had promised a Royal Commission last summer the voters would have laughed at them," said Mr. Jolliffe, who was addressing a meeting in support of Fred Gibson, C.C.F. candidate in the Haldimand-Norfolk provincial by-election next Monday.

THE LITTLE DOG BARKED

by ANNE ROWE

CHAPTER 9

The good old theatrical maxim of "the show must go on" did its work for us every time and we always rallied to it. Linda included. And I found myself, after all, a hero.

If Linwood insisted I'd have to stay, of course I didn't object. But I felt ill and dazed. Anxious to be alone and think things over. I hesitated a moment and then approached the director.

"Do you think, Sherry'll be any less changed?" I asked. "Or would you mind if—"

That was as far as I got. "Less changed! You make like changes!" Linwood roared. "My dear Mrs. Turner, you flatter yourself. This is an Amateur play, even if it's based on a story of yours. The lines are perfect, perfect! I couldn't add or not allow you to spoil them."

Under ordinary circumstances, I would have laughed in his face. Even under the present, tragic conditions I couldn't help chuckling a little, on my way over to the inn.

The lunch had been such a compliment! The lines of the play were mine, all of them. They were taken from my serial. Actually, my "inimitable dialogue," as he called it, was the only excuse think the men had made a good play.

But such thoughts were short-lived. The horror of old Mack's murder, coupled with the suspicion on Linda, overshadowed everything. And after I'd changed my clothes in my room, I first was deathly ill, and then dropped into an exhausted stupor. I don't quite sleep, for I was conscious of a sense of terror all through it.

Ada's knock at the door roused me. "Some liar, or so I thought. She had been weeping. Her eyes were red and swollen and she looked terribly upset. And scared besides—of Josie Kilborn, I presumed.

"Please forgive me for this intrusion, but I had to talk to someone," she excused herself. "It's too awful—Mack lying dead and murdered over in that inn, while I was looking for him everywhere."

I agreed that it was awful, and offered her a chair. But she refused to sit down, with a hurried glance over her shoulder, door-ward.

"If Mrs. Kilborn catches me here, sitting down, I'm out at a job," she confided. "I may be anyway. If she hears I'd warned you, But I just had to talk with you about Mack."

"About why he was in the old inn last night?" I prompted.

She shook her head. "No, I don't know why he was. I hoped you might—"

"I don't," I assured her, "I only saw him for a few minutes in the afternoon. He came over at the property shed, when I passed by with Sherry and mentioned that the dog had taken to me. He said—I don't remember the exact words, but the gist of them was, he thought Alden and Vickery — the two policemen called that—were 'cooking up' something to somebody Miss Rowe liked or cared for."

"Guess he thought they'd movin' annoy you," Ada ventured after some reflection. "Leastways, when he went home he did. I saw him. Just as he was starting his bath Bertha and tried to tell him you had hired Sherry over yesterday, he wouldn't listen. Said he was in a hurry, he'd found out something that might put a different complexion on the goings on. That's the way he put it, Miss Turner. And that he wasn't sure he was right, and had to go and check it up."

"Look what up and where? It doesn't make sense to me."

Ada agreed: "Nor to me. But then, Mack never made sense, to me, out. Always talked around things. But I think we'll have by now what he meant—if he hadn't been murdered."

"Yes—if he hadn't been murdered trying to protect Miss Barolle and me," I said gravely. "And that changes everything. After Miss Barolle's so-called accident, I'd thought my mind to leave you and made up my mind to leave you and Mack out of it. But now? You wouldn't want me to withdraw from the police that might help find Mack's murderer?"

"I sure wouldn't. And I don't care if Mrs. Kilborn fires me for it. You tell the police all you've a mind to, Mrs. Turner. If you don't, you'll—Ada then changed the subject: I'm glad you sent poor little Sissy to the vet's. Mack's end would have liked that. Did you have word from him about the party?"

I told her no. Linda came in just then and that ended Ada's visit. She was instantly became the maid servant. I'm glad you're satisfied with the ironing, Mrs. Turner. Hope you'll be back, Miss Barolle. Anything you want, just call for me," and went out.

Linda had made a remarkable recovery since I'd last seen her. Her dejection had vanished. She was all sparkle, behaving as if she hadn't a care in the world. Instead of having narrowly escaped death a few hours earlier, she was relieved not an ex—witness of a murder, but the night before Mack's murderer's stills must have been busy overtime to work the

IF IT'S ABOUT YOUR EYES . . . SEE McFEE

Ada had gone. "Bill Parris asked me to marry him, Linda heard him, and said he'd go too. So now I have two proposals. I'll find somebody tonight, she ended as an afterthought.

"I'll help you with me," I assured her. "So long as you are three, I'm safe. Now I'm perfectly safe. But I wouldn't go out with just one man, Linda. Not unless he was the one who cut that rope and who killed Mack."

"For an instant Jane was in her arms. "You bet I won't. To tell the truth, I'm not feeling too much about kill asking me. Till Orne better in," she added hastily.

"I'm glad he did. He probably knows the answer already. It's he."

"But—are you sure you can—go? Didn't the sheriff or somebody say about staying on the grounds?"

His didn't. And that's what started it. Bill thought it might be our last chance. Once this Inspector—Something-or-other gets here, we'll all be under suspicion, he said. Now, run to the closet in the hall between our rooms. Open the door open. Not that I care much. So long's he lets us re-hearse. Rehearsal was wonderful this afternoon. Too bad you didn't get to see it. You'll enjoy the whole third-act. You walk and see it'll be a gu-rand performance! Uncle Ty'll be tickled pink!"

By the time she was through, Linda had changed. She appeared into the bathroom with a cheerful "I'll get ready for supper," and closed the door.

Seventeen years made a lot of difference, I thought ruefully as I stepped to the side mirror in the bathroom. Not only the growing-stream of prospective theatregoers. Linda in twenty, made me feel old and careworn at thirty-seven, the shock she managed to throw off the horror of what had occurred and the dread of what still might happen.

Or—had she? Was her sudden light-heartedness a bit too pronounced? Did it simply prove she was a real good actress?

The thought wouldn't leave me, long after Linda—lovely in a yellow evening dress and woolly white coat—had departed . . . What was her game? What was she trying to find out from Bill Parris? I went down to the lobby, to the empty dining room and sat down to a lunch that tasted just as delicious as last night's. But I was hungry, and cold and miserable. I didn't taste what I was eating.

All I could think was: "If only"—

If only I never written that fool play! If only I were in South America now, with Les! If only Mrs. McVane weren't out of reach! And, if only these dreadful things had not happened!

I agreed that in self-reproaches and vain regrets, I didn't see Sheriff Weymouth in a natty blue store suit and carrying a large straw hat in his hand, coming toward me, and jumped when he said, "I'd like you to meet Inspector Pettengill, Mrs. Turner. This is Mrs. Turner, Inspector. The lady had the good sense to call the police in."

And that's how I met Inspector Joseph Joe for short—Pettengill, of Ottawa.

At first glance he didn't strike me as at all the stamp in contrast to Sheriff Weymouth's great length, leanness and thatch of dark hair the actors I'd seen around me all day. But five-foot-ten and a half, his respectable height for any man, especially if breadth and solidness is added to it. And I was truthfully describe the inspector as a thick set man with a stumpy, well-covered frame that somehow gave the impression of solidity, to which his round, jovial face—no older or younger looking than his forty-one years—added a cheery note in the fine laughing wrinkles around his twinkling eyes, friendly, and a mouth inclined to pert up at the corners.

Altogether, there was nothing formidable or smacking of the police-station-like in the appearance of police officers to have at least a touch of coffee with me.

An invitation which they accepted—but conversation was more important was discussed than the natural beauties of Fern Cove, the beautification of the theatre, and the inspector's "digs" in finding one of the freshest rooms on the shore road vacant and at his disposal.

"It'll make grand headquarters. Mrs. Kilborn's a good-sort, living room of fine and three small bedrooms—for me, my assistant, Sergeant Hatch, and the constable," he said. "They're coming tomorrow."

Then, Inspector Pettengill said cheerily: "I aim to show these Ottawa fellows to you right off, Mrs. Turner. Better get a coat. Evening's turned cold."

The cautious log cabin hallway down the shore road, which was to be Mrs. Over Lamsport's police headquarters, had obviously been chosen for its isolation and the absence of spy-concealing shrubbery. Inspector Pettengill was in the cheerful living room, and Inspector Pettengill was talking in earnest of the grand jury had brought him here.

I'd been around a couple hours before I came to you," he informed me. Interrogated comfortably in a rocking chair. "Mostly over to that Kilborn place, and him—beats all, how they could put two women there overnight with the corner of the property. Ain't so sure it's murder, Leastways, not first degree,

The way the people's lore go, looks to me. Right at which the old man's got knocked down and fell on some sharp instrument that killed him. Went right through his head." He pointed to the back of his own. "Lumps of old black hoaglund on the sandbuns, but the doctor's report—corroborated that with Linda's report of thumping noises.

"Anyone been took to the coroner's for an autopsy?" the Inspector went on calmly. "Not unless they'll find more'n they know now, but that's the question. Or, before I've got; I got a message for you. From Miss Barolle, the young lady. She's going over to Dr. Conant back his way—Doc Conant's the coroner—and after that we'll try and have little dog. He says, for you not to worry. She pretty well all right and that's a week. Nothing the matter but a few scratched, bruised all over and—"

"—ick. That make you feel better?"

I thought the list of injuries quite sufficient for one small girl, but I said cheerfully: "Much better, Inspector."

"Good. Then let's get down to brass tacks. Tell me all that happened since you came to Fern Cove."

Sheriff here says it's plenty for one day."

I loved myself and pitched in, beginning with the lack of a "very" in the first sentence and ending with Ada's visit and old Mack's enigmatic remark.

"Dropped smack into a peck of trouble, didn't you?" Inspector commented when I had finished. "This here Ada now. You know anything about her, Sheriff?"

"All they is," Sheriff Weymouth told him. "Born and raised here. Full name's Ada Trefethen. Teaches school in winter. Father's in lobstering. Lost her sweetheart making that wish he'd come for her. Is nurse her sick mother to death."

"—yah—the reliable kind! Guess I'll try see her tonight still," Inspector Pettengill mused. And then glanced at his watch, and nodded, got up and went out.

"Going for more company," the Inspector explained. "Your—er—friend, Mr. Linwood. Should been here eight-thirty, sharp. It's most nine now. Might's well get done what I can tonight. Don't look for him to show till tomorrow. You don't write shorthand by any chance?"

"Sorry. I don't," I told him.

"Pity. If you're a writer, I guess you type?"

I admitted I typed.

"Good!" he beamed at me. "Then you may do me a favor. Write down all you tell me, with the time each thing happened, far's you recollect. Also what Mr. Linwood says when he gets here. Will you?"

"Gladly, Inspector. Only, I'm afraid the time won't be very accurate," I told him.

"Can't do more'n your best," he consoled. "And, while we're waiting" he jumped when he said, "I'd like you to meet Inspector Pettengill, Mrs. Turner. This is Mrs. Turner, Inspector. The lady had the good sense to call the police in."

And that's how I met Inspector Joseph Joe for short—Pettengill, of Ottawa.

Inspector Pettengill was in the cheerful living room, and Inspector Pettengill was talking in earnest of the grand jury had brought him here.

"Mrs. Kilborn's a good-sort, living room of fine and three small bedrooms—for me, my assistant, Sergeant Hatch, and the constable," he said. "They're coming tomorrow."

Then, Inspector Pettengill said cheerily: "I aim to show these Ottawa fellows to you right off, Mrs. Turner. Better get a coat. Evening's turned cold."

The cautious log cabin hallway down the shore road, which was to be Mrs. Over Lamsport's police headquarters, had obviously been chosen for its isolation and the absence of spy-concealing shrubbery.

Inspector Pettengill was in the cheerful living room, and Inspector Pettengill was talking in earnest of the grand jury had brought him here.

"Been around a couple hours before. I come to you," he informed me. Interrogated comfortably in a rocking chair. "Mostly over to that Kilborn place, and him—beats all, how they could put two women there overnight with the corner of the property. Ain't so sure it's murder, Leastways, not first degree,

"Hmm—yah—very strong," observed the Inspector appreciatively. "Why did you have Mrs. Kilborn, your—the other young lady—Miss Barolle, in the room with the dead body of a murdered man?"

"I didn't have them lodged there, or anywhere," I protested. "I—I see. You jar didn't see to it that Miss Barolle was in the room, and you didn't go meet Mrs. Turner, Inspector. Pettengill asked kindly.

"Because it was Monday, Monday is opening night and I'm swamped with work. I'm Costume Mistress the day before—Sunday. A lethal glance at my watch informed the Inspector it wasn't just on the dot of nine. "Good of me, Inspector. Tried to get the second to be married calmly.

Linwood snorted. "My dear Inspector! Mrs. Turner seems to have neglected the important part in telling she has a slight grievance. But after all, I'm concerned with the comedy, the words, the collaboration with an established playwright. Not with her personal whims and pretensions."

"Hmm. I think I see," Inspector Pettengill murmured, as if to himself when Linwood was through. And then, apologetically: "What these here two scheming writers. Alden and Vickery. Mentioned, that right?—offer you to come in with them and help mess up Mrs. Turner's play?"

Linwood turned green. "Really, Mrs. Turner, you've surprised!" he rebuked me. "I told you there was nothing to do with collaboration, utility. . . I give you my word, Inspector, that I never took them seriously. They are just—minority stockholders. Utterly without power. If they bring in a few new plays against Mr. Amrose and any play he's connected with—" He ended with an elaborate shrug again. Leaving his sentence of unfinished was apparently just as much a constant habit with him as the gloves and the hat-brush.

"Maybe so. But old Mack Ricker's been murdered, and Miss Barolle's only alive and unharmed for a little dog, Sarting." Inspector Pettengill pointed out. "You got another explanation for them two—er—accidents?"

Linwood disdained to answer. Only bent and dropped his shoulders expressively.

"Mr. Linwood tells me you were out last night in the storm. When you start out?" the Inspector changed the subject. Artlessly, it seemed.

Another furious, directorial glance in my direction. "I don't recall the exact minute," I answered. "Some time after I'd seen Sherry. I saw a storm was blowing up and hoped to get in a short walk before it began. I can't—"

"You can't sleep 'less you have your walk, I know," The Inspector beamed. Linwood took the impending shrug. "Did you make it? Did you get home dry?"

"No. I got soaked."

"Hmm—guess you did. Was a bad storm, down to Clifford, too. When did you get home? And—where is your home?"

"I don't know when. I sheltered on a porch—I don't remember which one—during the worst of the downpour. And I live on the hill. Over there." Linwood jerked his head toward the rear of the cabin.

CASE MAY R'ACH JURY

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 17.—(AP)—With the case expected to reach the jury this afternoon, prosecuting attorneys announced today they would not ask for a first-degree murder conviction against Ralph Pliss, 16-year-old Greenville, Mich., youth charged with murdering a 10-year-old student during a holdup in the death of a girl companion one year his senior.

MUTUAL AID PACTS CONCLUDED SAYS PRIME MINISTER

Copies of Agreement With United Kingdom, Russia and Australia Tabled by Mr. King

FUTURE DELIVERIES

Ottawa, March 17 — (CP) — Ministerial aid agreements, covering deliveries of all supplies made up to now under Canada's $1,000,000,000 Mutual Aid bill of last year as well as all future deliveries, have been concluded with the United Kingdom, the Soviet Union and Australia, Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced last night in the Commons.

Copies of the agreements, which contain the terms under which Canada supplies was made available to Britain, Russia and Australia, were tabled by Mr. King, who said that similar agreements with other countries, including China and the French Committee of National Liberation, are in process of negotiation.

The agreements did not indicate what help this country has received or will receive in supplies and munitions.

(Dr. H. V. Evatt, Australian Minister for External Affairs, told the Australian House of Representatives yesterday that "it is anticipated that Australia will receive from Canada goods to the approximate value of $100,000,000" during 1944 per year, Detail of Goods

The goods will include automotive parts, metal and wood-working machinery, communications equipment, chemicals and raw materials, including ferrous alloys and nonferrous metals, electrical machinery, lumber and many other goods essential to Australia's war effort.)

"The agreements contain no provision for repayment and only limited provision with respect to disposal of some of the goods delivered under special conditions.

Making Allies a Duty.

On following the agreements, Mr. King said that "the mutual aid act has placed on the government the duty of making available to the United Kingdom and Russia, support supplies and services from Canada's own production as Canada may require to maintain its own forces and the execution of the terms of the agreements.

Use supplies delivered in the joint prosecution of the war."

Ceasing to from selling them without the consent of Canada.

Retaken Property.

In the case of Britain and Australia, the agreements call for Canada to ship delivered and still in existence after the end of the war. Ships are being provided Russia and the clause was not in the Russian agreement.

Canada reserves the right to ask for the return of all or part of any remaining delivered equipment to Canada, however, after meeting overseas requirements, if required, instead of shipping additional supplies.

There is also the right to ask for the return to Canada of any aircraft and automotive equipment still serviceable, if needed for domestic use.

$500,000 Item Put in Estimates

Toronto, March 17 (CP)—A $500,000 item to provide for emergency relief in unemployment during the post-war period through the department of public works was included in estimates for the fiscal year ending March 31 tabled in the Ontario legislature Thursday by Provincial Treasurer Leslie Frost.

Total ordinary expenditure mounted amount to $138,172,721 of which $70,344,904 is to be voted and $67,827,927 is statutory.

Also included in the $14,077,106 estimate for education is $100,000 covering provincial scholarships for admission to university.

Ontario House in London is to cost $10,000 for maintenance, the estimates showed, and $100,000 is set aside for the government's new department of planning and development, of which $5,000 will be the salary of the minister yet to be named and $92,000 for maintenance.

The new Labor Relations Board is to be set up in the department of Ontario Labor Court will cost $35,000 of which $6,800 is for permanent salaries and $17,000 for temporary salaries.

Department of Health estimates total $13,586,996 with $240,000 for new mental hospitals and $351,595 for tuberculosis prevention.

Sum of $1,045,000 is set aside for hospitals to assist in maintenance of radio therapy and cancer clinics.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, March 17 —(AP)— Clashing of profits on the eighth consecutive day of many industrial stocks for moderate losses in the New York Stock Exchange today and rails came back after an early setback.

Investment demand, based on earnings, dividends and values, was slightly at the approach of a weekend and served to stall the list as a whole.

Volume dwindled to about half that of Thursday in the wake of a fairly active opening. Initial declines running to a point or so were reduced in most cases near the finish.

Tops for one to seven years were posted for Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Delaware & Hudson, Santa Fe, Gulf Mobile & Ohio and M-K-T common and preferred. Under water most of the time were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, United Motors, U. S. Rubber, Westinghouse, Johns-Manville and Western Union "A."

Response Splendid For Distribution No 4 Ration Book

Response of Belleville women to the appeal for volunteers to assist in the distribution of the No. 4 ration books, which will take place during the week of March 20th, has been splendid, according to Mrs. Stanley Upper, who is in charge of the local distribution centre.

Women have been very generous in offering their time, it was stated, and already it is believed the offer of sufficient assistance has been received.

Consumers are reminded, however, that they must complete and sign the application card, printed in red, at the back of the No. 3 book, and present the book, with the card filled in, at the distribution centre.

One adult member of the household may apply for all his books and in such instances an adult neighbour may perform the same service. Each individual must sign his or her own application card, while if unable to write, must mark it in presence of a witness.

The No. 3 book must be completed by the consumer after No. 4 book has been issued. It is not to be surrendered or handed out certain coupons remaining in it will still possess value.

R.C. Subscriptions Exceed 90 P.C. Of Objective

Toronto, March 17—(CP)—Three more provinces—Quebec, Alberta and New Brunswick—today reached their individual objectives in the Canada Red Cross Society's campaign while the national total stood at $9,061,715—more than 90 per cent. of the $10,000,000 objective.

Six provinces have now passed their objectives, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and British Columbia.

Following are returns by provinces up to last night, with objectives in brackets:

Province Dated Island $60,000 ($50,000); Nova Scotia, $426,000 ($350,000); New Brunswick, $1,000,000 ($900,000); Quebec, $2,000,000 ($2,250,000); Ontario, $3,972,000 ($4,000,000); Manitoba, $1,000,000 ($900,000); Saskatchewan, $900,000 ($1,000,000); Alberta, $901,000 ($900,000); British Columbia, $852,258 ($800,000).

The War Today—
Some Speculation Over Bombing Of Town of Cassino

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

One supposed the spectacular bombing of Cassino will be studied among the war's phenomena. If for no other reason that because of its terrifying weight, but it remains to be seen how much more the feat has achieved than to prove anew that such concentrated air power grinds mighty fine.

The purpose of this carefully prepared attack was to break the Gustav Line and open up the broad highway to Rome for the stalled Allied forces. Pending developments we shall do well to reserve judgment as to how far it has succeeded, in striking at there's tough fighting ahead before we smash through the remaining Nazi mountain defences.

Nazis Defending Cassino Ruins

Probably it has come as a shock to some to learn that, despite the pulverizing of Cassino, Germans were there to defend the ruins when the Allied troops rushed in after the deluge of shattering steel. Fighting at close quarters has continued, instead of an easy advance by the attacking forces.

Thus there are at least two things we can note with profit. The first is that victory is a tough nut to crack, and that we have a bloody business ahead of us. Secondly, the Allies have had to call on the good old infantry to capture Cassino. The thousands of tons of bombs dumped into the ancient town, and the accompanying artillery bombardment, couldn't in themselves take this position.

The moral, of course, is that we can't win the war from the air alone.

Some observers are wondering whether this demonstration will provide useful lessons for the forthcoming invasion of western Europe. Well, it should increase our confidence in Allied ability to lay down enough explosives to clear a way for the landing troops on the beachheads. Beyond that the comparison isn't very useful, for there's small similarity between the sloping sea shores and the craggy mountains of central Italy.

There's one thing we shouldn't allow ourselves to do, and that's to lose our perspective of the Italian campaign because of this sensational operation. The fact remains that this further conquest of the Italian soil is subsidiary to fighting on the main event. Hitler's inner fortress will be breached by blows from the Russians on the east and from the Allied forces on the west.

Now don't misunderstand the point. Henry Gibson, United States War Secretary, yesterday described the opening up of the Mediterranean as "a great strategic victory for the Allied cause." That's so true that he could have made it much stronger, but for his conservative way of putting things.

SAP FLOW SLOW

St. Thomas, March 17 (CP)—Tappers in this district are gloomy in their predictions of the spring's maple sugar harvest. They report that although some maple groves have been tapped since last February, sap flow has been small; unless weather improves, they say, output will be a great deal under early expectations.

This picture received from a neutral source shows German soldiers slogging through the mud around Zhitomir during the general retreat of Nazis before the onrushing Soviet hordes. A big transport truck, mounted on caterpillar treads, hauls a "Volkswagen," or Nazi edition of the jeep.

4-Engined Heavy Bombers Operate In Mediterranean

Naples, March 17 — (CP)—British heavyweight four-engined bombers, including Halifaxes, now are operating in the Mediterranean theatre, it was officially announced today. They played a major role in a smashing attack on Sofia Thursday night.

The attack on the Bulgarian capital — the second in two nights — was carried out by R.A.F. heavy and medium bombers, which showered down thousands of incendiaries and high explosive bombs.

The Halifaxes, among the R.A.F.'s most powerful bombers, are operating with the Mediterranean strategic air force.

The attack, made in conjunction with R.A.F. medium Wellington which dropped demolition charges, was the seventh of the war against the Bulgarian capital, now assuming an even more important role in Adolf Hitler's machinations with his Russian armies.

Clouds covered the target but the crews dived beneath the cover.

The heaviest air attack in Italy was directed at pinpoint targets around Piedimonte, three miles west of Cassino where medium bombers hit three places around Pontecorvo, also west of Cassino, and Esperia near the Anzio beachhead.

U.S. Airman Reaches Fairbanks After 84 Days in Northern Wilds

Fairbanks, Alaska, March 17 (CP) —Lieut. Leon Crane, 24, of Philadelphia, Pa., came back to this far northern town today after 84 days in the sub-Arctic wilds and with his arrival came news for the first time of a lost United States bomber carrying five men in a flight last Dec. 21.

Lieut. Crane and his companions bailed out of their four-engined Liberator when the ship went into a spin between 10,000 and 15,000 feet while on a propeller test.

Trouble developed and Huskins gave the order for all hands to bail out," Lieut. Crane said.

"I saw only Sgt. Pompeo's chute open. The ship caught fire at about 5,000 feet and I heard it explode when it hit the ground. I didn't see any of his mates after that."

Lieut. Crane said he lived a solitary existence in the Yukon Valley until the first week in March. Then he met Albert Ames a trapper, who guided him to Woodchopper, Alaska, a tiny mining camp. Here he awaited the arrival of a small plane to take him to Fairbanks.

"I was sure glad to get back to civilization. There were times when I thought I'd never make it."

GERMANS LOSE 1,300

London, March 17—(CP)—Marshal Tito (Josip Broz) said yesterday in a preface to his Yugoslav army of liberation communique that the Germans lost 1,300 soldiers in their last offensive in Slovenia and current operations are also costing the Nazis heavily.

300 PIGS KILLED

St. Johnsville, N. Y., March 17—(AP)—Derailment of a 29-car eastbound freight train last night provided the village of St. Johnsville with an unexpected butchering. State Police said about 300 pigs were killed or injured and an undetermined number turned loose in the accident. No persons were injured.

RUSSIAN FORCES REACH DNIESTER VALLEY

Great Offensive Toward Rumania Still Unchecked

Zhukov's Drive West Of Captured Dubno Fanning Out In Several Directions

70 MILES FROM LWOW

By EDDY GILMORE
(AP Staff Writer)

Moscow, March 18—(AP) — The massed Russian cavalry, infantry and tanks pouring deep into the steep valley of the Dniester across flooded streams and mud fields, were within sight of Bessarabia today.

The latest Soviet communique said the Red Army had advanced forward to within 11 miles of the Dniester (the pre-war boundary of Rumania) and the offensive was unchecked.

In one sector, Russian units captured Tumashpol and drove to within 12 miles of a good highway which extends northeastward from Mogilev Podolsk, ancient border town and a highway centre on the network of roads running to Kishenev, Jassy and Odessa.

At the northern end of the Ukrainian front Marshal Gregory Zhukov's new drive swept on from Dubno (in eastern Poland) threatening the large area east of the headwaters of the Bug River. It was now less than 60 miles from Lwow and appeared to be spreading in several directions.

Knee Deep In Mud

Still weather prevailed between Dubno and the Bug and the great wheatfields were knee deep in mud.

The most significant feature of the capture of Dubno was the communications advantage gained for the Russians. A north-west into highway ran northwest into Brest (Lutsk), 30 miles away, and another into Lwow, 85 miles to the southwest. The Russians already were within 70 miles of Lwow.

In the southern sector two Russian armies were making steady progress toward Nikolaev and Odessa, the two Black Sea ports. The former, a one-time Russian naval base, was virtually neutralized by Russian pressing in from three sides, and by Soviet artillery which commanded the harbor and shipping into the town. The Russians said they had captured places 15 miles northeast of the city.

FINLAND WANTS TO NEGOTIATE AN ARMISTICE

Clings to Hope of Rescuing Peace Negotiations With Russia

NOTE DELIVERED

Helsinki, March 18 (AP)—Finnish political quarters today still clung to the hope—admittedly faint—of rescuing the peace negotiations with Russia.

Recognizing that time is running out fast, these sources said Finland still wants to negotiate an armistice, but at the same time felt she ought to have an opportunity to get a more precise idea of the terms before going to the Kremlin.

These quarters said it is quite likely that this is the essence of Finland's new reply to Moscow, which reportedly has now been delivered.

(A Stockholm dispatch said Friday that the answer was delivered at the Russian legation in Stockholm. The Finnish parliament previously was reported without confirmation, to have rejected Russian armistice terms by a 190-40 vote on Wednesday.)

Allied Bombers Strike Hard at Beachhead

With the 5th Army at the Anzio Beachhead, March 18—(AP) — Wave after wave of Allied bombers struck at German defences ringing the beachhead area of Rome this morning.

The first waves to roar over Anzio were barely perceptible in the early morning light as they looked like dim clouds hanging over the harbor and dumped their bombs on the German lines and a few miles away.

The return of Allied bombers to this area lifted morale on the beachhead, and the German guns in the third night in a row had stepped up their own air activities, keeping troops in foxholes and shelters.

The Germans apparently were making a determined night effort to knock out the airfields behind the enemy planes were led into the targets area by determined Pathfinders.

One stick of bombs fell in an advanced ambulance aid clearing station, killing two persons and wounding 25. This bombing apparently was not intentional.

The German radio made more than 30 passes at the port after the planes were dropped before unloading their bombs.

Churchill, Stalin, Roosevelt May Meet

London, March 18—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill is expected shortly to personally meet after the London visit of Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., Undersecretary of State, to iron out political questions and the possibility of a three-power meeting conference with Premier Joseph Stalin now is considered likely by reliable quarters from non-British diplomats.

CHARGES MANPOWER WASTED

New York, March 18—(AP)—Mrs. Eugene Meyer, wife of the Washington Post's publisher, says that present conditions in war plants all over the United States during last year and January is proof that was being carried on "with a wastefulness of manpower and resources sufficient to run all the factories in Britain."

Norwegian Air Mechanic Travels 37,000 Miles From Home to Sign Up

Little Norway, Ont., March 18—(CP) — Pte. Anders Wilfred (Wilf) Strede, a mechanic at the Royal Norwegian Air Force Training School here for the last two years, told in an interview yesterday how he spent a year and eight days and travelled 37,000 miles to get what may be safe to train for a pilot "in the land of the free."

His travels took him to Sweden, Finland, Russia, China, India, Africa and the United States.

Pte. Strede, 22-year-old Norwegian said he missed only two continents — South America and Australia—during his travels. He also broke his left leg at the Canadian Chinook border and was in a make-shift hospital in Calgary, Alta., until never placed in a cast.

Because of his back injury he failed to make aircrew but during yesterday's interview was told by Lieut. Olaf Sorensen that he may be able to train for a pilot "in the land of the free."

INDIAN TROOPS, NEW ZEALANDERS CLEARING CASSINO

Troops Advance Thru Heavy Mortar Fire To Engage Germans Hand-to-Hand

HOLD RAIL STATION

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK
(A.P. War Correspondent)

Northern Italy, March 18 (AP) — New Zealand and Indian troops are driving the Germans from one strong point after another in the southwest corner of devastated Cassino, and the nearest hills extending from the town to the monastery above it, headlines announced today.

The Germans continued to hold out in the corner of the town against a closely-co-ordinated Allied infantry, tank and air attack. Hand fighting raged around the peaks and ridges in the hills west of the town, with the Allies losing one height to a German counter-attack by fresh troops, however, which reportedly has now been delivered.

A Stockholm dispatch said Friday that the answer was delivered at the Russian legation in Stockholm. The Finnish parliament previously was reported without confirmation, to have rejected Russian armistice terms by a 190-40 vote on Wednesday.)

Heavy Fighting Rapids River

While the whole area trembled under pattern bombing from both sides, American engineers threw a bridge over the Rapido river to speed the inflow of Fifth Army tanks and bomb-borne troops against the bridge, but failed to destroy it.

$100,000 Fire In Toronto Church

Toronto, March 18 — (CP) —Fire early today destroyed the non-denominational church of the Nazarene at Avenue Road and Roxborough Street in north-central Toronto, with damages of $100,000 and insurance of $75,000.

Flames starting in the Sunday School room soon unexplained cause spread throughout the church. The roof when firemen were called. Fire Chief Thomas Draper said the first alarms before the fire was under control.

Fireman Jack Burgess suffered a badly-gashed hand when struck by one of the falling roof-stones.

Pte. David "Thisle, 21, Toronto, Ont., who was captured by the Germans at Dieppe and then held for a year and a half in a German prison camp, where now he's playing baseball in shackles. Pte. Thisle who wore shackles for four months, is now at home in Canada.

JAP DEFENCES CRACKING AROUND LORENGAU DROME

American Drive on Manus Island of Admiralty Group Nearly Completed

DUTCH BASE BOMBED

Allied Headquarters, Southwest Pacific, March 18 — (AP) — The American drive on Manus Island in the Admiralty group has crushed Lorengau's airdrome and is cracking the Japanese defence around the town itself, Allied headquarters announced today.

Invading units took the airdrome Thursday, the day after they landed on Manus from previously captured Los Negros Island. Then they knocked down enemy pillbox defences with dynamite charges and tanks to push southward within 600 yards of Lorengau's outskirts.

Complete Breakdown

"Complete breakdown of the enemy's offensive against the Allied divisions holding the beachhead perimeter at Empress Augusta Bay on Bougainville Island, was reported from the Solomons.

The week-long Japanese drive aimed at the Allied airdromes on Empress Augusta Bay flickered out in fighting Tuesday night and Wednesday morning.

The communique said the enemy's formations in the Bougainville fighting had been "disrupted and decimated," and "over 1,100 of his dead lie within our lines alone."

Future Bleak for Japs

With Allied air and sea control over relief routes, the future appeared bleak for remaining Japanese troops believed concentrated in southern Bougainville.

The Allies announced that heavy bombers flew 2,400 miles round-trip to stage a surprise night raid on Japanese installations at the one-time' important Dutch naval base of Soerabaja, on the Island of Netherlands East Indies. All planes returned safely.

Weevak, the Japanese New Guinea base, was raided Thursday for the sixth consecutive day, with 143 tons of bombs dropped.

Fighter planes from Solomons airfields raided Rabaul, New Britain, five times yesterday, hitting anti-aircraft positions, supply areas and barges in the harbor.

At Pearl Harbor, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Commander of the United States Pacific Fleet, announced raids Wednesday by navy planes on Ponape and Truk in the Carolines and on three enemy atolls in the eastern Marshalls. All the planes returned.

3,000-TON BLOWS ACTUAL DISPLAY OF BOMBERPOWER

These Are What Germans Can Expect Any Night of Week

AERIAL EXPANSION

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, March 18 — (Via Cable) —The 2,000-ton assault on Europe Wednesday night by more than 1,000 Eighth Bombers, RAF and R.C.A.F. — some of them the most recently designed Lancasters — was an actual display of the bomber command's frontline strength and a demonstration of the size of attack the Germans now can expect any night of the week, air observers said the day.

Experts who predicted that 1,000-bomber attacks will be the rule, not the exception, were careful to point out that some targets in Germany are not big enough to be attacked by a force of that size without wasteful splash-over of bombs and that therefore it should not be expected bomber command will send out 1,000 heavies on every raid.

Wednesday's effort revealed to what a tremendous extent the bomber command has expanded and an idea of British strength can be gained from the fact that the German radio announcer spoke a little to carry out an attack substantially heavier than any of the Luftwaffe's major blows at British target during the blitz of 1940-41.

Faced By New Lancasters

The bomber force was paced by new Lancasters, faster and higher-flying than any of their famous predecessors and included squadrons of greatly-improved Halifaxes, which better aircraft than the earlier types of Lancasters which were helped from the first as the world's best bomber.

The Lancaster's type of engine now is credited also by the world's most sensational fighter. The engine is the Packard-built Rolls-Royce Merlin 38 which according to official figures takes a single-engined Spitfire Mustang to Berlin in 2 hours and 40 minutes and speeds up to 425 miles an hour.

There has been an increase in the bomb-lifting capacity of British aircraft, made possible by the use of the still better four-engined aircraft, so that Wednesday's load was twice as great as that carried by the 1,000-bomber experimental raids of 1942.

If the Allies succeed in eliminating the German air force as a fighter weapon, bomber command of the Mediterranean air force could join the American bomber force in this country in pulverizing attacks by day or by night.

An indication of just how satisfactory Britain's bomber production now is was given in a report that new Lancasters are being made available for the Pacific war.

STRONG FORCES ALLIED BOMBERS ATTACK GERMANY

Daylight Sweep Staged After Royal Air Force Mosquitos Assault Night Targets

NO PLANES LOST

By W. W. HERCHER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, March 18 (AP) — Hundreds of American bombers and planes were thrown against the continent in an aerial offensive renewed with force today, and British-American night and American bomber formations were roaring over southwestern Germany at noon.

The daylight forays followed night blows by planes of the R.A.F. against unnamed targets in western Germany.

The Berlin broadcast said the American bombers were escorted by fighters and were engaged in violent battles by strong forces of the German air defence.

In far-flung blows yesterday Italy-based American and British fliers loosed heavy explosives on Vienna, while British-based Allied planes resumed the attack against German targets in France and The Netherlands.

Claim 34 Craft Downed

The German-controlled Vichy radio claimed 22 bombers and 12 fighters were lost in the Vienna attack, adding that "many planes were shattered in the clouds of snowdrifts over the Alps." U. S. headquarters did not immediately specify the number of planes failing to return from yesterday's operations, but Allied headquarters at Naples said 11 planes were lost in all operations of Mediterranean air forces.

The Paris radio said 25 persons were killed and 90 wounded in a "British-American" attack yesterday on Orly, its referred apparently to the American Marauder blow against the railway centre of Creil, 19 miles north of Paris.

Hit, of Mainz

Last night's Allied air forays were the 13th, of the month for the speedy bomber force and the assaults without loss. In their heaviest blow of operations this March they have hit Berlin twice, Hamburg, Leverkusen and Frankfurt once and attacked a number of unspecified targets.

Fifteen Royal Australian bombers smashed Friday at the rail centre of Feralo, 30 miles north of Padua, serving both the German garrison in the Po valley and shipping to the Atlantic wall. The blow was the first in a critical campaign to cut German supplies to the battle front. Other Mediterranean targets in Northern France also were hit by the Allies.

A few German raiders were over the London area last night, causing some casualties on the top floors. Fires started were quickly reported in the southeast coast town.

CHILD INJURED IN QUARREL

Toronto, March 18. (CP)— Six-year-old Barbara McIntyre is in hospital today as the result of injuries with a fractured skull, caused, police said, by being struck with a flatiron last night. Officers said the parents of the child had been in a quarrel during their quartet a pop bottle and flatiron were thrown. The mother, police said, was assaulted and struck by the flatiron as she passed the dining room.

Churchill Expresses Hope That War Will Reach Decisive Stage This Year

London, March 18—(CP)—Prime Minister Churchill expressed the hope today that the year in which every theatre would reach "decisive stage" in the war.

In a message to the "Salute the Soldier" Fund campaign the Prime Minister said:

"During this year the men in the British armies will be engaged in nearly every theatre of war against the enemy and it is for what hope may prove to be the decisive year in this great conflict."

U.S. Engineers Build Air-Strip In Central Burma

Work Completed Two Weeks Ago Was Proposed At Quebec Conference

JAPANESE SURPRISED

By FRANK L. MARTIN
Associated Press War Correspondent

On the India-Burma frontier, March 18 (AP)—American infantry and American engineers, landed by American gliders and transports have carved out an air-ship in the heart of Burma without struggling through the impenetrable jungle.

The bold attack caught the Japanese completely by surprise and helped establish the air base and fanned out into a widening offensive east and west of their new strongpoint southeast of Myitkyina before the Japanese discovered that their supply lines between north and south Burma were in danger of being cut.

Landed Week Ago

The first elements landed at night more than a week ago.

It was on the field when the first gliders filled with British assault troops and American engineers took off. There were equipped with machinery to level the landing strip and to pave the way for the major attacking force waiting at Assam base in India.

In preparation for the invasion, British and American fighters and American air base in India lashed at Japanese supply lines and communications and in one quick operation destroyed one fifth of the enemy's air strength in Burma.

As soon as they landed in Burma, British assault troops leaped from the gliders and raced to strategic positions around the field.

Build 'Dromes in 24 Hours

American engineers unloaded machinery from the gliders and began making an air strip for the transport planes which will bring in the fighting force. Some 24 hours later, the engineers had completed the first transport with troops and mules landed.

A power generator built into one glider furnished electricity for landing lights. Two days after the first plane landed, a tri-motored transport arrived with a full load of supplies and another plane with engineers and more machinery.

Most of the troops were making their first air trip, and it was the first combat glider duty for all the fighting men.

Some of the gliders crashed into the nearby jungle or collided with empty gliders ahead.

Ammunition-carrying parachutes covered the valley floor for hundreds of yards around, and hung from trees.

Synthetic Rubber Production Will Be Affected by Order

Washington, March 18, (AP)— Production of synthetic rubber is being held up by the shortage of workers, Rubber Director Bradley Dewey reported today in a plea for retention of the industry's young key technicians.

Voicing the first official complaint of industries likely to be hit by the announced plan to take into the armed forces practically all of the 250,000 men under 26 who have been deferred for occupational reasons, Dewey said:—

"If at this late date, the industries find itself in a position where its young, irreplaceable, highly-trained technicians are drafted, it will be impossible to operate some plants satisfactorily or to carry forward to completion some vital researches".

His assertions followed a hint from President Roosevelt that the President is leaning toward the armed services' view that almost all physically fit men under 26 must be drafted, that in case of men first and materials second.

Trenton and District

Prompt Action Saves Dwelling

Trenton, (Special)— Prompt action on the part of the owner of the house, and the Trenton firemen were responsible for saving the family dwelling early Friday evening. Mr. and Mrs. John Smith (1st) of Trenton, left their home for the evening and while they were leaving Mrs. Smith noticed a flicker or the house, and who lives in the front, saw flames coming through the window could see that the Smith kitchen was on fire.

Neighbors were notified, he quickly called the Fire Department, and this with the help of the owner by means of saving the house as it stopped at the rear wall at the back. The blaze is said to have started from an overheated stove and almost completely destroyed the Smith kitchen but the remainder of the house was saved.

Failed to Step.

Archie Spence, Trenton, was arrested by Trenton police on Friday night after he had driven his automobile car owned by Arthur Lockwood also of Trenton, and failed to stop.

Spence was travelling west on Dundas Street, and it is alleged, to have been too far over the centre of the road, and struck the side of the Lockwood car which was proceeding east at the time. The left rear fender and a number of the Lockwood car were completely torn off but Spence and his car failed to stop. Local police investigated and apprehended Spence shortly after the accident.

Board of Education to Apply For Workmen's Compensation For B. C. I. Maintenance Staff

Members Also Seek Permanent Medical Officer of Health for Students

REPORTS RECEIVED

Upon the approval of the Board of Education, application for Workmen's Compensation Board coverage of the caretaking and maintenance staff of the Belleville Collegiate Institute, Bloomfield and Queen Mary, Belleville was recommended and passed at the regular meeting of the Board held Friday night. This particular matter has been under consideration of the Board for some time past and was adopted for the protection of the employees and taxpayers alike.

Trustee Mrs. B. C. Sisler in the chair, when the Board went into session at 8 o'clock, general business proved routine with the only discussion coming when Trustee Mills questioned civic medical health officer brought before the Board by Trustee Mrs. Manderville, attending Belleville schools. Trustee Mill raised the question as to whether anything had been done since the Board of Health had made following action. Trustee Mrs. Manderville replied that a letter had been forwarded to the Board of Health and a reply entered into regarding the matter.

Auditorium Granted.

The Collegiate auditorium was granted to the Belleville Collegiate Hospital for graduation exercises to be held on May 19th. Under the auspices of the local Navy League branch of the Navy League was granted the use of the auditorium for a band concert on April 20th. Secretary Miss Lyle Agnew officials agree to the conventional regulations pertaining to the opening of the building over weekends.

School superior's Report.

In the report of L. A. Kells, Public School Inspector, Belleville and Ameliasburgh, for the month of March, it was disclosed that in February the total enrolment in the Belleville schools was 1737. The pupils enrolled at Queen Mary School were 461, at King George 412, at Queen Mary 311 and at Queen's Avenue 553.

Classes attaining over the required 50 per cent monthly standing were, Miss C. O. Houston, Miss M. McPherson, Mrs. Young and Principal C. I. Frederick. Seven public school teachers lost a total of 51 days' work in Prince Edward, all through illness.

A splendid endorsement in the sale of War Stamps was realized at Queen Mary Public School when the total amounted to $1,083.25, an average of about 50c per student. During the month Mr. Kells inspected Queen Mary and King George Schools and found all class rooms fulfilling a high degree of efficiency and progress in the present trend of education.

Otherwise, in the report, it announced that a new radio had been installed at Queen Mary and King George Schools and that new Kindergarten chairs had been provided in the various schools where needed.

Principal's Report.

The report of Principal Turner of the Collegiate and Vocational School showed a range class room attendance of 624 pupils with 85.8 per cent. Pupils enrolled at the Collegiate were 485 with 85.8 per cent attendance, 427 which were boys and 365 girls.

Principal Turner suggested to the Board the installation of ventilation fans in the gymnasia as the present system of air is far from healthful.

During the month C. W. Robb and R. H. Wallace, High School principals, and the Department of Education made a three-day inspection of the Collegiate and Vocational School. It was pointed out in the report that Belleville is one of the few cities in Ontario carrying on musical education up to grade 12 and here again saw favorable comment in the report. Incidentally it was the third consecutive year in which Belleville Collegiate had visited the Belleville Collegiate.

Minor Ailments Reported.

Minor illnesses contracted by children of Belleville schools ages were reported in some public schools by Mrs. D. Watt, the Public School Inspector. However, for the greater part these minor seasonal sickness showed a decrease since last month.

During February Mrs. Watt made 76 home visits, 15 pupils were examined with 9 found to be defective and nine for skin conditions. One child was examined by the Mental Health Doctor and three by the following vision tests several children were fitted with glasses by the Kinsmen Eye Clinic.

The dental report showed 15 examinations were made by Dr. M. Clarke, 64 permanent fillings completed and two extractions made.

The members of the Board present: Inspector Kells, Hill, Hall, Warnica, Chadnick, Mrs. Sisler and C. B. Crosby, board chairman.

Only $407 Collected Fri. In Campaign

A total of $407 was received at the Canadian Red Cross Blood Campaign Headquarters, on Friday, saving a total of $3,200 needed to reach the objective of 1,000 pints, M. F. Duff, president of the Belleville Red Cross, announced this afternoon. He is in charge of campaign funds in the drive receipts for the entire district existed at the close of the 1943 campaign, but that the citizens of Belleville and district have through magnificently before this drive closed its doors over-subscribing the objective. There is only one day left to make up the difference of $3,200, which is a considerable sum, but Mr. Duff is not losing hope hour. It will call for every ounce of support from every citizen who has not already donated this because. Enough dollars and cents subscribed today would do it. If you haven't already donated this year, and the canvasser has already called upon you, telephone your subscription to the Red Cross Headquarters, 780, and commit yourself to a definite amount so that it will be totalled into the amount already collected before the closing tonight. The co-operation of everyone is essential if Belleville is going to be able to forward 1,000 pints to the Red Cross Headquarters to be included into the $10,000,000 Dominion objective.

J. J. Trudeau Named Chairman Loan Campaign

Will Head County Victory Loan Committee, Succeeding Late R. A. Elliott

CIVIC MINDED

Having served in a responsible capacity during the past three loans, Ald. J. J. Trudeau, former mayor of the city, has been named by the County Victory Loan organization, and well-known Belleville business man, has accepted appointment as general chairman of the Trudeau Victory Loan Publicity Committee for the Sixth Victory Loan campaign, which gets underway across Canada late in April.

Mr. Trudeau succeeds the chairman for the County Victory Loan organization was made necessary owing to the death of the late R. A. Elliott of Deloro. Mr. Elliott acted as chairman during the Fifth Victory Loan.

Well-Known Local Lean.

Acting as general sales chairman will be Cecil Gordon Leary, Queen Loans, and as general sales chairman and vice chairman for the Fifth Victory Loan, Mr. Trudeau assumes his new responsibility with splendid background experience for the important position. Through his past associations he carries the community spirit and his wide acquaintance will enable him to choose efficient loan executives and sales ability.

J. J. TRUDEAU

Interested In Welfare Work.

Mr. Trudeau has been his own community, as well as from a national standpoint, a man of real interest to Mr. Trudeau. Coming to Belleville from Ottawa in 1924, he quickly became active in service work and is past president of the Belleville Kinsmen Club. He has superintended the construction of Kinsmen Park and the Kinsmen Club Centre in which is located the Belleville Memorial Arena. He is past president of the Garage Operators' Association of Ontario, and the Belleville Rotary Club, past president, and is director of the Industrial Development Association for Ontario which works under the Ontario Reinstatement Compensation Board. He is serving his first year as alderman of the city.

New Quarters Obtained.

The campaign machinery for an efficient County Victory Loan organization campaign is underway under the direction of Mr. Trudeau. New quarters for the Victory Loan Publicity Office have obtained for the duration of the campaign in the Bell Telephone tax office on the corner of Front and Bridge Streets, having been chosen as the site. Office personnel and equipment will be moved into the new quarters on Monday. National Objective Set.

Meanwhile, the objective in Victory Bond sales in Hastings has not been set for the Sixth Victory Loan, Mr. Trudeau pointed out this week. National objective had been set at the same figure as for the previous loan—$1,200,000,000. Whatever objective is set for Hastings, the new chairman expressed his belief that the people and residents of the county would support the County Victory Loan Committee have been previous campaigns.

Trio Uninjured When Truck Is Hit by Train

How a large truck loaded with pulpwood was hit at least on even terms with the locomotive when it was hit by the train and shoved about 100 feet by the truck is the topic of conversation in the Steenburg district today.

It seems that Chas. Murphy, Jr., his brother-in-law Clarence and Ernest Whittle had been riding in the cab of the loaded truck when it was struck by the train at noon at the St. Ola crossing. The truck was turned on end by the impact, shoved almost one hundred feet down the track before the train was brought to a standstill. Then all three men climbed out of the truck uninjured, and the only damage to the truck was a bent drive shaft.

As the train had been unable to proceed because of the overturned truck, the locomotive was brought into play as a snowplow and with it the chain attached from the tender to the vehicle the truck was hauled back to its proper wheels. The truck then drove off under its own power and the train proceeded on its way.

Dominion's Post-War Aviation Policy Chief Topic Discussion Among Members of Commons

Plan Enunciated by Munitions Minister Hon. C. D. Howe

FIRST IN FIELD

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, March 18 — (CP) — A new double-barrelled aviation policy for Canada was laid before parliament by the cigars was the chief topic of conversation on Parliament Hill today.

Refused to its bare essentials the policy, enunciated yesterday by Munitions Minister Howe in the Commons, was:

In the international sphere, Canadian support for the principle of "limited freedom of the air" with an international authority regulating air traffic on international routes except those between two adjoining nations, and full rights to a system of world security.

In the domestic sphere, maintenance of the government-owned Trans Canada Air Lines' monopoly on international routes and mainline routes in Canada, separation of airway operations, like those now owned by railways; regulation of aviation by a permanent air board, and licence of transport aircraft "as an essential complement to Canada's post-war aviation policy."

Mr. Howe, the United States-born minister who was the chief architect of Trans Canada Airlines, spoke from the experience of almost 10 years as the minister responsible for civil aviation.

The policy he enunciated was the result of more than a year of study by an inter-departmental committee of experts on aviation, transport generally and international affairs, headed by Dr. O. D. Skelton, Deputy Minister of Transport.

First To Announce Policy

It puts Canada in the position of being the first nation publicly to propose a plan for control of world aviation.

Australia and New Zealand in a separate agreement on post-war aims stated the general principles to which they adhere, but Mr. Howe outlined in the House a draft convention which he said he hoped would be considered at the forthcoming United Nations conference on international transport.

Rotary Board.

The new Canadian Air Transport Board would be a quasi-judicial body to deal with economic matters affecting the development of aviation.

Canadian representatives are now taking part in discussions in Washington and London of the United States regarding further international agreements on international aviation, Mr. Howe said. He added no final decisions were reached at the recent meeting of Empire governmental representatives last December.

ABOLISH DAYLIGHT TIME

Halifax, March 18 (CP)—The Nova Scotia legislature yesterday endorsed unanimously a resolution to abolish daylight saving time as a summer measure and revert to Atlantic standard time.

INDIAN TROOPS

Prisoners said that when the air and artillery bombardment began last Wednesday the Germans in Cassino took refuge in deep shelters they had prepared extensively over the town. Casualties were severe, they said, but the survivors came out to fight the Indians' advance to the Allied ground assault.

Counter-Attack Repulsed.

On the Anzio beachhead Allied infantry and armor today broke up an attempted attack by about one company of Germans near the south edge of Carroceto, Allied headquarters announced.

Except for intermittent artillery fire, the front was quiet.

About 40 German planes challenged the United States heavy bombers returning from the Ploesti oil refineries today and the fliers fell to the guns of the heavy bombers. The bombs were dropped through holes in a heavy overcast which prevented observation of the results. Fighters escorted the bombers.

Other heavy bombers attacked Sisiburg in Austria and Sibenik on the Yugoslav coast.

Medium bombers hit the Cecina railroad bridge between Aghorn and Pisa and the Rimini railroad on the coast railroad. Other mediums hit the railroad bridge at Terni in Umbria.

Attack Troops Concentrating

Medium and fighter bombers attacked the troop concentrations, supply dumps and gun positions west of Ossino and in the Anzio beachhead area. The towns of Ferentino and Frosinone, recently attacked by heavy bombers, were hits were sogged on two railroad bridges between Aghorn and Pisa.

The New Zealanders' capture of Point 593 on Cassino's Monte Cairo Hill was one of the most spectacular feats of the opening of the Cassino battle, Allied troops finally to take this natural obstacle to their advance from the town's northern fringe.

Defended finely by the Germans, the New Zealanders found the northern face of the hill was undescalable so they worked around to the easier south side, and got there in force. The pass strong German positions in a building known as "The Nunnery," but they dug and their way to the top of the hill.

Mr. Howe said that Transport Italy, a patrol from an Ontario Regiment crossed the line of Germans' toughest defence points on Thursday night and returned without casualties after a fierce hand to hand encounter and revert to At- change of machine-gun fire and grenades.

A Weekly Column Devoted to the Activities of the Members of the Forces and Abroad.

Expanding the Argyll Light Infantry (Sheen) Battalion, an additional officer, Lieut. Ross Dennis, of Deseronto, has been appointed to the unit, Lieut.-Col. R. C. Donnan, M.C., announced.

Deseronto troops will be under the direction of Major R. H. Findall, while Capt. Dr. J. A. McKay conducted the classes.

The Deseronto troops will be under the direction of Major R. H. Findall, principal of the Deseronto High School, the building to be utilized as a drill hall for reserve army training. Some 32 residents are mustering and entrance signified for intention of interest in the program.

The majority of the recruits are from the Deseronto High School, Mr. McKay announced the classes, but these boys hope to get a basic knowledge of army training before becoming of military age.

Once the Deseronto troops become permanently established, it has been suggested, that Friday evening would be the most opportune for training periods. At first the instruction equipment will be transported to Deseronto on training nights, but as the new class progresses and the men become specialists a portion of the military equipment at the Armouries will be allotted Lieut. Hough's troops.

A Brain Wave

A recruit fed up with army life, thought he'd try to "work his ticket."

He stretched a duck on the barrack-room wall, and began to throw crumbs of bread to it.

When the officer saw him, he gave him a large shovel.

"What's this for?" asked the recruit, continuing his half-wit pretence.

"You go into the field at the back," answered the sergeant, "and dig a hole for you to come to water for a pond. Then your duck can swim in real water and not on a brain-wave."

Random Notes

Lieut.-Col. L. F. Grant, 3 L. C. of Army Training in Canada, and Col. L. W. W. Slack, of M.D. No. 2 Kingston, made a tour of inspection of all units of the Second Battalion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment from Picton to Bancroft this week. They also dropped in at the Belleville Armories for an impromptu review inspection during Tuesday night's training period.

Sergt. Roney Corner, of the R.C.I.S. who was signal officer at the Armouries last summer, has been promoted to the rank of Warrant Officer. Sergt. Turner, whose home is in Belleville, is now an instructor at Brockville.

Major Ron Church, former Picton and Belleville resident, overseas after a period as instructor in Canada. Enlisting as a lieutenant in the First Battalion Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Major Church was promoted while training in England and expects to rejoin his regiment soon.

Fred Temple, who was wounded in the Sicilian and Italian campaigns while serving with the 48th Highlanders, arrived home as a convalescent this week. Fred relates some thrilling stories regarding his old football pal, Lieut. Leslie Mackaska, Farley Faulkner and Jack Morgan. Fred met them just after the Christmas vacation with Capt. Dr. "Kewpie" Kennedy former hockey coach at B.C.I., who is now in Italy. Fred took in the Interscholastic hockey game at the Arena the other day, it being the first game he had seen in over two years. "They've surely kicked the playing rules around since I last played hockey played here," remarked Fred.

Lieut. Don Ridley, formerly attached with the Argyll Light Infantry at Camp Borden, is a visitor at the Armouries this week.

Abe Tobe visited the Sergeants' Mess Saturday night. Abe is enjoying a well-earned furlough after a lengthy sea duty. Glad to see you home.

Over the weekend an Officers' Examining Board will sit at the Armouries Saturday and Sunday with Lieut.-Col. R. C. Donnan as chairman. Officers of the 2nd Battalion Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Argyll Light Infantry (Thain) and 34th Battery R.C.A. will complete the tests.

Sergt.-Major Charlie Holmes of the A. & T. Staff at the Armouries left yesterday for a three-week course at the Canadian Army Small Arms School situated at Long Branch. SM. Holmes will feature the personal angle upon which he will lecture on his return.

Gala Evening

The sergeants' mess and lecture room were gaily decorated with the shamrock of old Ireland Friday night when the Garrison Sergeants' Mess held a St. Patrick's Night social evening at which time they entertained a number of sergeants, warrant officers and their lady friends from the Mountain Camp. R.C.A.F. base, Trenton and cars were enjoyed and a dainty buffet luncheon served. The entire affair retained a definite St. Patrick's Night atmosphere with green decorations of green and white blending into the soft lights. The visitors were welcomed by Sergt.-Major Alec Lacey, president of the mess.

'A Negro soldier from an inland camp went aboard the transport at night on his first trip and in the morning when he came up on deck nothing was to be seen but water, endless miles of it. He stared at it in amazement.

Commanding Officer—What do you think of it, Mose?

Mose—Seems if this here's the onliest thing I ever seed there was enough of.

Five Go Active

Additional indications that reserve army training is getting active was seen when five members of the Argyll Light Infantry "went active" recently and today are well up in their basic training period.

Of the quintette three joined the Army and two, the Canadian Navy. They are: F. R. Mansfield and Thos. L. M. Kennedy and G. Calbury joined the Canadian Army while Tyas, George Ling and L. Maracle enlisted with the R.C.N.V.R.

The annual meeting and election of officers for the Argyll Light Infantry (Thain) Mess will, Wednesday night when the various chairmanships will be filled. Apparently there are to be provisions for a mess orchestra as well as a pipe band, the Argyll Battalion as a brass band committee was named at the R.S.M. P. Hanley, chairman of this new committee. Major A. H. Redmond, Sergt.-Major Bert Cumming, Sergt.-Major B.-C. Slater the pipe major and Quartermaster L. Franks on the sports committee and Lieut. Col. R. C. Donnan the Regimental Board of Officers. RSM. Herb Williamson was named to several committees to represent the unit as a whole.

Postmaste

Apparently Uncle Sam's army has its sailping—and other—troubles.

A recruit passed a captain without saluting. The captain stopped him.

"Take a look at me," he said, "I've got some special significance to this uniform".

The recruit looked him over, then grinned.

"Yeah, you lucky dog!" he exclaimed, "you've got one that fits!"

Battery News

With exam time drawing steadily nearer, officers and N.C.O.'s of the 49th Battery R.C.A. are these nights giving more attention to studies on the officers' qualifying courses which form a necessary for Battery personnel for the past few months.

Last Wednesday evening special lectures were given on the various type of ammunition and on directors' work, Regimental Sergt.-Major Arms Schofield attended a Canaveral Field Battery was in charge of lectures.

Commanding Officer Captain Thain's monthly reports a permanent addition of two new recruits recently. One of these is a field engineer with the Canadian National Railways. And then too, the big day for battery officers and other persons met has arrived.....the quarterly pay for time served in training was recently handed out by the paymaster.

Speaking of exam time and specialist courses, considerable detailed work lecture being given Battery officers and N.C.O.'s. By the spasmodic sound the unit's headquarters is where Sergt. Chum MacKenzie was on Wednesday night. 'Tis rumoured that while other members of the unit were taking lectures, Sergt. Charles was downstairs giving the fundamentals to the local Canadian Women's Service Force unit. Seems the girls were having trouble with gun-laying and their command orders and needed assistance within the time limits on ....mice...work, Charles....if you can get it."

Sergeant Percy back home on a short furlough, took a girl friend out to a dance. Someone blew a fuse and the lights went out. Percy's girl reproved him:

"Percy, Percy, really shouldn't kiss me with all these people around.

But, Percy; I didn't kiss you, and N I find the one who did, I'll teach him something!

Girl (giggling): Oh, Percy, I don't believe you could teach him anything!

Interesting Talk

Last week the officers and members of the Argyll Chapter of the I.O.D.E. were given an interesting talk by Lieut. J. Feeney, R.C.N.V.R. who is at present taking a course at the Trenton R.C.A.F. station in connection with the newly inaugurated "beet air arm."

Knowing that the Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E. had adopted H.M.C.S. Corvette "Snowberry", Lieut. Feeney was asked to speak on the adopted ship which he visited quite recently.

"The Snowberry is one of seven in the 'flower class', that is to say, the corvettes named after flowers," explained Lieut. Feeney. "The Snowberry was built in Canada for the Royal Navy, but has always been manned by a Canadian crew and at present she is under the charge of Lieut. J. A. Dunn, of Vancouver," stated Lieut. Feeney as he made reference to recent action seen by the crew in the Bay of Biscay.

Mrs. E. O. Donnan, Regent of the Chapter, extended the personal thanks of the officers and members of the Argyll Chapter for the enlightening remarks given by Lieut. Feeney.

Local Boys Meet

It was like an old boys' reunion at Halifax last week when several former Belleville boys met for a luncheon. It seems Sergt. Wallace Marner, of Debert, N.S., visited the Wes. Reynolds home where he met "Big Dog" McCreary, Mack Holton, Bill Sharpe, Surgoyne, Blakely and a couple of others from Belleville. Ask Nuff said!

Incidentally, Sergt. Marner wrote home to say he received a letter from a friend overseas on March 6th that had postmarked "overseas mail" on March 1st.

Woman's Army

Major Marion Harden, Command-ing Officer of the local branch of the C.W.A.F., received a letter from Captain C. H. Smith, in charge of "E" Troop in Italy, the troop the C.W.A.F. adopted some weeks ago. "As the troop's mother, I'm very adopted family," Captain Smith opened his letter and then went on to explain there were 70-odd in the troop and having been adopted by a group of young women has materially assisted the morale of all the boys.

Captain Smith explained that "E" Troop is an anti-aircraft unit of six guns. "At times life is most difficult from the viewpoint of activity for the men's minds. They sit at their gun posts day in and day out from dawn to dusk waiting for the sight of a Boche plane. And when you realize that as the average engagement—when it comes—lasts only ten seconds or so, you can see that it is a pretty boring proposition," explained Captain Smith and he suggested reading matter be sent wherever possible as the boys at the front need something to occupy their thoughts occupied when not on combat duty. Captain Smith spoke in the regards of the entire unit to the local branch of the C.W.A.F. and on Wednesday night Major Harden read the letter to all members of the unit and as each name was called sage naturally inspired the C.W.S.F. members to greater heights in the provisions for their adopted troop.

Owing to the illness of Major Marion Harden, who was confined to her home through illness, Lieut. M. V. Smith was the guest of the C.W.S.F. training period on Wednesday night.

40,000 Children in Ontario Come Under Protection of C.A.S. Annually

ARTICLE 2.

(Prepared by the Association of Children's Aid Societies of the Province of Ontario).

Throughout the area in which you live—it may be a city, a town or the wider boundaries of the county—are children whose home circumstances have deprived of the rights, opportunities and security that your children enjoy. For the moment we shall not ask why or how this has happened to them, or whose fault it is, or whether their misfortune is more than that has made them its victims are conditions of society for which we are all responsible.

There is a long trail of cause and effect that leads to broken homes, to irresponsible parenthood, to the standards of living out by which can come nothing but the stunted lives and, inevitably, delinquency. It calls up such reflections upon the organization of communities that most of us immediately find ourselves in a fog of economic and political thinking!

Let us at once admit that the work of Societies for Children is merely cut for enlightened social engineering and for the removal of such social and human problems stem out from faulty economic conditions. Unless it is true that our children's problem in Canada with informed minds have not been solved, and promise that there are tools waiting to be used, even by you in your community! More tools than there are people using them!

There are at least 40,000 children in this province who for one reason and another—during some part or most come under the protection of the Children's Aid Societies. Of these at least 8,000 children have been found to be so utterly deprived of normal care and love that the courts have legally committed them as wards of the Children's Aid Societies in Ontario. Tens of thousands of others must be helped and saved while every effort is made to improve the conditions of their own homes and help, advise and educate their parents.

These are not cold statistical statements. Let us use our imaginations a little! These are the forty thousand little boys and girls in this beautiful province of Ontario, for some cause, have lacked care, opportunity and happiness that is a normal child's right in their birthright! Nameless babies placed out in homes and institutions, little boys and girls so neglected physically that their clothes have had to be cut off their bodies for the vermin and some even sent to hospital in the hope that it is not too late; children with the blight of their parents' sins transmitted to tarnish their own innocence; children, if not actually abused and neglected, suffering physically and spiritually from discord and incapacity and low intelligence in the home. And sometimes children living in—poverished lives because the only mother has been deserted or a hard-working carworn father, has been left to bring up alone.

It was for such children as these that about 70 years ago and through the efforts of a few great humanitarians, our world began to better itself. It was a benevolent English businessman, who having seen the beginning of the child welfare movement in New York, brought the idea of a society to protect children to England. He went to a meeting of the Liverpool Society for the protection of animals and standing up in the audience said: "I am here for the prevention of cruelty to animals and I cannot draw the line at children!" Famous philanthropists took up the challenge; societies sprang up; the great Lord Shaftesbury fathered the first protection act in 1854 and was the beginning of a new era.

Toronto saw the first efforts in Ontario to establish a law to protect children and have them adopted by a group of young women has materially assisted the morale of all the boys.

Captain Smith explained that "E" Troop is an anti-aircraft unit of six guns. "At times life is most difficult from the viewpoint of activity for the men's minds. They sit at their gun posts day in and day out from dawn to dusk waiting for the sight of a Boche plane. And when you realize that as the average engagement—when it comes—lasts only ten seconds or so, you can see that it is a pretty boring proposition," explained Captain Smith and he suggested reading matter be sent wherever possible as the boys at the front need something to occupy their thoughts occupied when not on combat duty. Union Vale

Union Vale — The Union Vale war workers held their quilting at the home of Mrs. Jack May on Wednesday afternoon with sixteen members present. After their quilting was completed, Mrs. Longdon was asked to be seated and Mrs. C. A. Bonnett read an address. Mrs. Jack May presented her with a lovely gift from the Red Cross workers. Many friends here, Mr. and Mrs. Longdon are leaving the last of March for Niagara, where they will make their home with their daughter and family.

The Farm Forum group met on Monday evening at the home of Mr. Jack Crowe, with a good attendance.

Mrs. Harold Walters of Schobarie was visiting her parents with Mrs. Earl Pearsall. Mr. Walters joined them at the supper hour.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Brummell of Massassaga spent Tuesday with their daughter, Mrs. Jack Tubbs and Mr. Tubbs.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Vincent entertained a number of friends to a birthday party recently in honor of his father, Mr. Finley Vincent's eighty-seventh birthday. In spite of his advanced years he is very active and able to be about doing things.

Mr. and Mrs. Leland Pearsall motored to Belleville to visit their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Colley, of South Bay.

Mrs. C. C. Pearsall and Mr. Finley Vincent spent Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Vincent of Carnahan, the event being Mr. Vincent's birthday.

Mr. George Hudgins of South Bay and Mrs. Ida Pearsall were with Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Vincent.

Mrs. Earl Pearsall spent the weekend with her daughter, Mrs. M. Brummell and family at Wardsville.

Mr. Jack Dustin is busy this week sawing wood for the people in this locality.

Post-War Immigration

Canada's post-war salvation rests mainly on Canadians, for Canada belongs primarily to Canadians. But, Canada must not pass up the post-war appeal of other desirable races who will want to make Canada their home. Post-war immigration must be met and faced with a purposeful plan and, although the "open door" policy seems to be out of the plan, it is not right to permit the policy to be too lax. In planning for immigration Canada must look first at herself, recognize the benefits they have to offer to the races who will come knocking at her door for admittance and having taken stock of what she will be offering, ask for a just return. First and foremost of these benefits is Freedom, the guarantee that the inherent right of man will be protected; secondly, there is the benefit of modernization which involves the necessity to protect that which those who are already here have achieved through their own endeavors over a period of a hundred years and more.

It is not enough to turn the pages of history and point to the facts of other great governments that have risen from out of the world to another and say that it has been done before with success, why can't it be done again. There is no doubt about that, but it cannot be done again unless Canada takes the attitude of the teacher, the leader from the first moment these strange feet arrive in their new land. It must be borne in mind that all great emigrations of peoples bring with them a change of the culture of the nation they are leaving, the training physically and mentally, the traditions of character, and, if these are permitted, a blending of these people after their arrival. These factors will continue to maintain the newcomers as outsiders and tend to collect them into small, or large, social groups where their traditions with them and their way of life will continue to be just what they were before they emigrated. There are already examples of this in existence in Canada.

If Canada is going to be assimilated as it is going to be about 100 years, it is too much to ask a visitor to abide by the customs of those whom he is visiting? If that person happens to be from a country where sleeping on floor is the habit and he has never permitted him to sleep on the floor, but, if that visitor becomes a permanent resident, it becomes uncomfortable to find him stretched out on the floor when a perfectly good bed awaits him. Therefore, if the visitor who has become a permanent resident wishes to remain, he, too, must concede to the established customs of his host. Figuratively, this applies to the immigrant. His customs, if they do not conform with the customs of Canada, must be given up by him.

Our customs are our character, and a country loses its character to be changed by the characteristics of others soon becomes a nation divided. Our customs have been proven and stand as an example to the rest of the world. The people of Toronto live the same as those two thousand miles away in Vancouver, or a thousand miles in the other direction at Halifax. Canadians have become accustomed to thinking in terms of infinity when they think of their country. Its vastness is matter of course to them from infancy, but to the immigrant, accustomed to thinking in terms of seldom more than a few hundred miles, there is a tendency to confine himself to such an area and ignore the remainder, treating it as foreign. The provincial boundaries of Canada, often constituted International boundaries to the European. And, to overcome this grouping, which will eventually form individual racial communities, and could, in time, develop into nationalistic entities, the immigrant must be instructed and taught that Canada is one.

Who are these immigrants who will want admittance to Canada? They are the races who have suffered for centuries under the heel of imperialisms, dictatorships and tyrannies masters until they cannot believe any place on earth exists individual freedom is the key-note of life in that country. European nations have fostered races under either a definite military influence, or have been occupied by military authorities which have dictated their every motion and thought during the time of their occupancy. They have known little, else. They are the individuals of these nations who have never before left their native land. Geography, when it is taught, is mostly European, and the Americas and Canada are spoken of with a vagueness which leaves the student wondering just what sort of mythical countries they are. Now and then, someone who has migrated to Canada, or the United States, returns to his home land and tries to describe what he has seen, what their new life is like. He is unsuccessful because, even in his case, with his background influencing him, he himself does not really comprehend.

Knowing who these people are, oppressed and desolate, but with the hope that never dies alive in their hearts, what type of people are we to accept through our open doors. Canada cannot be made a dumping ground for any and all who wish to escape. Before the war Europe was considered the cradle of many famous scientists, philosophers, medical men, engineers, and others associated with the professions. When asked where are these men today, the reply is that many of them were fortunate enough to escape to a free land, but others, less fortunate were destined to remain to be crushed beneath the heel of the conqueror. Europe will claim many of those who escaped for the reconstruction which must take place when the war ends. There are large hundreds who will never wish to see again the lands from which they fled, lands pregnant with the memories of abused and desecrated families. These are the men, these are the families, that Canada can make welcome, and open the way for them to a future of mutual benefit.

Canada has grown from a small group of immigrants to the position it now holds in world affairs, and since that first movement of newcomers into the country, others have arrived and settled and have been granted good Canadian citizens who were unable to take in the greatness of the country returned to their homelands where they were able to cope with the conditions with difficulty. This would happen again, the individuals who could not take in the enormity would go back to what they could understand, and Canada would remain unchanged by their inability, but there would be thousands, and there have been thousands, remain and grow with the country, and help the country to grow. Therefore, to make Canada a new home, Canadians must develop a plan of education for these persons.

Twins

Partly by the accident of their birth and partly because of the easy wonder they excite in their fellow men, twins are unusual people, says Life. The accident itself is not uncommon. In the United States, it happens one in eighty-seven births, giving the nation a twin population of almost 2,000,000 individuals. Twinning is thus just rare enough to give its offspring a special place in family, school and community life and to surround them with an extensive lore in which fact, illusion, superstition and tradition are all mixed up.

Biologically, there are two different types of twins, distinguished as the product of a single egg or of two eggs. One-egg twins are identical twins. They are invariably of the same sex and are essentially physical duplicates of each other. Strictly speaking, they are the only true twins.

Two-egg or fraternal twins are no more alike or closely related than are singleton brothers and sisters and they share only the coincidence of their birthdays. They may, however, resemble each other closely and are often mistaken for identical twins.

QUATRAINS

Ship

A ship is made of heavy steel,
Of countless things from bridge to keel,
But (tis the simple truth I peep)
The heart and soul of ships are men.

Service

The stay at home is asked to toil,
To build engines or farm the soil.
The service men, land, sea or sky,
Are very often asked to die.

Greatness

When man can put himself aside
And let another take the cheers,
To serve the cause still satisfied,
He's greater far than he appears.

The Depths

We never dreamed we'd ever sink
So deep in bitterness as to think
Of any nation, caste or clan
The way we think about Japan.

Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. L. G.

What with shortages . . . and there were, for more than 100 years ago . . . then there are now . . . it was quite a feat to be able to "make" Easter dinner in Toronto this winter! In the west, the pioneers gathered as much "prairie spinach" as they could find, fodder was buy out from two-year-old grass; there was no lack of fish from sown fields. Lacking this prairie grass the settlers in Upper Canada, by sweat, by quick-pawing variety from swampy places. They ate it as a salad, boiled to cut the that had lain under water, as this type had an ill effect on bones and cattle.

According to the account given by . . . the Duke de la Rochefoucault-Liancourt in 1795, supplies were even more sketchy at the close of the 18th century than in the early 1800's. It is asserted that all Canadas, was the staple food, and was not the necessary corn for the consumption of its inhabitants. The troops are supplied with flour from Kingston and American ports on the Mohawk. This exile from France, who toured North America, goes on to say . . . that the General Commanding, Upper Canada is not only capable of supplying the troops and all its inhabitants, but also of becoming a considerable exporter, and creating a considerable trade by the exchange of this necessary of life for other commodities.

The commissary mentions that "Upper Canada pays no taxes, except a duty of 3d. per gallon and four pence a gallon on madeira, and two pence a gallon on other wine; and another of thirty-six shillings sterling a year on tavern licenses which during the admission of 1792 was increased by twenty pounds currency (eighty dollars). The sum total of the public revenue amounts to three hundred pounds sterling, out of which the salaries of the Speaker, Clerk of the House of Representatives, and of the Secretaries; the contingencies, and the messengers' expense which local circumstances render requisite for the service and maintenance of society."

Ottawa, March 18.—(CP)—PANELFLINE: Many Canadian officers remember with esteem and respect Major-General Sir Percy Hobart, who is now in command of the Canadian armoured division in England. Age Does Not Weary It Nor the Years Condemn

By VERNON M. KIFF
(Special to The Ottawa Journal and The Ontario Intelligencer)

LONDON, February.—Here was the very heart of Britain and of Dominions of the British Empire. Here were a few grey old buildings and a bit of pavement which linked the England of Plantagenet, of Tudor and Stuart, with the Britain of today, with its extraordinary Britain of this day of war.

In the courtyard of the Palace the guard was being changed, and a military band played softly. The King's flag was not flying, but the King's house still was a symbol. In front of the tiny sentry boxes ladies in khaki went through their military movements with stiff precision.

Outside the high iron fence we stood with hundreds of men and women—most of them in khaki. A great number were on their sleeves the star of the United States. Canada was there, and the British Commonwealth—India and Burma, South Africa and New Zealand, Newfoundland and the West Indies. Through the silent spectators a woman wheeled her pram and old ladies took the Sunday air.

At the main gate of the Palace stood two policemen, and at the two big amiable London policemen representing the civil law. That too, was symbolic.

The streets were almost bare of traffic, except for a few cars coming from the Palace to Westminster Abbey, where kings are crowned and many have been buried. The interior was dimly lighted by the blackout system. He was told that We stood by the Tomb of the Unknown Warrior, where the great and little people have made their silent prayer. It is marked by modest memorial stone with an inscription in the floor, and wreaths and flowers were piled on it. In front of us service was being held, and the voice of the preacher came in a loud-speaker system. He was talking, appropriately enough, of character, and the need of the spirit.

We looked into the deep cavery of tall pillars, and at the array of ornate funereal sculpture which commemorates the forgotten worthies—and some by no means unworthy—who have been buried in the vast building with the men and women who shaped the name of England down the centuries. Poets and princes were in this imaginary force, courtiers and squires, squires, Cromwell's from men and the gay cavaliers of Prince Rupert, Charles, with Mary's bishops and Elizabeth's statesmen, and the great of the Four Georges and Victoria. MacArthur's Aim To Return To Philippines

Canberra, March 17 (CP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur said tonight he is interested in the question of return to the Philippine Islands.

At a Commonwealth dinner following conferences at which he was decorated with the Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath, MacArthur stated he wanted to reiterate that when he was here in Australia two years ago today, his mission was to return to the Philippines.

This mission is still unchanged.

I shall return to the Philippines."

In geographical terms, MacArthur's return to Manila means the Philippines today than he was when he arrived by air at Darwin, Australia, two years ago.

But MacArthur is much nearer fulfilment of his goal in terms of the military machine he now commands.

When the general arrived, he had only a handful of soldiers. Instead of invasion, the core of its first line troops still at sea or engaged in the Middle East and the bravery of its airmen serving in distant theatres. Australia was the nearest friendly, reasonably safe from invasion but it remained the only operating base.

The Japanese raids repeated, vigorous attempts to knock the Allies off-balance during the transition period, failed to dislodge the defence. But the American army, Australian, American and New Zealand troops and American-Australian air support grew in number almost daily.

Darwin still is nearer the Philippines than any other Allied base, but now it is a strongly held base from which Allied fliers take off to hit and observe the enemy.

ground. The Thames is a gateway to the sea. It washes the Houses of Parliament and has seen the beginnings and development of a system of government which spread around the earth. It has seen the pageantry of royal processions and many executions. Across down the years have gone over its grey waters to the Tower and the axe of the executioner. Another Prisoner, Elizabeth, once followed this course though not, to her surprise, to a bloody end.

We visited Traitors' Whitehall, and by the window through which Charles the First stepped to death at the hands of an aroused people. We stood at the entrance to Downing Street, guarded by a barrier and a policeman. We came to Trafalgar Square, the Nelson column leading us on.

All this was the old London, the London of story and legend, the London that has been for the most part a few battling tribes work their way through the centuries. Now it is under the bombs. There was another side to the picture. Most of the people on the streets were in uniform. Here and there on the streets were huge holes of which the authorities said the enemy may create. As unexpected as bombs, here and there, were iron railings or the curb. Old stone buildings bore signs of the fire of the smoke and dirt of London by fragments from German bombs. This was old, but here was the front line. It bears the honorable scars of battle. Here and there were sandbag shelters and fire waters, the paraphernalia of defence and of attack. And, so, is poor old London.

Such is the heart of London on a Sunday morning in February. Age does not weary it nor the years condemned. This is a stout heart, and strong, and sure.

Lloyd entertained in her honor at a miscellaneous shower at the latter's home, held in the Conservative Club rooms, was a delightfully arranged affair and was attended by approximately one hundred guests. Bridge and both round and square dancing were enjoyed during the early evening. Many beautiful gifts were handed to her many friends for the huge basket of lovely and useful gifts that she received. A delicious lunch was served by the hostesses.

Spring

How my heart with happiness is filled
By the Springtime hills,
Chirping birds and humming bees
And dancing daffodils.

How my heart with rapture bounds
To see the budding trees,
Grasses green begin to shoot
With every rustling breeze.

How my heart with laughter stirs
To each joyous Springtime day,
Springtime, Springtime everywhere,
In tree-top and by way.

How my heart with music sings
Each o'er the moon,
Watch the swallow skimming past
Just catching my fleet.

How my heart does dance with glee
Springtime in the rush,
Robin chirping cheerily,
In the Hay bush.

How my heart beats fast for joy
For things that might have been.
Old winterdom is past and gone,
And Spring is ushered in.

Care of Complexion in Winter

Alice Faye has a beautiful, smooth complexion

By HELEN FOLLETT

THIS IS the season of the year when your face requires a good deal of attention, unless you are willing to let it change for the worse and become a manuscript upon which is written a record of birthdays. Weather changes do no good to it. Lack of exercise is likely to rob it of fresh coloring.

In the summer season the beautician has more walls, about oily skins; in cold weather, the dry skins claim her. But the oily voices. It would seem, says one of these authorities who misses long the good looks of her clientele, as if woman has a moral complexion. Maybe the huskies just don't come her way. Maybe they don't care. Maybe they wash their faces, eat wisely, bathe daily, sleep restfully. At any rate, it makes a lot of difference.

Your Dry Skin

Even the dry skin that balks against soap will accept it if it utilizes a thick cream rubbed in with flattened finger tips. Then women with dry skins can play with the make-up idea, but it's best not to.

Massage Helps Circulation

Daily lubrication forestalls wrinkling. Massage necessary to apply an oily cosmetic gives the fibers and tissues a bit of exercise that is good for them. It helps the blood streams to stop loafing on the job. Unless circulation is brisk, the cheeks will lack color.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Does She Love Me or My Diamond?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Maybe you can help me decide what to do in this problem. I'm a sailor and I guess we earn the reputation of being active lovers we deserve it. I fell head over heels in love with a girl and she told me she wouldn't become engaged without a diamond so I purchased one with what my friends got when they promised to marry a guy. So I sent in debt for it and it cost me over a hundred bucks on it.

The last time I had dinner leave I heard she was carrying on with a good many, and that her engagement to a lieutenant had been announced. I went to see her and found her pretty much at ease at Red Circle. I asked her about my ring which she wasn't wearing and told her if it was all off I wanted the ring back. She said no gentleman ever asked for a ring back. I asked her if her lieutenant would pay the balance of $100 and she seemed to think me less of a gentleman than ever. What would you have me doing, under these circumstances?

—Sailor Jack.

Write to the jeweler and say you have decided to discontinue payments on the diamond ring. Give him the girl's address and let him have it. Be rid of the confusion. Go take back the ring. Undoubtedly she thinks more of the diamond than she does of you. If she's going to marry another man, there's no reason why you should continue to pay for an engagement ring when there is no engagement. Better luck next time.

Married Turtle Doves Misunderstand Each Other

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 18 years old and my husband is 21. We've been married a year and have been very happy except for one thing. My husband is very stubborn and very moody. I don't know how to act—if I try to joke with him he gets mad and won't talk at all, and when I don't play and joke with him he says I don't love him and he won't speak to me.

I love him so much that I just can't stand it when he doesn't speak to me, and this happens for two or three days at a time. It has been worse since he's gone into the service. He comes home on a week-end and then doesn't write or speak to me until it's time to leave and then he says "I'll be back next Friday."

Do you believe he may be tired of me, or has met another girl he loves more? Tell me what to do, please.

—Mrs. L. G. R.

It's unusual for a husband and wife to have acquired the formula of how to make misunderstandings which are the result of little jealousies. Your letter is full of pique and childish indifference to these little tantrums. He doesn't like it when you don't play, but he also likes it when you do. And he doesn't like you saying you'll be what you to make a big fuss over him when he acts this way. You're not trying, but they'll melt if you disregard them and don't keep watching the clock until he comes.

Supreme Priestess Visits Belleville's Shrine of Jerusalem

A very enjoyable evening was spent when Mrs. Amy Berry, of Toronto, Worthy High Priestess of the Order of the White Shrine of Jerusalem, inspected the officers of Bethlehem Shrine of Belleville on March 15, in the Oddfellows Hall.

Only the highest praise was given by Worthy High Priestess, Mrs. Hazel Sarrazor, for the efficient manner in which the work was carried out when a large class was initiated into the order. A talk by Supreme Worthy High Priestess was very instructive and much appreciated.

Mrs. Berry was pleased with this large class and to show her appreciation, wished to give them a name, which she called "Mrs. Berries," after herself.

After a friendly visit, the women retired to the banquet hall where a supper was served. Much credit is due to the refreshment committee and members for the way the tables were decorated and for the delicious refreshments which made this evening one to be remembered.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Louise Thompson, High Priestess of Hamilton Shrine, Mrs. Montrose and one member; Mrs. Margret Squires, High Priestess of Maple Leaf Shrine, Toronto, and one member; Mrs. Isabella Wray, High Priestess of Toronto Shrine, Toronto; Mrs. Helen Cornelius of Moyiah Shrine, Kingston and worthy members.

Children of Mary Stage St. Patrick's Day Concert

The auditorium of St. Michael's Academy was filled to capacity on Friday night when the Society of the Children of Mary staged a St. Patrick's Day concert. "One of the best events ever to assemble for such an occasion," one woman remarked to another, who could hardly disagree when the event was in honor of the "Gay Seventies" and "Gaslight Days," which was honoring Paddy's Day, both in entertainment and dress. In costumes, was opened with a few remarks by Rev. M. J. Leyden, C.S.B., O'Connell. He extended a welcome to everyone present and gave a brief resume of the life of St. Patrick, a suitable beginning to such a fine entertainment. The items was as follows:

St. Michael's Band, Old Ireland, March, Remembrance of Colonel Mitchell, Conductor.

St. Patrick's Day Greetings, John Trudeau.

Group of songs by Juniors of Academy, "When McGinty Played Pinochle," "Mother Machree" and "Jack and Jill."

Mr. John Fahey, songs, "When Irish Eyes are Smiling" and "The Rose of Tralee."

Barbara Donovan and Ronnie, song and dance, "Irish Jig" Grant, accompanist.

Dance, Belleville High School Glee Club, "Little Annie Rooney" and "Wicklow Hornpipe."

Vivian Cannon, readings, "Mrs. Horrigan at the Shoe Store" and "Irish."

Mr. Harold Barrett, songs, "A Little Bunch of Shamrocks" and "Irish Jaunting Car."

Joseph Kay, a piano solo, "Dancing Leaves."

Robert Fahey, songs, "Ireland is Ireland Still" and "You're Irish and You're Beautiful."

Irish Jig Party, tambourine dance, Misses Mary, Catharine and Helen Grant and Catherine Barrett; bell solo and song, Miss Helen Grant; xylophone solo, Miss Grant; Irish Jig, Mary and Catherine Grant and Catharine Barrett.

Mr. Michael Fahey, "London Derry Air" and "Cockles and Mussels."

St. Michael's Band, March, "Old Academy" and "God Save the King."

Honored Before Leaving City

Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Denike and daughter Hazel, were honored by friends in the city on Tuesday evening last week when prior to their leaving Belleville, their home was the scene of a happy social gathering. In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Denike the other place they have held in the city and community in past years, numerous presents were given them, a beautiful occasional chair.

For thirty-five years a construction contractor in this district, Mr. Denike has lived in town as Belleville. For the past few years he has acted as civilian superintendent of construction at Trenton Air Station. Recently the family has purchased a home in Bloomfield and will shortly leave the city to take up residence there.

SHANNONVILLE W. A.

The monthly meeting of the W.A. of Shannonville United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Claude Lewis recently with 16 members and 5 visitors present. Mrs. Wm. Wilson, the president, had charge of the devotional, Mrs. Lougheed led in prayer, Mrs. Claude Clarke, president, conducted the business. Minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted. A letter of thanks was read from Mrs. Ed. Wilson. Fifty cents was received during her illness. Donations were received that $6 be donated to the Red Cross and that the W.A. purchase a quilting of the Roll of Honor for the boys from the United Church who have enlisted in the war. Two quilts were quilted, one being donated to Mrs. Fairchild's sale.

A pot luck supper was served to about forty. Absolute no supper was $12.80 and from quilt $2.50.

Best Color Scheme

Tricolor dress and jacket.

By VERA WINSTON

The best color scheme in the world—good cold red, white and blue—is playing a big role in the spring fashion show. It's used on this pretty frock with separate jacket of short red woolen. The jacket top has a bodice of heavy white linen, and the red is draped inset band of navy that ties in a bow at the neck. Navy is a color borders concealed in the folds and is straight in back.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Celebrating a Baby Wedding Anniversary

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My parents are going to celebrate forfeits wedding anniversary soon and we are planning to have a dancing dinner at noon. Someone suggested that we have the guests bring gifts for the baby. Will you please tell me just what is meant by "open house"?

2. Are invitations sent out for this kind of party?

3. Would ice cream and cake, tea or coffee, nuts and candy be appropriate to serve?

N. N.

1. "Open house" is a very delightful name for a general party to which many guests are invited; that the doors of the house will be hospitably "open" to friends to come in and leave the hours mentioned in the invitation. It's really just another name for either an informal reception, or very often for a tea party, since it usually is ending in the afternoon. Ordinarily the hours are 3 to 6, or 4 to 6, or 5 to 7, depending on the season, and the custom of the community.

2. The invitations should be sent. They may be by visiting cards or "informals," or by brief notes.

3. Yes, this menu is appropriate for a dancing party. Ice cream, there might be small sandwiches, with cake, candies, nuts, and coffee and tea and coffee should be served, if desired. And the cake might be iced (and I hope it will be, for greater fruit, punch.

Celebrating a Second Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper for a daughter and son to stand up for their mother when she gets married? I have been told that it is not.

K. W.

Quite often and it is considered proper, the attendants of the bride at her marriage is her daughter. Also, although it is not very common, the mother may walk up the aisle with her son.

Bridge for the Non-Bridgeite

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning to serve liquor at my sister's wedding reception. But many of our friends are non-bridgeites. Can you suggest a procedure of service for them?

T. H.

Today when so many people, for a variety of reasons, are non-drinkers, anyone who plans a party should provide non-alcoholic drinks as well as the conventional ones might include such drinks as ginger ale, or a punch made with fruit juice or as very often done and perhaps with more convenience, a punch.

The Marry-Go-Round

The Lady—and the Soldier

Men are good sports—and so are most women—at these days.

This column has been devoted to kidding the men and they have taken it and liked it. But at other times we don't kid men in uniform who are home on furlough or in the country. Noblesse oblige!

In fact, I was chuckling at all when I wrote that column on "Shot-gun Divorce"; scoring lightheaded women who married the double-cross servicemen at the front. But I stirred up a storm of controversy as the many letters on both sides of the fence are most illuminating of them all:

"Your column today, was the limit!" writes a modern young woman, in part, after blasting me. "Most of us girls can get critical when women for throwing over the men (soldiers included) whom they no longer want?

"Soldiers jilt girls and sometimes even marry foreign women, but you never bawl them out. I am proud of the women who give up their wives' allotment by getting divorced and I'm sure their countless marriages are being made for the sake of the good old dollar. And many divorces are being postponed for that 'money every month.'"

(She's got something there! So far, I agree—but read on.)

"Soldiers are out of uniform," she continues; "are having the best time of their lives and receiving an allotment for their solder husband's wife.

My dear girl, never in my life have I been more thrilled with men as that against my own sex. I think you're the best thing for men." Most women have a fine sense of decency, ethics and understanding.

Here's an excerpt from another letter from a lady who evidently never knows. I know lots of cases where friends of mine had it happen to them. They married in haste, after being married six years.

"It's only now which hit me harder — the letter asking for the divorce or the task of an intimate. The task sent me here to the hospital, but I'm getting over it now. I'm wondering if I can ever get over my lovely wife divorcing me."

Well, there are both sides of the question. Both are very well and interestingly, but I think the soldier's letter wins my argument.

Early Symptoms of Cancer of Large Intestine

I have written a number of times about cancer of the stomach and other parts of the digestive tract, who state that persistent pain in the stomach is an important early symptom (as 40 or over) should be considered cancer until a complete examination has been made by your physician.

Another place where cancer often occurs and is often not suspected until it is too late to operate is the large ele, is the colon or large intestine.

In an effort to try to find early signs of cancer of the colon, Dr. W. L. Bates, M.D., and Dr. Benjamin Medical Journal, Harrisburg, of this review of the records of cases of cancer of the colon. He found that the first symptom of the colon is pain in the abdomen or a colic that comes and goes, together with constipation and relieved by the passage of gas or a bowel movement. In other cases there is or normal form or condition- not hard lumps nor diarrhoea.

After it was recognized that these symptoms—pain or colic in abdomen relieved by passage of gas or a bowel movement—a particularly careful examination of patients with these symptoms was undertaken. As a result, in the next year after the number of cases of cancer of the colon that were discovered by this careful treatment increased from 46 to 86 per cent.

Dr. Bates concludes that all persons, especially over 40 years of age, who have a change in the bowel habit, gas cramps or distension, should have a careful examination for cancer of the colon until proved otherwise. Persons having these symptoms should have a complete examination by the proctoscope which I described some months ago.

If these cases are suspected and complete examination made, cancer of the colon can be proved or discovered early enough to bring about a cure by surgical operation.

Now these symptoms as mentioned above are certainly not serious as we think about them, but that they can be early symptoms of cancer and which in most cases should be remembered because with the methods of examination now available, 50 per cent of these cases can now be saved by early operation.

Gus Bodnar of Toronto Leafs Awarded Calder Trophy As Outstanding Rookie of Year

Vezina Trophy for the Best Goalie in N.H.L. Easily Won by Bill Durnan

BOTH FIRST-YEAR MEN

By FRASER MacDOUGALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, March 18 — (CP)—Slim Gus Bodnar of Toronto Maple Leafs, who celebrated his entry into National Hockey League competition by scoring the first goal of the present season, today was named winner of the Calder Trophy as the outstanding rookie of the year. The 20-year-old centre ice star from Port William, Ont., won the award with a slender margin over Bill Durnan, Montreal goaltender of Montreal Canadiens, in the annual poll of hockey writers and broadcasters in N.H.L. cities by The Canadian Press.

Bodnar received 562 points of a possible 736 in the voting in which 17 sports writers participated while the 29-year-old Durnan, a native of Timmins, was right behind with 551. Durnan already has won the Vezina Trophy as the league's top goaltender of the season.

Kennedy, Mortis up In List

Far behind the Toronto rookies were tied for third place in the balloting with 76 points apiece — defenceman Elwin Morris and forward Ted (Teeter) Kennedy, Forward Fernand Majeau of Montreal was in fifth place with 62 points.

Points were awarded on a 3-2-1 basis and the vote was weighted to give each voting power in each N.H.L. city.

The contest between Bodnar and Durnan was the closest for the trophy since 1941 when Johnny Quilty of Montreal Canadiens edged out Johnny Mowers of Detroit Red Wings.

Bodnar succeeds Gaye Stewart, now in the Royal Canadian Navy and also a native of Port William, as holder of the trophy which was donated by the late Frank Calder, former president of the National Hockey League, and was first up for competition in 1933.

Ukrainian by Birth

Born of Ukrainian parents — his real name is Bodnarchuk but it was shortened for hockey for convenience — the 150-pound pivot on Toronto's fourth all-star forward line played hockey as a youngster with Stewart and for the last three seasons was with the Leafs' farm club, Williams Hurricanes.

His scoring ability attracted the attention of George (Squib) Walker, Toronto scout, to the Leafs and the latter also discovered Stewart, and he came to the Leaf training camp at St. Catharines in 1943.

He made an auspicious debut in the first N.H.L. game of the season against New York Rangers, scoring after 11 seconds of play. In the 46 games he has played he has scored 20 goals and has had 37 assists, for an average of 57 points out of 57. He has been rejected by the Canadian Army.

Star Goalie for Years

Durnan, who has been a star amateur goaltender and an outstanding softball pitcher since he was 16 — at which time he was a rookie to figure prominently in the annual poll.

His play has been regarded as one of the big factors in Montreal's capture of the title this year, the second and his goals-against record — he has limited opponents to 96 goals in 42 games — won him the Vezina Trophy.

The lanky netminder began his hockey career in Toronto in 1930 and at 14 was signed on the Toronto Maple Leafs list. Later he went to Northern Ontario, where he played with the Sudbury Juniors, Wolves and later with the Haileybury and Lake senior Blue Devils who won the Allan cup in 1940.

Then Dick Irvin took him to Montreal where he played for Royals in the Quebec senior hockey league before entering professional ranks last fall.

SUDBURY PITMEN TWO GAMES UP ON HAMILTON TEAM

Overwhelm Majors in To-ronto 4-0 Before a Crowd of Less Than 3,000

KELLY SCORES TWO

By The Canadian Press

Sudbury Frood Miners, sturdy smooth-skating men of the north, overwhelmed Hamilton Majors 4-0 last night at Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto, before a crowd of less than 3,000 to take a two up their second straight victory in the all-Ontario senior intermediate series and the right to represent this province in Allan Cup competition. In their previous encounter at Hamilton, the N.O.H.A. champions measured the O.H.A. title-winners 6-4 and followed up that triumph with an impressive display in the second game of the series which the Majors ruled pre-match favorites among the leading fraternity.

The rivals go to Hamilton Monday night for the third set-to of the best-of-five series.

Bill Lahti put the Suburbans in front with the lone goal of the first period and Regis (Pep) Kelly scored the only tally of the second frame to make it 2-0 at that stage. The northerners added a brace in the third session with Kelly doing the honors a second time and Geo. Make registering a single.

In the O.H.A. intermediate semi-finals, Port Colborne emerged a 4-1 decision at Stratford last night to carry a three-goal margin into the second tilt on Garden Tuesday night at Port Colborne. The teams battled to a 1-all tie in the first frame but the visitors went into the lead in the second with a two-goal splurge, adding one more in the last period. Fitzgerald scored two for Port Colborne, while Bates and Bates getting one each. Hanuluk notched the Brantford counter.

'KRIPPLER' DAVIS AFTER HOLBROOK IN MAIN BOUT

Promises to Make Life Miserable for Texas Adonis at Kiwanis Show

GOOD PRELIMS

Kart "Kripper" Davis, who sometimes mistakes the wrestling ring for a rodeo, promises to make life miserable for "Vic" Holbrook, the Texas adonis, when these two top-notch grapplers meet in the main bout of a charity wrestling show at the Belleville Armouries next Wednesday night.

"Promoter Frank Tunney thinks this guy Holbrook is a hot champion ship timber and it's just about time somebody banged Tunney's ideas and I'm the man who can do it. Holbrook is a big guy in the south he's repeatedly ducked a bout with me and thinks because he's Belleville and I'm from Hollywood I'll take matters easy. Well, that's just where I intend to give both Holbrook and Tunney the well known double cross and spoil any of their conniving 'plans to handle Holbrook up for a world championship. I'll beat Holbrook in Belleville and then see what 'Boss-man Tunney' has to say," "Kripper Kart" boasted as he was working tentatively out with John Katan in Toronto yesterday.

Promoter Frank Tunney is bringing six of the best heavyweight wrestlers in the world to Belleville for a charity show with all proceeds to be given to the Belleville Kiwanis Blood Donors' Clinic.

The other bouts on the card include a bout between Frank Sexton and Jan Gotch and a preliminary bringing together Tom Zaharais and Pat Flanagan.

U. S. Working on Details For "Battlefront Olympics"

By The Canadian Press

A plan for immediate post-war sport developments along international lines is in the making, it was revealed at Washington last night where the U. S. Army is already working details for "Battlefront Olympics" with the return of peace. According to the general scheme, athletic meets in the services are to be staged in the vicinity of the European front, with the terminal finals in an Allied capital, probably London. The games are to be dedicated to the athletes of the world who have paid the supreme sacrifice.

The special services division of the U. S. Army has drafted an outline for preliminary competition and the subject has been given approval by members of Congress. At the conclusion of the First Great War the Canadian Expeditionary Force combined with British and American troops in athletic meets, outstanding games being held in Paris.

Frank Boucher of the New York Rangers has compiled an all-time high of 554 points in major hockey league scoring, it was announced in New York last night but he still does not get credit for an N.H.L. record because he spent four years of his career with the Pacific Coast League. Nels Stewart holds the N. H. L. record of 540 points.

After serving in North Africa as a navy Commando where he was injured, Tom Warren, 22, of Tulsa, Okla., is the first war casualty to turn out with a major league team. He is trying out as an outfielder with the Brooklyn Dodgers at the Dodgers' spring camp, Miami, N.Y., camp.

PICTON CAGE TEAM DEFEATS STIRLING BY 24-16 COUNT

Winners Will Meet B.C.I. Juniors for Right to Go to Toronto

CLOSE FIRST HALF

Picton Collegiate advanced to the finals in the Bay of Quinte Junior Intermediate basketball finals by eliminating Stirling High School 24-16 in a sudden death game played at the Belleville Collegiate gymnasium on Friday afternoon.

The winning Picton quintette meet the Belleville Collegiate Juniors for the Quinte district title and the right to advance to the O.S.S.A. finals in a two-game total goals game at the B.C.I. gymnasium tonight.

Picton led at the halftime mark by the scant margin of three points when the county stood at nine to six. However in the last stanza the Prince Edward County hoopsters ran wild on the floor and to score the Stirling kids 15 points to ten.

Rand and Rankin were the principal scoring threats for Picton with nine points each, while Stoker shot three baskets for Stirling as Reid and Elliot each netted two.

The winner of tonight's Belleville-Picton Junior Intermediate cage game at the B.C.I. will advance to the junior O.S.S.A. basketball playdowns at Toronto commencing March 25th. The box score:

5 GAMES BILLED IN NATIONAL LOOP DURING WEEKEND

Schedule Will be Concluded Sunday and Playoffs Open on Tuesday

LEAFS NOW THIRD

(By The Canadian Press)

The curtain rises on the last scene in the current National Hockey League season this weekend with five games scheduled. Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers are lined up for a home-and-home doubleheader tonight and tomorrow night while Detroit Red Wings and Chicago Black Hawks are billed in a similar series. Boston Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs wind up their season at Toronto tonight.

Facts and figures are almost a thing of the past—but not quite. Including in fis and other confidential words of the game, a fan should be able to draw considerable amount of interest from just whether Chicago or Toronto will win the title in the place spot.

The Leafs with one game to go are leading the Hawks by a single point. If the Leafs win, you can count your "ifs" and "shoulds".

The Hawks, losing tonight, and Chicago take a loss, the question would be settled. Detroit and Montreal and Toronto would be tied up for second place in the Stanley Cup play-offs. But if Toronto drops tonight's encounter with Boston, regardless of what the Hawks do, Montreal will be the runner-up.

Confusing? Not conventional yets, if both Toronto and Chicago win tonight, the issue will be settled Saturday night when the Hawks wind up the season on home ice. The Hawks would need another victory then to climb into third place.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By ALLAN NICKLESON
(CP Staff Writer)

London, March 18—(CP)—Ravenhaired Martin Thornton and fiery Pat O'Connor, who have done most of their boxing in London rings, took their feud to the ring over in their native Eire and pick up a couple of championships. Then they rushed back to London.

Fighting on the same card in Dublin, Thornton won the heavyweight championship of Ireland from O'Connor, who already held the welterweight title, and O'Connor the light-heavyweight crown.

The championships were held at the Theatre Royal and recalled that at another Dublin Theatre, Mike Honeyman and Jack Doyle fought for the world's light-heavyweight championship in eight-ounce boxing gloves guarded by soldiers with fixed bayonets. Honeyman scoring a spot of Irish trouble March 17, 1923, and during the fight two lead pipes fell from the roof to the street.

There were no such incidents as Thornton defeated Honeyman, but O'Sullivan of Cork as titleholder by knocking him out in the fourth round. "O'Sullivan's chief claim to fame, however, is that he knocked Jack Cole who had dealt in similar manner with Jack Doyle, the Irish "Thrush Singer," who was proclaimed of "Horizontal Heavyweight."

Thornton was defeated by Mulcahy for the vacant light-heavy title.

Thornton was welcomed with burning tar barrels when he paid his visit to the home of Michael of Spiddal, County Galway, after knocking down the challenger. Other persons from nearby villages joined in the welcome with bonfires and cries of joy to the occasion by announcing he would defend his title only in Dublin. County is a contest to aid the Mayor of Galway's fuel fund.

Wearing the North Africa ribbon and Eighth Army dagger, Dick Turpin rode into London gunning for Jack Gardner, Australian welter champ. Under the rules of the British Boxing Board of Control he could fight for the world's championship because he is a Negro.

Queensberry rules were cleaned up most of the present topics when war came. He served two and a half years abroad and raised this query on returning to civilian life: "Why can't Randolph had won an Amateur Boxing Association junior championship?" He's a brother can fight for the British amateur title, why can't he be barred from doing so in the professional ranks?"

Nel Tarleton, 37-year-old British featherweight king, outpointed Petty Officer Ben Duffy, and a technical knockout over Tuny Gauvies, 147, of Taunton, Mass., in the sixth round of a six-round boxing bout here last night.

Montreal, March 18—(CP)—Royal last night captured the Quebec junior hockey title, edging out Concordia 4-3. They now will go east where they will meet the Maritimes champions in the Memorial Cup Eastern Canada semi-final.

APPROVED BY COMMITTEE

Washington, March 18 — (CP)— The American Legion's "G. I. Bill-of-Rights" measure — carrying authority for readjustment pay up to $$00,000,000 for aid to veterans of the present war — was approved unanimously yesterday by the Senate Finance Committee.

CASUAL COMMENT

By K.J.C.

Bad to Worse.

A young chemist, starting in business for himself, put a notice in his window which read: "We clean suits with accuracy."

A friend went into the shop and pointed out to the chemist that the notice might be misunderstood or made fun of by the public.

The chemist, becoming aware of the unintended meaning, said he would alter it.

The next time his friend passed by he read: "We don't dispense with accuracy."

Golf a Tough Game.

"If a youngster with an aptitude for hitting both a baseball and a golf ball were to ask my advice in making a choice, I'd say without hesitation: 'Sonny, you'll make the grade in baseball a lot quicker than you will in golf'," says Sam Byrd, baseball star and golf pro, in an article A. Byrd on the links in the current issue of Esquire magazine. Byrd, who became a top-notch performer on the golf links after acquiring a place as one of the brighter luminaries of baseball, backs up his statement with the following vivid, substantial arguments.

To be a big league ball-player, he claims, you need a good eye, as well as bat, power, speed and strong arm. Occasionally you need quick thinking, but as a rule, what you require regard as a big leaguing in baseball players is really a combination of natural coordination due to long training. In golf you need the hand, the mind, thinking, think all the way around. You have to start concentrating on the first tee and you don't ever let up till you hole your last putt.

Must Be Complete.

The baseball is in motion coming toward you. You've got to be cold and dormant, allowing you time to think of every possible stimulus you might make while you're waiting for the ball. The high golf of the golf swing is that it must be a complete, rhythmic swing, but you must not think of it. Some revision in it is just the last moment by hearing the natural jerk. Every golf shot requires complete concentration and the coordination of the muscles, Byrd continues.

Golf is surely unique in which golf is tougher on the competitor than in baseball, says Byrd. In a golf game, you've got more attention where you can watch it all the time. You can play and score quite according to the circumstances. But in baseball during rounds of a golf tournament, your chief contender may be nowhere in sight. While trying to give an undivided attention to every shot, your nerves are frayed by hearing about your rival's excitement, causing you to wonder what he's doing to you.

Play Alone.

In baseball, there are team-mates in the field and on the bench to give you support. In golf you play all alone. It's even lonelier in golf's stance for a putt than trying it in the prize ring. The strictly individual character of golf developed a type of player not found in baseball. There were no such incidents as Ty Cobb's temperamental fits, Babe O'Sullivan of Cork as titleholder by knocking him out in the fourth round, O'Sullivan's chief claim to fame, however, is that he knocked Jack Cole who had dealt in similar manner with Jack Doyle, the Irish "Thrush Singer," who was proclaimed of "Horizontal Heavyweight."

INDICTED FOR MURDERS

London, March 18—(CP)—The Vichy radio said Thursday night that Dr. Marcel ePiot had been formally indicted for the "Pinebeard" murder of some 27 persons whose remains have been found in the doctor's villa in a fashionable district of Paris.

Dr. Petiot's wife and a brother, Maurice, were charged as accomplicity in the crimes, the Vichy broadcast said.

Dr. Petiot is reported to be a fugitive.

Byrd on the links in the current issue of Esquire magazine. Byrd, who became a top-notch performer on the golf links after acquiring a place as one of the brighter luminaries of baseball, backs up his statement with the following vivid, substantial arguments.

To be a big league ball-player, he claims, you need a good eye, as well as bat, power, speed and strong arm. Occasionally you need quick thinking, but as a rule, what you require regard as a big leaguing in baseball players is really a combination of natural coordination due to long training. In golf you need the hand, the mind, thinking, think all the way around. You have to start concentrating on the first tee and you don't ever let up till you hole your last putt.

Must Be Complete.

The baseball is in motion coming toward you. You've got to be cold and dormant, allowing you time to think of every possible stimulus you might make while you're waiting for the ball. The high golf of the golf swing is that it must be a complete, rhythmic swing, but you must not think of it. Some revision in it is just the last moment by hearing the natural jerk. Every golf shot requires complete concentration and the coordination of the muscles, Byrd continues.

Golf is surely unique in which golf is tougher on the competitor than in baseball, says Byrd. In a golf game, you've got more attention where you can watch it all the time. You can play and score quite according to the circumstances. But in baseball during rounds of a golf tournament, your chief contender may be nowhere in sight. While trying to give an undivided attention to every shot, your nerves are frayed by hearing about your rival's excitement, causing you to wonder what he's doing to you.

Play Alone.

In baseball, there are team-mates in the field and on the bench to give you support. In golf you play all alone. It's even lonelier in golf's stance for a putt than trying it in the prize ring. The strictly individual character of golf developed a type of player not found in baseball. There were no such incidents as Ty Cobb's temperamental fits, Babe O'Sullivan of Cork as titleholder by knocking him out in the fourth round, O'Sullivan's chief claim to fame, however, is that he knocked Jack Cole who had dealt in similar manner with Jack Doyle, the Irish "Thrush Singer," who was proclaimed of "Horizontal Heavyweight."

Thornton was welcomed with burning tar barrels when he paid his visit to the home of Michael of Spiddal, County Galway, after knocking down the challenger. Other persons from nearby villages joined in the welcome with bonfires and cries of joy to the occasion by announcing he would defend his title only in Dublin. County is a contest to aid the Mayor of Galway's fuel fund.

Wearing the North Africa ribbon and Eighth Army dagger, Dick Turpin rode into London gunning for Jack Gardner, Australian welter champ. Under the rules of the British Boxing Board of Control he could fight for the world's championship because he is a Negro.

Queensberry rules were cleaned-up most of the present topics when war came. He served two and a half years abroad and raised this query on returning to civilian life: "Why can't Randolph had won an Amateur Boxing Association junior championship?" He's a brother can fight for the British amateur title, why can't he be barred from doing so in the professional ranks?"

Nel Tarleton, 37-year-old British featherweight king, outpointed Petty Officer Ben Duffy, and a technical Royal Navy at Manchester, avenging a defeat Tarleton him in the a non-title bout last summer. Duffy is a leading challenger for the title held by the veteran master of ringcraft.

INDICTED FOR MURDERS

London, March 18—(CP)—The Vichy radio said Thursday night that Dr. Marcel ePiot had been formally indicted for the "Pinebeard" murder of some 27 persons whose remains have been found in the doctor's villa in a fashionable district of Paris.

Dr. Petiot's wife and a brother, Maurice, were charged as accomplicity in the crimes, the Vichy broadcast said.

Dr. Petiot is reported to be a fugitive.

BEAU JACK HANDS 'BUMMER' DAVIS ARTISTIC LACING

Ex-Bootblack From Georgia Slugged It Out With Brooklyn Boy

$132,823 GATE

By FRITZ BOWELL
(AP Sport Writer)

New York, March 18—(AP)—He doesn't hold a championship, this ex-bootblack from Fort Augusta, Ga., but he's the NO. 1 gate attraction in the boxing depths these ranks.

Last night 19,863 fans paid $132,823 to watch him hand Al Davis, the Brooklyn Bomber, one of the most artistic lacings anyone had ever taken over the 10-round route. Beau Jack, the Georgia Cracker, Mike Jacobs' and the Red Cross' drawing card, boxed Davis' brains out in 12-match Garden gate to $947,477, an average of $78,956.42. No one, not even the hard-hitting turnstile clicks like that since Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis fit past his khaki uniform.

The ex-bootblack from Georgia, who has twice held the New York version of the lightweight crown, which didn't appear awed by the lethal left hook with which Davis dismissed 24 of his 28 bouts foes in a total of two minutes and 41 seconds.

Beau Jack slugged it out with Davis' boy who has never rated one of the best punchers among the little fellows. The Beau weathered a first-round flurry which had him floundering a bit and won the rest of the way.

Despite Davis' impressive record the bettors tagged the bootblack as a 5-to-13 favorite and he came through for 'em when the fur flew in five weeks in the Garden.

Davis, weighing 142½, had a 4½ pound advantage over the winner.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 331

By SAM GORDON
The Bridgeer

The rules of Aunt Jennie are constant and many. And the way she plays bridge is a scandal. But look at Aunt Annie. Her game is top-notch—with the few simple rules she can handle.

One simple set of rules is all you need to play an expert game. If you will keep your bloomin' mouth shut while your mind and ears are open, you can learn that set quickly.

Your opening bid of one in a suit promises at least five suit tricks, four high cards, two sure tricks, and a biddable suit. And you assume your partner has two tricks.

If partner responds with a pass, you must assume he has no more than the two expected tricks. But if he responds with a bid, you must assume he has at least three tricks with two high cards among them.

All bids follow T-A-N; takeout, assist, new-suit. Jump bid you high enough for a game. With equal length and first bid two higher suits; with different length with a six-card suit.

There's a set of simple rules to signal on a permanent bridge with nothing more than that and a sweet memory you can boss good in any bridge company.

Fling yourself at this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH
♠ A K 10 4 2
♥ None
♦ 9 3
♣ K J 9 7 4 2
NORTH
♥ Q J 7 6 4 3
♦ A 8 7
♣ 8 5

These hands lean toward the unusual. But whether hand acts odd or normal, the same set of simple standard rules will take care of one and all.

South opens with one club, the club suit being longer than the spades. North responds with a bid of one heart, not having the six trick, needed for a one-jump takeout.

North shows at least three tricks. With his own eight, south now has enough for a game. So, when his rebid shows he has a six-card suit, he does so with a two-jump in spades, right down the old alley.

AT THE CAPITOL

Bing Crosby

The nation's foremost exponent of popular song, none other than the lionized crooner, Bing himself, is returning to the screen in a comedy drama rich with music, a picture that is a glorious, singing cavalcade of show business. It's "The Star Maker," a production which will be shown locally Sunday night at the Capitol Theatre, based on the amazing career of the famed showman, Gus Edwards. Bing plays the role as "The Star Maker," a penniless young man with what's required that he's going places in show business. It is during the time, through the talents of Edwards' cast, shows him successfully signing Louise Campbell, by the Gerry Society for having children perform after the law had finally forced it to ban scenes on the radio. A great supporting cast includes Louise Campbell, Ned Sparks, Laura Hope Crews, Walter Damrosch, dean of the symphonic world, and Linda Ware, sensational fourteen-year-old singing discovery. The picture is replete with song, with Bing singing such as "Stumbling" favorites as "In My Merry Oldsmobile," "School Days," "Jimmy Valentine" and many an other. Bing also sings four new hits by Johnny Burke and James V. Monaco, including "An Apple for the Teacher" and "A Man and His Dreams." And of course, Linda Ware sings many songs, old and new. Buy Sat. Night directed.

"Spawn of the North"

A dramatic story of two men whose lifelong friendship is broken by an Arctic feud but who are finally reunited through the terrific sacrifice of one of them is told in "Spawn of the North." Paramount's epic tale of romance, war and heroism in frontier Alaska, which opens Sunday midnight at the Capitol Theatre.

George Raft, playing a role similar to the one which won him fame in "Souls at Sea," is the never-do-well but captivating adventurer of the Northland, who flaunts every law of Alaska but gives up everything for his life-long friend and the girl he loves. Henry Fonda fresh from his triumphs in "Jesse James" and "Blockade," plays Raft's devoted friend and reluctant enemy and Dorothy Lamour, in her most dramatic role to date, will be seen as the typical gallant woman of the North country.

The Canadian Universal News completes this great double-header.

AT THE BELLE

George Formby's Newest Comedy

There is not a dull moment in the new George Formby picture due today at the Belle Theatre.

Recently voted Britain's No. 1 comedian, he is in fine form in this excellent comedy which is built for him as George Ouilly, a would-be detective who endeavors to run a gang of counterfeiters out of town.

The title, is "Trouble Brewing," and George becomes involved in the countless scrapes before he is finally able to achieve his ambition.

After receiving spurious notes at a racecourse, George and his friend Bill manage to trail a suspect to the swimming baths. In order not to lose sight of the man, George and Bill lead them to the gang. George is persuaded by Bill to don a costume and enter the bath. Much to Bill's astonishment, however, a wrestling bout is taking place. A reward is offered to any man who can stand up to Terrible Tiger, a fearsome-looking specimen, and poor, unsuspecting George makes his entrance at the critical moment, complete with water wings! He is forced into the ring and it is almost certain that he will be battered beyond recognition by his opponent. But, however, bones is bones and armed with an cucumber in pins he hides behind a curtain and slyly occasional jabs which finally bring about the defeat of Terrible Tiger.

This is one of the many hilarious scenes in the film which follow each other in quick succession, causing roars of laughter.

Evan McNaughton is simply grand as Bill, while Google Withers is great as Lucinda, George's wife. She heroine, to display her excellent characterization.

Three excellent featurettes are also scheduled for exhibition on the same program including Highlights of the News of the World in the Occasional Belle News, a funny Donald Duck color cartoon, "How to Play Golf," and a lively Band Scrambly entertaining multiple-reel novelette, "Swingtime Serenade."

Continuous shows will be presented today.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Falcon Strikes Back"

Fifth in the exciting series of films dealing with exploits in the career of that suave detective, The Falcon, "The Falcon Strikes Back" is perhaps the most suspenseful of all.

With Tom Conway in the title-role, the new offering features plenty of allure in Harriet Hilliard, Jane Randolph and Rita Corday who have the principal feminine roles. There is also plenty of action in its up-to-date plot.

Framed by a girl who asks him to find her missing brother, the Falcon finds himself charged with the murder of a bank messenger and the theft of a small fortune in war bonds. The real crooks have gone to considerable trouble to build up evidence incriminating the famous sleuth.

Realizing that he must solve the affair to clear himself, the Falcon eludes the police, traces the crooks to a resort hotel a few miles away, and goes there, along with his faithful pal, Goldy. He is followed by his newspaper woman girl-friend, Marcia. Immediately things begin to happen. Matters are complicated by a wealthy refugee, a fugitive hotel managetress, a sinister valet, a mysterious puppet-show proprietor, a bossy society woman, police and sheriffs, all of whom interfere with the Falcon's efforts to unravel the scheme.

Miss Hilliard plays the role of the manager of the hotel and Miss Randolph that of Marcia, with Cliff Edwards as Goldy, Edgar Kennedy as the puppet-show man and Erford Gage as the valet, while Miss Conway is cast as a member of the gang who is killed because she knows too much.

"There's Something About a Soldier"

No woman ever made a greater sacrifice for love than Sandra Lee. No man ever faced greater shame . . . for the love of his girl and his country! It's something to make your love grow stronger . . . something to make you proud with pride! It's a love story that only a soldier's sweetheart can live . . . and that only a soldier can tell . . . and its all in Columbia's new film drama "There's Something About a Soldier", now showing at the McCarthy Theatre.

There's something different . . . something exciting . . . something entertaining . . . in this highly dramatic story . . . of a man who lies . . . of his girl . . . and his country unashamed, even though he was in disgrace! Nor only time would prove the courageous service he had performed for love and home.

This timely and exciting story is presented with an excellent cast headed by Tom Neal, Bruce Bennett, John Hubbard, Evelyn Keyes and Jeff Donnell.

AT THE BELLE: Rich in humor and thrills, George Formby's best to date is "Trouble Brewing," with a cast of futurists, and a brilliant surrounding show.

In Manhattan

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, March 18—(CP)—Out of the refugee ships from France in the catastrophic days of June 1940 two literary craftsmen have produced a comedy-satire that has just arrived on the New York stage intact and ready to settle there for a long run.

It is called "Jacobowsky and the Colonel" and tells of the flight from Paris of a Polish colonel, a cynic with pulled Polish Jew and a charming French girl. The original play was by Franz Werfel, author of "The Song of Bernadette," and the American version was written by S. N. Behrman.

Essentially the play boils down to a conflict of temperaments between the dashing Polish colonel of cavalry and whose adorable mind is not overburdened with brains and the shrewd Jacobowsky, a little Jew who has been driven from country to country as the Nazi star has expanded. But it portrays too the tragic plight of all those who have been uprooted by the ruthless by invasion.

Out of Tadeusz Bolesław Sfjerbin sky is a man to whom honor is paramount; saving his skin comes in second in saving his skin.

The Theatre Guild production in the Alvin Theatre here has Vincent Sherman, who gives a brilliant performance as Jacobowsky and dominates the cast, Louis Calhern as the Colonel, and Annabella in her first New York appearance as Marianne, the French girl with whom the Colonel is in love.

From the opening scene, in a Paris air raid shelter a few hours before the Germans marched in, to the finale on the road to Honfleur, the action and the characters, especially the characters—hold the audience.

Sfjerbinsky is entrusted with secret papers which must be delivered to London. Jacobowsky wangles transportation by buying "the last car in Paris" and the ill-assorted pair, accompanied by the colonel's batman, make their exciting journey with Marianne, who is persuaded to leave her home in northwestern France before the Germans arrive.

One of the best scenes is when the colonel and Jacobowsky prepare to fight a duel over Marianne in the course of their flight. It is interrupted by the Germans but Jacobowsky's ingenuity saves the party.

Three Hits! The Theatre Guild does not claim three simultaneous hits on Broadway, "Jacobowsky and the Colonel" is sure to take its place alongside "Oklahoma" and Paul Vincent Carroll's "Shadow" as a notable event of the theatrical season.

Weather Device Released at Toledo Found by Farmer

Bancroft, March 18—(Special)—A weather device, the property of the Weather Bureau of Milford, Ohio, some 375 miles south of Bancroft, was found on the farm of Kenneth Bailey, seven miles from Bancroft, in Faraday Township, Friday afternoon. According to the attached the instrument was released at a height of 12 miles over Toledo Municipal Airport at 11.30 Thursday night. It was first sighted by Mrs. Bailey, while on her way to the barn. She noticed a red object floating in mid air. On approaching she saw it was a small parachute to which was attached a deflated rubber balloon. On being notified, Provincial Constable Palmer drove to the Lindsay farm and tracing up the string attached to the chute found a meteorological object almost obscured in a tree. The officer took possession of the find and will return it to the proper authorities as requested on an attached card.

Toronto, March 15 (CP)—Hockey referees are lonely and almost friendless creatures during the heat of battle, with players, coaches and fans unwilling for their scalps. But at last they have found a champion, at least in Manitoba. President Frank Hannibal of the Manitoba A.H.A. lifted his big stick and warned over-zealous coaches they would face suspension if they persisted in "nailing" referees.

The trouble started in the Winnipeg Rangers-St. Boniface junior play-off and continued into the St. Boniface-St. James series. The refs were given a rough ride and on two occasions had to thumb a coach from his cozy corner in the players' box.

How about a society for the prevention of cruelty to referees?

Personality Poll:

Inspired by an opinion-sampling survey in United States baseball circles, Andy (Toronto Star) Lytle suggests a poll to determine the funniest, most colorful, most entertaining player in hockey or coach.

He awards the pugnacity ribbon to Eddie Shore, the most colorful tropey to Conn Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs, with Frank Boucher taking second by a hair. The funny man title is harder, he says, tired player award.

THE LITTLE DOG BARKED

By ANNE ROWE

CHAPTER 10

"I see. Then you had to walk along by here, and up, where the road turns Inland?"

"I could. But I didn't. There's another road, near the parking space," Linwood declared.

"By the parking space." The Inspector pulled out a notebook, and began drawing lines on an empty page. "Then this is where you're now. This is the bend of the road, uphill. And—this the road you take, Mr. Linwood?"

Linwood threw a cursory glance at the wrought sketch the Inspector held out to him. "It's near enough. And my house is right up there," he pointed with an elegant finger.

"Oh—there." Inspector Petteigill nodded, inclined his head with his tongue. "But—that's no farther from the old Inn than—quarter of a mile, maybe. I thought you told Mrs. Turner you hadn't been near—it's a mile to it!"

"A figure of speech of course. My dear Inspector, have you called me here to—amuse Mrs. Turner?" Linwood flared up.

"No. No. Just to see would you help me." The Inspector leaned back and started rocking again. "For a friendly chat. They ain't no police problems. No one's taking depositions—that comes tomorrow. Tonight—if you know something, or think you do, might help clear up that matter and all—tempted murder, I'd appreciate you telling it. Tomorrow I make you tell it."

"You can't make me tell you what I don't know," Linwood jumped up defiantly, but his face was drawn and he was shaking. "I can't prevent you from thinking what you choose, put any interpretation you like on Mrs. Turner's mostly imagined wrongs. But I say the death of this old handyman was a deplorable coincidence, without the slightest connection with the theatre or Mrs. Turner. And about the cut rope and the failing telephone booth—"

The inevitable shrug completing the speech was, this time, accompanied by eloquently spread hands.

"Aye—coincidence you got pluties." The Inspector nodded and rose to his feet, too. "We-ell, thanks for coming anyway. Rehearsal starts at nine, did you say? Good! I want you and all your actors on the stage at eight. An hour's plenty for the few questions I aim to ask 'em. Good night, Mr. Linwood. Think overnight of what time you left the theatre, where you walked from the storm, and when you got home. Maybe your wife can help you out."

"Proceed. But I must say," was the Inspector's verdict when Linwood had gone, "How why don't he take a leaf owten your book, and tell the truth?"

People certainly were early risers at Fern Cove. When Linda and I went over to the theatre the next morning, on the dot of eight, everyone else was there, and all of it.

The whole cast, Linwood included, was lined up on the stage, waiting for Inspector Petteigill to finish a low-voiced talk with Wells Colby, Sheriff. Wetmore was there also, and two men I hadn't seen before. One, tall and burly—with "police" written all over him, turned out to be the Inspector's assistant, Sergeant Hatch of Cliffport. The other, almost a boy, very intelligent looking and eager in a uniform that was furiously, was plainly the stenographer.

The Inspector had his back turned to the footlights, but Colby, who was facing them, must have told him of our arrival, for he turned and greeted us jovially.

"Good morning, Mrs. Turner. That Miss Bardale with you? Please, all to meet you. Miss Bárdle, glad you escaped a whole skin yesterday. Come up with Mrs. Turner and stand where you stood when the boob fell."

Then he addressed everyone present in general: "I don't aim to waste your time, or mine, with a lot of questions of what you done, or thought, or eat yesterday. Sergeant Hatch here will do that for me. And Hatch, my stenographer, will take down your deposition. Done at your convenience in between practicing for Mrs. Turner's play. Can be done, can it, Mr. Linwood?"

The director shrugged ungraciously. "Why not? They might as well disturb me talking to the police as stepping around by themselves."

"Good!" The Inspector ignored the rudeness of the answer. "And now—I want to hear what happened! All but the booth dropping and the fog lacking. Please, all of you stand the same places and do the same things you did then. Mr. Linwood, you're the director. Being about where I'd been the previous day, I stayed where I was and watched the groups forming on the stage, in replica of yesterday's positions. Presently everyone was in place. Even Linwood was straddling his chair sideways. And the letter group was rehearsing the quartet song boisterously. Sondra screaming at Orne with clawing fingers and angrily drumming feet, Orne Faulkner trying to out-shout her, Colby and Lone Welland doing their noisy best to calm the combatants. And Faulkner ending the uproar with a yelled "Shut up!" accented by a fearful stamp of his foot.

This last crude manifestation of temper seemed to interest the Inspector most. He kept glancing at Faulkner and Sondra's — storing that away from them along with the floor to the right, and up into the flies.

Following his eyes with mine, it wasn't hard to find the reason for his interest. The side floorboard, on which the positions of the two players were chalked, ran right across the stage and ended under the wobbly, frayed white rope, the rope stretched diagonally to the new setting of the telephone booth. And each time Sondra started her tantrum, or Faulkner's foot came down, the whole shook visibly.

If the rope had been cut to the last strand that would support the weight of the booth, repeated jarring would snap it.

"That'll do." The Inspector stopped the rehearsal and walked over to the four actors. "You sure you been standing on the same spot yesterday?"

"Absolutely sure." Paulsen answered for the others. "You can still see the marks, Inspector."

"But I'm not sure." Linwood jumped up from his chair and bent over the marks. "Or—rather, I am. The marks aren't quite where I put them."

"But you acknowledge you made 'em, in the first place?" Inspector Petteigill asked evenly.

"Of course I do. I said so yesterday. And I also said Miss Bardale wasn't standing on my mark. There suddenly were two. I'll show you, Inspector," Linwood blustered.

But, there was nothing to show. Last night's performance, with its many scene-shifts, had obliterated the chalked cross.

"No use trying to find clues on this here stage, with everything scrubbed and wiped clean. Not that I blame you people for wanting to get your story on the same. But I'm letting you but—it's made it that much harder," the Inspector said resignedly.

"If I was you, Mr. Linwood, I'd make new marks—other places. Take a look: the way your actors stand now, both on the same floorboards, the winch gets a far each time they stomp their feet. And with the rope cut the way it was, we-ell—draw your own conclusions."

Linwood looked stunned. "I did not know. I'm sorry—I—shall look into it."

"Yes. You find out who set the dog on Mrs. Turner and set him, or her, to barking. Meanwhile, Inspector decided, walking down the stage. "Come along with me, Mr. Linwood. Go on with your practicing and stomping. You come along with me, Mrs. Turner. You too, Sheriff."

Outside the theatre the Inspector and the Sheriff held a brief consultation. Wetmore nodded, I didn't catch a word. Then the Sheriff departed, and Inspector Petteigill turned to us.

"Bunch of good-lookers. Both girls and men," he approved. "Hate to think one of them the six-footers is a murderer. Too bad he had such a good slim with his foot. That sort of thing would make a fine witness. Come on, let's pay him a visit."

A couple of miles down the road the Inspector stopped his car at Woyer gate.

"Good place for a tail! Nice view, too. Not that anyone overlooking up and eavesdropping." he commented before starting to think out loud: "Yes, sure Mrs. Turner! If that little dog Stray had only had the luck to get a mouthful on our murderer now—from what you been telling me, the way that pup acted — running along the footlights looking for that old fox smelled his friend Mack, that's why. And growling, and later on barking, when old Mack been killed, and by whom. Smelled the murderer. Be nice, if you seen, get out the window—on that stage and made a trail for him."

"Then you think the rope had been cut before rehearsal and the murderer was on the stage?" I thought someone might have done it from outside during rehearsal, I ventured.

"Might at that. They'd a door next the winch. That's why the Sheriff's over getting—after the Inspector agreed. "But—your dog says the man killed old Mack was on the stage."

"Could the rope have held that long?" I puzzled.

"Might snapped right off, might lasted till night," the Inspector shrugged. "Whoever done it, was taking a chance. Helped along by the weather. You put it all on the play—or did Linwood?"

I put the one stamp at the end of the scene—Mr. Paulsen's, I told him. "Miss Marshall has drums are her own idea. She—tries to overact."

"Hmm—yah. She was putting on big. Mighty good-looking though with that bright eyes. She may pied?"

"Engaged, I believe. To Burns Loring."

"Oh! One of them rambunctious writers?"

"No. Mrs. Parris' brother. He designs scenery and is rather famous for his wealth, his work and his parties. He's not half bad either, quite ill and looks it. But he's rambunctious, I understand, the same." My report sounded slightly muddled to myself.

"Hmm. Elderly and ill and rich, and good-looking and wants to marry again. The Inspector shook his head as if to clear it. "How you know all that?"

"Old Mack told me and Orne Faulsen. And it could see it myself when I met them together—Loring and Sondra Marshall—tonight before last, during the intermission."

Inspector Petteigill said, "I see," and then sat thinking for a long minute. At last his hands came down on the steering wheel with a discouraged smack. "I'm stumped. Honest. I wished Sheriff in Weymouth hadn't asked for me," he continued significantly. "Sure I caught that murderer all Cliffport, don't say nothing for it. I know every mad, woman or child in town. I know if they got any spite, or anything I can figure out what's back of it. But—this here case is all wrong looking man run away in the fog. Not that I'm sure it's wrong, but—it's like having a tryout here. Enough for murder. Must be more than that. Something real. Like love or revenge, or money. And—why is the Sheriff's girl scared out of her wits? Looks out a hundred places through her setting. Bet she could tell me a lot if she had a mind to."

"I had felt more or less the same way about Linda, ever since her narrow escape. But I only said: "I should think she has every right to be scared after what happened to her," defensively.

"Hmm," he agreed. "You sure you told me all you know of Miss Bardale?"

"All I know." I said firmly.

"Sure she didn't know anyone here?"

"No one but Paulsen. He brought her here in his car. From Warren Beach. On Mr. McVane's suggestion. That's the extent of her acquaintance."

"Hmm. Knew no one, but is scared," the Inspector mused. "And this Miss Paulsen. What of him? Who's he?"

"Just a rising Broadway actor Mr. McVane picked out for its leading man."

"Hmm—yah. Mr. McVane. Wished he hadn't took to parts unknown like the rest," the Inspector grumbled. "They's something behind that. His fixing up this tryout and then vamoosing theatre—"

Again I agreed with the Inspector. "Oh, well, he'll be here next week," I said. "Then we'll all, I said.

"Next Monday! Ayah! Next Monday! The Lord knows what'll happen between now and then. How many more murders!" the Inspector exploded angrily. "No, Mrs. Turner. I ain't waiting for next Monday. I sent a wire to his office this morning, saying they'd best a need him when he comes. Maybe the one time I've let in all this mess of nothing-at-all will get me somewhere; the remark of the murdered man about 'looking up' something. Anyways, we'll chase after it, fast. But first we go call on your dog."

When our car drew up at the veterinary's house, a neat, green-shuttered white building behind a picket fence, another car was parked in front of it. And just as the Inspector and I walked through the garden gate, the door of the house opened and Bill Orne came out.

I was so surprised to see him, after leaving him at the theatre, I stopped short and goggled. And the Inspector, behind me, gasped and said: "We-ll! How you get here?"

"By car, of course. I'm not a doctor than ever in baggy slacks and a disreputable sweater—joked as without a trace of embarrassment. "By the way, The private road past our house," he said cheerfully. "They were doing the cut-off act, in which I have only one scene, toward the end. And, Sergeant, I'm sorry with the others. But I thought I'd pay Stray a sickroom visit while I could."

"To ask him who was it set him on us, Mrs. Turner?" the Inspector inquired dryly.

"No. To bring him some chocolates. The pup's crazy about 'em," the young actor explained, adding, to me: "I'm terribly ashamed for whoever did it, Mrs. Turner—sicked Stray on you, I mean. But if I find out it was a man, I'll pull it rare back."

"I thought the pooch chocolate eh? Did he—eat it?" The Inspector sounded slightly more silky.

But the irony, or whatever the hell Inspector's test on Bill Orne's wit. "Its did not," he said ruefully. "Doc Gates is out and Mrs. Gates wouldn't even let me into her presence! Tk, tk! What strict rules they have in this hospital! Finally she allowed a glimpse of the patient through a keyhole. You, being the police, have the advantage. You can tell 'em, where I have to say 'please.' So—there you are. You have to bounce back to the theatre."

The next minute his roadster was turning into a dirt road emerging from the woods, and we were standing on the porch steps toward the waiting Mrs. Gates, a prim middle-aged little woman.

(To be continued)

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop leaned back in his private chair after supper and started to pull the ash tray closer, and ma said to Pop William if you're going to smoke please see that the ash tray is on the right side instead of somewhere out o firing range.

That's exactly, precisely, positively and absolutely the very thing I was in the act of doing, Pop said, and ma said, Well all right then. That makes it unanimous, she said.

That makes it superfluous, Pop said.

And he started to smoke to himself and after a while ma started to pull the window shades to make them all even instead of some down and some not, and pop said, By the way, ma, dear, I was just about admiring those shades, there's no two of them alike.

Well for land sakes William that's exactly what I'm doing, ma said, and pop said, Oh, is that what you were doing?

Why certainly, ma said. Or really, William, I mean really, what did you think I was doing? she said, and pop said, I thought you were just tasting the sprigs.

Now that's absurd, ma said.

And she started to fix the books on the bookcase saying, Now who's been handling these books and putting them back in all sorts of wrong every which way?

I don't know dear, but while you're about it why don't you arrange them in some kind of order? pop said, and ma said, William Potts for land sakes can't you see that I'm straightening them at this very moment, can't you see that's just what I'm doing?

That's what I mean, why don't you do it? pop said, and ma saying, Now William are you seriously asking me why I don't do the very thing I'm busily engaged in doing?

Well why not, wouldn't that make unanimous sense, pop said.

The result being ma threw a sofa cushion at him, making it still unanimouser by missing him by about 2 yards.

McCarthy Knows Nothing of Report

Washington Tabloid Says 'Canadian Envoy Rumored Leaving Post Soon'

By G. E. BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, March 17, (CP) — A featured social page headline in the News, local tabloid, "Canadian envoy rumored leaving post here soon", over a column between Drew and the Ambassador, Hon. Leighton McCarthy, said he knew nothing about it.

The News story, by Evelyn Peyton Gordon, said rumors that the McCarthys would soon leave the Embassy here and return for Washington". The story was accompanied by pictures of McCarthy and Prime Minister Mackenzie King with a portrait of Sir John, a year-old Toronto lawyer and businessman who died in retirement in 1941 to head the then Canadian Legation here.

Before McCarthy was elevated to the status of an ambassador last fall it was known that he was ambitious to return to private life as soon as his services were no longer required, but that he was prepared to remain in office as a public duty in war time if Mr. King desired him to remain.

Any possible change is contemplated so far as could be learned here.

Fifth Columnists Among Refugees In Britain Lord Bennett Claims

London, March 18—(CP Cable) Reverend Dr. Gordon Ferrie, former Prime Minister of Canada, Friday elaborated on his warning that there are fifth columnists among refugees in Britain, saying that there are about 60,000 persons of German stock and "we must assume that 59,000 of them are first and foremost Germans" and that they are faced with a problem to treat that in plain terms means Britain's security. Lord Bennett will take the German point of view.

Lord Bennett made the original remarks on the subject in a public address yesterday, warning his listeners to "be careful and don't trust" refugees.

Amplifying this, he told The Evening News he had proof that a number of German refugees have been provided indefinitely among prominent men in this country to work against the peace terms we shall offer Germany."

One of these men, he said, is Dr. Text of his statement, published on The News' front page, declared that 60,000 people of German birth and parentage now in Britain "are not refugees from Hitler but to four divisions. I do not suggest that they are potential spy as the word is generally used.

"But I do say emphatically that a few highly-placed business men in the final analysis these people are first and foremost German—if ever they are faced with an issue that in plain terms means Britain versus Germany, they would take the German point of view.

"I have proof that already a number of these so-called refugees have been feeding, clothing and housing, have been working against Germany as a whole and against men in this country to influence the kind of peace terms we shall offer Germany.

"That's where the main danger lies, in my opinion. These refugees are undoubtedly fifth columnists in the propaganda sense.

"I know a fellow peer who admitted to me the other day in the House of Lords, that his views regarding Germany as a whole and as regards the sort of peace terms we should offer when we have been defeated, have been greatly modified since conversations he has had with such refugees.

"This refugee by the way now occupies quite an important position in business circles here and in spite of the fact that the Home Office and other government departments have been concerned with his activities, he still enjoys the friendship and confidence of quite a few highly-placed business men."

The Day in Parliament

(By The Canadian Press)

Monday, March 20

The House will consider estimates of the Transport Department. The Senate will not sit.

Tuesday

The House heard Munitions Minister Howe enunciate a wartime policy for Canada in the world of the future involving Canadian participation in international sphere of trade on international routes, and in the domestic sphere maintenance of a government-owned air service "Trans Air Lines" monopoly on international routes and maintenance of routes in Canada and separation of airway ownership and operation from railways; expressed consideration of Navy Department estimates for the fiscal year 1944-45, totalling $410,000,000.

ACQUITTED OF CHARGE

Kingston, March 18 — (CP) — Walter Elliot, 24-year-old Wreggarville, Ont., farmhand, yesterday was acquitted of a charge of murdering the infant child of Mrs. Rita Wagar. An Ontario Supreme Court jury considered the case only 35 minutes.

Mr. Justice E. R. N. Chevrier, charging the jury prior to their retirement, said there was no case against Haley because he could not accept evidence of Mrs. Annie Mae McComber, mother of the child, and of Mrs. Wagar. Mrs. McComber was acquitted of a similar charge a week ago.

U. S. Will Not Extend Diplomatic Recognition To Badoglio Govt

Washington, March 17 — (AP) — State Secretary Cordell Hull made it clear today that the United States would not consider extending diplomatic recognition to the Badoglio government in Italy.

Hull also disclosed at a news conference that the United States is not consulted by the Soviet government prior to Russia's decision to exchange official representatives with the Badoglio regime.

There had been speculation that both Washington and London postponed their approval Russia's recognition of the Badoglio government because, according to this theory, Washington and London secretly wanted to see the regime strengthened in power.

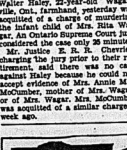
Three Prisoners Are Recaptured

Ottawa, March 18 —(CP)— George Boschek, 25, Port Arthur, Ont., and Karl F. Oesken, 22, German prisoners of war, were recaptured after they escaped from a camp here, Nakina, in Northern Ontario being secret about it here as word has learned last night.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police said Boschek was a member of the German air force and Oesken an army private. The two, who were picked up at Nakina by some Mounted Police, are the only ones are being held in custody there awaiting transfer to another camp to take them to their intended destination.

The three were on transfer at the time of their escape and left the train Thursday night.

REPORTED ARRESTED



According to a Swiss report, the wife of Wang Ching-wei, Japanese puppet ambassador for explanation of the arrest of France and Australian Cardinal Hlond, above, of Poland, by the Gestapo, Nazi secret police. The report stated the cardinal had been placed under "house arrest" at the Grand Seminary, Ais-Les-Bains, occupied southern France.

May Be Necessary To Restrict Local Pork Consumption

Toronto, March 17 — (CP)—W. R. Watson of the Dominion Department of Agriculture told the Agricultural committee of the Legislature Friday that it may be necessary to again restrict domestic consumption of pork in order to fill overseas contracts, but it was doubtful if such restriction would be as severe as prevailed during time of meat rationing in Canada.

Marketings of hogs in Canada in the first 10 weeks of this year totalled almost a 1,000,000 more than in the same period last year. Up to March 11 this year 2,709,031 hogs were marketed by Canadian producers as against 1,939,289 for the same period last year.

"Up to last week," he said, "the Meat Board has shipped 200,000,000 pounds of bacon to Britain this year. We have contracted with the Board to obtain with 900,000,000 pounds during 1944-45 but recent developments of this amount will be shipped this year. I see no difficulty in reaching this figure."

He placed weekly consumption of pork in Canada today at about 4,000,000 pounds greater than during the period when rationing was enforced. This did not mean that Canadians were eating that much more pork but that consumption had really replaced that of beef and tended, perhaps more than anything else, to account for the present "scarcity" market.

Marketings May Decline.

Mr. Watson predicted that hog marketings will decline during the next few months because of a drop in hog farrowings last fall.

Regarding post-war markets, he said there is every reason to be sure there would be a market for the present rate of Canadian production for one or two years after the war.

G. F. Perkin of the Provincial Department of Agriculture, said there were 173 credit unions in Ontario at present, 36 of them in rural areas. Small loans totalling $1,000 through the unions at a maximum of one per cent per month.

A. H. Acres (P.C.—Carleton) said there was an effort to pay 24 per cent or 12 per cent interest "if stay in business". He would like to know, however, whether the credit unions were replacing the banks.

George Lockhart (C.C.F.—Rainy River) said this during the depression "no farmer dared go into a bank for a loan". Assistance from credit unions did not have necessary collateral to get a bank loan.

Mr. Perkin said the unions did not operate with banks but only with corporations engaged in the loan business. The Ontario farmers' credit union in the world was among employees of a bank in New York.

G. Anderson (C.C.F.—Port William) said he understood the credit unions were now going into the life insurance field. This was confirmed by Mr. Perkin.

Nurse Serving on Hospital Ship Finds Work Highly Interesting

(By Sister Hilda Stinson in R.N.C. Press Service)

I've been nursing in a hospital ship working in the Mediterranean for two years now; it's the most interesting nursing I've ever done and the most interesting life I've ever lived.

Most people think we're part of the Royal Navy, but we're Military Sisters serving on ships of the Merchant Navy. And we don't fall under the White Ensign but fly the Blue Ensign aft and the Red Cross flag forward. All the officers and men of our hospital ship are from the Merchant Navy. We sail with all our lights ablaze and our position every two hours; all hospital ships do this, the enemy's as well.

When we're in port and see extra medical stores, extra flasks of blood, stretchers and blankets coming on board, we know we're going by a long sea; but we never know the position we're to take up until we get to sea. Then when we're out, the commanding officer calls us all together, tells us we're going to a battle and that we've got to wear lifebelts and carry our kits and sleep in our clothes. We live attached to our lifebelts and kit bag and when we're in a dangerous area we always sleep in our clothes. Under the Geneva Convention we must wear a Red Cross armlet on our left arm with the Geneva stamp on it for it was first picked up without this badge we'd be inspected as spies.

When we arrive in the appointed area, we take our position at a certain distance from the shore where the battle is going on. Our ship was in both the Sicilian and Italian invasions, it was most exciting—we all know those ships of every size and description — battleships, barges, destroyers, converted cruisers and motor torpedo boats—pouring towards the beaches, was a most wonderful sight. When we were dropping all round the ships, the barges and boats that we use to save a ship go up during the landing in Sicily.

The night of this Sicilian landing we got out to sea, while a sister ship was standing by. Later we got a signal to say our sister ship was being attacked by orders to return to pick up survivors; but by the time we got there she'd been torpedoed twice and had sunk. Very few lives were lost.

Loading for a battle area is always slow. When a man's wounded the stretcher-bearers get him down as quickly as possible to the ship and to a field ambulance or casualty clearing station, but after that always get to the shore in a steady stream. At the field ambulance or clearing station he's given first-aid, put on a stretcher and carried on to a barge which will take him on to our ship. The barge is tied up to the ship, and when we call "Stretcher cases" are lowered down to the barge by winches. Now this "manning" chair is a sort of a box-like room for a stretcher and two orderlies. The stretcher cases are lifted and an orderly stands on either side to hold it steady. We can look down each end of the ship. If the sea's rough, loading is very difficult as the barge keeps against the ship.

Most of our orderlies have been with us for four years, and they're such skilled stretcher-bearers that they can carry patients so carefully that they feel no discomfort.

On the deck two doctors stand waiting to receive the patients. They examine them quickly. The badly wounded or those with severe burns are sent to the resuscitation ward. There they are given blood transfusions and treated for shock. The others are sent to the wards according to their wounds.

On our medical staff there are five doctors—two physicians, a medical and surgical specialist and a dental officer to deal with injuries to the teeth and jaw; a matron and 13 sisters; two chaplains—all of us under a commanding officer who is also a medical officer. We carry no V.A.D.s but male nursing orderlies and they are the most wonderful workers; I've never heard a complaint from one of them, even when they're working hard and night. They are just real Tommies.

We normally carry 500 patients, the beds are arranged in tiers of two in our wards. We've 100 extra beds so that in a battle area we can take on 600 cases. We have to put these beds up on the floor, on tables, anywhere we can fit them in.

We've two operating theatres but normally only one is working. When we are going to a battle we take on an extra surgical team, surgeons and anaesthetist, so that we can work the second theatre.

Sometimes we have to wait two or three days to get a load, and during all this time our theatres are working. Of course our aim is, once we've a full load, to get to the nearest base hospital as soon as possible, where the ambulances are waiting to disembark our wounded.

We have on board the best food that can be procured in the Middle East, and all the time they're with us we're building up the men. Each Sister, as well, has her own well-stocked pantry where she can brew hot drinks and cook light food at any time.

As soon as the last patients off, we hurriedly get our laundry shore counting every article in the good old manner. Then we take on water and necessary medical stores. The diesel engineers don't get ashore during these busy times when there's a campaign on, as we've hard-at-it getting the ship ready, disinfecting, cutting dressings and making Vaseline gauze. When there's a lot happening we more or less do a ferry service to and from the battle area.

It was like this during the Tobruk days and at the time of the Sicilian and Italian landings. Of course we pick up enemy casualties as well as ours. Most of the Germans could speak English but very few of the Italians. I remember one Italian, a medical officer, He seemed very seasick and didn't want us to do anything for him but as he'd a bad wound in the back I insisted on dressing it. His kept quite silent for the three days he was with us, but when he was going on shore he thanked us for what we'd done for him in the plainest English and pressed upon me a round black object. It looked like a bomb and I hesitated as I thought it might be a booby-trap. But it turned out to be a plated that it was a torch, a special kind that's dimmed when a slight by pressure of the hand. I've used it ever since.

Sometimes when things are quiet we have hospital concerts and have patients on for a couple of weeks at a time. We've three trips, as it's an easy run with us long enough to know them and to entertain them. It's on these trips that we make so much use of our first-rate gramophone library, Our Colonels of England padre, Capt. Montgomery—who, by the way, is a brother of the Field Marshal—runs our special request programs and they're broadcast to each ward. We very often start preparing men who are invalided out, or likely to be, for life at home again. We teach them weaving, or making toy animals from felt or leather, rugs from bears, and occupational therapy in general. The patients can take home what they make, but on our last trip the ship's personnel made all sorts of things and had a sale of work. We made more than £160, and the Sister who called "Number!" pool Hospital towards a cot to be called after our ship's name.

Our ship has been longer than any other hospital ship in the Mediterranean, and she'd previously been through the Norwegian campaign. We've had many exciting times; we were one of the last ships to leave Tobruk, before its fall, and one of the first in, when we reoccupied it. We've also carried quite a number of the men from Goering's Panzer Division.

We are a very happy family on board as we've all worked together now for so long. Our surgical specialist is a poet and has written verses on many of the incidents that have happened on our ship and about some of the big events of the war in the Mediterranean. One of our orderlies used to be an artist and he's illustrating these poems in watercolor.

Irish Saint Was Doughty Fighter

(By D. H. in Windsor Star)

We may view with disfavor Eire's attitude in the present war, but spiritually, from where the River Shannon flows to the shores of Donegal Bay, next Friday, March 17, will see a renewal of the traditions and the memories associated with the great apostle of Christianity who established the shamrock as the symbol of religious faith a long time ago in the old Emerald Isle. Around the earth there's hardly a spot where the wandering Irishmen and Irish women haven't set foot and carried with them in their hearts the reverential and poetic memories that are yearly renewed for them on "St. Patrick's Day in the Morning." Time was when the day was ushered in with music and banners and great parades, but times change and we change with them. The days of outward show are gone, but the inward shrines remain and St. Patrick is not forgotten.

Connected with the name of St. Patrick there's much of legendary lore. Fifteen centuries have crept by since he picked the shamrock from the Irish sod and held it up as nature's emblem of the Trinity. But those modes of history, the diggers of ruins and the researchers of records, have been busy, and amid a mass of glamorous legend many of the real facts of Patrick's life have been assembled in the dignity of historic data.

That St. Patrick's Day is an anniversary of his death instead of his birthday, a belief long cherished, has given way to the theory, finding that it is more likely the anniversary of his death. But both the date of his birth and that of his death haven't been absolutely determined. Some historians say "circumstantial evidence" establishes his birthplace as Scotland, probably in a town identical with the modern village of Kilpatrick near Dumbarton on the Leven. Another, a professor of the Catholic University in Washington, D.C., as far back as the 5th Century, says in his book "St. Patrick in History" he was probably born in the vale of Clyde, near the Roman town of Chester.

But there's no record of his life written by St. Patrick himself in Latin, in which he states he was born in the district of "Benavem Taberniae" and he "grazed at a place "not far from the sea," that is, not far from the coast of Ireland. The word "Benavem Taberniae" may have been a dialectic variation in the Romanized Celtic of Ireland's coast, which would be near enough, in Latin language, to establish his nativity in or near the "cold sea."

But wherever the birthplace there's no question of St. Patrick's apostleship in Ireland. He came to redeem the island from tribal paganism, and as a Christian missionary his leadership was both aggressive and complete. It was Ireland's first great Christian apostle, even though a spiritual one, and he carried the war straight into the camps of the enemy. St. Patrick was a doughty fighter in a great cause and he won his fight. Step by step, always in advance, he recaptured Ireland from the bondage of the old pagan kings and established to this day the truths and the freedoms of Christianity, whose Master had brought peace and love between neighbors and nations were of the message of righteousness. Today on the Hill of Tara, or what remains of the Hill of Tara, there are two monuments, one a memorial cross of St. Patrick and nearby a Druid monolith known as "The Stone of Destiny." Legend persists that with the rising and the setting of the sun each day, the shadow of the statue of St. Patrick falls across "The Stone of Fal."

Hill of Tara

It was on this famous Hill of Tara that Patrick first challenged the old tribal kings. Today the hill, famed in legend and story, so far as its ancient dynasties and its past glories of monuments and martial culture are concerned, is a windswept stretch of rutted land in the County Meath. Only a few mounds and stones remain to show where once King Cormac's castle stood and around it the Great Hall and the other pagan shrines where in the dim past the Druids chanted their hymns to the morning and their warriors gathered to prepare their forays on neighboring tribes. The Hill of Tara marks the separation of the old and the new civilization of the Emerald Isle. It was here, in the year 433, upon an Easter morning, that St. Patrick met King Loguire, the pagan son and heir of Niall of the Nine Hostages, one of the old nation's great conquerors and kings.

King Loguire, the tradition relates, was preparing to celebrate a lavish feast with the pagan rites of Tara Hill—it was a pagan feast day that came to correspond with our modern Easter. One of the ceremonies was the lighting of a great fire on the hill by the king's own hands. No other fire was allowed to be lighted until the fire was visible from the royal eminence. Great was the wrath of King Loguire when some of his retainers rushed into his hall to announce to each other and a greater fire had already appeared on a hill across the Boyne. It was St. Patrick's bonfire, proclaiming the Easter resurrection, and the first of St. Patrick's challenges to the old civilization.

King Loguire Persuaded

Loguire commanded the offender to be brought into his presence for punishment. On Easter Sunday Patrick came to his ceremonial robes, with his crozier and mitre and a few attendants. By his eloquence and courage he had subdued the martial spirit of the old king, won to his cause many of the king's household and cemented a friendship between himself and the king that permitted him to continue to preach his gospel and to establish his churches on the island. For three years, according to the old records, Patrick continued his labors in Meath and won such favor with the king that the latter consented with him in reforming his code of laws to conform to the new doctrines.

St. Patrick was not only, by all evidence, a saint and a gentleman, but an executive genius, a tactful administrator, and a bold-as-his cause. His spirit lives.in all corners of the globe where Irishland's sons and daughters have taken root. And perhaps his inspiration, today, as in the days of old, is most eloquently voiced in Arthur O'Shaughnessy's ode on the "Singers of Songs":

For we are afar with the dawning.
And the suns that are not yet high,
And out of the infinite morning,
Intrepid you hear us cry—
How in spite of your human scorning,
Once more God's future draws nigh,
And already goes forth the warning
That ye of the past must die!

Rulings Simplified For Tourist Traffic

(By W.L.C. in Windsor Star)

Customs officers have been simplified their rulings for the benefit of people going back and forth between Canada and the United States on the Pacific Coast. With so many persons asking questions about what they could and could not do, the customs officers decided it would be easier all around if they let the people know how they work.

Take the matter of liquor. With the current shortage in Canada that is an interesting topic to many people.

Canadians cannot take liquor into the United States without paying duty. As there is not much liquor around in Canada that does not affect many people. They can not get it for their own use in large quantities here, so few persons are trying to carry it over the border. That is, unless they are interested in smuggling or liquor running in a big way. In these commods reference is only to the ordinary citizens who visit back and forth among friends.

One Quart Each

Americans coming into Canada can bring in duty free one quart of liquor each. That is the law and is a courtesy that has been extended to Americans owing to the present shortage of liquor in Canada.

The limit on the duty free liquor is one quart per person. It does not make any difference how many people can bring in a total of so many quarts.

For example, if four Americans are coming into Canada, they can bring in four quarts. Each quart for each person in the party has to carry one quart in his or her own suitcase. One person in the group of four is not allowed to carry four quarts for the party in his luggage. The liquor has to be spread around in the one-person-one-quart limit.

Also, the customs officials can cancel this privilege without notice. It is not a right that has been accorded to it, but which can be declined. It does not set a precedent which can be cited at later months or years to bring in liquor at some future date. It is simply a courtesy that has been at present granted for the time being.

Case of Bottles

Further, if a drunk arrives at the border with a quart of liquor in his or her baggage, the customs officials will probably confiscate the liquor. If a group insists that it intends one of their number to carry a case of bottles of liquor on the customs officials will probably confiscate the liquor or the lot of them.

Tobacco

Tobacco is another common article which people carry back and forth.

Many people have a false idea that cigarettes can be taken in duty free to persons in Canada. This cannot be done. They can be put on the tobacco, cigars or cigarettes, whether they be sent as a gift or otherwise.

Cigarettes and tobacco may be mailed to a serviceman in the American, Canadian or other British armed forces. The package must be a gift to get the waiver of duty.

Canadians and Americans can bring into Canada duty free a ration of cigarettes, fifty cigars and two pounds of tobacco. To enjoy this privilege, the Canadian must have been in the United States for a period of not less than 48 hours. Even so, the Canadian still has to pay war taxes on his smokes, when he brings them into Canada. This would amount to about 30 cents on the tobacco cited. The Canadian declares the smokes and pays the war taxes to the customs officers at the border.

Coffee Rule

There is no coffee rationing in the United States, so Americans are permitted to bring coffee to Canada in Canada. But, the amount of coffee brought in duty free is limited. Canadians cannot take coffee liquor around in Canada that does not affect many people. They can not get it for their own use in large quantities here, so few persons are trying to carry it over the border. That is, unless they are interested in smuggling or liquor running in a big way. In these commods reference is only to the ordinary citizens who visit back and forth among friends.

Ration Stamps

On the other hand, Americans can come to Canada and buy shoes which are not rationed in the Dominion, but are strictly rationed over there. If an American buys shoes in Canada and declares them at the customs office on returning, he or she has to surrender ration stamps to cover the purchase price in Canada. The customs officers explain that if this procedure were not followed, Americans would be running to Canada and buying shoes and clothes and snapping up the unrationed goods so fast that rationing would never have to be applied in Canada.

Canadians in the United States, or Americans in their own country can send duty free gifts to servicemen, there are no gifts even either what can be sent or the value of the goods. The main thing is that they are gifts and are not for sale by the recipient. The parcels should be marked plainly with the information that they are gifts and are not for sale.

It has been explained that it is better if individuals buy the presents and parcel them up for mailing over there themselves. When stores do up the parcels, the customs sometimes treat them as purchases and not as gifts. If that happens, duty is levied on the goods.

Old $100 Rule

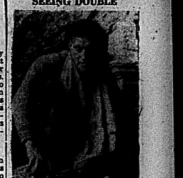
The old rule still holds good that Americans returning from a visit to Canada can take back with them $100 worth of goods. The American does not get allowed to come to Canada simply to make some purchases and carry the stuff back duty free. The purchases are supposed to be purely incidental to the visit in Canada.

Gasoline is a problem for visitors. American gasoline coupons are allowed 13 gallons once a year. Canadians going to the United States apply at the local ration boards and they are dealt with according to the circumstances of each case.

There is still considerable travel to Canada from the United States. Hotels and stores are quite a bit of American money, indicating that people still come over in spite of the curb on motor and railway travel.

After the war has been won, the tourist traffic should begin to flow freely, mingle greater interest than ever before. Canadians will welcome Americans and Americans will know they can depend on a warm welcome when they visit the United States.

SEEING DOUBLE



Riff, J. Levelle, of Birkenhead, Eng., seems to have a spare leg, but he's not confused. It is merely a part of his surroundings. Levelle, with the British troops who have set up a blouse in this old Roman amphitheatre, is comfortably cutting his toe-nails, while resting his foot on the remains of a leg of an old Roman statue.

HOW TO COMBAT Rheumatic Pains
Rheumatic pains are often caused by uric acid in the blood. This blood impurity should be extracted by the kidneys. If kidneys fail, and excess uric acid remains, it irritates the muscles and joints causing excruciating pains. Treat rheumatic pains by keeping your kidneys in good condition. Take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's Pills are half a century the kidney's friend.

REDS POUR INTO BESSARABIA ON 31-MILE FRONT

Germans Evacuate Defence Bastion Of Vinnitsa

Withdrawal Widens Break-Through And Chops Off Part Of German Line

THREAT TO RUMANIA

London, March 20. (AP) — The Red Army has captured Nogliev Podolski on the Dniester, Marshal Stalin announced today.

By E. R. SULLIVAN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, March 20. (AP)—Russian troops battling the Dniester River on a 31-mile front struck into Bessarabia part of pre-war Rumania, today.

To the north the German High Command announced evacuation of the outflanked defence bastion of Vinnitsa and admits to the south-west of Vinnitsa already had fallen. The German withdrawal widened the Red Army break-through on the middle Bug River sector, chopping off part of the Nazi line east of Proskurev.

The German communique said Vinnitsa, where the invaders had waged a stubborn defence for weeks, was evacuated according to plan after "extensive war installations—the usual German phrase—by.

The Red Army plunge into Bessarabia posed a new threat to the Germans, as well as to the satellite government of Rumania.

The Soviet troops headed for the Danube estuary to block the retreat from Southern Russia of many German formations falling back in the Odessa sector.

Fort of Tiraspol, Weekend.

The Russians' smash into Rumania by crossing the Dniester River Sunday on a 31-mile front, was just part of a triumphant weekend for three Red Armies on a broad front from Galicia to the Black Sea. It marked the culmination of the Soviet winter campaign and shattered 253 localities captured.

One was Kremenets, hilltop fortress 70 miles northeast of Lvow in the pre-war Reich, and the Russians surged on to take a village only 6 miles from Lvow.

In the Rumanian fighting, which netted the Red Army 40 Bessarabian villages, the Russians threatened the German-Rumanian forces so hotly that the enemy left behind, intact, Moscow announced last night.

Killed Germans by Thousands.

The Germans were killed by means and equipment by the thousands, Moscow said, capturing great quantities of arms, tanks and other equipment.

This latest Russian triumph and other Soviet gains produced a stunning effect on Rumania's already low war spirit, according to information reaching London. Rumanian civilians were said to be evacuating Bessarabian villages in the path of the Russians and the Army was appealing to the Rumanians to desert to the enemy.

The German-controlled Scandinavian Telegraph Bureau said frontline reporters in Berlin as saying the Russians also had nearly completed preparations for a big new offensive on the northern front, which, it declared, would be aimed in Soviet Communiques since the Red Army seemed to want to say was reported fighting at the Pskov and Pskov, gateway to the Baltics.

Yesterday's Soviet communique said the 2nd Ukrainian army reached the Dniester on a front of more than 62 miles. Among the 40 or more communities on the west bank listed as captured was the Moldavian district town of Rezina, northeast of Kishinev.

Other Russians forces were reaching in the region of Nogliev-Podolski, a Dniester east bank rail junction 30 miles northwest of Tiraspol, and also were menacing the Slobodzeya-Balti line to the southeast.

42 Governors Reply to Query

Washington, March 20 (AP)—Forty-two Governors have replied to President Roosevelt's query about service voting and the trend of their opinions appears to be that state ballots distributed under the Federal machinery would give a vote to most United States service men and women.

Almost all the Governors emphasized that their states want the fighting men to vote. Many expressed the belief that state ballots provided adequate if the Federal government will undertake to get those ballots overseas

Reds Now Within Sight of Carpathian Mountains Pravda Declared Today

PRESS TOWARD LWOW

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
(AP Staff Writer)

Moscow, March 20.—(AP) — Red Army troops during wet thrusts advanced within sight of the Carpathian Mountains, the great eastern European chain between Russia and Hungary, Pravda declared today.

The newspaper said the Germans were driven to the verge of chaos and that the time was ripe for decisive blows "from the east, west and south"—meaning an Allied invasion of Europe.

After smashing the German fortress of Kremenets in the west and crossing the Dniester River in the south, the Soviet forces faced the immediate objective of clearing the Germans out of the Ukraine.

Pravda declared that Russian armies wheeled in a southwesterly direction along a 500-mile front from the high hills of the western Ukraine to the Black Sea.

MUSICALE AND QUIZ FEATURE MEETING

The Friendship Group of Bridge Street United Church met Friday evening opened with a sing-song led by Allan Wood with Mrs. Harold Machin accompanying. After a short recreational period, Cpl. Keith Jones of Trenton favored the group with two selections "Drink to Me Only" and "Annie Laurie" with Mrs. Jones at the piano. Following a quiz on Belleville, Miss Margaret Houston sang a delightful group of songs. Mr. Logan's "Pale Moon" and "Into The Night" were the favorite wards. Mrs. Harold Kelly of Hamilton, guest speaker at the evening service spoke a few words. In part she said "It is a pleasure to address the A.R.C.'s of such a fine group as Bridge Street Methodist and C-Concregation. With these three Mr. Kelley said 'come together.' A delicious lunch was served by the Men's Association. Each Sunday evening a Family Invitation is extended to all young people especially those in the forces to attend these meetings at the close of the regular service.

MISS ETHEL SMITH WINS PRIZE IN RADIO CONTEST

Singing her way into the hearts of her unseen radio audience in the same manner in which she has captivated audiences in the Belleville district, Miss Ethel Smith popular young local vocalist was awarded second prize of $75 war bond when she appeared on the amateur program over station WGR in Buffalo on Saturday afternoon.

Several weeks ago Miss Smith made her initial appearance on the amateur hour program and was voted as first place winner making her eligible for a return visit to the program, which was heard one week ago Sunday. Scores of letters from listeners she was declared winner of the second place award and yesterday was presented with the war bond. Miss Smith did not sing yesterday but appeared on the program merely to accept the award.

JUNIOR FARMERS GUESTS OF PACKERS

Forty-five junior farmers from Sidney and Ameliasburgh townships, guests of the Canada Packers at Belleville, left at 2 p.m. Friday and motored to the Lyn Lock city where they were entertained at supper at the cafeteria and several pushboards in Peterboro over the week-end. The trip to the provincial "flying squad" was a complete surprise to the boys by the packers. Doyle of headquarters in Toronto. The Peterboro packers' representative were entered simultaneously at the meeting and no arrests were made, but charges are pending, Inspector Doyle announced.

More Than 200 Donate Blood In Single Day

Between two hundred and two hundred and twenty persons passed through the Kiwanis Centre Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic on Sunday, 19th, in the largest single day total the clinic has known since its opening. People from surrounding towns and villages made up the majority of the total, but a small number of local donors presented themselves on Sunday to fill the cards mailed by the clinic during the week.

Mr. Russel T. Kelly, chairman of the Canadian Red Cross Society, and Miss M. I. Foy, organizer of the Ontario Blood Donor Service were in charge of operations at the Clinic, while in operation Sunday. Mr. Kelly stated that no difficulty has been able to visit Belleville during the operation of the Clinic, he, and Miss Foy, were very favorably impressed with the efficiency of operations and the size of the voluntary staff, which was present. Mr. Kelly said the Belleville branch of the Eastern Star were in attendance to serve the noon-day lunches and to do the kitchen work involved. The physicians in charge were Dr. S. S. Cronk, R. S. Gibson and J. B. McKay.

FIN-BALL MACHINES SEIZED AT PETERBORO

Without warning or even so much as seeking the aid of municipal police, Provincial Officer Doyle, police anti-gambling squad made a sudden raid on fin-ball machine and machines and several pushboards in Peterboro over the week-end. The raid by the provincial "flying squad" was a complete surprise to the boys by the packers. Doyle of headquarters in Toronto. The Peterboro packers' representative were entered simultaneously at the meeting and no arrests were made, but charges are pending, Inspector Doyle announced.

MOTOR TRAFFIC HEAVY DURING WEEKEND

It may have been the fact that there is only one week-end before 1944-45 gasoline ration coupons will be cancelled and void, but regardless traffic officers of the Ontario Provincial Police reported the heaviest week-end traffic seen in many months following the ending of the heavy motorized traffic throughout the Belleville area.

It was not a summer weekend with a steady flow of traffic, especially on Sunday, but the traffic officer today, who added it had been necessary to check very rigidly on speeding.

It is that it was necessary to apprehend nine speeders, all of whom were doing well over 50 miles an hour. Fines totalled $90.00.

HORSE RUNNING LOOSE BREAKS CLOTHESLINES

Complaints that a horse was running at large on private property off Alidon Street were investigated by city police early Sunday morning, and the animal was captured on Albert Street after it had broken away from the stable of Leo Hamilton. Before being captured, however, the horse had managed to get tangled up in a couple of private clotheslines, which were torn down by the frightened animal. It was following the destruction of the clotheslines that police were called to the scene.

CLOTHES SET ABLAZE BEFORE HOT STOVE

Placing of the clothes horse, upon which hung the family wash, a trifle too close to the kitchen stove resulted in a run for the local fire department to an address on Victoria Avenue Saturday afternoon. Although damp when hung on the horse, the clothes quickly dried before the heat and eventually scorched and became ignited when they were removed. Firemen reported little damage other than the ruined clothes.

One other run, also on Saturday, was to an incinerator address where an electric stove became overheated. No damage was reported.

NEIGHBORS ASSIST BURNED OUT FAMILIES

Again demonstrating the fact that the people of Belleville wear their hearts on their sleeves and are ever ready to help a worthy cause, residents of the West End district have collected cash and clothing for the benefit of the five families which were burned out of their homes last Thursday night with the loss of almost all their personal belongings and household furniture.

A committee of neighbors and friends was formed for the collection under the direction of Mr. E. J. Pearl, Dufferin Street, and the neighborhood canvassed for cash donations with a considerable amount being received. Donations of clothing to the distressed families were received from other individuals. All concerned expressed their gratefulness for the assistance received as the result of their unfortunate misfortune.

ICE GRIP ON RIVER IS SLOWLY BREAKING

Slowly but surely Old Man Weather is wearing away the ice in the Moira river with each day's diminishing of the ice lessening the flood danger which has been feared in this city. With open water appearing for the first time since the ice jam formed, the river has now cleared itself of the ice from the dam at Deseronto down to a point below the Five Bar Bridge. Last night the river was clear of ice from Deseronto to the Five Bar Bridge near Belleville Creameries on Station Street and in the interior of Belleville, but a patch of gradually extended itself southward.

Gifts Presented Edwin J. Catcher On Retirement

Following nearly forty years of railway service, Edwin J. Catcher, 378 Albert Street, retired from active association from the Canadian National Railways on Saturday, March 18th, after which he entered the service of the old Grand Trunk Railway at Harrow in the year 1904. Marmora Couple 40 Years Wed

Marmora, (Special) — Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Osborne quietly celebrated their fortieth wedding anniversary at their home in North Hastings Avenue on Saturday. They were married at the home of Mrs. Osborne's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cole, Marmora, officiated by the late Rev. F. H. Howard, minister of the Golden Rule Church. Mrs. Osborne was the late Miss Cora Cole. Mrs. Osborne recalled that the roads were extremely bad at the time of their marriage and that they had to travel by night in her life's history and that some of the guests had to travel with horse and buggy failed to arrive. Mr. and Mrs. Osborne received some years, but her mother, who before marriage was Hester Hopkins is still living at the age of 79 in Timmins, Mrs. Osborne is one of eight children, seven by her parents. Mr. Osborne is the son of William Osborne and his children were born here. His father, the late James Osborne was a native of Thorn, Ontario, and his mother, whose maiden name was Harriet Hamilton, had been born in Scotland. Mr. Osborne recalls that his father told him that the trip on which he came to Canada, was eight weeks in crossing the ocean. With the exception of a few years spent in Bannockburn, Mr. and Mrs. Osborne have spent their married life in his native village of Marmora. Mr. Osborne is employed at the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company limited for the past forty years. Mr. Osborne retired last year. Their marriage has been blessed with four children, all of which eight are living. They are Mrs. Ernest Ash, employed at Toronto; Donald, Belleville; Mrs. Earl Tice (Madeline), Belleville; P. O. Sargent (Norsen), Peterborough; Mrs. Robert Dalgleish (Gertrude) Hamilton; Cpl. George Osborne, overseas; Private Mrs. Glen McCall (Jean), R.C.A.F. Women's Branch; Spr. Raymond Osborne, overseas. There are seventeen grandchildren upon whom their affection is also bestowed. Mr. and Mrs. Osborne are enjoying fairly good health and are proud of the fact that three of their children are in the services. They treasure the photos of these children and grandchildren and have indicated their regard for British traditions in displaying the Union Jacks in the front of their home. "Our boys will get a welcome when they live to return" said Mrs. Osborne with much feeling.

C.W.L. Entertains At 'Open House'

Flittingly, on the Sunday nearest to St. Patrick's Day, the ladies of the Catholic Women's League of Belleville took on the duties of entertainment for men and women of the parish in connection with the "Y" Open House program, inclusive of which the charmingly served followed an afternoon of small games and sociability, in the Catholic Academy auditorium. Band under the baton of Barbara Forhan, songs by Robert Fleury, Robert Leary and his sister Sharon and a duet by them, piano duets by Rose Marie Devlin and Ralph Beasley and solos by Mr. Jack Donovan.

The visitors were welcomed by Mrs. Frank Ryan, who expressed the thanks of the Y.M.C.A. and the guests to the Catholic Women's League and the artists who entertained.

The ladies were ably convened by Mrs. Ed. Logan.

Crofton

Crofton.— Mr. and Mrs. Jones and Miss Noreen Jones spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph and Mrs. B. Jones.

Miss Betty Rosey spent the weekend with her parents at Port Hope.

Owing to all the pupils being sick with colds the school was closed for four days last week.

The Crofonets party at the Hall on Friday evening was well attended. Mrs. Rose Burr of Burr's neighborhood won the prize. Mrs. Snider tied for the ladies' prize and Mr. Rose Burr and Rev. Lorne Burr for the men's prize. Mrs. Snider's dies drew sicks with Mrs. Snider being the lucky winner and the two gentlemen playing off their tie with Mr. Rose Burr winning on the toss of five. Proceeds of the evening were $8.70 going to the Leaky Fund.

The Red Cross meet at the home of Mrs. Victor Bongard on Tuesday afternoon and two quilts were finished.

SOMETHING TO REMEMBER WINTER

New York, March 20 — (AP) — Old man winter, shunted aside in favor of spring a day early this year, let loose with pent-up wrath today, giving the United States something to remember him by—snow, rain and sub-freezing temperatures which blanketed seven or seven lives throughout the country.

The War Today—
Great Events Can Happen In Europe Without Warning

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

There would seem to be close connection between the rigidity with which Hitler's installations are mounting and the report that Churchill, Roosevelt and Stalin may meet again soon.

The European war is moving slightly faster than a glacier at present. What with the blood-letting being inflicted on the Germans by the tireless Russians, and the hell that's being poured into Hitler-land by the Anglo-American air forces, we stand at a moment when great events can happen without warning.

It's reasonable, therefore, that the Big Three should want to meet up with one another and (perhaps) have a confab. This is the crucial time when each of the trio might know exactly what to do, and when none can afford to fall out of step.

There is something big new problems which the three, with their military advisers, may be able to deal with best in a face-to-face meeting. Both military and international political questions are piling up, and of these the political are probably the more troublesome. So of course this is no time to start a victory parade. We've got bloody work ahead of us still. The Allies must make plans for eventualities. But the chances are that One thing they've got to know is exactly what happens when Hitler's Fortress of Europe is hit by the Reich going to be dealt with, and what part is each of the Big Three's forces to play. Depend on it.

Stalin's views on the Balkans, especially in Rumania, having come out of the great Dictator river and smashed through the German defenses on a front of more than 30 miles. The Muscovites thus have performed the "impossible," and have given us a stark picture of Red striking-power and Nazi weakness.

Prussian Field Marshal Von Manstein's supposedly strong defenses on the Bug River have been broken like a rotten string.

The Balkans, especially in Rumania, has intensified the early Red drive for Berlin. The BBC is bombarding the panicky German people with advice to get out of the Balkans before it's too late.

Mrs. Pinner, Marmora Observes 90th Birthday

Marmora, (Special) — Enjoying excellent health and retaining the brightest of spirit for which she has so long been known, Mrs. Mary Pinnington, celebrated her ninetieth birthday on Saturday. She evidenced great pleasure in receiving callers during which day as well as being the recipient of many gifts and birthday greetings. Mrs. Pinnington is the widow of Wellington McWilliams, she was born at Springbrook and came to this district to reside in Marmora when about two years of age. For many years she has resided in her cheery home across from St. Paul's Anglican Church, of which she is the oldest member. Mrs. Pinner in former years was an active member of St. Paul's Ladies' Guild and the Marmora Women's Institute and retains a keen interest in the welfare of these organizations. Fred and Mrs. George Hartley reside in the same dwelling with Mrs. Pinner, while her other daughter, Mrs. T. J. Butler, resides in Toronto and is able to complete the family circle for the quiet celebration of the event. Many cards were received by her on Saturday that she was able to complete the family circle for the quiet celebration of the event. Many cards were received by her on Saturday that she was able to enjoy. Mrs. Pinner was able to reach the ninetieth milestone of her life with attendant good health and hopes of a peaceful life in their life will be filled for many future years ahead.

'Magic Eye' Device Helps British Pilots

Stockholm, March 20 — (AP)—An ingenious "magic eye" which enables British bombers to detect the approach of German night fighter planes is one of several new gadgets which have been put into use in the current aerial offensives.

The German commander of Danzig Nyheter described the device as a combination acoustical and optical instrument which "has a colored lamp in the pilot's compartment when a pair of aircraft meet within a certain range. The device also is said to sound a distinctive warning to the pilot's headphones.

While the device does not distinguish between friendly and enemy aircraft, it nevertheless alerts the bomber crews, the story said.

The same report also told of a special type of small radio transmitter-transmitter which later boarded aircraft which bombers — presumably the Pathfinder leaders — release targets in cloudy or heavy weather.

The lead, say the transmitter automatically emits a constant radio signal which later boarded waves can tune to get a directional "fix."

The Germans reported the Allies are using a new extremely-powerful flare bomb which turns night into daylight for a remarkably recognizable.

Sons of Freedom Driven From House By Icy Water

Nelson, B.C., March 18 —(CP)— Sons of Freedom, members of a fanatic Doukhobor sect in this West Kootenay area, were driven from their burnt brick home in nearby Brilliant by some 40 "non-Doukhobors" who poured buckets of water on a fire engine from nearby Castlegar and turned icy streams of water from several hoses on the building, it was reported here today.

The incident climaxed a series of nuisance attributed to the Sons of Freedom, once orthodox Doukhobors but subsequently ejected from the community by the more temperate element of the Russian religious sect.

One Castlegar resident was quoted last night as saying:

"We can't wait any longer for the government to take action. We want this business over with."

The police have had no report of violence. About 80 of them marched into the shell-torn home of Peter Verigin, leader of the orthodox Doukhobors.

Newsman Gives Graphic Description Of Land-Air Operation in Burma

By ALAN HUMPHREYS
Reuters News Agency Correspondent.

East of the Irrawaddy, Burma, March 8.—(Delayed)—(CP)—Glenn Miller's Flamingo is being written 150 miles inside Burma and more than 100 miles behind Japanese lines, at the beginning of a new kind of warfare, long-range, combined land-air operations.

For several nights now the moonlit darkness sky has been filled with the throbbing of a great armada of Canadian, American and British aircraft bringing in men, ammunition, supplies, petrol, ponies and jeeps.

These planes landed on runways hastily prepared in clearings in the heart of Japanese-occupied territory by advance parties who made their hazardous landing by glider.

As an indication of their depth, Japanese troops are stretched out from Indaw, 100 miles to the north, did not discover our presence until several days after the first glider had landed. Part of the force marched in, cutting through some of Burma's toughest jungle country, and the Japanese thought it impossible to penetrate.

This army consists largely of Chindits, specially trained for disruption of Japanese communications and rear headquarters activities, and therefore their action is also directly assisting American and Chinese forces in North Burma. Gen. Joseph Stilwell's declared purpose of recapturing Northern Burma.

The plane in which I flew took off from a forward air field in Assam, India, on the seventh hours there had been intense activity on the air field. Fighter and bomber planes were taking off or returning. It was the most impressive sight in the Far East Japanese sea service, one after another the aircraft landed along the long, camouflaged, four-mile-long runway.

When we reached our destination the pilot switched on the headlights and it seemed impossible to believe that we were actually more than 100 miles inside Japanese lines.

Gliders and troops disembarked. The first glider was piloted by flim star Flight-Officer Jackie Coogan.

After dark more gliders came in with equipment and engineers.

The engineers started work at 9 p.m. and at 5 a.m. completed the runway.

It was the following night that the wave of troops to which I am attached flew in, but more were to come the night after that, as defences had to be put out, communications established, however, stated there had been no Japanese in this area since last June.

A similar operation had been carried out in Abyssinia behind Ground. Headquarters had been established and the first plane to runway clearing.

The country is officially described as "rolling" forest—composed of medium and tall trees. The trees here are mainly teak.

Group Captain P. Davoud, D.F.C., Awarded D.S.O.

Ottawa, March 20—(CP)—Group Captain P. Davoud, D.F.C., of Montreal and Kingston, veteran R.C.A.F. night fighter pilot with a group at Headquarters overseas, has been awarded the Distinguished Service Order for his outstanding leadership as intruder operations, it was announced Saturday.

The Air Force also announced the award of the Distinguished Flying Cross to six others including Flt. Lt. J. R. Fraser of Windsor, and Flt. Lt. J. R. P. Johnston of Comeauville, Que., whose wife is serving in the R.C.A.F. (W.D.) at the St. Hubert Technical Training School.

Flt. Lt. C. E. J. Murphy of Belleville, Ont., also was awarded a D.F.C.

Murphy's citation:

"This officer has completed numerous sorties, including several attacks on the German capital. He has invariably displayed a high degree of courage and skill and his example has been worthy of emulation. In May, 1943, he piloted an aircraft, one engine of which failed long before the target was reached. In spite of this, Flt. Lt. Murphy flew on to complete his mission successfully."

Davoud's squadron has more recently been engaged on intruder and attacking enemy airfields and dock installations.

He is credited with his "forceful and courageous leadership." Many of the enemy attacks on targets in Holland, Belgium, France and Germany since he won his D.F.C. 14 months ago.

Davoud's wife lives at Montreal and his mother lives at Kingston.

Orwell's Citation:

"Since being awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross this officer has completed many sorties involving attacks on airfields and other heavily-defended areas in Holland, Northern France, Belgium and Germany. He is a forceful and courageous leader whose personal example and exceptional ability have been reflected in the fine operational efficiency of the squadron he commands. His loyal and devoted service has been worthy of the highest praise."

Pierre Pucheu Executed By Firing Squad

Algiers, March 20. (AP)—Pierre Pucheu, former Vichy Interior Minister, was executed today on treason charges of which he was convicted a week ago Saturday by a special French kilitary court.

Pucheu died before a firing squad in the Maison Carree station, an announcement said.

The court two days ago had turned down the condemned man's appeal from the death sentence which was imposed upon him as an exponent of collaboration with the Germans and his capacity of Interior Minister.

Speaking the trial, Gen. Henri Giraud, commander-in-chief of the French armed forces, came as Pucheu's aid, taking the stand as a defence witness and urging that the case be postponed until France is liberated.

Specifically the five-man court convicted Pucheu of treason, malfeasance in office and collaboration with the enemy, but he was declared innocent of conspiracy to overthrow the Third Republic.

In a last impassioned protestation of innocence Pucheu told the court that to condemn him to death would be "the first action in a civil war" in France and declared:

"This is not a court of justice; it is a political coup".

FORMER MAYOR OF CHICAGO DIES

William Hale Thompson Served Three Terms as Mayor

Chicago, March 20 — (AP) — William Hale Thompson, who in his 10-gallon hat and with his slogan "America First" as his "Big Stick" was one of the most colorful figures in the city's history, died yesterday after a long illness.

Thompson — "Big Bill" — served three terms as mayor of Chicago from 1915 to 1923 and from 1927 to 1931. His term was marked by the productive of headlines throughout the world, charges of graft and corruption as well as many counter charges by Thompson himself of "frame ups."

In 1927 he contended the public school textbooks were filled with British propaganda and adopted his bellicose slogan regarding nose-punching. He also campaigned to espoused freedom for Ireland and opposed the world court.

At times Thompson campaigned with circus parades, wild west shows, and he was the stalking figure of facetious smile, he was the star performer of all those shows.

Since 1930 he has lived in virtual retirement.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

Preventing the Deaf Child From Leading His Natural Type of Voice

Now that hearing aids are receiving so much attention, thousands of formerly hard of hearing and mutes can be painfully enjoying and enjoy company and surroundings, we should not forget the fact that careful training is necessary in the care of young children who are deaf.

In the journal "Ear, Nose and Throat", Dr. I. R. Ewing analyses 70 unselected deaf children referred by medical men for treatment. The age of the group was from twelve months up, 30 being under three years. Of these were totally deaf to all hearing, the remainder having small islands of hearing only (that is, responding to one of a certain pitch and loudness). All except two showed normal reactions and normal use of play materials put within their reach.

Voices recorded on phonograph records showed changes in rhythm, loudness, and pitch identical with those of normal children. Only after reaching eighteen months of age did the deaf child lose interest in voice when left alone; he then began to use gestures unless special training was provided. If this change over to gesture is not prevented, the child loses interest in speech and the quality of his normal voice cannot be recovered by any known method of training. We are all familiar with the "oddness of voice of many deaf people and wonder why they do not speak correctly. In regard to this Lenz energy to use gestures instead of his voice, Dr. Ewing states, "If under special training and home care the child finds that his voice is more effective in satisfying his wants than gestures he will continue to use the voice and keep the normal resonance".

Such artificial vibrations or sounds were given to a child until it reached the maximum of deafness.

To prevent the child using gestures to make known his wants Dr. Ewing recommends, that we give the child language, speech and lip reading in that order, and use no signs or gestures.

In the Journal of the Throat and Nose, Dr. A. W. G. Ewing states that parents who use gestures and "talk down" to a deaf mute do not help him. In 13 unselected cases of deaf children referred to him and others treated the children as a rule when first hearing their surroundings—three were able to attend college, two to attend high and normal schools and one to run a comptometer in an office.

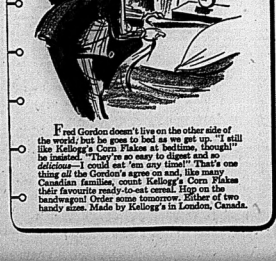
Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They must constantly get up and count sheep. Often they blame it on a bad back when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and cause backache, nervousness, dizziness, rheumatic pains, headache, other ills. If you don't feel right well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills—over half a century the favorite remedy. 123

Dodd's Kidney Pills



Fred Gordon doesn't live on the other side of the world; but he goes to bed as we get up. I still like Kellogg's Corn Flakes at bedtime, though!" he insisted. "They're so easy to digest and so delicious—I could eat 'em any time!" That's one thing all the Gordon's agree on and, like many Canadian families, count Kellogg's Corn Flakes their favourite ready-to-eat cereal. Hop on the bandwagon! Order some tomorrow. Either of two handy sizes. Made by Kellogg's in London, Ont.

Senseless Slaughter

The report in this paper last week concerning the destruction of a large number of muskrat houses and the killing of all the animals will reawaken all conservationists to the appalling ignorance and greed displayed by the culprits, who unhappily have not yet been apprehended.

There are certain regulations which must be observed in trapping muskrats so that there will always be some left in the houses in order not to completely deplete the colony. If this were not done the number of the animals would dwindle to a dangerous level as has happened to various other species of wild life.

This criminal action is on a par with one which occurred recently north of Montreal where a party of lumbermen seeking some diversion in their free hours sought out, or came across by chance, a yard where deer had taken refuge from the weather and had trampled out shelter and a solid footing for themselves. No careful stalking for these "hunters," no waiting for hours on an exposed stand for the deer to pass by. Nothing like that. They just drove the trapped creatures into the deep snow where they were helpless, then killed sixteen of them at their leisure. In this case five were does with fawn and the others were young. In all, sixteen deer were slain out of season and without a sporting chance.

The same sort of selfishness was displayed a few years ago on a northern lake in the county where a colony of beaver had established itself. They had been left unmolested for two or three years and were, also, quite an attraction to the summer residents of the area. Then one season a trapper came along and cleaned out every animal. He gave no thought to the future but was only intent on getting all he could in the shortest possible time. If the colony had been left to be farmed in the lawful way these beaver would have established themselves in several other places in the district and would have provided a lucrative income for trappers who had some conception of conservation.

It is difficult to bring individuals of this type to justice but when they are caught then the full penalty of the law should be imposed on them. If instruction in conservation was given in our schools, children would properly understand the term and when they reached adult age might be influenced by the knowledge they had received. Outside of punishment this is the only feasible way in which the shameful slaughter of wild life and unlawful trapping can be controlled.

Courtesy Pays

A brief news story a few days ago from Whitby told of a letter of appreciation tendered Mr. Justice Roach by forty-two members of a Supreme Court jury panel for the "very great deal of kindness and respect for the law" he had given them. Apparently the judge was greatly surprised and pleased for he remarked he had never heard of such a noble gesture in his history of the Canadian courts. He added, "If there were more juries like you the life of a judge would not be so lonely and hard."

The words "so lonely and hard" accent the problems of judges in their association with the public. The very nature of the work done by a Supreme Court judge is arduous. He must dominate the contending lawyers in no uncertain way and there are times when his patience undoubtedly reaches the breaking point. However, they are invariably courteous to the nervous witnesses who are honestly giving their testimony for the best of intent, and despite this their manner tends to become austere for levity has no place in court rooms. This in itself helps to estrange the judges from the public and is a big factor in lending that loneliness of which Justice Roach mentioned.

Because members of the Supreme Court must travel about the country to preside over their courts their work helps to make them lonely men. They are away from their friends and families and beyond their association with the legal fraternity and court officials their contacts with the public is limited for the latter, we fear, stand in considerable awe of judges. In fact most individuals probably feel that judges are men without feeling or sentiment using the words "hardboiled." This feeling is reflected in their attitude, which might be termed aloofness, and so probably the kindly letter from the jury panel at Whitby was that much more appreciated by Justice Roach. His courteous address to the group in court was responded to in an unusual way and the incident brings to our attention that a word of kindliness usually inspires a like reverence rich in reward to both parties concerned.

Potatoes Are Not Fattening

The big, mealy - baked potato, bursting in steaming beauty below a dash of paprika, need no longer be looked upon in horror by the pleasingly plump. For potatoes, declares the United States Department of Agriculture, backed up by battalions of food experts and lists of calories, are not fattening.

One can but clasp a deceived and guarded waist line and stand aghast! Why, one demands, has this secret been kept so long from a world of timid, expanding diners, who have been led to look upon the potato as the producer of a Goering silhouette?

Is it to be imagined, for instance, that the potato is fair-skinned, while it is more fattening than a large red apple or four humble prunes? It is to be imagined and so is, answer the dietetic solons. And they calmly add that the potato has too long been a scapegoat, a whipping post and a sometimes burnt offering. For it really is as economical, delicious and harmless a vegetable as ever adorned a blue-plate special. And here we have been stuffing tasteless spinach, underdone beets and overdone carrots down our throats all these potatoless years, believing—of course, in vain—that we might remain sylphlike by such inward harrowing.

The answer from Washington is that it is not what we eat, but how much we eat, that strains us at the seams. It is the little more and how much it is that ruins us. If we ration ourselves to no more than a proper daily intake of calories, we can devour these baby heaps of fluffy corn from Maine—whether in potatoes, bread, beefsteaks or spring lamb stew (if we get the spring).

All this being understood, let the diner no longer rage and the weighing machines imagine a vain thing. Definitely, absolutely, potatoes are not fattening. The joy of Ireland has at last come into its own.

Tranquility

(Montreal Herald)

"The life of Germans today is not luxurious," says a Nazi broadcast, "but . . . a natural life, tranquil, secure and without surprises."

Quite, there must be some reassurance in the knowledge that the boys in the army are getting nearer home every day, and that visitors from across the channel can be depended on to drop in any time that the weather's not too bad.

If a U. S. tax form baffles Professor Albert Einstein, the world-famous mathematician and discoverer of the law of relativity, what of others, who are not so famous? His theory of relativity is said to be understood by only seven persons in the world, and yet speaking of the U. S. income tax form, he remarked "this is a question too difficult for a mathematician. It should be asked of a philosopher."

THE NURSE

She follows the soldier where danger is dire,
She crawls as he crawls under barriers of wire.
She sails where sails and she flies where he flies,
And sometimes in battle beside him she dies.
Oh, there is no glory of skill or of purse
And no service more honored than that of the nurse!

She slogs through the mud and the snow and the rain.
Her ear is attuned to the whimper of pain.
If brave is the soldier of land, sky and sea,
Then as brave and as steadfast to duty is she.
The lips of the wounded her glory rehearse;
The woman whose lifework is mercy—the nurse!

She serves 'neath the decks of great warships at sea.
Wherever man ventures behind him she'll be.
She's known in the jungle, the foxhole, the beach.
There's no post of duty her hand cannot reach.
Without her devotion war's horrors were worse
So here's to that angel of mercy—the nurse!

Letter To The Editor

WANTS INFORMATION ON THE DOMAN FAMILY

Pacific Palisades, California.

To The Editor:

It may interest former friends of the Doman family of Belleville, Shannonville and Marysville, to know that Margaret Maria Doman, (Finn), born in 1864 in Trendinagas township near Shannonville, celebrated her ninetieth birthday at her home 362 Adams St., in Bay City, Michigan, recently.

In excellent health, Margaret Doman Finn is still one of Bay City's keenest bridge experts, playing regularly each week with friends of "the younger generation" who are in their seventies and eighties.

With sons in World War One, grandsons, great-grandsons and innumerable nieces and nephews in service in World War Two, Belleville's former daughter can well be proud.

The Doman family came to Belleville in 1836 in which year Robert Doman and his wife Elizabeth Uppington Doman purchased a farm in the concession, Tyendinaga township, north of the road, from Bridge to Shannonville. James and John James Doman's descendants lived in and around London for many years.

Thomas Doman married Anne Shaw of Kingston, Ont., and their children Robert, Annie, Margaret, Sinclair, John, Henry and Thomas were all born near Shannonville. All were baptized at the Marysville Catholic Church.

The descendants of the Domans are invited to write Robert Doman, son of the above John Doman, at 1000 Sunset Blvd., Pacific Palisades, California, or, if in California, to visit him at 20th Century-Fox studios, Hollywood. I would like to contact Domans living in Canada, as for more than fifty years we have lost contact with the Canadian branch of the family.

Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. L. G.

Information pleas flew thick and fast in 1818 when the "Upper Canada Gazette" published the news that Dr. Everard Home had injected medicine into the veins of a patient. But so many innovations in medical practice were being made during the course of the 19th century that the above-mentioned treatment was only a "nine-days wonder."

Some 14 years later a plague of cholera swept through the land. The mortality was enormous. In Montreal there were 1000 deaths—and the population was 28,000. Probably half of the population of Canada was attacked by the disease and one in every twenty-seven died. Some doctors prescribed powdered charcoal, mulled syrup and lard administered internally. Lye or poultices made from wood ashes were applied to relieve cramps.

Another disease that brought happiness to Canada's war veterans, but which wrought much less harm than did cholera, was ague. This is an ailment that, fortunately, seems pretty well to belong to the past. The genial annalist blames the onset of the disease on the state of her soil which flooded the water periodically and stayed that way for some time. According to the chronicler, fumes from decaying vegetable matter were not only unpleasant but also harmful, including the intermittent fever that characterizes ague.

Letters of Tribute Are Received By Mother of Late Pte. K. Brant

Tribute to a Belleville soldier, Pte. Kenneth Brant, who gave his life for his country on the Italian battlefield, is given in the following two letters received by his mother, Mrs. D. Brant, Herchimer Ave., from officers in his regiment. A member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Pte. Brant was killed in action on January 30th. Following are excerpts from the letters received by Mrs. Brant:

"Dear Mrs. Brant," wrote Lieut. L. E. MacKinlay, it is with the utmost regret that I have the painful task of informing you that your son Kenneth died a gallant death while advancing on attack by our company on the 30th of January.

"Ken was very popular in the platoon and did his job well and bravely and as his platoon commander, I was very proud to have him. The stretcher carriers all said they could to save Ken's life, but there was little they could do except give him as comfortable as possible.

"Today your parcel arrived, and as is the custom in the regiment, we divided the contents among all the men in the platoon in which your son served. The men, with one, wish to extend their thanks and most sincere sympathy to you and your family.

"Your son died very bravely, Mrs. Brant, and every one was very proud of him, as I am sure you are. The padre will send your son's personal effects and please let me know if there is anything I can do for you.

"Yours sincerely,

"L. E. MacKinlay."

"I cannot tell you how badly we all felt when Kenneth was killed on the evening of January 30th," stated Captain J. F. Clofarth, chaplain of the regiment, in his letter to Mrs. Brant.

"His company had taken part in an attack during the afternoon and had come under very severe mortar and machine gun fire then that Kenneth was wounded. He was brought back to the regimental aid post and there our medical officer did everything in his power but to no avail.

"Kenneth was a brave soldier and was well liked in the unit. We all miss him and I know that the whole battalion would wish to join me in extending to you our deep and sincere sympathy. Your son was buried with all possible honors and reverence. A white cross made by your own boys now stands over his grave.

"May God comfort and sustain you in your bereavement and may your son rest in the faith of us all in the cause for which your boy so gallantly laid down his life."

BRITISH KING'S SURNAME

The question is often asked, Emperor of India."

"What is the King of England's surname?"

Members of royal families do not have surnames; in the same sense that commoners do, but the family name of the British sovereign has been Windsor since 1917 and that may be regarded as his surname.

Queen Victoria was the last British sovereign to have a family name of Hanover.

When Edward VII ascended the throne in 1901 he belonged to the family of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha.

During the First World War there was strong sentiment in Britain against German names and titles, and accordingly on July 17, 1917, George V issued an order abolishing German titles and dignities and stating that thenceforth the Royal Family and house "shall be styled and known as the house and family of Windsor."

Before that the King's title had been "George V, by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions beyond the Sea, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India."

What is the present title of King George VI.

It is often said that the family name of the present Sovereign, of Great Britain is Wettin.

In one sense that is true, for Edward VII was related to the famous Wettinish family of Europe through both his mother, Queen Victoria, and his father, Prince Albert.

Victoria was a Guelph and by her marriage to Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha she changed the family name to Wettin.

But neither "Guelph" nor "Wettin" has ever been recognized by the British government as the official name of the Royal Family, house or dynasty.

New Light on Mystery Of Great Lakes Levels 22-Year Fluctuation

Naval Engineer Offers Theory of 22-Year Fluctuation In Lakes As Regularity In Tides of the Ocean—Chicago Water Theft is International Problem

The levels of the Great Lakes rise and fall with as much regularity as the tides of the ocean, but over a 22 year, rather than a 12-hour, cycle, this fact emerges in two recent investigations of lake levels, according to R. E. Sheldon, a Chicago naval architect, who has written an analysis of lake levels for a recent issue of the Journal of the Western Society of Engineers.

Mr. Sheldon illustrates his theory, and it has, according to Mr. Muzhem, worked out accurately in the present, so far as forecasting weather from 1943 through 1947 "with a possible error of 2 per cent in the latter part of 1945 and the early part of 1946." For the early part of 1947, with the cycle in its drainage basin is likely to be. If his interpretation is right a fairly accurate new system of weather forecasting can be developed. In fact, in 1940, a forecast was made, and the Great Lakes country, on the basis of Sheldon's fluctuation theory, and it has, according to Muzhem, worked out accurately to the present. The forecast was for

Pretty Smile Beauty Asset from Them

Carole Landis has a charming smile.

By HELEN POLLETT

THE SMART GIRL has found out that a charming expression and pretty smiles will do more to her countenance attractive than the 38th lipstick or collection of gold finger wave, and all the cosmetics in the world.

The smile is distinguished from the general run is she who does something to her face besides putting on the demountable blush-to. She knows how to make the most of it. It has interesting variations, promotes the idea that things are going on inside her head.

Don't Be Austere

Why should a woman wear the same face all the time? Some do, and it is no credit to them. We are thinking now of the austere, over-dignified dames who feel that seriousness is eminently respectable and frivolity isn't. They wouldn't crack a smile if you fished their lapse with money. The result? Early wrinkles, sagging tissues, a dour expression that makes people want to run for their lives and get away from them.

You've heard about facial exercise, haven't you? Well the best exercise is smiling. Keep the lip ends up even when you are alone. Make it a habit. The spirit of the facial tissues keeps the portrait painted in expression.

It is, of course, a great beauty advantage to possess an animated mind and a mobile, adaptable face. The brain that gets up and goes through life with a chuckle and the grumpy stuff, opens up mental windows that let in the light, and sunshine.

WEDDINGS

LEWIS—WAY

The wedding was solemnized on Saturday, March 18, at two o'clock, of Betty Ann Way, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Way and Gerald Frederick Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lewis, of Shannonville, in Christ Church by the Rev. C. G. Wright. While lilies formed the attractive floral setting and Mrs. Calvert played softly throughout the ceremony and during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in a long gown of white crepe and lace over satin and floor-length veil of tulle illusion caught to her hair with apple blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. R. Morgan, as matron of honor, wore blue lace over pink satin and her head was a halo of pink roses and fern arranged with gold ribbon.

Mrs. Ray Reid, as the bride's other attendant, was attired in a crepe dress of pink satin with a ring a similar headdress to that of the matron of honor. Both Mrs. McKenna and Mrs. Reid had corsages of roses.

The groomsman for the occasion was Mr. Oscar Clark, half-brother of the bride, and acting as usher was Mr. Charles Mayll.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents where the bride's mother and the groom's mother received the guests. The former was attired in a navy blue white ensemble with corsage of red roses, while the latter was dressed in wine crepe with corsage of roses.

The bride's gift to the groom's honor was a glamour pin and to the bridesmaid, a sterling silver bracelet. The groom's gift to the groomsman and the usher were identification bracelets.

On the wedding trip to Toronto, the bride donned a navy blue two-piece dress with matching green accessories and brown hat. She wore a coral fur jacket. On their return, the bridal couple will reside in Consecon, where many guests were Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Clark and Oscar Clark, of Toronto.

HEALTH CHATS

DR. HERMAN N. BUNDESEN Health.

NEURONITIS

The past summer brought a great deal of interest in the subject of poliomyelitis, or infantile paralysis. However, there are other diseases affecting the nervous system which produce paralysis and which may be confused with poliomyelitis. One of these is a disorder called neuronitis.

Neuronitis does not occur at certain seasons, as does poliomyelitis, nor does neuronitis epidemics occur. The disorder usually attacks persons between the ages of twenty and thirty years. Poliomyelitis is a seasonal disease, often occurs in epidemics, and most often in persons under the age of twenty years.

Doctors Adolph L. Sahs and William D. Paul, of Iowa City, think that neuronitis comes as a result of toxemia, or poisoning following infections. It does not affect the spinal cord as does poliomyelitis, but rather the peripheral nerves that come from the spinal cord.

Half of the neuronitis patients whom they studied had such infections as severe inflamation of the stomach or bowel, prior to the time the neuronitis developed. The symptoms of these infections had subsided before the affection of numbness, tenderness in the course of the nerves, together with gradual, increased paralysis affecting the same parts on both sides of the body. There was also some disturbance of the nerves of the face and those of hearing.

Patients with neuronitis do not suffer from fever, nor is there any increase in the number of white cells in the blood. Patients with infantile paralysis do have fever and an increase in the white blood cell count.

If it is not possible to diagnose neuronitis on the first examination it usually can be told from poliomyelitis as the disease progresses. After progressing rapidly until the crest is reached, neuronitis gradually declines for several weeks and then clears up, in contrast to infantile paralysis rarely progresses after the second week of sickness.

Unfortunately, no treatment has been discovered for either of these diseases that is of any great benefit after paralysis has occurred. Further studies of these disorders are needed in order to prevent their cause, so that they may be prevented and effective treatment developed for them.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Silver Wedding Celebration

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My husband and I are celebrating our twenty-fifth wedding anniversary soon, and in several of the papers of the clubs to which we belong there is to be published a write-up about it. In sending the data for this we do not know in what form we should write the names of our married daughters. The husband of one of our daughters is stationed in a camp so near our home that he will be able to attend. Also we are fairly sure that our son-in-law, a corporal, will be with us. Should we write, "Mrs. Jones" or "Mrs. Raymond Smith," "Mrs. Katherine Jones" or "Corporal and Mrs. Arthur Jones"?

—N. B.

Never correct socially is the form "Mrs. Jean....." or "Mrs. Katherine Brown....." Socially "Mrs." should nej be used before a woman's first name. I suggest that you write this: "Mr. and Mrs. Brown's two daughters and their husbands, both of whom are in the Service, will be present at the anniversary celebration." Second, Mrs. Raymond Smith, and Corporal and Mrs. Arthur Jones. The husband of Mrs. Smith, the former Jean Brown, is now with the.....and is at present stationed at..... The husband of Mrs. Jones, the former Katherine Brown, is serving with the..... and is stationed at....." (Everyone in the city today is interested in service information, and I think it is important for you to include this data in your writeup.)

Expenses for a Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My son is to be married soon, and I am completely at sea as to who pays the expenses for the wedding. Several of my friends have told me that it is my duty to pay half of the expenses for the reception. Is this so? (I am giving my son a wedding gift of $1,000 and I tell you this since it may have some bearing on my questions.)

—R. M.

The friends who told you that it is your responsibility to pay half the expenses of the wedding reception are completely wrong.

Except for a very few details, the expenses for the wedding and the reception are the responsibility of the bride and her family. The bridegroom pays for: the wedding ring; marriage license; wedding present to the bride; bride's bouquet; a corsage for the bride's mother and a corsage for the mother; the fee or gift to the minister; gifts to his best man and ushers; the rental of the car in which he and his best man come to the ceremony; and the expenses of the wedding trip.

The bride and her parents give a wedding gift of money has no bearing on the wedding expenses who pays for what. But this gift of money, you know, is given to the bride-to-be, as are all other wedding gifts. This is not a gift to be spent on the wedding expenses, but is for buying something for their new home, or something necessary for their future, not for the immediate wedding and reception.

Questions—and Good, Some Not

Most questions are friendly ones that show a pleasant interest in the subject person. But some are barbed with inquisitiveness. The first kind made you popular, for being interested in people is the first step toward making you liked. The second kind made you dreaded, for people will side-step you as you force them to side-step your misguided questions.

Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners addressed to her readers.

BEAUTY

By Helen Jameson

Fatigue Must Bring The Haggard Look

There are glossy clouds upon the face of the woman who is blessed with health. She finds life restful, who loves to work and loves to play. Her mental outlook and she clicking along like a little Swiss clock, because she has a sense of well-being. Even if she is not blessed health, has sense enough to know that she can make the most of wires and skids things; that she must take care of herself.

All tired women aren't tired because of overwork. Some are weary because they have no aim in life and are restless. Others feel wretched because they worry themselves sick.

Fatigue comes to those who don't eat enough food, or eat too much, or don't eat the right kind. Every one should have a balanced diet that meets the needs of the human anatomy.

Women who live in hotels, with no household cares to take up their time, no special interests or studies, grow restful from boredom. You can't read or go to the movies all the time, and enjoy the rest. Many women who enjoy the woman who is useful to others. Women who have a little baby to worry of their time, labor and money. There are also the women of wires and nerves that are the salt of the earth and a joy to their companions.

Many women who had household help in the past, spent their afternoons playing bridge, and when they married, have knuckled down to tough jobs, and are the better for it. My neighbor, who never did a lick of work in her life, now says with pride, "I can turn out a big wash as well as the next one, and who should see me from a shirt." Her two maids went to work in war factories. She is carrying on, looking after a large house, taking care of four children, and, when may surprise you, she isn't tired one more. She finds it more stimulating to scramble out at seven o'clock, get the kids off to school and get down to this end than to have breakfast in bed. She isn't doing any yowling about it. She is of some use in the world, and is proud of it.

In the past, many women had too much food and no exercise. That state of affairs brought about a trail of beauty ills. Now, with rationing, the trend is the food that takes—especially butter—and, with work to do, they get plenty of exercise. When they were a flock of scrawny hens and flabby chins and spare tires girded the waistlines.

Exercise is a hateful word to many women, but when you run

4,500 Additional Hospital Beds Required Under Proposed Plan

Toronto, March 20. (CP) — An acute shortage of hospital beds exists throughout Ontario, the sub-committee on hospital accommodation states in a report to Minister of Health Dr. R. J. Fraser in connection with underwriting by the government of cost of General Hospital care. The report tabled in the legislature stated that a minimum of 4,500 additional beds will be required under the proposed plan.

"The proposed plan would be seriously embarrassed in its effective operation because of this shortage", the committee reports.

The present situation could be greatly relieved if adequate facilities were available for care of convalescent, chronic, incurable aged and senile patients, the report states. Present accommodation in Ontario is severely taxed, and free hospitals are able to provide for peak loads which occur at various times. An increase in demand for care under the proposed plan would place a severe strain on an already overtaxed hospital system.

Increase in Prospect.

An immediate increase in demand for hospital care would result as soon as the proposed plan was included. The increased demand is offset to some extent by a decrease in average of about two days per case in the length of stay in hospital before the plan comes into force. This, the report says, is an important factor when considering the number of beds required over a period of time.

Contemplated construction in hospitals throughout the province provides for 2,855 beds, but this work owing to the war cannot be proceeded with, the report said.

Contemplated Construction.

The report showed contemplated hospital construction or improvements in some principal centres outside Toronto as follows:

Nichols Hospital, Peterborough, is endeavoring to arrange additional accomodation.

Construction of units to care for war veterans to be ready early in 1944 in Carlton County would release fifty private beds in Ottawa's Civic hospital for civilian use.

Normanby Township committee an addition of 13 private and semi-private beds.

Grace hospital, Windsor, contemplates adding 80 beds and Metropolitan hospital contemplates addition of 200 beds and Leamington is considering construction of a 50-bed hospital.

General hospital, Kingston, contemplates an addition of 190 beds and hopes to complete 60 per cent. of total by 1944 while Hotel Dieu, Kingston, contemplates extension to the maternity and paediatric departments, also to wards and semi-private accommodation.

Trenton is considering construction of a 35-bed hospital and Gananoque is considering construction of a 25-bed hospital.

St. Catharines General Hospital, contemplates an addition of thirty beds.

General Hospital, Cobourg, plans expansion of 22 beds while Arnprior is planning construction of a 50-bed hospital.

General Hospital, Cornwall, is planning an addition of 23 adult beds and 24 Bassinettes.

Niagara Falls is planning an addition of 23 private and semi-private beds, 20 beds, for a general hospital at Welland, has an addition to be completed this year which will add 40 beds.

The committee report admitted that it is difficult to obtain accurate report of contemplated construction owing to war conditions with its scarcity of materials and labor, but the committee indicated that prospective development may provide some 2,800 to 3,000 additional beds.

Of this number only about 400 are in sight as a result of construction under way.

200 School Teachers Resign From Posts

Halifax, March 20—(CP)—Cape Breton County's rural public school teachers resigned en masse during the weekend in protest over being frozen in their jobs at "disgracefully low pay," and provincial government authorities said today the matter would be thoroughly studied before any plans for possible intervention are made.

After a conference in Sydney the teachers handed in their resignations in a body to R. A. MacKinnon, secretary of the Municipal School Board, unanimously agreeing that they were being "exploited." A resolution was adopted to terminate their contract at the end of the school year in June, and to refuse to sign a new one until their demands for a $200 increase in salary were granted. Contracts for the following year are renewable each March.

ONTARIO DIVISION OF RED CROSS TO HOLD ANNUAL MEETING SOON

The 24th annual meeting of the Ontario Division of the Canadian Red Cross Society will be held at the end of the month at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, when reports will show that a new record has been established during 1943. Committee reports will bring fresh evidence of the wonderful response of the people of this province to the humanitarian projects carried on by the Red Cross. Most notable expansion of any single effort of the Ontario division will be found in the Blood Donor program. Final reports of the 1944 campaign for funds will be submitted to the committee and it is expected that the final figure will exceed the total objective.

CP Correspondent Receives War Star

London, March 20. (CP Cable)—Louis Y. Hunter of the Canadian Press London Bureau today received from the War Office the 1939-1945 star, thus becoming the first Canadian War Correspondent permitted to wear the British Campaign Medal of the Second Great War.

It is expected that other Canadian War Correspondents will qualify for either the 1939-1945 Star or the Africa Star, by the date of their service with troops in the field.

Hunter, whose home is in Quebec City, spent six months in the Mediterranean Theatre, covering activities of Canadian troops and airmen in Africa, Sicily and Italy. He was the only correspondent on a bomber flight over enemy territory and has been at sea with ships of the Royal Canadian Navy.

One Killed As Car Plunges into River

Brampton, Ont., March 20—(CP)—One person was killed and two injured when the car in which they were riding plunged into the Credit River.

Eighteen-year-old Keith McBrairney, the driver, was drowned when the car, out of control on a steep, winding hill, crashed through two posts and hurled over a 20-foot embankment. James and Alec Martin suffered head injuries.

McBrairney escaped at Victory Aircraft Ltd. was trapped behind the wheel. His companions managed to escape from the automobile, one through a door and the other thru the roof.

According to the German caption accompanying this picture, obtained through a Berlin source, a gun crew mans a gun on the Channel coast, an example of modern fortifications in this area. The Nazi press has given a lot of publicity to their famous "Atlantic wall" defences, and Berlin propaganda is aimed to convince the Allies that they are well prepared for the invasion.

North Italy Strike Had Desired Effect

Naples, March 20 — (AP) — The Socialist newspaper Avanti declared today that a strike of thousands of industrial workers in German-held Northern Italy a week ago was "a victory in the first truly great mass movement in Europe against Nazism."

Avanti declared the strike was "a success, not a platonic suspension of work but a direct challenge to the Gestapo, a direct attack on the Nazi-Fascist war machine and an armed fight which lasted for days."

The newspaper asserted: "The strike had these results:

"The deportation of 1,000,000 Italian workers to Germany has been halted.

"The return of Italian workers from Germany has begun.

"The punishment of Italians refusing to respond to the Fascist military draft has been shortened."

Mount Vesuvius Gives Most Violent Display in 34 Years

Naples, March 20 — (AP)—Three streams of smoking lava poured and crept slowly down the sides of Mt. Vesuvius Sunday night after the famous volcano had been in violent day in its most violent display of activity in 34 years.

The lava wiped out 100 feet of the scenic road winding around the mountain and the stream on the southern slope was reported within two miles of the village of Ercolano's recase.

Consideration was being given to the possibility of evacuating the villages should the activity continue.

After the eruption an American soldier, Sgt. Fred G. Drake of Emmons, N.Y., drove to within 100 yards of the crater in a jeep so that Prof. Guiseppe Imbo of the Royal Vesuvius Observatory might determine the extent of the eruption.

MANY VOTERS OUT

Simcoe, Ont., March 20 —(CP)— Road conditions in the provincial riding of Haldimand-Norfolk were described as good today as voters went to the polls to choose a member of the Ontario legislature to succeed the late Wallace W. Walsh, Progressive Conservative, who died last month.

Ice conditions which had made travel hazardous last week had disappeared and the roads were shine brightly for the first time in days. It was predicted after polls had been open two hours that the vote was coming out at about the same rate as in the last provincial election when Walsh polled 7,858 votes compared with 7,077 for Eric W. Cross, Liberal, and 2,577 for F. P. Grove, C.C.F.

Candidates in today's voting are: Jacob Gilbert Calcbeck, Liberal; C.C.F.; Charles H. Martin, Simcoe, Progressive Conservative; and George C. Mutrie, South Waldingham, Liberal.

Norway Making Plans For Peace Based on International Collaboration

By WILLIAM STEWART
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 20 (CP)—Norway, captured for 18 years before her invasion by Germany April 9, 1940, is making plans for peace based on international collaboration, economic as well as political.

Four years of war have impressed Norwegian leaders with the lesson that, without peace and economic well-being, particularly for a small nation, depend on international brotherhood.

Getting ready for the peace that will take it back home, Norway's Coalition government established in London since June of the invasion years, plans first of all to rebuild the little nation's fishing industry, source of its greatest peacetime export, and its merchant fleet which before the war was the world's fourth largest.

While this is being done, the government intends to re-build even itself by a democratic election to be held as soon as possible after the post-war emergency period.

During that initial stage supplies of food, clothing and medicine will have to be delivered to a half-starved population but Norwegian leaders here believe the fishing industry can be restored in time to play a part in emergency feeding of the rest of Europe.

Norwegian leaders are little concerned with domestic issues or territorial questions. Norway's boundaries are naturally defined by mountains and sea. What qualifications have occupied administrative posts under the Germans will be replaced quickly.

Norway's foreign policy, say her representatives here, is intended to be a part of support for the forms of international co-operation. Norway is not inclined to associate herself exclusively with proposals for a so-called Scandinavian Bloc, regarding herself as an "Atlantic Nation" rather than a "Continental Nation" as she looks upon her Scandinavian neighbors.

Red Cross Drive Over $10,000,000

Toronto, March 20. (CP) — The Canadian Red Cross Society today announced that collections in its national campaign for $10,000,000 now total $10,032,003. Every province has passed its objective except Quebec, where officials are confident the quota will soon be reached.

The returns cover 18 canvassing days, the campaign opened Feb. 28 and continued after its scheduled closing date of March 15—and compare with $7,940,857 in the corresponding period of the 1943 campaign.

The Society said reports from the provinces indicate that further subscriptions will be received.

Following are the returns by provinces, with objectives in brackets:

Prince Edward Island $68,000 ($50,000); Nova Scotia $445,000 ($350,000); New Brunswick $236,500 ($200,000); Quebec $2,408,786 ($1,250,000); Ontario $4,377,745 ($3,000,000); Manitoba $653,000 ($500,000); Saskatchewan $375,000 ($350,000); Alberta $465,000 ($400,000); British Columbia $855,814 ($800,000).

Lt.-Gen. Crerar Succeeds McNaughton As Army Head

Other Appointments Are Announced by Defence Minister

CRERAR NOW IN ITALY

By JACK BEATLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March, 20 —(CP)— Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, 56, of Hamilton, commander of the Canadian Army Corps with the British 8th Army in Italy, has been appointed commander of the 1st Canadian Army, it was announced today in the Commons by Defence Minister Ralston.

Col. Ralston said Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Stuart, 52, Kingston, Ont., Chief of the Canadian General Staff, had relinquished his appointment as 1st. Army commander—a post he has held temporarily since December when Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, 57, was granted leave of absence because of ill-health.

Col. Ralston said Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Stuart, 52, Kingston, Ont., Chief of the Canadian General Staff, had relinquished his appointment as 1st. Army commander—a post he has held temporarily since December when Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, 57, was granted leave of absence because of ill-health.

Gen. McNaughton, still resting at his home here, had nothing to say on his future plans. A recent report of the National Defence Council listed him as president "on temporary leave to the army." The General never has said whether he is going to retire from the army or go back to the council. He is still in uniform.

Other Appointments

Other appointments announced today by Col. Ralston were:

Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. (Tommy) Burns, 46, Westmount, Que., former divisional commander in Italy to the acting rank of lieutenant in command of a corps—presumably the 1st. Corps in Italy.

Brig. B. M. Hoffmeister, 36, of Vancouver, commander of an infantry battalion in Sicily and Italy, to the acting rank of major-general. While the announcement did not say so, it seems logical that he has been made divisional commander, perhaps succeeding Gen. Burns.

Commander of Canadian ships corps—the 2nd—is Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, 40, Kingston, Ont., which likely means a command for him in the one in Britain. Hence it is possible, in connection with the team of Crerar and Simonds will lead Canada's forces in the forthcoming European invasion.

Gen. Crerar's succession to Gen. McNaughton had been predicted when Gen. McNaughton's leave of absence was first announced. He went to Britain a month after war broke out to prepare for the arrival of the first Canadian contingent, and since that time has been Chief of general staff, chief of general staff, divisional commander in Britain and corps commander in Britain and later in Italy, and now is army commander.

Permanent Officer as First War

Rated as a thorough-going strategist and administrator, Gen. Crerar became a permanent force officer after serving with the 1st Division in the First Great War as an artillery officer. He later succeeded Sir Alan Brooke, now chief of the Imperial General Staff, as artillery staff officer of the Canadian corps.

Another predecessor of his in the last war was Gen. McNaughton, they followed each other in the corps counter-battery staff officer post.

A peacetime course in England saw Gen. Crerar meet and marry Field Marshal Sir Archibald (now Lord) Wavell, Viceroy of India.

Returning to Canada in 1927, he served for a time as professor of tactics at Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont., and in 1932 he was military adviser to Canada's delegation to the Geneva disarmament conference.

He also served as director of military operations and intelligence at the headquarters and in 1938 was appointed commandant of R. M. C., which post continued to hold until the outbreak of the present war.

A month after the declaration of war he was given command of the combatant officer to prepare for the arrival of the first contingent of Canadian troops.

Chief of General Staff

He returned to Canada in July, 1940 and after 15 days as vice-chief of the general staff was made chief of the general staff until Dec. 22, 1941, when he became 2nd Canadian divisional commander—a post he occupied until April 24, 1942, when he took command of the 1st Canadian Corps.

He spent much of the staff work necessary for the Canadian forces which operated in Sicily and now is operating as a corps in Italy. His son, Peter, enlisted in the ranks early in the war and graduated as an officer in 1942. His daughter, Peggy, was married overseas to an artillery officer and is also in the war zone abroad. Mrs. Crerar now resides in Ottawa.

Gen. Burns, 46, is another who received his commission upon graduation from the Royal Military College, early in the First Great War.

He came out of the war with a captaincy and the Military Cross to follow a staff college course, and in peacetime was highlighted by his work in behalf of aerial photography and map-making under the direction of the officer, who was later, to be Gen. McNaughton.

Studied in Germany.

He studied in Germany, at the Berlin University College in England, at the Staff College of Quetta, India, and had just completed a course at the Imperial Defence College when the second Great War broke out.

As general staff officer at Canadian military headquarters, London, he worked with Gen. Crerar in preparing for the first contingent of the Canadian army. Returning to Canada in May, 1940, he was appointed general staff officer (1st grade), of the Second Canadian Division and later assistant deputy chief of the general staff.

He returned overseas in 1941 as brigadier, general staff, of a Canadian corps, but came back to Canada as officer administering the Canadian armored corps.

Upon his return to England with the Canadian division he commanded overseas until his promotion to the rank of major-general commanding the division. He recently has been serving in Italy. His wife and young daughter, Mary, reside in Ottawa's Second Youngest General.

Gen. Hoffmeister becomes the second youngest general in the Canadian army, his junior being Maj.-Gen. George Kitching, 33, Oakville, Ont., a divisional commander. Canada's other divisional commanders are Maj.-Gen. Chris Vokes, 38, Brighton, who has been identified as commander of the 1st division in Italy; Maj.-Gen. Charles Foulkes, 43, London, Ont., and Maj.-Gen. R. F. L. Keller, 43, Kelowna, B.C.

Gen. Hoffmeister an auditor in civilian life, commanded a Canadian infantry battalion in Sicily and Italy until he was promoted to the rank of brigadier in October.

Given Bar to D.S.O.

Winner of the Distinguished Service Order for "inspired leadership, coolness and determination" in two days' of fighting to capture Agira, Sicily, Gen. Hoffmeister continued to vistinghish himself in the campaign in Italy and his award of the Bar to the D.S.O was officially announced last Friday.

He has been commissioned a lieutenant in a British Columbia regiment, the Seaforth Highlanders of Canada, in 1927. His went overseas early in the war and assumed the rank of lieusenant-colonel in 1942. Mrs. Hoffmeister resides in Vancouver.

WINNER OF M.C. DIES

New Glasgow, N.S., March 20.— Lieut. A. C. MacNeil of New Glasgow, recently awarded the Military Cross for gallantry in Italy, died there Thursday of spinal meningitis, his parents were advised during the weekend.

Capt. MacNeil was decorated for leading his unit under heavy enemy fire in a river crossing during the Italian campaign.

IN COMMAND

Maj.-Gen. George Kitching, D.S.O., who is in command of a Canadian division. Maj.-Gen. Kitching, who was born in Shawinigan, Canton, China, received his military education at Bedfordnet Military College. Coming to Canada in 1927 he settled in Montreal. He went overseas with the First Canadian Division in November, 1939. He won the D.S.O. in action in the sicilian campaign.

NURSING HEAD

Principal Matron (Major) Dorothy I. MacRae, R.R.C., of Gould, Ont., whose appointment as matron-in-chief of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps Nursing Service, and promotion to the rank of lieutenant-colonel, has been announced. She succeeds Col. Elizabeth I. Smellie, C.B.E., R.R.C., who retires on account of age from the R.C.A.M.C. and return to the Victorian Order of Nurses for Canada takes place on March 30.

Canadiens Establish Record This Season of Never Having Been Beaten on Home Ice

This Mark May Never be Equalled in the History of N.H.L.

PLAYOFFS ARRANGED

By The Canadian Press

Montreal Canadiens started their high-pressure hockey right through to the close of the National League season, winning both ends of a weekend doubleheader from the lowly New York Rangers. Canadiens won 11-3 in Montreal Saturday and took the final game of the series, their 6-1 in New York last night, in other weekend games, Detroit Red Wings and Chicago Black Hawks split a doubleheader with Red Wings winning 6-3 on home ice and Hawks shut-out the Wings 3-0 at Chicago. Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Boston Bruins 10-2 Saturday night at Toronto.

The Stanley Cup play-off opens Tuesday at Montreal and Canadiens with Leafs and Canadiens meeting in one semi-final and Red Wings and Black Hawks in the other. Series and games in both best-of-seven series will also be at Montreal and Detroit on Thursday.

Herb Cain of Boston Bruins wound up the season's individual scoring champion, adding two assists from the Toronto game, to book his total points to 82 — a new record. Another new record was set by Montreal Canadiens with 28 victories and seven draws for a total of 35 points.

Boston played with 10 men Saturday night, including Benny Grant, since Toronto goalie, Frankie Brimsek, Art Jackson and Harvey Jackson scored the Bruins goals while the Leafs line of Gus Bodnar, 1944 Calder rookie trophy winner, Lorne Carr and Gus Davidson led the scoring parade for Toronto.

Bodnar Scores Twice

Bodnar scored twice and assisted in three goals, while Carr earned one tally and assisted in three, also Davidson tallied three times. Bruins Wolfe with two and Ted Kennedy and Cain each added the remaining goals.

Doug Bentley and Carl Liscombe led the scoring at Detroit Saturday each with two goals. Earl Seibert added the Chicago tally and Jack Brown, Bill Jennings, Syd Howe and Don Grosso netted Detroit counters for Wings. At Chicago, Seibert and Clint Smith were the marksmen with Mike Karakas, Black Hawks' goal-tender, earning his third shutout of the season.

Scoring honors at Montreal went to Ray Getliffe who netted three goals. The Blake and Gerry Heffernan regular defence combination and Elmer Lach, Maurice Richard, Bob Fillion and Murph Chamberlain shot singles. Gerry Astephen also got a MacDonald scored for Rangers.

Johnston drew the only goal for Rangers at New York Sunday night while Getliffe led Montreal's scoring for the second night in succession with two goals and two assists. Chamberlain, Richard, Heffernan and Lach added a goal each.

SISTER OF LADY EATON DIES

Lindsay, March 20—(CP)—Ella McCrea, of Lady Eaton, Toronto, died at her home here Saturday after a long illness. Born at Omemee, Ont., about 14 miles west of Peterboro, Ont., she lived there until 20 years ago when she came to this town.

Toronto, March 20 — (CP)—End of every hockey season revives interest in the fate of two silverware pieces of silverware and this year is no exception. St. Patrick's Day with its shamrocks and once-a-year brogue prompted Sas (Montreal) star of the N.H.L. to muse on the wherea-bouts of the O'Brien Trophy, nominally the property of the runner-up in the N.H.L. race.

The trophy headed by J. Ambrose O'Brien of the old Renfrew Millionaires, originally went to the N.H.L. leaders when the Montreal Prince of Wales aegises took over. Sas says Red Dutton is on the trail of the O'Brien silver, reportedly last seen many years ago in the old Canadian Arena hockey club office in the Windsor Hotel.

Not that the second-place team ever grieves too much over "the next year" slogan though, because it always stands a chance of gathering in the Stanley Cup, a much more prized object.

Suggestion Box:

Bob (Calgary Herald) Mamlin suggests a playoff between the winners in N.H.L. team and an all-star outfit from the Central Alberta Junior hockey league. Contending the western team could give the big-leaguers a run for their money, in-

B. C. I. JUNIORS WIN CAGE TITLE FROM PICTON

Sudden Death Fixture Goes to Local School by 25 to 19

PLAY IN TORONTO

Belleville Collegiate won the junior basketball championship of the Bay of Quinte district and will proceed to the Junior C.O.S.S.A. playdowns at Toronto, by beating Picton Collegiate 25 to 19 in a game Belleville Collegiate gymnasium on Saturday night. The game was a sudden death affair and the result gives B.C.I. both home and home and aggregate victories over the Picton interscholastic conference.

The Belleville quintette gained an eight point lead in the initial half, scoring 14 to 6, but Picton's fighting tots forged ahead 18 to 11. However, play was much closer in the second half when Belleville scored 16 points to Picton's 7.

Spafford, Hammell, Rollins and Cameron spearheaded the group champion team on the scoring while Rand, Picton forward, led all players with 11 points. Referee Hunter getting 8 and Rankin 5 to account for the Picton scoring. Referee Melville's scoring was evenly divided.

The line-ups:

New York, March 20 (AP)—When the suggestion was advanced last winter that something ought to be done to speed up emergency trading easier, the club owners just howled two anything so heretic and let it do. . . . But it looks as if those emergencies requiring quick action are going to be few. The Yankees, with Bill Dickey in the Navy and Rollie Hemsley on the farm, had to scurry around for catchers and came up with Aaron Robinson, also Navy bound. Mike Garbark and Engineer Bob Dollby, when trade to open was somewhat late . . . The Dodgers, with inadequate replacements for Mickey Owen, who will make frequent trips to his farm, expect to have to call on Ducky Medwick for action behind the plate. . . . But the Giants, counting a couple of veterans who haven't signed, sit on the Jersey City roster and a couple who turned up for tryouts. Can call on seven catchers if necessary. . . . Looks as if something must be out of balance. . . .

BUDGET DEBATE IN LEGISLATURE STARTS TUESDAY

May Occupy Members for Two Full Weeks, Possibly Three

WISMER TO LEAD

Toronto, March 20 —(CP)— The closely-divided Ontario legislature swings into a fullfledge debate on the budget Tuesday which may occupy the legislators for two full weeks, perhaps three.

Pri.-Lt. L. E. Wismer, former editor of a financial publication (The Monetary Times) and chief financial critic for the C.C.F. opposition, will open the debate on the budget presented to the House last Thursday by Treasurer L. E. Frost.

The budget showed a reduction of more than $13,000,000 in Ontario's net debt, a surplus of more than $6,000,000, no new taxes except doubling that on pari-mutuel racing tickets, and a grant of $3,500,000 toward education while it kept communism studies the land tax structure.

One C.C.F. spokesman said more would probably be heard of the government's pledge to take over 50 per cent. of the cost of construction despite the $3,000,000 education grant and other steps along this line as reported in the budget.

Before the debate is through, Ontario will have heard Premier Drew, Opposition Leader Jolliffe, J. Belanger (L-Prescott), chief Liberal critic, A. St. Clair Gordon (L-East West), a former provincial treasurer, Mitchell Hepburn (L-Elgin) (former Liberal) Premier, and other speakers.

Premier Drew Against Extension.

Just how many others will be heard is a question. Conference circles say there was no word from the C.C.F. or Liberal camps on the number of speakers they intended. It is thought that C.C.F. criticisms will delve into Conservative financial affairs to some length.

Premier Drew, when questioned regarding the forthcoming debate, said: "It is not desired to extend the debate beyond a discussion of the essential issues raised, which, I think, will be the not less than many speakers and most of the speeches will, I believe, be made on the estimates of the different departments."

The Premier said he would be the second speaker on the government list, immediately after Mr. Wismer and Mr. Belanger, veteran C.C.F. French-Canadian member of the House. A. St. Clair Gordon, who has been Hon. Gill-Robert Walker Pitfield's successor, will follow him to take the leader role for the Liberals. So far as can be seen at present.

Mr. Jolliffe said he would probably wind up the debate for the C.C.F.

ONLY SLIGHTLY INJURED

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 333

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When good bridge partners get together, they seem to have all-seeing minds. It is easy for them to tell the exact number of cards held in the hands they are unable to see.

They do this in a very simple way, any one can understand how it is done. They first show which suit is longer. They then show how long is each suit.

When each length suits, they first show which suit is longer. When one suit is bid twice, it is shown as five cards long.

Keep plugging with this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH
♠ A, K, 10 4 2
♥ None
♦ 9 7
♣ K Q, J 8 4 2
NORTH
♠ 5 3
♥ K 8 7 6 4 3
♦ A 8 2
♣ A

South opens with one club. North responds with one heart. South then bids two spades. To decide his next bid, north again follows the order of choice in T-A-N-T: takeout, assist, no-trump.

With no more takeouts and no assist, the only bid left to north is no-trump. So, he bids two notrump. And south in this spot makes a third round bid of three spades.

Having robbed spades, south says his spades are five long. Having bid clubs before spades, south says his clubs are longer. Therefore, north knows that south has six clubs and five spades.

The south, two-spade bid on the second round was a one-jump: a signal that the bidding must not stop short of game. And two spades is not a game. So, north must bid again.

Still following T-A-N, north now has support for a rebiddable spade suit. So, north could jolly well assist to four spades in this spot. But hold everything!

If north bids four spades, south may pass. And north in this spot has seen enough to tell him that a slam is probably itching to be bid. Should he slam right into it? Nay Nay. He should creep up on it.

"Trouble Brewing", Funny

In the new George Formby picture, "Trouble Brewing" pretty Dorothy Withers has the feminine lead. Although her name is not very familiar with filmgoers, she has succeeded in stealing more than one picture with her cute mannerisms.

It is not surprising, therefore, that she has appeared in twenty-five films in just over twelve months and now, out of a whole lineup of British lovelies, she has gone one step further up the ladder by being chosen to play George Formby's leading lady in his latest Ealing production.

As Mary Brown, secretary to the Hon. Bobby Miller of "Daily Sun," she is given every opportunity to display her unique acting ability and succeeds in establishing herself as one of our best hopes for future stardom.

When George Formby, who portrays George Guilty in "Trouble Brewing" confides in Mary his hopes of capturing a gang of counterfeiters, it is she who encourages him. George has quite an insignificant job on the newspaper but is terribly keen on crime detection and devises a finger-print ink which he is sure will enable him to trace the culprits. Mary promises to assist him and after innumerable adventures she accidentally discovers the leader of the gang, is kidnapped and taken to their headquarters. Fortunately, however, she is able to leave a message for George, who rescues her against overwhelming odds.

LOST 84 DAYS

After wandering 84 days in the frozen wastes of the Labrador Peninsula, Lieut. Leon Crane, 34, of Philadelphia, Pa., has returned to civilization. Crane parachuted from an army bomber over the heart of Ungava, Feb. 21, and four companions were reported missing and presumed dead. In spite of his ordeal, Crane arrived at Knob Lake in such vigorous health that he was placed in charge of a search for his fellow passengers whom he believes may be alive.

HOLLYWOOD and HERE

By HYE BOSKIN

"Yankee Doodle Dandy," Warner Brothers musical version of the life of the late George M. Cohan, was the choice of Canadian theatre men as the film which attracted the most patronage to their places of business during 1943, according to the annual poll of Canadian Film Weekly, a trade magazine.

Press and radio critics, asked to name the finest films of the year, picked "In Which We Serve," Noel Coward's magnificent tribute to the profession of the British sailor, as first.

Theatre men were asked to name the ten pictures and players which had attracted the most people during 1943 and the critics were asked to name the best films and players.

Though Greer Garson, the British star who starred in "Mrs. Miniver" and "Random Harvest," was the choice of theatre men for popularity and critics for acting excellence, the difference of opinion about the best picture reflects the old quarrel between artistry and public taste. There is but slight proof by the fact that "In Which We Serve," the critics' first choice, was rated but as a boxoffice film by theatre men.

The choices of both critics and theatre men showed that war films are not strong attractions and that instead of an escapist nature, whether musical or dramatic, are far more popular.

Following are the complete selections in each case:

Theatre Choice of Ten Best Boxoffice Films

(1) Yankee Doodle Dandy, (2) Random Harvest, (3) My Friend Flicka, (4) Casablanca, (5) Coney Island, (6) Hello, Frisco, Hello, (7)=Tie) Stage Door Canteen and This Is the Army, (8—Tie) In Which We Serve and Hillie's Children.

Theatre Choice of Ten Best Boxoffice Stars

(1) Greer Garson, (2) Betty Grable, (3—Tie) Bob Hope, Humphrey Bogart, (4) James Cagney, (5—Tie) Betty Davis, Walter Pidgeon, Clark Gable, (6—Tie) Bing Crosby, Abbot & Costello.

Critics' Choice of Ten Best Films

(1) In Which We Serve, (2) Random Harvest, (3) The More the Merrier, (4) This Is the Army, (5) Yankee Doodle Dandy, (6—Tie) Stage Door Canteen, Shadow of a Doubt, Woman Comedy, Heaven Can Wait, (7—Tie) Claudia, Holy Matrimony, Mission to Moscow, Ox-Bow Incident.

Critics' Choice of Ten Best Stars

(1) Greer Garson, (2—Tie) James Cagney, Jean Arthur, Ingrid Bergman, Charles Coburn, Humphrey Bogart, (3—Tie) Cary Grant, Teresa Wright, Margaret O'Brien, Walter Pidgeon, Gary Cooper, Reddy Mc-Dowell, Ronald Colman.

American critics picked "Random Harvest" as the best film of 1943 and the Canadian choice for first, "In Which We Serve," was rated eighth. Betty Crable, second choice in Canada as the best theatre attraction, was first in the USA.

Hershey Bears Clinch First Place in Division by Beating Buffalo

BARONS BEAT TWICE

(By The Canadian Press)

Hockey league preparing for their playoffs which start tomorrow night. The regular schedule is completed during the weekend.

Hershey Bears defeated Buffalo Bisons 3-2 Saturday night and gained a 6-6 draw a return game last night. Indianapolis Capitals played a pair of their best games of the season when they defeated Cleveland Barons twice, 3-2 Saturday night and 4-3 last night.

Bears clinched first place in the eastern division of the league, a position they have held all season. Saturday night, Jim Prentice and Peggy O'Neil scored a pair of goals in the first period to start Bears on the way to win. Blaine Dede Klein tallied in the second to prevent Bears from getting a shutout.

Herc Ponzo tallied early in the final for Bears while Fred Hunt squeezed in Bisco's second tally.

Last night Buffalo took the lead. Hunt scored the only first period goal, but Fred Thurlow added a second tally for Buffalo at the opening of the second period and Hunt made the score 3-0 a few minutes later.

However, O'Neill, Prentice and Bill Hudson came through with a counter salvo before the end of the second to tie the score. In the third period Eldy Kobussen and George Patterson each scored.

Superb goaltending by 17-year-old Harry Lumley was what helped Indianapolis Capitals obtain their victories over Cleveland Barons, leaders of the western division of the league.

Barons slashed 45 shots at Lumley Saturday night but despite only two past him, hard shots by Norm Locking and Les Cunningham. Dick Kowcinak, Alex Ritson and Bill Thompson scored for Indianapolis.

Last night Ritson and Carl Smith scored in the first period to give Caps a 2-0 lead. Thompson scored in the second and again in the third to clinch the game before Barons had a tally. Pete Horeck broke through with the Cleveland tally.

THE LITTLE DOG BARKED

By ANNE ROWE

CHAPTER 11.

"I hope I done right, Inspector," she fluttered imploringly, by the way he sat contemplating the annual Influenzy. "Not letting young Mr. Patrick Lee Bonehall, Esq., go I mean. But Doc said not to let anyone near the little sufferer, including you'n Mrs. Turner. And—wanting to feed him plain, on top all the medicine Doc give him! I declare!"

"You did perfectly right, Mrs. Gates," the Inspector told her graciously. "I'm sure Patrick is a soul near that dog. And special, don't let anyone feed him."

The animal hospital, a long room, scrubbed and shining, had a row of sanitary-looking raised stalls dow none side, each with a sliding window in back, for better observation of the "patient." And in the first pubblyhole—in top all inmate of the whole "ward"—lay Stray. Peacefully asleep, or so it seemed.

He looked like a burlesque of a corseted lady of the gay nineties, the way he was trussed up in a wide, stiffened belt. But he was breathing evenly and without pain. And when I bent to scratch his head and said: "Stray—do you hear me, old boy?" he opened his eyes briefly, thumped his tail sleepily, and snuggled his head in deeper into my hand.

"Pull of pargerie, ain't he?" Inspector Pettengill asked. He sounded disapointed.

"Avoid—you are him a soporific," Mrs. Gates assented with professional dignity. "To keep him quiet. So he won't jump them fresh-cet ribs out of place again."

"Heart, too. Got to be home soon?"

"I can't say. He's to the other side of the bay. A pedigreed setter, having trouble with her first litter," Mrs. Gates vouchsafed.

"Too bad. We can't get him out to give this here Stray more dope's he must. I need the pup for a witness. The way he's now, he ain't no good to himself or me," the Inspector said wistfully. And then grabbed my arm and drew me to-

Ease Coughing, Loosen Up Phlegm This Home-Tested Way

Relief from Distress of Colds Starts at Once! No Gagging, No Stomach Upsets!

Now relieve maddening coughing spasms and other tormenting symptoms of colds with the best known—most widely used—medication of its kind in all the world . . . MEN PREFER. Mothers know it best!

Just melt a good spoonful of Vicks VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water. Then . . . breathe in the steaming, medicated vapors. Feel the grand relief as VapoRub's double medication is carried with every breath right to tormented upper breathing passages! It loosens clinging phlegm, quiets coughing, soothes irritation, and helps clear the head.

FOR SEVERE RELIEF, rub throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. VapoRub works for hours—3 ways at once—to relieve distress! Remember, it's Vicks VapoRub!

ward the door with a firm: "To you neither. Don't help him or you, sitting on that bunk, scrubbing his face."

I was getting used to the Inspector's unorthodox methods and departures. And so I followed him out and into the corridor, considering it he would now go in pursuit of Ada's supposed invisible echo, and whether he'd take me with him.

I was way ahead of the Inspector—with my thoughts, it appeared. For, once we were under way, he slapped back to Stray—and Bill Parris.

"Nice pup you got yourself," he began cunningly. "Knew you with half an eye he'd be a good bird dog, all that dope in him! I'm sure glad Mrs. Gates didn't let that chocolate-tottin' actor near him. Might found a dead dog, if she had."

I had had the same unpleasant thought, But I hated to acknowledge it.

"It does seem a little strange, Bill—Parris driving post-haste to the vet's, just after you'd asked for whom Silvey had been heading on the stage," I admitted. "But it doesn't prove anything. Perhaps if you'd asked him to give you the chocolate-tottin' actor's name, he'd have said—Stray—to you!"

"The Inspector shook his head. "Not good! If they was poison in it, he would said he cit it himself, in a dinkum fit face too. He's an actor, don't forget."

I hadn't forgotten it. In fact, I'd just been thinking of Linwood's assurance that Bill Parris was the best actor of Fern Cove and could play anything. If that were true, this ingenuous country manners could be put on. He could be the blacked, tired-in-the-wool simpleton imaginable—

"Only point is: Why should he kill old Mack? What's the motive?" Inspector Pettengill proceeded to voice his thoughts. "Maybe we find out where we're going now. You got an idea, maybe that I—or Sergeant—I'm taking you along?"

"Oh, both counts," I told him.

"To the murdered man's house. To see what was he aiming to look for?" he informed me. "And I'm taking you, because I want you to help me. You got brains—or you wouldn't written a play worth money, they say! Ik. Leastway I ain't caught you at it so far. So—what you say? Do I swear you in, or will you keep mum about what you hear, without it?"

The idea of "swearing" for the police didn't appeal to me at all. But being made a regular deputy seemed as embarrassing. And so I hastily assured the Inspector he could rely on my services without oath.

"Good! But mind you take orders just like you was sworn in," he told me. "Here's our road. Second to the left and first turn to the right afterwards. Adda Tretchen said."

We hadn't far to go. Only through a mounting cornfield and a strip of woods, before we came to an overgrown clearing high up on a hill, with a far-flung view of the bay, and the remnants of what had once been a sizable farm, and now was not much more than a picturesque ruin.

Of various outbuildings, a large stio among them, had practically returned to the soil and were sinking but hah green mounds and crags. Only the farmhouse itself, so overrun with creepers they seemed to hold it together, was in fairly good repair, and somehow looked as friendly and cheerful as the dead country. Its shiny small windows blinked from between luxurious frames of foliage; a row of hollyhocks marched down its length to the attached open woodshed—changed into an outdoors living room by a few ordinary chairs and a table—and Bertha, the bright blue auto, gleaming dimly in the shadow of the building's bam.

Constable Corey rose from one of the chairs in the woodshed at our approach, reporting: "No one been around, sir, and I fed the chickens," when we got out of the car. Presently we were inside old Mack's house—the strangest, and also one of the most compactly comfortable, I have ever seen.

The old man had definitely believed in confirmed living. Only one room—the large kitchen taking up the whole depth of the building and abutting the wood-shed—we'd considered his own use. The best room, evidently the erstwhile "parlor," had become a store room, with wood piled to the ceiling at one end and provisions of all kinds stacked on deep shelves along the walls. And a former bedroom probably had been made into a sort of den or ser; ice. Old Mack had made it into a bedroom, complete with a runway built into one of the rear windows, and the Inspector, after a brief look up it lively cackling when the Inspector opened the door.

It was all strange and different to me, at least—tremendously revealing in its spontaneous orientality, coupled with the meticulous neatness of a fanatic old maid.

On the kitchen especially—his own personal domain—the old man had lavished the most scrupulous care. Everything in it gleamed. From the smooth, scrubbed white pine floor to the pots and pans hanging above the large iron range in a corner—the sole heating plant I discovered in the old farmhouse. The room was only clean. It was homelike in its clever arrangement of the furnishings: an odd medley of rudely homemade pieces and heirlooms worthy of a museum. And incredibly neat besides, with everything a lone man needed for his comfort lined up on the shelves which ran along the walls. Glassware and dishes for use—and fishing tackle. And something else.

On a low shelf, within reach of a cushioned rocker beside a lively butterfly table, with a pot-bellied kerosene lamp on it, lay Mack's scrap book of Fern Cove programs, going back to 1912, the year of the Fern Cove Amateur Dramatic Society's first appearance. And on the bottom shelf underneath, Bill Parris' script—a chair and table, stood a row of cardboard boxes, neatly labeled and dated: 1912-15, 1917-21, etc.

The Inspector and I pounced on them simultaneously, I on the last box, he on the first.

They were filled with clippings of anything and everything pertaining to Fern Cove: actors, plays, prominent visitors, the goings-on of the residents.

Old Mack certainly had lived for Fern Cove.

"Did you ever! All them boxes, chock full of clippings quarter of a century old! Sure was batty about the place, this here old Mack!" the Inspector said with voiced in, silent thought. "In this one they're a-pasting pages younger, for seventeen to twenty-one, and—"

He suddenly stopped talking and stared at the newspaper clipping in his hand incredulously, blinking it closer—studying it from a distance. At last he whistled—long and low—pulling the clipping into his wallet as if it were something precious indeed.

It was too much for me. "What is it? What have you found?"

"The clue. Anyways, a clue," the Inspector said me with a deep breath of satisfaction. "Something to go by and bite into. Theeh here boys with me to my teahs said, so help me, I'm going to read every least bit of print in 'em, quick as I can. But you needn't look so curious, Mrs. Turner. It won't help you. I'm going to tell you what I found just yet. Might cramp your style."

All during the short ride back from old Mack's house the Inspector kept thinking advice into me.

"Get with them, and were ready. Ask 'em to lunch. Nothing like good victiels to make people talk."

Which was the best Vetoing only the luncheon party as "suspiciously a bait, and suggesting I lunch at the regular actor's boarding house, Hutch, instead.

He dropped me at the inn, with a gentle: "Ta ta, Mrs. Turner. Until two. That's when we go calling together."

It wasn't half past eleven. Rehearsal would go on for another hour at least before the recess. What could I do in the meantime? Watch the rehearsal, I decided. And presently found myself walking into the theatre, and tiptoeing down the aisle.

Linda and Bill Parris were on the stage, working on their big scene of the third act. Linwood was directing them in his favorite attitude: astride a chair, chin on gloved hands.

Linda's wrofold anguish—about her husband's neglect and her infatuation for the visiting him—was real. And Bill Parris was portraying the banker with a tenderness and dignity of which I hadn't thought him capable. Altogether, the scene was done so right and as I'd dreamed it should be, I stood in the aisle for quite a time utterly fascinated, before I groped for a nearby seat. It appeared as I pulled it down.

Linwood turned and said "Quiet!" sharply.

His direct rebuke effectively broke the spell the two young actors had woven and made me so furious, I wanted to run up on the stage and give him a piece of my mind! tell him he'd direct the play on Broadway—over my dead body!

But of course I did no such thing.... After a while I arose and walked up the aisle again, as quietly as I could.

Halfway to the entrance I thought I heard a faint sound of my footfalls. When I reached the door a long arm shot over my head to open it for me, and Orne Paulsen said: "I'm sorry, I didn't start the play, Mrs. Turner."

He had been sitting a few rows behind me, watching Linda and Bill Parris rehearse, he told me in his lobby. We went somewhere together. That's what I wanted to talk to you about, ever since last night.

"That Linda and young Parris are both—good actors?" I asked, surprised.

Orne grinned. "Hardly. Gosh, I don't know how to put it without sounding like a meddler! Maybe I shouldn't say it, but—it isn't only on stage they're so in tune. Bill is making a play for Linda."

"I'm sure he isn't the first and won't be the last. But I'm very attractive." I told him, more and more astonished.

"Meaning: mind your own business!" Paulsen smiled crookedly. "You're quite right. Or would be, under ordinary circumstances. But as it is, it puts me on a spot, for all. McVane asked me to look out for you and Linda, and as I have to push myself in where I'm not wanted—Tonight's dress rehearsal, and fifty miles away for dinner. I hear. It isn't much fun for me. I'm sure you're not enjoying Mrs. Turner."

"I do. Only too well. I think it's swell of you, trying to protect Linda," I assured him warmly.

"Thank you. But—I wish Linda'd have the sense to do without dinner dates that week. Couldn't she—tell her it would be better for her to stay home and study, maybe?"

There was something in Paulsen's tone—an underlying urgency ....

"Let me get this straight," I said guardedly. "Do you want Linda to stay home so that you needn't make an unwanted third, or do you object to Bill Parris in particular? Because you think he may be the man Stray was after?"

Paulsen looked uncomfortable—like a small boy caught in some mischief. "I'm not saying it! I don't know," he said after a lengthy pause. "I only know that Ione Welland is busy whispering she knows who did it. If she was in right, while he was waiting for his cue. And—well, it could have been Linda. The rope could have been cut right before our noses. Every-one was intent on the rehearsal."

Ione Welland—Mrs. Tom Linwood—of course!

"Did Miss Welland tell her observations to Sergeant Hatch?" I asked.

Paulsen shrugged. "I'm sure she tried. It only to get a rise out of her husband. They aren't very—er fond of each other. But the whole investigation this morning was pretty routine. The good Sergeant and his scenog were much more interested in their back-stage experience than mere murder. Oh, well, it's a ghastly mess! If I'd had any sense at all I was getting into—much as I wanted the lead in your play, I'd have said 'Thank you, no' when it was offered to me!"

"You would? And what about me?" I countered bitterly. "Do you give the Fern Cove Players credit for the publicity they've given me? Not to mention the publicity I'd get if I walked out now, after all the talked me into writing the play, or Mc Vane persuade me into giving up a wonderful trip with my husband and coming here, to be pushed around and insulted and get mixed up with murders!"

Report Germans Occupy Hungary Appears True

Ankara, March 20 (AP)— A report that the Germans are occupying Hungary appears confirmed, the Bucharest correspondent of Anadolu Ajans said today.

The correspondent added the occupation apparently came while regent Nicholas Horthy and his Hungarian military staff were conferring with Adolf Hitler.

New York, March 20 (AP)— The NBC said today an Ankara broadcast had announced the occupation of all strategic points in Hungary by German troops.

The British report says they are believed to have refused Hitler's demand to reject the Russian advance." NBC said Within 24 hours, the Hungarian radio has been broadcasting only German news"

Search Continued For Missing Plane On An Ice-Floe

Montreal, March 20 — (CP) — Officials of Canadian Pacific Air Lines said today search was continuing for a missing aircraft which made a successful landing on an ice-floe in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and is believed to be still floating seaward.

The plane, operated by Quebec Airways, was carrying one passenger and a crew of two when it reported overdue on a routine flight. It was piloted by Capt. Lionel Imbeau, reported by radio it had landed successfully.

The plane was located last week, and supplies of food, rubber boats and other emergency equipment were dropped, and the men below were known to pick up the supplies. Recently a flying boat capable of landing beside the floe could arrive, however, as the ice-floe is still rich for and snow flurries.

Search for the floe was continued today following improved weather conditions, with CF-A, RCAF, and U.S. Army planes co-operating. In addition, an ice-breaker was expected to join the searchers near the ice-floe.

Names of the men aboard the aircraft were not announced.

Bus Plunges Into River From Bridge

Passaic, N.J., March 20 (AP)— A bus plunged from a bridge into the Passaic River during a sleet storm today and seven rescued occupants complained that cries for other persons were inside the submerged vehicle.

The estimate of nine came from a boy, with scuba putting the figure at 10 or 12.

Employees of a riverside factory heard the crash and leaped. Finland rafts out windows and into the water to facilitate rescue work, while Nicholas Mulick of Wallington, a fellow worker, dove into the river and helped three survivors ashore.

The bus was en route to Wallington and Woodridge, site of a huge airplane engine plant.

Alleged Leniency by Members Of Veterans' Guard of Canada To German Prisoners Probed

Charged Guard Took Prisoners Into Tavern to Drink Beer With Them

WENT OUT WITH GIRLS

Buckingham, Que., March 20— (CP)—An investigation has been opened into charges of alleged leniency on the part of members of the Veterans' Guard of Canada in charge of a detail of German prisoners of war working for a sewing machine company at nearby Buckingham, it was learned today.

Mayor Philippe Maste of Buckingham said that a government investigator visited this town Saturday after an inquiry had opened here last Wednesday, which aroused the indignation of the townfolk.

The mayor said the situation probably will be discussed at a meeting of the town council tonight.

"Last Wednesday," said Mayor Maste, two German prisoners were brought to Buckingham by one guard. They were taken to the office of Dr. T. B. McCallum for dental treatment. After their visit there, they strolled down Main St., visited a tavern, where they had beer together and went to a restaurant where they picked up four girls.

"They hired a car here and drove back to Thurso, where they met the other guard, who was to accompany them here. At Thurso they had more beer and proceeded to all get drunk together."

Mayor Maste added it was not the first instance of fraternizing between guards and prisoners witnessed in Buckingham.

"These fellows go into the taverns, drive there and talk in the face of our own people who have lost their sons, husbands and fathers overseas and some of whom have died for Canada, and it is not very nice to have to listen to that," he said.

"The people don't like it," he added.

Col. H. R. Alley, officer commanding the Veterans' Guard in Ottawa district, could not be reached in Ottawa for comment on the charges.

WALL STREET

New York, March 20 (AP)—Stocks generally slipped a cog in today's investment machine as early speculative buyers failed to follow through in moderate fashion.

Declines of fractions to a point predominated near the fourth hour.

Tops for 1944 were held unchanged by Allegheny Pfd., M-K-T, Lackawanna, Pure Oil and Standard Oil of New Jersey. Gains of those eventually back away. Losers included Santa Fe, Atlantic Coast Line, Alleghany Prior Pfd., U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, U.S. Rubber, Anaconda, Schenley and Montgomery Ward.

The Canadian group tended downward. Distillers Seagram lost 5-8, Dome Mines 3-8, McIntyre 1-4 and Lake Shore 1-4. An exception was C.P.R., up 1-8.

Physician Fitness Program Urged By Youth Delegation

Toronto, March 20 — (CP) — A provincial youth delegation met President Duplessis today and presented a brief urging a province-wide physical fitness program, legislation to curb child labor in Ontario and a careful study of existing minimum wage laws.

The brief commended the government for its education policies and urged that the government's bill to set up publication of discriminatory matter relating to race or creed be amended "to include legislation of discriminatory practices in employment."

The brief also urged extension of the franchise to all over 21 in municipal elections; a petition to the Federal Government urging an increase in the soldiers' clothing allowance from $96 to $98, and that the Federal government be urged to immediately adopt a national health insurance plan.

The brief was presented by a delegation of youth that was organized by the Labor Youth Federation and representatives of such organizations, trade unions and youth leaders "who in turn represent more than 20,000 young people and workers in our province."

Dangerous Tendencies

Lack of community facilities and supervision of recreational activity in Ontario was "contributing to dangerous tendencies such as small-scale race riots which occurred in Toronto, and which in other cities were attacked by gangs of boys," the brief said.

The brief said wartime employment conditions had created a situation where young persons were in fact used as a reservoir of emergency labor with apparently working long hours on jobs that had no future. The brief expressed the belief that such conditions adversely affect "not only morals of relatives in the armed forces overseas, but also the development of a healthy and fit citizenry" and urged the government to "abolish the unnecessary evil of the problem" through legislation.

A public hearing of workers of various industries to provide useful information on minimum wages, the brief said and suggested that the board be carried out by the labor committee of the Legislature or by a special board.

Establishment of a youth advisory committee of this department of labor, the Minister of Education to deal with questions relating to the welfare of Ontario's youth, was also urged.

Straight Man From Away Back

(From the Printed Word)

George Burns, foil for the jokes cracked by his wife, Gracie Allen, is considered to be the leading straight man of his times. The most notable figure of antiquity who worked at this peculiar profession was Parmenio, Alexander the Great's best general. Even in the midst of battle Parmenio would get off dull remarks to which his chief could tag a reply good enough to keep on echoing through the history books for two thousand years.

When the war with Persia was going well for the Macedonians and Greeks, Parmenio approached with a remark that gave Alexander a chance to say something which has a bearing on the present war, Europe.

and should be a warning to anyone in the United Nations who may still hope for an easy peace by negotiating with a Germany not entirely defeated.

Darius, king of Persia, fearing that even with his army of a million men he could not win the war, sent a letter to Alexander, offering an indemnity of 10,000 talents, all the territory west of the Euphrates and his daughter thrown in for good measure—in exchange for an immediate peace. So Parmenio stepped up in his role of straight man and said: "If I were Alexander, I would accept." So would I," said Alexander, "if I were Parmenio." He then went on to destroy the Persian armies so thoroughly that they never again invaded Europe.

CHANGED TO AGRICULTURE

London, March 20 — (CP-Aneta) —The German program to change occupied Holland into a completely agricultural country is evidenced by information received here that only 290 chemical factories remain out of 800 before the war and only 430 textile factories out of 680. Building material factories have been reduced from 374 to 168, the information said.

CHARGED WITH MANSLAUGHTER

Charlottetown, March 20 (CP)—Manslaughter charges will be laid Saturday against two members of the Royal Air Force here in connection with the deaths of two Charlotte women who died after drinking poison liquor. The men charged were AC. R. D. West and AC2. G. W. Gilbert, both from Britain.

give him the opportunity of linking the Ledo Road with China.

The Chinese troops cut around the Japanese at the southern exit of Hukawng Valley, which American and Chinese troops had cleared of the enemy as they drove toward the pass leading into the Mogaung Valley.

Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, Allied East Asia Commander, in an order of the day commending Stilwell's troops, said: "Your rapid advance down the Hukawng Valley and your successes in a series of encounters with the enemy are gaining you much honor and renown. You are facing a formidable enemy in difficult country, but you are outfighting and outmaneouvring him . . . "

Lash at Communications

In the air, dive bombers, fighter-bombers and fighters continued to lash at Japanese troop concentrations on a wide area while other planes struck at communications. Heavy bombers struck day and night blows against the Kalewa supply base Saturday and Sunday.

Imphal stands at the head of one of a limited number of approaches to India from Burma and beyond it lie the rail and river connections which are the main supports on the Indo side of the "Hump" supply line to China.

A communique from Lord Louis' headquarters, yesterday said: "It is now apparent that the Japanese are staging a major offensive on the Chindwin front and have crossed the (Chindwin) river in force at several points," but the bulletin gave no other details of the drive.

Meanwhile, British Indo-Burma-ting air Commandos who have established a "beachhead" 150 miles behind the Japanese lines in northern Burma, drove enemy forces from a strongly-held position in the vicinity of one of the new landing strips after hand-to-hand fighting.

Many Targets Hit.

The large-scale raids embraced the American heavy bomber daylight attacks against objectives in southeastern Germany, Prance, Austria, Yugoslavia and northern Italy and a night-pronged 1,000-bomber R.A.F. R.C.A.F. operation Saturday night.

Following up Sunday's record, Allied aerial offensive had covered five consecutive days and during that time bombs were dropped at the rate of two tons a minute throughout each day and night.

R.A.F. Mosquitos escorted by Spitefires struck at the French invasion coast in the Pas-De-Calais section with the deaths of two Charlotte women who died after drinking poison liquor. The men charged were AC. R. D. West and AC2. G. W. Gilbert, both from Britain.

Four-engined bombers, hopping across the Alps from Italy in a follow-up operation to their Friday attack on Vienna, bombed the important Klagenfurt airdrome and war plants outside Graz, 60 miles from Vienna. Other U.S. heavy bombers blasted German-held railway yards and installations at Knin and Metkovic, in Yugoslavia. Frankfort Main Target.

The German chemical centre of Frankfort was the main target of Saturday night's R.A.F. 1,000-bomber operation, but other formations swung into France and set fire to an explosives works at Bergerac, 80 miles east of Bordeaux, and still others hit into western Germany. The R.A.F. lost 22 planes during the night.

American airmen made Saturday a costly day for the German air force, destroying at least 204 planes in the air and on the ground in operations from Britain and Italy, according to official tabulations. Not included in that figure were 78 more planes destroyed or damaged on the ground at Tolda in southern Germany.

During Saturday's large-scale attacks on aircraft factories in southern Germany, 52 of the enemy were shot down from the air at a cost of 42 bombers and 15 fighters. The day's Mediterranean toll was 125 in most of them bagged in the air and on the ground during a heavy bomber attack against five airfields in the Udine area of northeastern Italy.

up submarine packs.

Alexander had special praise for Capt. F. J. (Johnny) Walker, holder of the Distinguished Service Order with two bars and the Royal Navy's champion U-boat killer, who led the patrol on its 4,000-mile cruise. His group has accounted for 17 enemy submarines sunk and others damaged.

All Kills Near Convoys.

The first of the six record kills was made 300 miles southwest of Ireland, and all were made as U-boats either lurking near or stalking Allied convoys.

Others of the wolf-pack gangs were damaged by the little sloops. But the cautious Admiralty credited victories only when great areas of oil and wreckage arose after a pattern of depth charges had shaken the depths of the Atlantic.

"What a party that was", said Lieut. W. F. Chipman of Ottawa, watch officer aboard the Wildgoose.

Chipman, 26, who joined the Royal Canadian Navy, but in the Spring of 1940, was attached to the Royal Navy, related that "about the fourth day out we made contact with the first sub by Asdic".

"There We Sat Pretty."

"The Starling and Wildgoose finished off the sub", he added. "There were no survivors—only a great deal of wreckage".

Late, after the convoy was safely piloted through a U-boat area the Icelandi shouted "Shackles on good bow", Chipman continued.

Captain Walker ordered us to lay off until the Starling arrived, but turned a blind eye to the signal like Nelson and went right in getting a kill with a single attack".

Energetic Club Holds St. Patrick's Day Party

With the Sunday School room at Holloway Street United Church decorated in traditional Irish motif and the walls resounding to popular Irish music, St. Patrick's Day was fittingly observed by members of the Energetic Club on Friday night as they gathered for their regular bi-monthly meeting. Almost the entire evening's program was in keeping with the observance of March 17th with a St. Patrick's luncheon being served to conclude the program.

Held under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Brown's group, the evening's program was opened by devotions conducted by the club president, Mr. H. Burley. The program consisted of piano solos by Mr. Alec Gordon; two popular Irish vocal numbers by Miss Marjorie Hitchon and Mr. Dwight Dills, and instrumental numbers by LAC. Charlie Church and AC1 Tom Smith, of No. 6 Air Repair Depot. These two airmen delighted their audience with accordian and electric guitar renditions. Another the program was the showing of moving picture reels by Mr. Ross Gordon, the pictures subject being flower gardens, White Mountain scenery, and camp pictures at Belleville Boys' Camp at Moira Lake. The entire assembly enjoyed a humorous game under the direction of Mr. Kenny Hopkins.

Appreciation to the guest artists for their assistance with the evening's program was expressed by Mr. Jack Grills.

100,000 GERMAN TROOPS OCCUPY HUNGARY

Some Hungarians Reported Fighting Invading Forces

Admiral N. Horthy, Regent, Claimed To Have Been Seized Before Crisis

RUMANIANS ASSIST

By WILLIAM SMITH WHITE
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, March 21 — (AP)—Heavy German occupying forces, upwards of 100,000 men, by best estimates here — were believed to be driving into Hungary today as the Nazis hurled swiftly to strengthen his Balkan line against Russian armies already in Rumania.

Some Hungarians were reported fighting this new German "protection" of their leaders, but the Nazis obtained control at the centre of the country, which was indicated by the fact the Hungarian news agency's midday broadcast ceased to operate all was serene.

Unconfirmed reports from Stockholm said two Rumanian divisions were among the force the Germans had sent into Hungary and that they were being resisted by the Hungarians.

The Turkish radio said the Germans had occupied "important" points and communications centres in Hungary and the whole of eastern Hungary now is under control of a German officer whose name and scope of authority will be announced shortly."

The Nazis' motive was to bring trustworthy troops into position to smash any thought the Carpathian Mountain gap in the Carpathian Mountains. Another purpose might be to try to persuade the Rumanians that danger to their country's independence from the Hungarians had been reduced by occupation.

Regent Seized

Reports that Admiral Nicholas Horthy, the Regent, had been seized were not confirmed, but London sawmy no reason to believe that information varied on the Rumanian reaction, but few expected determined and prolonged resistance.

"It is likely Russia will take the opportunity to intensify its propaganda calling on the Balkan slave states to overthrow German-dominated rule and join the Soviet in a common fight."

A secret Hungarian radio station broadcast a call to Hungarians to:

"Begin the general resistance to the Germans as neutral dispatches told of fighting in the frontier zone between minority groups in many areas of the war-weary country.

These dispatches said Hitler had ordered his divisions into the country from Austria and Rumania on Sunday and Monday after Hungarian leaders refused to give almost unconditional support to the occupying forces.

Reported Seized

Stockholm advices said Hitler had lured Hungarian Regent Admiral Nicholas Horthy, Premier Minister Jeno Von Gyboczy, and Gen. Franz Szombathelyi, chief of the Hungarian general staff to his headquarters before ordering the German occupation. He was still holding the trio prisoner.

A Berne dispatch said Admiral Nicholas Szalay was organizing the resistance as the German troops attempted to get a firm grip over the entire country and set up there for a last-ditch fight against the Russians.

The London Daily Mail said an unidentified radio station had broadcast the message from Hungarian patriotic authorities:

"We have suffered out first dead in the fight against the invader, our former ally. The fight must and will continue."

This apparently was the secret Hungarian station, which was quoted in Stockholm as telling its listeners across the south Rumanian mutual front fight against the Germans, who deceived the Hungarians and betrayed their alliance.

Said to Have Refused Demands

Hungarian sources in Stockholm said the station—named after Louis Kossuth, leader of the revolution against the Hapsburgs in 1848—had existed for some time and, when reported on, six outlets in the Hungarian military.

Various neutral reports indicated the German occupation came after Premier Miklos Kallay refused these demands by Hitler:

That Hungary provide troops to fill the gaps in the German Army caused by the Russian offensive, that the entire country be fully mobilized for war, that workers be sent into Germany, and that Hungarian occupation troops be sent to Yugoslavia to release seasoned German divisions.

Chaplin Appears In Federal Court To Answer Charges

Los Angeles, March 21 — (AP) — A second crowded, modernistic courtroom in the big Federal building was the setting in which Charlie Chaplin, actor-faced film comedian and producer, was arraigned today for trial today on charges that he twice violated the Mann Act in 1941.

The famous comedian-actor was prepared to defend himself from a Federal Jury indictment charging that he transported Joan Berry, 24, from Los Angeles to New York City in October of 1942 for immoral purposes. A second count in the charges that he transported her to Hollywood for the same purpose. Women are eligible to sit on the jury. Judge J. F. T. O'Connor will preside in the case, which it is estimated may require a week to 10 days to try.

When this case is completed Chaplin will still face a separate Federal action in which he is charged with conspiracy to deprive Miss Berry of her civil rights, according to Beverly Hills, where the complaint was filed. He is charged with conspiracy to deprive Miss Berry of her civil rights, according to Beverly Hills, where the complaint was filed. He is charged with conspiracy with attorney Joseph Scott on probation there in a vagrancy charge. The vagrancy charge ultimately was dismissed.

A civil case, also is pending in which the government seeks to have him named as the father of her daughter, Carol Ann, three months of age.

NAZIS REINFORCE CASSINO FRONT AND HOLD SECTOR

Fierce Fighting Continues For Fifth Day With No Decision Reached

180 PRISONERS TAKEN

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press War Correspondent

Naples, March 21 (AP) — New Zealand troops of the 8th Army have wiped out parts of the reinforced big German fortifications on the western edge of Cassino but the Nazis have been reinforced and a terrific battle continues, Allied headquarters announced today.

Many more German prisoners were taken.

Fierce fighting continued for the fifth day for possession of Cassino and viciously without a decision," a headquarters officer said. Fighting in the ruins of the town the enemy succeeded in bringing up reinforcements Sunday night and mopping up has been slow.

Although two tanks which the Germans had placed in the lobby of the Hotel Continental were knocked out and 180 prisoners were taken, the New Germans still were holding out in that area.

The German gun ring firmly to the mountains on the slopes of Monte Cassino overlooking the city and the Liri valley the strategic point they regained in a counter-attack Sunday, it was announced. There are lulls in a heavy artillery fire on Allied troops from the heights.

Resumed by these and other enemy troops in the fighting was the battle of the Rapido and Carl Rivers, the 5th Army forces in Cassino. Only fronting artillery and patrol actual attacks are possible since the German positions cannot be outflanked.

Three enemy counter-attacks on one ridge of Monte Cassino had by the Allies, it was announced and three other points remained in 5th. Army hands despite German attempts to take them back.

Food Supplies Dropped

Desperately needed emergency medical and food supplies were dropped yesterday to Allied troops clinging to positions half way up Monte Cassino. The supplies were carried by dive-bombers that skimmed over the mountain and dropped 55 parachute bundles.

Troops today had reached a small plateau half way to the Cassino field Benedictine monastery, but from that position have been so mauled by shellings that even now they are unable to make the ascent.

Also the beachhead British troops made two successful raids in force on the Adriatic coast, one at the extreme end of the perimeter, inflicting heavy casualties.

Front of the army broadcast regular appeal to troops to resist.

German Occupation of Balkans Would Block Hopes of the Allies

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, March 21 — (AP) — Diplomatic officials here predicted today that full German military occupation of the Balkans will end independent civil government in Rumania, Hungary and Bulgaria.

Along with this will go the longfeared Allied hope of setting up more of the satellite states would make peace before Nazi divisions could occupy them.

This prediction, made as German reinforcements rolled into Rumania and Hungary amid reports that a similar force was in Bulgaria and Yugoslavia, was based on the causes which led to Hitler's new militarist expansion in southeastern Europe.

Two causes were advanced. One is the Allied successful drive to force Rumania which controlls the German supply route to Greece, to withdraw its forces in that part of the Russian battlefront. The other is Hitler's fear that at the crucial moment of the campaign for the Balkans, one or more of his satellite neighbors would surrender to the Allies.

From this standpoint, the military action point of view the development eliminates these two disadvantages to German disadvantages.

Militarily, the Germans are completely equipped to put occupational and policing duties a considerably larger number of divisions than they had heretofore employed. This additional strength probably will enable the German authorities to meet the Allied invasion in the west, combat the Russians in the northeast and grapple with any Allied armies in Italy.

On the other hand, since effective German military control eliminates any popular uprising or other peace seeking moves, the Allies have lost their chance of stirring the Germans of her satellites without an actual invasion of the area.

Hope For Peace Lies In Unity Says Astor

By C. P. MACGREGOR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Washington, March 21 — (CP) — Hope for peace in the future lies in the unity of the great powers to prevent German aggression, not by formal alliances but by the formation of public opinion, Lord Astor, member of the British Parliament and Lord Astor, publisher of the Times of London.

Britain, the United States, Russia and the other Allied powers must maintain an adequate force to guard against future aggression, Lord Astor said in an interview with Canadian Press reporters. Details of what is done about the control of munitions manufacture, heavy industry and imports by traditional aggressors of materials useful in waging war, he said.

President of the Empire Press Union, Lord Astor arrived here by air yesterday en route to Toronto where he will address a luncheon meeting of the R.P.U.'s Canadian section on March 26. This is his sixth visit since coming to North America at this time, he said. From Toronto, he will go to Ottawa and Montreal where he also will speak.

While in Washington he is a guest of Viscount Halifax, British Ambassador, and Lord Halifax, at the British Embassy. Shortly after his arrival he was guest of honor at a luncheon of the Overseas Writers' Club where he spoke briefly, answering a few personal questions of members.

In a post-luncheon interview, The Times publisher spoke guardedly of the prospects and end of the war situation generally. He said Prime Minister Churchill had stated the conditions of the British people and, in his opinion, in the United States, represent British feeling on the subject.

"The world must be drawn into making any forecast as to the probable end of the war is hazardous," Lord Astor said. "But we in Britain are anxious that it be ended as quickly as possible."

Of the possibility of a closely knit European bloc being formed, Lord Astor said he saw little need for such a bloc, present circumstances notwithstanding. Citizens of the empire countries think very much alike and have the same ideals, he said. Some readjustment will undoubtedly be necessary to meet certain circumstances.

Lord Astor was a member of a party which recently visited Soviet Russia. Premier Stalinn was "pathetic in their poverty" and "magnificent in their spirit" in meeting the ability of the Allied military leaders, he said. So much to aid the Italian people to solve their political troubles.

ALLIED TROOPS TAKE SUMPRABUM IN NORTH BURMA

Strong Jap Force Continues Drive Into India From Chindwin River

TANK ACTION REPORTED

New Delhi, March 21 (CP) — Allied troops have captured the important communications centre of Sumprabum in Northeast Burma but a strong Japanese force is continuing its drive into India from the Chindwin River, southeast Asia headquarters announced today.

Gurkha and Cochin native troops fighting with British and three American forces, took Sumprabum and mopped up the town and the road to the southeast. Sumprabum is in the Mogaung River valley 30 miles east of the Hukawng Valley but to the west. Capture of Sumprabum is a step to make the ascent.

Allied troops beachhead British troops made two successful raids in force on the Adriatic coast, one at the extreme end of the perimeter, inflicting heavy casualties.

Front of the army broadcast regular appeal to troops to resist.

GOVT. RETAINS HALDIMAND SEAT IN BY-ELECTION

Charles Martin, Conservative, Polls 2,511 Majority Over Other Two Candidates

NEVER HEADED

Simcoe, Ont., March 21—(CP)—The Progressive Conservative government of Premier Drew hold Haldimand-Norfolk constituency in Yesterday's by-election with a majority of 2,511 votes over C.C.F. and Liberal candidates in a three-cornered contest.

Today the party standing in the 90-seat legislature is the same as after the provincial general election last Aug. 4, which saw the Progressive Conservatives succeed the Liberals under Premier Harry C. Nixon: Progressive Conservative 38, C.C.F. 34, Liberal 15, Labor-Progressive 3 and Independent-Liberal 1.

In the first public test of strength since the election Premier Drew's party has retained complete returns from 100 polls gave Mr. Martin 10,838 votes; James G. Cowan, C.C.F. Mariner, and one C. Mutrie, Liberal, 2,533. Some of the 100 polls were rural and the C.C.F. candidate were cast in 130 places.

Mr. Martin succeeds the late W. H. Wahls, elected as Progressive Conservative member for the riding in 1943 by-election by otherwise stretching nearly 60 miles from Lake Erie in last August's general vote.

Last Election Vote

In the general election, Wahls polled 11,423 votes to 11,423 cast with 7,077 going to Labor-Progressive candidate and former Oshawa alderman, Thomas Ewen, 2,577 to F. P. Grove, C.C.F.

Mr. Martin received polled 56.5 per cent of the 13,150 votes cast, compared with 44.9 per cent for Mr. Wahls last August. The percentage of votes cast for Mr. Martin was 14.7 to 32.4 per cent while the Liberal vote dropped from 40.6 to 27.1 per cent.

Mr. Martin took a lead in the counting of party returns and never headed. His election was announced at 9 p.m. E.D.S.T. Any hours after voting stopped—on returns from 66 polls to 2,511 for Mr. Martin, 1,925 to 1,906 for Mr. Gibson and 2,146 for Mr. Mutrie.

Premier Drew termed the by-election result "satisfactory proof of public confidence in the government." T. B. Jolliffe, C.C.F. provincial leader in the legislature, said it "probably too early to say" what the result means. Mitchell Hepburn, Liberal leader, which the Liberal party went down to defeat in the election "is more than that experimented today."

FINLAND REJECTS ARMISTICE TERMS OFFERED BY REDS

Unless Terms Are Changed Finland Is Committed To Continue in War

GOVT. VIEWS GIVEN

By EDWIN SHANKE
Associated Press Staff Writer

Stockholm, March 21 — (AP) — The Finnish government announced today that it had rejected Soviet Russia's conditions for an armistice but declared that it still was trying to establish peace terms with the countries.

"Although the Finnish government still aspires seriously for the establishment of peaceful relations with Russia on advantageous terms," said a lengthy communique issue the Finns' version of their attempts to get out of the war.

It appeared from the statement that Russia refused to modify her original armistice proposals the Finns are definitely committed to continue in the war.

Russians Made Demands

Finnish political quarters said the cabinet and parliament had based their decision to reject Russia on the answer which Moscow gave Finland's peace feelers. It was said the Russians were declared to have repeated their original demands in their entirety.

The communique gave the Finnish public the first full picture of the government's view of the peace negotiations which have been carried on since the end of January.

Outlining the steps, the communique said the government felt that it was its duty "to examine all the possibilities of maintaining and safeguarding Finnish freedom and independence, and that it therefore had endeavored to "find out on what conditions an honorable and safe peace could be concluded."

It described the terms which the Finnish peace envoy, Dr. Karl Enckell, obtained through the Swedish embassy in Moscow as "most severe and unacceptable."

Nevertheless it said, the government had decided to confer with parliament and received a vote of 125 to 89 authorizing it to pursue negotiations.

"Therefore the government informed Russia, informing her the government was seriously striving to establish peace and friendly relations between Finland and Russia on the basis of the Moscow proposals and had given the Russian proposal under consideration and stated that the Finnish government should be given an opportunity for a personal talk to clear up all questions pertaining to these terms."

The Russian answer was received on Saturday, March 4, and, according to the bulletin, informed Finland that her "proposals were not acceptable" and that the original Soviet demands were maximum and that there was further negotiations to end hostilities between Russia and Finland accepted them.

"A time limit was set for an answer," members of the Finnish communique added.

Finland's Premier Edwin Linkomies, the bulletin said, presented the Soviet terms to parliament Finland's counter-proposal and Russia's answer.

As Russia did not agree with Finland's reasonable request for a personal talk to clear up opportunity to express her own views, the bulletin continued, the government of Prime Minister stated that in these circumstances there was no other possibility but to give a negative answer to the Russian demands," the communique continued.

Belleville and Madoc Boys Remain 27 Hours Behind German Lines

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press War Correspondent

With the Canadians in Italy, March 21 — (CP Cable) — Valiable assistance in shook German stragglers on the Canadian Corps front has come from four members of an Ontario battalion who remained about a half-mile behind German lines for 27 hours and relished their unit Sunday night.

Sgt. Ross Link, Belleville, Pte. Bernie Crawford, Madoc, J. N. Billings, Wheatley, and John C. Mutrie, Leamington, watched the German all-day Sunday and came out of their hiding place at dusk Sunday night. They walked part of the way back to the battalion area and "overguard" for enemy supply carts.

Maritime troops, meanwhile, penetrated enemy lines Monday night east of Tollo, about four miles inland from the Adriatic Sea, attacked strong points from the rear and killed three Germans. They suffered some casualties.

Heavy mortar exposition met day-time patrols but the troops got within 200 yards of the enemy positions before retiching. Fair and warm weather continued today.

Two Rumanian Divisions Smashed By Russian Forces

Tanks and Heavy Artillery Brought Across the Dniester On Enemy Pontoons

50 MILES FROM BORDER

By EDDIE GILMORE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, March 21 (AP)—The Red army had driven to within 50 miles of the Rumanian border after capturing the highway leading westward from Tiraspol, it announced today, smashing two Rumanian divisions buried in the gap in the Nazi defenses front dispatches said today.

Odessan considers the Prut river the current Rumanian border. The Russians by 1 p.m. (5 a.m. E.W.T.) today had driven 18 miles over the captured Rumanian areas which previously had been part of Russia.

The Russians, who have swarmed across the Dniester river on enemy pontoons on a 21-mile front, have been able to bring tanks and heavy field artillery across by streams on German positions captured in Tuesday, Mal. Gen. Aleksei Zheltov, leader of a field dispatch to the army newspaper Red Star said.

The dispatch added that the Dniester crossings have been so successful that army troops are commandeering captured.

Far to the north of these operations, the 1st Ukrainian army under Marshal Gregory Zhukov was only 37 miles from Lwow. In pre-war Mal. Gen. Aleksei Zheltov, leader of Soviet communique which reported that 5,000 Germans of the Black Sea fleet sunk 11 German ships, including a battleship, in Sevastopol ports.

Front Line Overwhelmed

By the Non-Ukrainian sector, north of Odessa, the Russians overwhelmed two Rumanian trench lines and quoted prisoners as saying the Germans had lost at least 170 Rumanians for falling back.

More than 34 localities were taken south of Novo-Ukrainka in the drive on pushing the Germans back on Odessa, the communique said.

Only a small number of Germans escaped from encirclement, the bulletin added, according to Soviet reports.

The Russian answer was received on Saturday, March 4, and, according to the bulletin, informed Finland that her "proposals were not acceptable" and that the original Soviet demands were maximum and that there was further negotiations to end hostilities between Russia and Finland accepted them.

"A time limit was set for an answer," members of the Finnish communique added.

Finland's Premier Edwin Linkomies, the bulletin said, presented the Soviet terms to parliament Finland's counter-proposal and Russia's answer.

As Russia did not agree with Finland's reasonable request for a personal talk to clear up opportunity to express her own views, the bulletin continued, the government of Prime Minister stated that in these circumstances there was no other possibility but to give a negative answer to the Russian demands," the communique continued.

Royal Navy Subs Sink 7 Jap Ships In Eastern Waters

London, March 21 — (CP)—Royal Navy submarines operating in far eastern waters have sunk seven Japanese ships and damaged three, an Admiralty communique announced today.

Two of the ships sunk were of medium size and two of small size, the communique said. The damaged ships included a large, fast supply ship.

The actions took place off the Nicobar Islands, in the Straits of Malacca, off the west coast of Sumatra, and off Sabang on the northern tip of Sumatra, the communique said.

One of the submarines fought a brisk gun action with a large armed steamship, scoring more than 20 hits and leaving it in flames and abandoned, the bulletin declared.

A smaller vessel burst into flames after being driven ashore under a hail of gunfire.

In the Straits of Malacca, one submarine pursued a small supply ship so close to shore that the vessel's helpless ran aground, the communique said.

U.S. Subs Sink 15.

Washington, March 21 (AP)—American submarines operating in Pacific waters have destroyed at least 15 Japanese ships bringing to 562 the number of enemy craft sunk, probably sunk or damaged by submarines, the navy announced today.

The British Toll

The sinkings reported in a communique released by Navy Secretary Frank Knox at a news conference, include two tankers, of 10,000 tons each, built to keep up the Japanese bases in operation. Knox said that the British submarine toll now is 11 warships and 11 freighters, the Navy Secretary reported.

DEATH TOLL NOW 13

Passaic, N.J., March 21—(AP)—The toll of known dead stood at 13 today in the plunge of an interurban train into the Passaic river when a flood washed out railroad bridge into the 18-foot-deep channel, the Erie railroad said.

Six passengers rescued from the submerged cars and a railroad rescue worker were reported in good condition at hospitals today.

Railroad officials said there was a strong possibility additional victims would be found in the river, and search was resumed today.

Crerar Likely to Lead Field Army in Invasion Composed Of Canadian-British Force

BY FOSTER BARCLAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, March 20 — (CP) — Definite information regarding the part Canada's forces in Britain will play when the United Nations' troops in Europe are aroused here today following announcement that Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, Hamilton, had been appointed Commander of the 1st Canadian Army.

While no official word has been given, it was understood that Gen. Crerar would command a field army in the invasion which would include Canada Corps. Presumably the 2nd, under Lt.-Gen. Guy Simmonds of Kingston, Ont., and Britain's 1st Corps.

It would be a combined Canadian-British force, at least until such time as war developments made it advisable for the 1st Corps to Italy, now believed to be under Acting Lt.-Gen. M. Burns of Woodstock, Que., to again become part of the Canadian Army.

Canadian headquarters, it was explained, is an organization composed of Royal Canadian Engineer, Signal, Medical and Ordnance services and directs two or more corps. It is understood Canadian Army headquarters has about 500 officers and 7,000 men.

There has been no suggestion that the 1st Corps would be returned to Britain immediately, though such action would take months to complete and, in addition, the shipping facilities would also enter into the picture.

A combined Canadian-British force would be somewhat similar in nature, perhaps, to the British corps in Italy which now includes the 1st Canadian Corps, a Polish corps and an Indian division. Such an army would ensure that Canadian Army Headquarters in Britain would not remain active.

It is understood there is no intention of abandoning Canadian Army Headquarters and shifting the corps in England to a British Corps in Italy whenever the latter's commander may choose. Such a move would open the door to the possibility of Canadian troops being used in other theatres of war.

Speaking in the Commons during consideration of army estimates, Defence Minister Ralston said:

"I see no reason why an army headquarters and our army troops to serve our own Canadian Corps in the United Kingdom and whatever formation of our Allies are included with ours."

Madoc and District

Mrs. R. N. Broad Addresses Trinity Women's Club

Madoc—On March 14th, Trinity Women's Club held its March meeting at the home of Mrs. G. Thompson with an attendance of twenty-eight. During the business period, conducted by the president, Mrs. Beatty, it was decided to donate some of money to Red Cross, to Overseas and Indian Relief Fund and to the Red Cross Prisoners at War Fund. It was also decided that the quilting, which had been postponed, would be held in the church parlors on March 31st.

The program was prepared by Mrs. Drinkwater and the Misses Mutton. Mrs. Drinkwater in charge of the devotional period, choosing as her theme "Faith," more especially with regard to "Faith in Oneself." The scripture was read by Mrs. F. Phillips. Miss M. Mutton led in prayer. Mrs. McBride gave a reading entitled "Jean", Stanley Jones gave a solo, "My Task," after which Mrs. Drinkwater read Edgar Guest's poem "You."

All joined in singing several well-known Irish songs, with Stanley Hawthorne at the piano.

Miss Mutton then introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Mrs. R. N. Broad, who very delightfully and ably, tucking in bits of humor at intervals, gave a review of the book "Bought Bread Over" by Miada Parley French, which depicted life in a pioneer U. S. Israelite family. Miss Mary Bronson favored with a quaint Irish song, "The Little Irish Girl."

A vote of thanks was moved to Mrs. Broad for opening her home for the evening, and to Mrs. Broad, Stanley Hawthorn and others who had helped with the program.

Miss M. Mutton then conducted an Irish contest after which refreshments and a social time were enjoyed.

Women's Institute

The March meeting of Madoc W. I. was held at the home of Mrs. S. H. Beatty on Friday afternoon with the president, Mrs. G. C. Jones, in the chair. Communications were read with letters from Madoc boys overseas. Cards of "Thank you" from sick members were also read, owing to the election of officers for the coming year being deferred one month. A nominating committee composed of Mrs. F. J. Wills, Mrs. C. Hill and Mrs. Roy Tyler was appointed.

March being the closing of the year for the war workers' committee, the secretary, Mrs. Geo. Hill, gave a splendid report of work done, money made and the boxes sent overseas to the Madoc boys.

Current events were given by Miss Loreen Connor.

At the meeting was held on March 17th, an interesting program was given, Irish song, "My Dear Irish Mother" by Mary Bronson; Irish poem by Miss Connor; Irish song, "I'm an Irish Boy" by Stanley Hawthorne. Miss Hazel Mutton gave a very fine paper on "Ireland's Gifts to the World." Stanley Hawthorne at the piano, several Irish songs were sung by the audience. Mrs. Reading "Keep Agoing" by Mrs. Kernahan. A vote of thanks was extended to all who contributed to the program by Mrs. Jas. Aylesworth.

Afternoon tea was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Pickle, Mrs. Moon and Mrs. Hill.

I DON'T WANT TO CHEAT MY FAMILY of the Big Health Factors

IN WHOLE-GRAIN QUAKER OATS

I know that no other cereal gives them such an abundance of protein—meat's main element. Growing children simply must have protein for normal growth—while for normal health whole-grain cereal is also rich-est of all natural cereals in vitamin B1—needed for sound nerves and top energy. I know, too, that a bowl of delicious Quaker Oats to my family daily. Nothing matches that delicious nut-like whole-grain flavor. No other cereal gives the same healthful benefits stored by Nature in real whole-grain oatmeal.

T. C. A. Reports Sharp Increase In Passenger, Mail, Express Revenue

Ottawa, March 21.—Sharp increase in passengers carried and operating revenue of trans-Canada Air lines in 1943 was reported to the Commons yesterday by Minister of Munitions and Supply Howe.

Tabling of T.C.A.'s annual report showed an increase of 74 per cent of passengers, 126 per cent in air mail and 61 per cent in air mail during the year.

Other highlights in the report of R. Y. Symington, president of the Air Inc.

—Routes to the West Indies and South America "have already been made the subject of post-war studies.

—Arrangements have been completed with the R.C.A.F. to have some air force personnel who have completed operational duties made available to T.C.A.

—Additional Canadian-made Lancasters are being added to the Trans-Atlantic service, which is carrying as much as 7,000 pounds of mail per aircraft.

—T.C.A. plans apart from the Trans-Atlantic Service carried approximately 300,000,000 letters last year.

Operating revenues for the year at $9,279,501 showed an increase of $2,042,184 or 28 per cent compared with 1942, Mr. Symington reported. Operating expenses totalled $8,974,-707, an increase of $2,340,503 or 35 per cent.

The company's 1943 surplus, after payment of interest on capital and other charges, was $147,890, as against $464,915 the previous year.

Passenger receipts at $4,313,580 were up $1,425,000 and express revenues at $330,084 showed an increase of $107,000.

Mail revenue totalled $3,515,807, which was an increase of $1,000,000.

During the year T. C. A. planes carried 140,378 passengers, compared with 104,444 in the previous year. The 1943 operations brought the total plane-miles flown in passenger service since the inception of the company six years ago to 9,000,000 and the total of passenger-miles to 229,004,783.

Discussing the place of the T.C.A. in post-war civilian aviation, Mr. Symington said:

"Trans-Canada Air Lines, as the sole Canadian agency designated by the government to operate international air services, awaits with interest the results of conferences between governments on matters affecting world air safety and the completion of international agreements with regard to these services.

"Trans-Canada on its part is carrying on intensive research into such matters as routes and potential traffic....."

The proposal to have some R.C.A.F. personnel made available "to T.C.A. is the first step in a rehabilitation program and will be joined also at assisting T.C.A. in meeting difficulties from shortage of experienced male personnel.

T.C.A. operated in 1943 over routes totalling 4,903 miles—46 miles more than in 1942.

Canadian Defenders Of Hong Kong Killed 18,000 Jap Troops

Tuesday, March 21.—(CP)—Rev. Charles Murphy, Roman Catholic missionary, recently repatriated from a Japanese prison camp, told the Canadian Club of Toronto that British and Canadian defenders of Hong Kong killed an estimated 18,000 crack Japanese troops before the enemy consolidated two beachheads on the Crown colony. An estimated Canadian battle casualties at 300 out of a force of about 3,000.

"The enemy took a terrific beating..... which probably was the reason they were so ruthless with our Canadian boys once they were captured," said Father Murphy, who was interned after Hong Kong's fall.

Volcano Destroys Towns in Italy

Naples, March 21. (AP)— The towns of Ottaviano and Sant' Agata di Sommare on the northwestern slope of Mount Vesuvius have been destroyed by lava in the volcano's greatest eruption since 1872.

No casualties were reported. Allied States army trucks completed evacuation of more than 7,000 inhabitants before a lava stream 30 feet high and 300 yards wide engulfed the two towns.

The evacuation was begun at 4 p.m., yesterday as the molten river, flowing at a rate of five to ten feet a minute, reached a point more than a half mile from San Sebastiano.

A third village, Cercola, below Sebastiano, was threatened as the white-hot flood moved down a gully.

The volcano, which wiped out Pompei in the days of ancient Rome, killing possibly 2,000 persons, began erupting Saturday afternoon. About the feet of a scenic railway winding around the mountain was quickly engulfed as three rivers of lava moved down its sides. Only the flow on the northwestern slope threatened any damage.

TARGET FOR TONIGHT - TORONTO!

● You weren't briefed, when you took over the controls of this plane. Dispatcher smiled, as he handed you your orders. Control-tower let you take off in the bright sunlight.

Now, you're over Toronto . . . dropping down on the airport, welcomed into a blaze of light and colour . . . no hostile flak here . . . no searchlights . . . no night fighters . . . no "bomb doors open" . . . "bombs away".

For this, my son, is . . . Peace . . . Peace in Canada Unlimited.

Canada can be the greatest air nation in the world. In the era of Peace—Peace id Canada Unlimited—uncharted serial highways will become as familiar as Yonge Street. Sky commerce will be one of the great industries of a growing land. At the helm will be the clear-eyed men, thousands and thousands of them who took to the air to meet the challenge of tyranny and who, fearless as ever, will return to conquer the vast distances of our country—yes, and of the world.

It is for them, for Canada, for ourselves that we must buy and hold more and more War Savings Stamps and Certificates, more and more Victory Bonds.

Flt.-Lt. C. E. J. Murphy, D.F.C.

For the second time since Canada declared war on Germany, and her sons took to the air as fighters, a Belleville boy, native of the city, has been singled out for distinction and honor as Flight Lieutenant Clifford E. J. Murphy was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Known throughout the city by the clients of the J. B. Boyce Service Station as a conscientious and industrious manager, noted for his politeness and efficiency, Clifford Murphy continued in this manner after giving up his civilian status and donning the blue uniform of the Royal Canadian Air Force. As a bomber pilot, Flight Lieutenant Murphy performed his duties with the same thoroughness as he displayed in his former occupation and as a veteran of many operational flights over Germany and the occupied countries, has won the distinction reserved for those who, by their unflagging efforts and attention to duty, are singled out for recognition by a grateful Country.

"He has invariably displayed a high degree of courage," reads a portion of his citation, and this probably does not do justice to all that Flt.-Lt. Clifford Murphy has done since he first became a pilot in the Royal Canadian Air Force. The winning of the D.F.C. takes some doing and it is to this recognized bravery as well that we in Belleville express our acclamations and congratulation.

Citizens Lag Donating Blood

Landing from an air trip over German plant disasters sometimes carry among their crew seriously wounded. Take the case of a young sergeant gunner so badly wounded in both arms, and with head wounds, that it was a tricky job to move him at all.

He had been hit three hours before, over the target, and the loss of blood was serious. He was in a deep lethargy. His pulse was barely discernible. The ambulance was backed along the side of the Lancaster and the wounded lad lowered through the trap door to the men who were awaiting him.

It was two o'clock in the morning. A few minutes later in sick bay quarters an immediate transfusion of dried blood serum was given. The sergeant's response was rapid and gratifying. Just one hour after that lad had lain in the aircraft, the preliminary work was done in the crash ward of the station to enable moving him to hospital for major surgery.

Because of the transfusion, prepared from dried serum donated by Canadians at home, that sergeant is convalescing and looking forward to another crack at the enemy.

In Belleville, from nine o'clock Sunday morning until late in the afternoon, two hundred and twenty persons passed through the Red Cross Blood Donors Clinic offering their blood for just such a purpose as that related above. They came from Marmora, Milford, Demorestville, Picton, Stirling, Warkworth, Frankford, Batawa, Madoc, Ameliasburgh, Trenton, Morganston, Wellington, Deloro, Hillier and Belleville, to make Sunday, March 19th, the largest clinic yet to be held by the Red Cross Blood Transfusion Service. That, and yet, it is sad to relate, only thirty-six out of ninety-six who were notified were from the city itself.

These out-of-town donors suffer many inconveniences that city people would never encounter; rising at an early hour on the only day in the week they have to rest and driving miles into Belleville and waiting their turn for a table where their blood will be taken and later processed into serum. This will one day help to save the lives of young men in the front lines, or such a young man as the sergeant gunner. It is gratifying to know that these people exist; unselfish and patriotic, with not a thought for the inconvenience they have to put up with just so long as they can serve in some way.

No request can be too strongly worded to influence local citizens who should be there on these Sunday clinics. It is only by their own voluntary desire to give that they can be influenced to present themselves as those from other towns are doing.

We often wonder how Germany goes about getting enough blood to send to their battle-fronts to save the lives of their soldiers who have been wounded in combat against our troops. Is it done voluntarily, or is it done, like everything else in that country, by compulsion, by edict of the Third Reich. It is safe to say that if the supply of blood plasma runs short, the people are not asked politely to the blood clinics to donate, but are ordered there by command of the Gestapo upon threat of dire retaliation for failure to comply. And, it is a certainty that the donors are not treated to toast with butter, coffee with cream and sugar, and still, Germany must have blood serum, and must be getting it.

This isn't Germany, and for that each one can fervently say "Thank God." This is Canada. What we are giving, whether it be in the form of money, time, labor or blood, it is for Canadians. There should be no need for an appeal. By today mark the beginning of a continuous stream of blood serum flowing across the miles from home to those who are in need of it away from home.

In Basic Scots

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

Prime Minister Churchill announced in the House of Commons recently that the British Government would use its efforts to promote Basic English as an auxiliary language throughout the world. Then William Gallagher, Scots Communist member from the Clyde, rose to suggest that the Scottish dialect be used instead so as to avoid the "horrible pronunciation of words of the English language.

Scots in general disagree with the political opinions of Mr. Gallagher, but Scots in general might well agree with him in this suggestion. "Basic Scots" is really the simplest language in the world. Suppose a Scots housewife went into a dry goods store to buy a blanket and picked one up, the following dialogue might be heard between them:

"Oo?".
"Aye, oo."
"A' oo?"
"Aye, a' oo."
"A' aa oo?"
"Aye, a' aa oo."

Sounds like Burmese or Chinese, but it is the language of Robert Burns, and is perfectly comprehensible to any Scot. In English it means:

"Wool?"
"Yes, wool."
"All wool?"
"Yes, all wool."
"All one piece of wool?"
"Yes, all one piece of wool."

Mike's First Kiss!

Young Gibraltar evacuees who were brought to London with their mothers in the early days of the war often send messages to their fathers in the BBC program "Gibraltar in London."

The smallest of them invariably end with "Goodbye Daddy" and then add, "And here comes a big kiss," and suit the action to the word by kissing their hand before the microphone. On a recent occasion, one little girl got so excited about sending her kiss to daddy that when her turn came she embraced the microphone and kissed it. It must have sounded rather explosive at its reception end. The producer, Jill Allgood, said she should think this was the first time a microphone had ever been kissed.

Adolf Hitler is reported to have moved his capital from Berlin to Breslau in Silesia but the Nazi machinery of government is still within range of Allied bombers. Breslau is only 560 miles from Britain's coast, 670 miles from the Allied base at Foggia in Italy and about 425 miles from the Russian front in Poland. So runs the course of Hitler on the slippery road to Nazi annihilation.

IS IT SPRING?

Though time and tide refuse to wait
For man, one fleeting second late,
I'll say of Father Time, that he
Is dilatory known to be,
And 'spite of planents, moonq and suns,
Behind the schedule often runs,
Else there would be no lingering
Of winter in the lap of spring.

This is the day—the schedule tells—
For many to wake the sleeping dells,
Above the slumbering earth to lean
And tint the meadows brown with green,
But since I write three weeks away,
That spring will come I dare not say.
For Time gives no man guarantee
That spring on hand will really be.

Where each celestial planet spins
Today the equinox begins.
But I've been fooled by that before,
Had springtime standing at the door
And waked at mourn, and told to go
Straightforth to greet the year of snow;
And I have learned no sage alive
Can tell when springtime will arrive.

How Britain Seems After 5 Years of War

By VERNON M. KIFF
(Special to the Ontario Journal and The Ontario Intelligencer)

London, March—When I came to Britain there were questions in my mind which, unfortunately I was able to answer to my own satisfaction. They may be briefly stated thus:

Food. Were the people getting enough to eat? The answer is "yes", with certain qualifications. There is plenty of bread, meat, or butter, or milk, or sugar, or fruit, or vegetables there is some meat and butter and sugar in the individual ration. There seemed a fair supply of fruit and vegetables. Meals are nutritious, but lack variety.

Our party lived at one of the few leading hotels in London. For breakfast there would be porridge or dry cereal, rolls and dry toast and marmalade, perhaps a piece of butter, sometimes a small bit of jam or marmalade, and occasionally eggs (from the egg powder), with or without mushrooms, occasionally bacon. Tea or coffee.

For lunch there would be soup or fruit juice, meat (usually mostly vegetable), with meat or fish of some kind, and a sweet. For tea this dinner meal was about the same with frequent appearance of prunes—or figs—for the sweet. The standard price of a dinner is five shillings, but the luxury hotels and restaurants are permitted to add service and entertainment charges so that a dinner at our hotel usually cost 12 or 13 shillings. Restaurants are not so good as those of my New York, but the food is fairly satisfying.

Eating at Claridges, Dorchester House, Mayfair, Ritz, Savoy, Grosvenor House, and sharing the excellent meals we found everywhere at Quinte Methodist Church Conference, was a visitor in town today.

A lacrosse club may be organized in the city. This is a good idea and should receive enthusiastic support.

Mrs. H. H. Bennett and children, who have been visiting relatives here, have returned to their home at Falls River, Mass.

The usual checker contest will be held at the Y.M.C.A. tomorrow evening.

EVACUATION EXPEDITED

Stockholm, March 21 — (AP) — Evacuation of Finnish Karelia in Estonia has been expedited following intensified Russian air attacks in which at least 1,000 persons have been reported killed, Aftonbladet's Helsinki correspondent said yesterday.

had come to believe the days of bombing were over, but if the dirty business has to be done, the people will stand up to it.

Almost everywhere we went we saw evidence of what Britain endure the past five years. Bombed buildings that are but shells, large areas once filled with homes now cleared of rubble, and ready for those who will build the new Britain.

State of the People. We wondered if the people would show visible signs of strain and fatigue. We do not. Street crowds are much the street crowds in Ottawa or Winnipeg, though not as well dressed, and the people laugh and joke and go to theatres and night clubs. But there is, of course, there must be, a great sweetness and impatience with the murderer of death and destruction which forces all the nation's energies into one channel, a longing for the day when British once more can belong to the British.

BBC. In our quarters at the London hotel was a radio, and we listened on quiet evenings to the BBC home service. The programs were about the same as those on the mid radio everywhere, but the striking and attractive feature was the absence of advertising. Also it was a relief to be spared the constant announcements—commercial—"This is the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, Station CBC, Ottawa." The BBC does not incessantly tell the ears of its home listeners that they are listening to London. It assumes some degree of intelligence on the part of the listening public.

Tour. A London weekly periodical had been sent to me by the Bureau of Information of arrangements for a tour of inspection in the constituency of this Canadian party. This is far-fetched and in this main uncertainty. We had intended to spend a month in Britain. Of that month only the last week could give a week to the Canadian services. The British Isles would be shown in a little over three weeks. There never was any Canadian tour, even a Saturday or Sunday—the only active week-end of official schedule was the Canadian bomber station. The tour had two days' duration, and have all such official arrangements. Accordingly in the last that-ill did not leave us sufficient time for local and informal meetings with the people in the street. But in the main it did give us a very broad picture of Britain at war, if not a very deep picture. That is the picture I have tried to reproduce in these articles.

RUSSIAN LETTER

By N. TATYARINTSEV
Chief Engineer, Iron Ores and Steel Industry

Moscow, March 31.—(CP)—The war necessitated a thorough reconstruction of the iron and steel industry in Russia's rural region. Russia had to reorganize at short notice because of the serious shortages caused by the Germans' invasion of the steel regions in the south.

Mr. Jones introduced new heat and steel and soon now they were were called upon to reconstruct their methods. Although a large number of plants smelted iron with the aid of charcoal, and not with phocrus, free ores and merchant pig-iron, the demand for the smelting fields of production up to the outbreak of war.

Only small steel men were called upon to renounce their old methods and go in for new kinds of production. At new speed. The old plants had to be drastically reconstructed at short notice to meet urgent demands of the building, chemicals and other branches of war industry.

When Russia began to experience an acute shortage of chrome steel for armor plate it was suggested that the rural plants would make chrome steel in blast furnaces. Nobody in the world had any experience in this, but the problem was tackled and finely produced. Chrome steel was introduced in Kuibyshev plants.

Likewise, when the ural plants have increased the output of steel by 20 per cent. Smelting a large variety of high grade steels. Instead of using the old Siemens furnaces, plants are making steel for armor plate, shells, cartridge bullets, ball bearings and tool making.

This demanded a higher style of work and reconstruction of open hearth furnaces; the majority of which were of low temperature capacity. Workers and foremen had to be taught how to work.

Iron and mills were adapted to produce thin armor plating and thin sheet steel material for tank and aviation industries. This required special manufacturing and an increase in production by 40 percent.

The Vatican Library was founded in 1448 by Pope Nicholas V, noted for his energy, great scholarship and patronage of learning.

The Roman Emperor Caligula publicly expressed the wish that the whole human race had only one head that he might cut it off with one stroke.

George Washington, who won international laurels as soldier, statesman and patriot, had the highest ambition was "to be a farmer and live to be a good man."

A mutual admiration society is a group of persons, usually two, whose praises the work of another with the implied understanding that he does the same regarding his work. It will be praised in turn.

Lord Byron, the poet, it is said based on the principle, "I'll scratch your back if you'll scratch mine."

"Mutual Admiration Society" was popularized by Charles Dickens in his novel, The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table," which was published in the Atlantic Monthly during the years 1858 and '59.

Holmes said he once belonged to a society of Mutual Admirers. "But," he wrote, "the first association to which I ever heard the term applied was a club of terrific young men in a great foreign city who admired their leader and to some extent each other."

Mrs. W. E. Kilpatrick, 190 E. Moira St., who was celebrating her birthday on Sunday, was feted at a birthday party in the evening by her two daughters, Mrs. Hubert and Margaret Kilpatrick. About twenty friends and neighbors assembled

LLOYD—TAYLOR

The Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne officiated at the marriage of Miss Nancy this afternoon—at three o'clock—of Miss Nancy Taylor, daughter of Mrs. Taylor, then Marion Thrasher, Bayside, Prince Edward County, to Harry Taylor, became the bride of James Addison Lloyd, son of C. S. M. and Mrs. Addison Lloyd.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was particularly striking in an afternoon dress of turquoise blue with accented with brown accessories and corsage of pink roses.

Mrs. Ross Foster, Mrs. R. Hall, was her only attendant and was dressed in powder blue crepe with flowered silk jersey with brown accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Mr. Frank Huffman acted as groomsman on the occasion.

Following the reception at the home of the bride's parents, the newlyweds left on a wedding trip to Toronto and Niagara Falls. On their return they will take up residence in Belleville. The groom's gift to the bride was a chest of silver; to the bridesmaid a strand of pearls and to the groomsmen, a military set of brushes.

KELEY—HARRISON

A pretty wedding was quietly solemnized at Oakwood Cottage, Bellevile, on Saturday afternoon, March 18th, when Amelia Maud Harrison was married to John Keley, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Charles P. Heaven, rector of Shannonville, a close friend one of a host of admiring friends. Miss Beatrice Jones was the gracious and charming hostess for the happy event and served a buffet luncheon at noon. Miss Ruth Winnington Heaven, The bride looked very charming in a suit of blue with accessories to match. The happy couple will take up residence on Bridge St. East.

PUTMAN—MORING

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the parsonage of the United Church, Canniffton, by the Rev. Mr. Thompson, on Saturday evening, March 18th, when Katherine Moring, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Moring, Cobtyville, became the bride of Mr. Ronald Putman, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Putman, Canniffton.

The bride wore an attractive street-length dress of powder blue with matching hat and accessories. Mrs. Carl Sherwood was matron of honor and corsage of yellow roses, emblematic of the groom was attended by his brother, Harvey Putman. After a short honeymoon, the groom will return to his duties at Borden where he is stationed with the Canadian Army.

PARKER—WALLACE

A pretty wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents on Saturday, March 18, at 3 p.m., when Edna Pearl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wallace, Rawdon township, became the bride of Alfred Earl Parker, Seymour East, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Parker.

Rev. W. H. Walker, of St. Andrew's Church, Stirling, officiated, and Mr. Ross Wallace, brother of the bride, played wedding music. During the signing of the register Mrs. Leslie Finkle, of Foxboro, sang "I Love You Truly." The wedding ceremony took place in the living room beneath an arch of evergreen, interspersed with flowers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride entered to the strains of the wedding march. She wore a floor-length gown of white sheer over taffeta, with veil edged with lace and sweetheart neckline. Her full length veil of embroidered net, fell to form a train, and was held in place by a halo of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of American beauty roses and fern and wore a gold locket.

Mrs. Malcolm Hutcheon of Bearbrook, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and she wore a floor-length gown of heavier blue taffeta with bolero jacket and veil of blue net with wreath of pink rosebuds. She carried a bouquet of Briarcliff roses. Bridesmaid was Miss Lorraine Wallace. The wedding luncheon was served to about sixty guests by the bride's mother and groom left on a wedding trip. For traveling the bride wore a blue tweed coat over a two-piece suit of the same shade with white accessories and corsage. She carried a bouquet of red roses. On their return they will reside in Seymour East.

Kiwanians Enjoy Social Evening At Kiwanis Centre

One of the finest social gatherings ever enjoyed by the Kiwanians took place on Monday evening at the Kiwanis Centre, Dundas St., when the members, their wives and friends enjoyed a bridge, euchre, sing-song and a delightful musical program presented by Barbara Dimont and her dancing class of young dancers and singers. The affair was a social meeting of the club members and their friends in praise for the arrangements were so pronounced a number of such meetings are in the offing. The committee in charge was in charge of the members on the roster down to "77" with the help of their wives and every detail was complete. Harold Carruthers made an clever "master-of-ceremonies" and kept the affair rolling at a merry pace. Bert Thompson, general chairman was on hand as in all his undertakings and both, everything was run smoothly to a successful conclusion.

The Worship, Mayor Harry Rollins, an honorary member of the club, and his wife, were present and a special guest was Lieut. Jack Duff, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Duff, who is enjoying a furlough at his home in this city. Bridge and euchre was played in the early evening, Mrs. Fred Lewis and Jack Duff, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Duff, who is enjoying a furlough at his home in this city. Bridge and euchre was played in the early evening, Mrs. Fred Lewis and Jack Duff winning the prizes. Mrs. Harold Taylor won for the ladies and Lieut. Duff with Mark Vanner carrying off the men's prize. At the conclusion of the Harold Carruthers conducted the program put on by the youthful dancers and singers, Miss Barbara Dimont sang "When Irish Eyes are Smiling" and was joined with a dance, Allen Gill gave a tap dance to "Heigh Ho" and Joan Charlton delighted with a comic solo, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Charlton. Shirley Vaughn gave a song and dance, "Little Old Lady" and Derek Blackwell sang with and effect "Pretty Kitty Kelly." A tap dance to "Shortnin' Bread" by Barbara Vaughn completed the program. Mrs. Harold Taylor played the accompaniments. The thanks of the club was expressed by Mr. Carruthers and the youthful entertainers were given a hearty round of applause. A committee of young was led by Harold Caruthers with Leo R. Hanley and Jack Duff.

President Jack McVeigh congratulated the committee for the social evening and believed that Kiwanis Centre would be repeated the president and all who had assisted in making the evening a success. Secretary-elect Charles Bishop, Clint Savage, Fred Deacon and Jack McVeigh for the prizes donated. Dick Kumis for coffee supplied and Norman Botham for the soft drinks George Wallbridge, who has taken a keen interest in Kiwanis Centre since its inception, he being instrumental for the splendid lawn and the pebble driveway, commended the work of installing a kitchen in the upper floor of the Centre, and he was most heartily thanked by the President.

"Democratic Institutions" Topic Of Discussion by Women's Club

"Democratic Institutions" was the subject discussed at the last meeting of the University Women's Club held on March 16, in the studio room of the Collegiate.

Mrs. W. N. Hurst, who organized the program, opened the discussion, defining democracy as government of the people, for the people and by the people. It was pointed out that trade unions, service clubs, Y.M.C.A., Red Cross, and all teachers' federations, as well as the municipal councils, are democratic institutions.

Miss J. Morton, in outlining the history and elements of the British North America Act, stated that it was the basis of the Canadian government.

Miss M. Deneau showed that Canada's government is a federal system, which implies a central and a local authority, allied, yet each with exclusive function in its own field. The Privy Council, Senate, House of Commons and Civil Service, the Administrative Government were outlined, including the powers of each branch. This government body is concerned with public debt and property, trade and commerce, postal services, defence, navigation, currency, patents and criminal law.

Mrs. Hurst dealt with the set-up of Provincial Governments, and each province there is the legislative machinery which makes the laws, the executive machinery which puts the laws into effect, and the judicial machinery, which enforces and interprets the laws. Mrs. Hurst dilated in each of the provinces. These governments collect taxes for the provinces, provide prisons, asylums and hospitals, administer marriages, and maintain education.

Municipal machinery governing government as found in Ontario. The governing bodies of counties are the county councils, the duties of which were briefly reviewed. The municipal councils control such things as local highways, the administration of justice, the registration of justice and collection of taxes. While they have many matters, these are administered by boards so that they may be free of political influence.

In conclusion, a few weaknesses of the federal system were outlined. Some provinces and municipalities are unable to bear the cost of relief and social services and it has been suggested that the Dominion Government should assist. There is a lack of "uniforming" throughout Canada in the requirements for voters in municipal elections and there is a lack of uniformity of office for municipal officials. The final weakness is the apathy of those entitled to vote do not vote.

The members engaged in a short period of discussion, and this was followed by the serving of light refreshments.

492 Home Visits Made by V.O.N. During February

The regular monthly meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses was held on Monday night in the Chamber of Commerce building with the president, Mrs. Davidson in the chair. Mr. H. B. Peterley read the minutes of the last meeting which were duly adopted. Mr. Franklin reported for Publicity, and stated that he had been informed that the committee purchase more records to be given to the nurses serving the hospital regarding the care of the new baby, and other timely particulars of the nursing service to be placed in maternity wards. Mr. Franklin publicity and better the service to the community. At Mr. Franklin's request it was moved by the committee to make a purchase of Victory Bonds, and instructed the Solicitors to help further the work of the Victorian Order. A most interesting and entertaining article, taken from the Toronto Globe, concerning the life and work of the V.O.N. nurse, was read by Mrs. Franklin. The V.O.N. tag day were discussed, and it was decided to have the same system as last year, the success of the campaign by new blood. Delegates were appointed to attend the annual meeting of the V.O.N. Toronto, to be held in Ottawa next month.

Nurses' Report.

In the nurses' report for the past month, Miss M. Gordon said that during the month work was kept at a constant level all winter, In February 492 calls were made, which, as of these being to families in the service and 76 to families of civilians. The total visits to date for the year, she said, was slightly higher, than last year, visits to medical and surgical cases being considerably higher. Patients requiring a great deal of nursing during the month, Miss Gordon stated, was proposed by Mr. Franklin, Miss Gordon stated that the new nursing organization with its primary objective to help citizens to help themselves, will keep its service constantly before the public.

Mentioned Visit.

Miss Gordon also mentioned the visit of Miss Winnifred Dawson, National Office Supervisor, V.O.N. Miss Dawson visited the local Belleville branch from March 6th, to the 11th. Miss Dawson, she said, spent time with each V.O.N. nurse in the district and spoke highly of their organization. At the close of the week, she met the staff and gave a talk on "Nursing and the public health teaching and other related matters. Miss Gordon also gave the news that Miss Smellie, who has recently been promoted to the rank of colonel, will retire from the army this month and will return to the Victorian Order as chief superintendent.

Local Fees Discussed.

The matter of the local membership fee was also discussed with Miss Gordon stating that members enrolled in the past those who paid one dollar or more toward the support of the local work, and general members of the Order, but that now, owing to a 4-fold increase, that plan no longer holds. She suggested that a plan might be adopted whereby citizens donating two dollars or more might signify the intention to be placed on the list of membership. In speaking briefly on the past year's nursing service work in May; Miss Gordon said that the Miss E. Clarke, a graduate of the Saint John General Hospital, had taken the post graduate health course at Toronto University.

Miss Adamson read the report submitted by Miss Dawson following her visit to the Belleville branch of the V.O.N. In it Miss Dawson praised highly the local president, and the fine work that she is doing, also the annual campaign held in May, which went beyond its objective. She made mention to the very efficient nursing staff and of the fine work done by it during the past year. The fees, and special activities of the Order and the tag day to be held next month were also discussed in the report by Miss Dawson.

W. C. T. U. Meets

The monthly meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held in the Y.M.C.A. on Wednesday afternoon last. Mrs. Denton presided and opened the meeting in the usual way. Reports and some correspondence were dealt with and committees appointed to arrange for the reception of the delegates to the county convention.

Mrs. Davidson conducted the Worship Service, a portrayal of Christ's last journey to Jerusalem and the events of the Feast of the Passover. Although He knew that persecution and death awaited Him at the end of the road, He was steadfast in His purpose to accomplish the task for which He came into the world and He counted on a His devotion from all those who have chosen His Way of life.

Mrs. Brush was in charge of the program which took the form of a discussion on the problem of alcoholism and methods of when there are about 80,000 in Canada at the present time. There are some private hospitals where such persons are being treated, but they are not inexpensive for the ordinary addict. Should the government provide for the rehabilitation of these products of their legislation?

Many articles have been solved the drink problem. The Australian Temperance Articles gives this information about Russia—"For several weeks, I was on night and day in one of the largest factory cities of Leningrad, Moscow, Gorki and Stalingrad, I saw 1,700 rallies by rail and 900 by river steamer, and I saw only one man the worse for liquor. A generation ago, Russia was one of the heaviest drinking countries in the world. Today a man the worse for liquor is a target of ridicule. The punishment for being taken to jail, he is taken to a public court where he answers to his work, he is shunned by his fellowmen. He draws his wages from a separate window. Perhaps he can stand up to the first drink but the day that he who do are regarded as sick and are taken away to special hospitals where the habitually are cured. Those who do not respond to the treatment are sent to camps far from public view.

The Russian people think to remember about the liquor question in Russia is that there are no vested interests connected with the importance and extension of drinking.

The meeting closed with a hymn and the benediction.

HOME-BAKED BEANS WITH TOMATO JUICE

2 slices bacon or 2 tablespoons bacon dripping
1-3 cup chopped onion
1 tablespoon granulated sugar
1-2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon salt
1-2 to 1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 1-2 cups tomato juice
1 1-4 cups boiling water
1 13-oz. pkg. beans

METHOD: Cut bacon into small pieces and fry. Remove bacon and cook onion in remaining fat, or if not using bacon, fry onion in 2 tablespoons bacon dripping. Mix sugar, salt, pepper, mustard and blend with a little of the tomato juice. Add to onion and fat in which it was cooked, along with the remaining juice and water. Bring to a full boil. Turn into beans in a casserole, add boiling-hot mixture, stir, and sprinkle with bacon. Cover pot, cover, in a slow oven, 300 degrees F., 25 minutes. Remove cover and cook an additional 5 minutes. (The lid may be removed earlier if the beans are preferred with less sauce.)

Fashion Flashes

NEW IMPORTANCE has been given by the frock of printed fabric. Made for important afternoon affairs, the print dress is cut in a delicate but warmly colored Persian print. With it is worn a tiny, fitted Persian velvet jacket lined with the print.

IT'S EASY to dress up a good basic black for the evenings. It is a cap-sleeved frock, how about a change, and some pink roses to add shoulder and matching the color in hat or gloves?

A LOT DEPENDS upon the jacket this season. It is used to cover up bare-back frocks for the early evening affair, and to dress down a print dress into an afternoon costume.

A MINIMUM of yardage marks some of the new dresses. Slim as a baby, and with brief cap sleeves at best hip, rounded neck is a frock that is ideal for the spring days when a jacket is not necessary.

IDEAL for wear with afternoon frocks and fine prints is a big fur muff. Newer in black fuba of satin, made with mock flaring back full-ness.

IT'S AMAZING to find such a tremendous variety of suits despite the yardage restrictions as we go to press. It is because of such fabrications. A lovely suit is in fine black and white tiny check tweed, with boxy packet edged with bright red wool braid binding.

PHILLIPSTON-ZION INSTITUTE

The March meeting of the Phillipston-Zion Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Sine with an attendance of ten adults and two children. Correspondence was dealt with and included in this was a letter of appreciation from Mrs. A. Cross for the plant sent by while in the hospital. The sum of $30 was voted to the Canadian Red Cross as a contribution to assist the present drive and Mrs. Arthur Sine kindly offered her home for a quilting in aid of the Red Cross on the 30th instant. The secretary reported that the Institute has been a member for thirty-five. Mrs. Harold Beatty addressed the Institute on "Our Future Medical Care," stating that health is the greatest asset to a nation and that treatment of disease will be a confession of failure by the physician in charge. Aware that the public is asking for a new deal in health, she outlined the three schemes under consideration, health insurance, state medicine and municipal system, stating that at the present time both federal and provincial laws have the matter under discussion. The topic, "We Often Meet the Hosts of Thy Friend for Weeds Soon Choke Up Thy Garden" was ably presented by Mrs. Harry Ketcheson. Reading with real perfect of friendship, she pointed out that friendship's path can be strewn with the plant and perpetuated by such words of encouragement and lack of which can be quoted several poems to illustrate this, among them "Friends" and the beautiful poem, "Not Understood." Assisting the hostess were Mrs. Clifford Ketcheson, Mrs. Harold Beatty, Mrs. Harry Ketcheson and Mrs. Geo. Dicky.

V.O.N. NURSE ADDRESSES WIVES OF I.T.S.

A very interesting and educational meeting was held on Monday afternoon in the Rooms Registry when Miss Gordon, V.O.N., Belleville, spoke to the wives of I.T.S. at their weekly meeting.

Miss Gordon traced the history of the "visiting nurse", and then outlined the work of the nurses administered by this Order of Nurses. An informative discussion followed her talk. A hearty vote of thanks was voiced by Mrs. Bernard Neice on behalf of the audience.

The local nurse was presided over by Mrs. Kenneth Chambers.

HAMILTON SHOWS FORM REVERSAL TO BEAT SUDBURY

Majors Defeat Sudbury Fives 4-0 and Need Another to Win Series Now

OSHAWA WINS.

By The Canadian Press

Hamilton Majors, champions of the O.H.A., showed a marked reversal of form last night at Sudbury to blanking Sudbury Frood Miners 4-0 in the third game of their best-in-five all-Ontario playoff series on, which hinges qualification to proceed into Allan Cup play.

The Northern Ontario contenders had won the first two battles and a thir victory would have brought provincial honors but the Majors cooplayed and outstumped their rivals to prolong the series. Hamilton practically won the encounter in the first period with the initial score, notched by Robertson, but added a more in the second and two in the third frame.

Hamilton's scorers were Dillon Brady, with two, Doug Runions, Clarence Shilliday and Darryl Robertson. The teams play the 4th game at Thursday Wednesday night with Sudbury holding a 3-1 advantage.

In the O.H.A. junior "A" playoffs, Oshawa Generals were impressive at Toronto in the second straight game from St. Michaels 5-1, thus assuming a commanding lead in the best-of-seven series. Generals won the opening match at Oshawa last Saturday and appeared even more formidable in the second game last night when they romped before 12,465 fans.

Oshawa called through for their five goals in a row before St. Michaels registered their lone counter with but 3 minutes to go before the wind-up of the match. The students showed the visitors' set during the closing stages but goalie Bernard held them to the one goal which went to Gus Morton.

Jack Thagard scored two for Generals and Wolfenden, Deeks and Shewchuk counted one apiece. Oshawa scored once in the first stanza, added two more in the 2nd and closed out the third with the Mikes winding up the scoring. The teams meet again Wednesday night at Oshawa.

Kiwanis Club Arranges Swell Show to be Held in Armouries

DAVIS VERY STRONG

Hugo Vic Holbrook, the latest California Comet to zoom across the wrestling firmament, stands six foot five inches, weighs two hundred and forty-eight pounds and is one of the best-built physical specimens on a wrestling mat. Holbrook is an all-round athlete and sports fan who is merely content with his grand physique ability. What's more the various times has broken out in other sports and taken top honors. Besides he's a favorite pupil of All-American basketball player, winner of the middleweight Golden Gloves Boxing Championship, a star football player, swimmer, runner, and he represented United States in the 1936 Olympics at Berlin. But the wrestling game is with this handsome 32-year-old Californian at his very best. Holbrook recently wrestled World Champion Wild Bill Longson to a very close decision and has been re-matched with the titleholder.

Other ring favorites are all looking with relentive eyes these days on the magnificent physique and herculean strength and science of the great Eddie Powers. First Kiwanis tournament. Peerless Frankie is expected by promoters to appear at the next Champion.

Karl "Kippler" Davis, the two hundred and fifty pounder from Texas got his nick-name from his rubber grip ability. Karl Davis has sent a good many wrestlers straight to the hospital from the ring. A former heavyweight boxer "Kripper Karl" can shuffle an and he has the star and ability to make them all step.

CAIN SETS NEW LEAGUE RECORD OF 82 POINTS

Doug Bentley of Chicago and Lorne Carr of Toronto Both Beat Old Mark

McMAHON RAD MAN

Montreal, March 21 — (CP) — The National Hockey League today made the final official scoring statistics of the season today, showing Boston's Herbie Cain with a new league record of 82 points in a season, nine above the former record.

Doug Bentley of Chicago, with 71 points, and Toronto's Lorne Carr, with 74, also smashed the former record hung up in 1930-31 by Cooney Weiland of Boston and equalled last year by Bentley. Carl Liscombe of Detroit tied the old mark with 73 points.

Clint Smith of Chicago hung up a new record for assists, his 49 for the season being four better than the old mark of Bill Cowley set in 1940-41. Elmer Lach of Montreal was right behind Smith in the assist race with 48, while Cain also broke the old mark by drawing 42 calls for 46.

Bentley chalked up 38 goals, two better than Cain, Carr and Liscombe, but well below the phenomenal 64 goals in 72 games rapped in by Joe Malone of Canadiens in 1917-18.

Lach and Smith finished in a tie for fifth place in the combined standings, with 72 points each, one ahead of Boston's Bill Cowley.

Canadiens' Mike McMahon finished as league's bad man with 78 minutes in rulings and majors, to say nothing of two 10-minute misconducts.

Canadiens led all clubs in total penalties, with 467 minutes, Detroit was next with 234, Toronto third with 221.

Paul Bibeault of Toronto led the league in shut-outs with five.

Bill Durnan, of Canadiens, had the best goals-per-game average with a mark of 2.16 against 2.20 for Bibeault.

NEED ONE MORE GAME

Frank Martin's Alemite lassies carried on in the Belleville Ladies' War Industry Basketball finals just where they left off in the regular schedule on top, as the first of a best-in-three series for the C.A.C.A. Championship got under way. Monday night, the Alemites won 34 to 22 over Reliance and need but one more victory in two games to clinch the title for Belleville.

It was a drastic first half, that took toll on Coach Fryke's Reliance quintette, as they trailed Alemite by 4 at halftime. However, in the second half the scoring was much more even, when Reliance rang up 18 points while Alemite registered 20. The winners stopped Kay Coathup, Reliance ace centre in league in shut-outs with two baskets, keeping the Reliance ace off the scoring sheet in the second half altogether.

Marian Salisbury and Dot Ronsby spearheaded the winners with eight points each, as Betty Gilbert, Ruth Oliphant and D. Mansfield rang up six points each to account for all of the Alemite scoring. Alta Gilbert with 8 pts. headed Reliance in the scoring department, with D. Lasenby next in line with six. Peg Rowbotham was given the chore of checking Kay Coathup. The box score:—

Toronto, March 21 — (CP) — More than a few people were surprised when Gus Bodnar of Leafs edged out Bill Durnan for the Calder rookie award. The Canadiens' goalie had been regarded as almost a sure thing on his spectacular season's work. But apparently the gentlemen of the press figured was Durnan himself, this year's Vezina Trophy winner.

In fact he was so sure he wouldn't get the trophy that he let on himself to lose, reports Elmer Ferguson of the Montreal Herald. Most of his colleagues were unwilling to take advantage of what they probably considered his temporary derangement, but a few bet with him. So Durnan cleaned up about $20 even.

Football Forum:

It's a little unreasonable for football, but some sport writers have been reviving the Lionel Conacher versus Joe Krol controversy. K. A. Cole of the Guelph Daily Mercury ventures the opinion it's all a waste of time, since the two were playing in such different games.

Conacher played the old Canadian rugby game with Toronto Argos about 15 years ago, while Krol bappened along after the game had been streamlined and Americanized almost beyond recognition. You might just as well compare a hockey player with a lacrosse player, Cole snorts.

Indefinitely:

"Sugar Jim" Henry, former Ranger goalie now with a Red Deer, Yen Army team, has applied for a transfer to the Navy. . . . Jimmy Peters is due to go on the Navy blue next month also and probably will be stationed at HMCS Tecumseh in Calgary for a few months . . .

Amateur boxing is said due for a revival this summer in London, Ont. Small shows are being put on, and local promoters hope to import glovemen from outside points . . . WO. H. W. (Bill) Parker, well-known sport columnist, Al Parsley of the Montreal Herald, has been reported killed in action with the R. C. A. F. overseas . . . Watt Ramsay to Don Turvey in the Edmonton doubles competition in an Edmonton bowling tournament. Ramsay is 71 years old and Turvey 14 . . . Vancouver Redtails, acclaimed as Canadian soccer champions in 1941, still can claim the title since the trophy hasn't been played for since. It will be hard put to round up a team now, since the players are in the Army and R.C.A.F. almost 100 per cent.

CASUAL COMMENT

by K.J.C.

Well, Why Not?

It was the new reporter's first assignment to report an evening wedding. But he didn't return to the newspaper office till past midnight.

"Where were you?" growled the city editor when he arrived.

"Why, I was at the wedding. And I just went home.

Another Angle.

A clipping from the London, Ont., Daily Sketch, on the U. S. vs. Canada rugby game at White City is as follows:—

"Of the 35,000 who watched the match at least 20,000 were 'American' and Canadian servicemen. And don't they 'root'! The players were paddled all over and wore crash helmets. I don't blame them. The funny thing from the English point of view was to see four fellows in white, all wondering how the field as though they were refereeing a boxing match—the referee, as often the players went into a huddle, clasped their arms around each other, their heads together just as though they were discussing a second round, and, listening in with his hand cupped to his ear, was Captain Sol Rosen, the referee."

The Sketch continues: —

"Now football American style and football as played in England are different, about 17 different ways. So to make it simple half of yesterday's game was played under American rules and the other half under Canadian rules. And the Canadian style apparently has another 17 points of difference. Exactly what happened in the game is nobody's business. That 'a new' sink was connected between the two nations'—well, that's about all I can say."

Uncrowned Champion.

When Vic Holbrook, the California ring adonis, climbs into the Armouries ring for Wednesday night's Kiwanis charity wrestling show, fans will see the uncrowned heavyweight wrestling champion of the world. This all came about last week at the Chicago Last Outdoor Show. Holbrook pinned "Wild Bill" Longson, the current champ, all caught up in the last Christmas turkey dinner and hanging from the rope, but he combed. It was just about then that Referee Ernie Pyvet stepped into the picture to separate the gladiators. In some manner Powers gave Holbrook the brass-tacks and "elocution" Vic landed on his noggin in the centre of the ring and with Longson astride Powers suddenly declared Longson victims and still champion." For Holbrook's bout with Karl "Kripper" Davis here, however, Promoter Frank Turney is going to fog Phil Lawson to handle matters. Incidentally, the Kiwanis club wish it to be known that the Armouries is now heated and everyone will be comfortable for this gala mid-week show.

Remember When . . . .

Just three years ago today Joe Louis successfully defended the world's heavyweight boxing title for the fifteenth time, knocking out Abe Simon in the 13th round of a 15-round bout at the Olympia Stadium in Detroit. . . . Louis had fought a sensational battle for 12 rounds but finally settled under Louis' savage punching power.

Irish Win Handily.

There wasn't much competition when St. Michael's Academy won the first game of a league scoring senior Interscholastic hockey finals Monday night at the Arena. Actually the luckless Tweed kids lost contact with the other team right at the start. St. Mikes although Goalie "Casey" Jones made a noble stand in Tweed's net, had the entire session to blank the Irish.

Irish Right Winger Bernie Thompson and Centre Ice Ace Bill Ashton between the Meagher brothers to Mike Ryan, who in turn notched the record. Finally Al won the decision over brother Bernie by scoring a couple of goals in the last period. At 901 sts. Bernie threw Don Barrett a couple and the rest were spread around. St. Mikes should win tonight in Tweed and take the Bay of Quinte senior hockey championship in consecutive games.

Drew First Blood.

Frank Martin's Alemite gals' defence created a strong barrier in front of their basket at the start last night and baffled Kay Coathup, Reliance's top scoring threat with the result Alemite walked in to a 4 to 0, 22 yd in the first period of the leaders' city cage finals. What happened to Reliance in the first half just shouldn't happen to any team—the halftime score was 16 to 4 for Alemite. However the second half was productive of more scoring and Reliance had managed only least 20 to 18 on the score sheet. The second game next Monday night will be productive of much closer game.

In front of some strong defence ball, Marion Salisbury, Dot Ronsby, Betty Gilbert, Ruth Oliphant and D. Mansfield played steady basketball for Alemite, their scoring efforts being even. For Reliance Artie Gilbert, D. Lasenby and Betty Hastie carried the scoring sting, after Kay Coathup was a marked player.

High Scoring Lines Matched In One Playoff

Detroit, March 21—(CP)—Two of the highest scoring forward lines in the National Hockey League this season are matched here tonight as the second-place Detroit Red Wings square off against the fourth-place Chicago Black Hawks in the first game of their best-of-seven Stanley Cup play-off series.

Chicago's No. 1 line of Doug Bentley, Bill Mosienko and Clint Smith outscored the veteran Red Wing trio of Carl Liscombe, Sidney (Mud) Brumbeet and Syd Howe by a decisive margin of 218 points to 169 points during the regular campaign but Detroit's top line scored 24 goals in a total of 103 goals, 10 more than the Chicago combine.

Liscombe, Brumbeau and Howe thus became the hottest goal-producing line ever to represent the N. H. L. club and the Red Wings the first team in league history to boast three 30-goal men. Liscombe's 32 and Howe's 31 netted them what were all individual records for the Wings, Brumbeau had 26 goals and Howe 24. Mikes has not won a N.H.L. game on Detroit ice in 28 consecutive since March 16, 1940.

HELSINKI NOT BOMBED

Moscow, March 21 — (AP) — The Soviet Information Bureau denied last night a German radio report that Soviet planes bombed Helsinki in reprisal. They perhaps indicated that Russian-Finnish peace negotiations might be continuing.

When is a Dollar Not a Dollar?

When it won't buy a dollar's worth of goods! For instance, compared to present-day standards, your dollar of the last war was worth, not a dollar but sometimes less than 50¢. Housewives, who went marketing in 1917, had to part with for a four-pound jar of jam which you buy to-day for 29¢. Dad's winter underwear set him back then as compared to the he could buy it for to-day. You get a lot more for your money NOW . . . because price ceilings and other anti-inflationary measures have kept the value of your dollar HIGH!

That's why it will pay you to see that selfish spending never undermines price control in Canada. Remember, you protect your dollar's worth when you use your money wisely when you pay off debts . . . refuse to buy needless luxuries . . . give black markets a wide berth . . . and don't hoard goods.

Make This Pledge Today!

I promise to give my support to keeping the cost of living down. I will buy only what I need. I will observe the ceiling whether buying or selling goods of services. I will pay off old debts, save for the future, invest in Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates. And I will support taxes which help lower the cost of living.

LESSON NO. 32

By SAM GORDON
The Ribbiter

There is no longer any mystery to slam bidding. You discover tricks almost as you deal your own final trump suit. You learn how many low and kings are held by your pair. And there you are.

Take another crack at this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH	NORTH
♠ A K 10 4 3	♠ J 8
♥ None	♥ A 3
♦ 2	♦ 8 7 6 4 3
♣ K Q J 8 4 2	♣ A 5 3
SOUTH	NORTH
1 C	1 S
2 S	2 NT
3 NT	Pass

By this time, north knows that south has a redoubtable spade suit. Therefore his three small spades are now adequate support for an assist in that suit.

But if he bids four spades, the bidding may stop. And by this time also, north has found out there may be a lot in that pair. What to do about it?

He should first learn how many aces and kings are held by his pair. So, he bids four no-trump. That is the convention signal for asking partner how many aces and kings he has.

If partner follows The Ribbiter's convention rigidly, the answer in this spot is five spades. That is the code response for showing only one ace and two kings.

With what he holds in his own hand, north now sees three aces and three kings in their pair. That tells him there are an ace and a king in the hands of opponents.

If he so desires, north can pass five spades and, on his pal play the hands at that contract. Or he can take a flier at grand slam. He may even take a fling at seven spades.

What would you do That's what are now adequate support for an

AT THE BELLE — Gig Young and Bette Davis are cast opposite each other in "Old Acquaintance," featuring Miriam Hopkins and John Beal. The new Warner Bros. picture comes next to the Belle Theatre.

AT THE CAPITOL

Bing Crosby

Moviegoers who are looking for grand, inspiring, wholesome entertainment will not have to look further than the Capitol, where the new Bing Crosby film had its first showing Sunday midnight. Entitled "The Star Maker," it is a great cavalcade of melody, a glorious story of show business which was suggested by the amazing career of the colorful producer, Gus Edwards.

Produced by Charles R. Rogers, who is a "star maker" in his own right, directed by Roy Del Ruth, and the director of many great screen musicals, the picture provides Bing with the best of all his roles. It casts him as a tin-pan alley song writer, a small time hoofer who believes that he can get ahead in show business by composing kiddie acts. And the picture affords Bing the chance to sing many of those old songs such as Gus Edwards' "In My Merry Oldsmobile," "School Days," "Under the Bamboo Tree," "Sunbonnet Sue," "Sweet Adeline," and many another; new songs by Bing, too, such as Johnny Burke and James V. Monaco—destined to be hits, with titles such as like "An Apple for the Teacher" and "A Man and His Dream." And the Bing sings them as only he can sing them, in that pleasant style which has earned him the title of greatest singer of popular songs.

Sparkling dialogue, too.

In the tangled lives of four interesting people, the background of a mining village is mirrored the heroic struggle for existence in America's last frontier land in "Spawn of the North," Paramount's surging drama of people who live dangerously and die courageously, which opened midnight Sunday at the Capitol theatre as the added attraction.

George Raft, Henry Fonda and Dorothy Lamour head an all-star cast in a brilliant screen version of Barrett Willoughby's famous novel, playing against the rugged background of Alaska a land of breathtaking scenery and rugged people, where life often depends on a few feet between a schooner and an iceberg and the law holds only when there are men strong and determined enough to enforce it.

The Canadian Universal News completes the program.

AT THE BELLE

GEORGE FORMBY

George at his best! Supreme comedy, delightful music and greatest film production, "Trouble Brewing," now playing at the Belle Theatre. George is ably assisted by a large cast of funmakers headed by Google Withers and Googie Withers.

3 Swell Festivities

Three swell festivities precede the feature attraction including the Canadian Movietone News. Goofy in a funny Walt Disney cartoon "How to be a Sailor" and a delightful headline comedy "Lieutenant Smith."

"Old Acquaintance," Outstanding "Old Acquaintance" adapted from the successful Broadway production of the same name by John Van Druten, starring Bette Davis and Miriam Hopkins will be the new screen fare presented next at the Belle Theatre.

The new Warner Bros. picture features Gig Young, popular young player whose outstanding performances in "The Gay Sisters" and "All Men Are Enemies" placed him among Hollywood's most popular players. Also featured are John Loder, last seen with Bette Davis in "Of Human Bondage," and Dolores Moran, beautiful and talented young newcomer.

Directed by Vincent Sherman, "Old Acquaintance" is the poignant story of two women, complete opposites as to character and intellectual genus, whose lives run parallel in the course of many years.

A funny Bugs Bunny cartoon — "What's Cooking Doc" and the Canadian Belle Review, No. 7 will be exhibited on the same program.

AT THE McCARTHY

"They Died With Their Boots On"

"They Died With Their Boots On" is an exciting film of the days of the Indian wars, at the McCarthy theatre. This picture stars Errol Flynn and Olivia de Havilland in the story of his life from the time of his graduation from West Point until the memorable stand at the battle of Little Big Horn. All the times dramas and romance in his exciting life is captured in this epic film. It is the story of a man who lived, fought and loved with all the power his nature possessed.

The role of Custer is tailored to Flynn's personality and he gives an unsurpassable love for gallantry, color and pageantry to the character. He was his love for gallantry that made him a Civil War hero; and his love for the pageantry that made him a trail of victory in the Indian wars of the 1870s.

Charming Olivia de Havilland is cast opposite Flynn with Phyllis Isley of Beth Custer, his lovely wife who admired her husband's deeds but kept track of the constant danger he faced. And indeed danger stalked the pathway of the great Civil War he was given comman of the Michigan cavalry brigade and it was to keep order in the Dakota territories.

The Sioux were promised by Custer that the Black Hills would always be their territory. No white man would ever be permitted to encroach on the land. But a scheming saloon keeper and his cohorts hooked up a plan to entice hundreds of people to the Black Hills. Custer had no alternative even though he knew it meant certain death than to protect these people. This led to the unforgettable, bloody battle at Little Big Horn which set not a single survivor of Custer's army.

In addition to Errol Flynn and Olivia de Havilland in the starring roles, the film features such fine supporting players as Gene Lockhart, Charley Grapewin, Regis Toomey, Stanley Ridges, Arthur Kennedy and many others.

"Yanks Ahoy"

"Yanks Ahoy" the fifth in the amusing series of Hal Roach "service" comedies starring those incomparable sergeants, William Tracy and Joe Sawyer, opened today at the McCarthy theatre through United Artists release.

Marjorie Woodworth, the lovely blonde star, plays the leading feminine role, and the cast includes such well known players as Robert Lowery, William Bakewell and Walter Woolf King.

The action of "Yanks Ahoy" takes place almost entirely on board a troop ship carrying American soldiers in the direction of the Pacific war theatre. There is a group of many marines travelling with them, and the two sergeants immediately get into action competing for the favors of the prettiest one of them all, Nurse Marjorie Woodworth.

Their fend finally robs them both of their status, and it is while they are in the doghouse that some of the most screaming comedy of the film take place, ending with the one in which they fish up a Japanese submarine in their entire amusement, as well as that of the officers aboard the troop ship.

CLAUDE PASSEAU, CHICAGO CUBS, WILL NOT PLAY

Team Also Suffers Another Setback When Derringer Is Injured

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, March 31 — (AP) — That 1933 jinx of Chicago Cubs still seems to be with them. A year ago they looked great on paper, but they got off to a very poor start and were lucky to wind up fifth in the National League with only 76 wins against 79 defeats.

Yesterday they lost Pitcher Wilson Lee Hamner Claude Passeau, their training camp learned, and Manager Charley Grimm could not play this year and that pitcher Paul Derringer had stepped on a rock while running around the field and turned his right ankle, a painful injury that may which will keep him out for several weeks. Passeau was sent to Los Angeles to join the farm for the duration.

Since Passeau won 15 games and Derringer 10 last year the Cubs suffered the loss of one-third of their pitching strength, something a team can ill-afford in this wartime campaign.

Other news from the training camp circuit, beset by snow and rain:

New York Giants (Lakewood, N.J.) Joe Medwick, veteran outfielder, reported late last night. He is classified 5-A.

Cleveland Indians (Lafayette, Ind.)—Schnozzer Al Smith, who beat Ruth five times last year, was pictured exercising pitcher Raymond Chicago White Sox by manager Lou Boudreau.

Cincinnati Reds (Bloomington, Ind.)—Outfielder Max Marshall received orders to report next Monday for his pre-induction physical exam at Sidney, Ia.

Detroit Tigers (Evansville, Ind.)—Dizzy Trout and Hal Newhouser will pace their undefeated exhibition team against White Sox this weekend.

Philadelphia Athletics (Frederick, Md.)—Pitcher Luke Hamlin, with Toronto last year, still unsigned, word he would report Wednesday.

CUSTOMERS STORM COUNTERS

Chicago, March 31 — (AP) — Fifteen hundred alarm clocks went on sale in a loop department store yesterday and 1,500 customers stormed the counters. One clerk stood on a chair taking money and others passed packaged clocks to buyers. Ten policemen struggled to maintain order. In three hours flat they were all sold.

Veterans Pleased With Reception Of "Fags" Sent

While lying wounded in military hospitals in the Middle East there is nothing more pleasing than an inhale of a Canadian cigarette, at least that's the assurance Secretary James Lawson, of the Army and Navy Veterans "Fag Fund", was informed by Rt Hopkins and Howard Batchelder, two Belleville boys who are recuperating from wounds following the Italian campaign.

"It's swell to be able to smoke a Canadian fag from our own home town. There's nothing more appreciated, except a long visit home," wrote Burkholder, who is in hospital for five months as the result of wounds.

The same replies were received by the Army and Navy Veterans, always urging them to continue the shipment of Canadian cigarettes to the boys serving in the various theatres of war. Pt. R. Oxley, who is in North Africa with the R.C.A.F. and Cpl. Clifford Hart Webb, R.C.A., in Italy, both added similar assurances.

This month the Belleville branch of the Army and Navy gladdened the hearts of the boys in these two district lads with individual shipments of 300 fags each, making a total of 31,200 cigarettes in all.

Those sent the packages included Mrs. Arthurs, H. W. Thomas, S. M. McBride Jr. Mrs. Jeffreys, J. Mc. Mcbride, E. Hollinger, J. Kelcheson, V. N. Harry, G. C. Wilson, A. J. Fraser, T. C. Jenkins, J. L. ST. MIKES GRAB 12-GOAL LEAD IN DEFEATING TWEED

First Game for Senior Intercollegiate Title Easily Won by Irish

SCORE IS 14-2

Scoring all goals in the first and third periods St. Michael's Academy grabbed a 14 to 2 victory over Tweed High School in the first game of the Bay of Quinte series for Intercollegiate Rugby honors in the O.S.S.S.A playdowns at the Hume Arena last night. The Belleville green and white clad "Irish" enjoy a 12-goal lead to take into the second game of a home-and-home series, at Tweed tonight.

With the exception of the middle stanza, when no scoring was registered there wasn't much in doubt as St. Mikes raced through to a 6-2 lead in the first 20 minutes and in the last period rammed home eight goals without retaliation.

Shewer, in the second period "Casey" Jones, the visitors' goalie, stood out alone as he repeatedly rose to thwart the swarming Irish. In the other end of the rink "Tubby" Scanlan blanked the visiting Tweed kids after midway through the first period, when they scored their first and final goal. Scanlan was afforded better rear-guard support than was Jones. Al Weaver was the chief spearhead for Coach Jack Doran's Irish hotshots with two goals, his brother Bernard by three, while Don Barrett was the other point getter. The Irish carried too much speed for the younger Tweed kids on the large Hume Arena ice surface. Beatty and Connor were the visitors' marksmen. Line efforts by Al Meagher and Don Barrett were featured plays.

Facing the game the Tweed students were guests of the Irish at a buffet luncheon at St. Michael's Academy.

The lineups:

Tweed High School: Goal, Jones; defence, Beatty and Gehan; centre, Connor; wings, Price and Thomson; subs, Elliott, Dales, Clinton, Shannon, Hall and Curry.

St. Michael's Academy: Goal, Scanlan; defence, McArthur and Green; centre, Fitzpatrick; wings, R. Meagher and Mosher; subs, Al. Meagher, Barrett and Semark.

Referee: Burns of Tweed and St. Louis of Belleville.

THE LITTLE DOG BARKED

by ANNE ROWE

CHAPTER 12

"What is McVane coming? Have you managed to locate him?" Felix Rochefort's voice was cold.

"I haven't seen him," replied Jim, "although I've been looking for him all day."

"I suppose you're making my task big man: a great deal simpler."

"But you should have," Orne began hopefully, "I'm sure he'll be certain. And I haven't—"

"I think he means to say 'very authentic'," but I can't be sure, for the accent fooled me. We've got a stage manager poked his head through the curtains and just then, in order to test your ear, Orne," and that ended our talk.

Felicia Harvard regretfully went back to his work, and I left the theatre and wandered on alone.

Around the building and down the paved road where I first met Stray. Mulling over what I'd just heard. Regretting snap decisions involving Bill Parris, not because I disliked Linwood so much I'd have preferred Stacy to be guilty one—wondering how to keep Linda from going out tonight.

Th sound of hammering pulled me out of my gothic thoughts. It was coming from the scenery shed. The doors stood open and I could see two young chaps busy at work on a huge backdrop, supervised by Burns Loring, stretched out in a steamer chair.

He saw me and raised his hand in salute, or invitation. Noticing, as I came nearer, that he looked even whiter than a day before, and more tired and ill.

"Have a look at the 'valuable tapestry stipulated in your script," he greeted me with a nod toward the unwieldy frame his assistants were belaboring. "I guarantee, from outward it'll look like the real thing."

The two young men stopped hammering and left the shed, unasked. Soon we were deep in a discussion—not of my play.

"I've known Mack for many years. His death was a jolt to me," Burns Loring confessed. "Queer old coot! Wished souls called him a snoop, but—I don't know. He certainly knew all there was to know about everyone around the cove. But he never blackmailed anyone with what he'd found out. On the contrary, he did all sorts of good. Patched up quarrels, suppressed scandals—"

"I think that's what he was doing, and why he was killed," I said soberly. "He was trying to prevent Linda Barolle and me, and keep my play from being abbreviated."

Loring glanced at me curiously, opened his mouth to speak—closed it again.

"This man from Clifford—Inspector Pettengill, I hear he's good. I believe your play is safe, now that he's cleared, and so are you. And your actors," he remarked thoughtfully.

Then he changed the subject to the scenery. "I'm fortunate to have the two boys we've had now carrying out my ideas. They're real artists. And—I'm not strong enough physically to do the hard work."

After a pause Loring observed: "You seem to be exceptionally busy in your off-stage hours, Jim. But—how about Sondra Marshall? Are you satisfied her evening was a success—is inclined to overact."

It all ended in a dinner invitation for the following night, so that I could get to part with Sondra and make a few suggestions, discreetly, without Linwood's knowledge or interference.

"I'd like to ask the whole cast. Only, that would defeat our purpose. So, shall we say Sondra, you, your leading lady, the leading man and—Bill Parris, perhaps?

Voices cut into Loring's speech before I could answer. Rehearsal was over for the time being, and the whole cast was spilling on stage, all talking animatedly. One voice rose above the others.

"Don't be silly!" it said coaxingly. "Why, I'm not sure he didn't win't like you! Come and have an eyeful of Linda's frock."

And then Bill Parris was with us, firmly holding Linda by an arm. Behind them followed Orne Paulsen and Sondra Marshall.

Burns Loring's face grew cross, was completely ripe of irony. "How nice of you to join us, Bill. We have just plotting to coop you all in for a party," he said pleasantly, behind sarcasm crushed with rotted butter.

Over getting a booth and the lobster sandwich were the highlights of this, my first shedding excitement.

Inspector Pettengill at the Snack Hutch was definitely not conducive to confidences, seeing one had to yell to be heard above the uproar. So the result of the venture was all so far as news was concerned. In fact, I'd gone away misinformed instead of getting it.

Toward the end of the meal, Wells Colby yelled at me across the table: "How's the valiant Stray getting along? Any news bulletin today?"

And I shouted back: "He's fine. I've just had him a visit this morning, with Inspector Pettengill. He's quite himself indeed and in front of strait jacket but he'll soon be back—big and fuming again. You wait and see; he'll get his man—yet."

I regretted the words the moment I'd said them. Especially when I discovered on my way out that Linwood Allen, Emery and a fourth man—the publicity manager of Paris Cove—in the last booth.

But I told myself consolingly that they couldn't have heard what I'd said in this din. And that it didn't matter if they had. And went on to the inn, in search of the absent Linda and Bill.

Linda wasn't hard to find. I could see her from the door, sitting in one of the window niches of the eating room over a lonely lunch. I was going to her, when I heard Inspector Pettengill call my name from the door of the magistrate office.

He was beaming on me and everything in sight when I followed him into his small private room behind the desk. But its other occupants, the Kilborns, were far from sharing his mood. They actually glowered at me, as if I'd committed a crime. And Mrs. Kilborn hurled them cheerfully: "Well, here she is. Here's your 'hero, dear—or Mrs. Kilborn."

There was a short, mute consultation between the couple. Then Josie Kilborn took the fidor.

Inspector Pettengill here don't understand the summer inn business. He thought—now, Miss Carroll—"Thinks it oughter be run like a year-round hotel, and MIX I over-charged you for your rooms. He ain't right. I don't want no one trouble, do you can have half your money back, Mrs. Turner."

I said ah-ha inspector, horrified by what he had done. In the kindness of his heart, doubtless. Nothing was so sure to infuriate the Kilborns, and now them hamper the investigation, as forcing them to disgorge a fat profit they regarded as theirs.

"Oh, but the Inspector is wrong!" I cried. "I'm not paying for the rest of the rooms has been set. You know I've been there, Inspector. They are lovely. Quite the nicest rooms I've ever had, at an inn. Oh, no; I'm sure they wouldn't dream of accepting a refund. Please don't think of it!"

The transformation of the two fat, pasty faces from red to lavender was ludicrous. The gloom disappeared. They smiled at each other. At me. Even at the Inspector—but differently in his case: in triumph. And then had another smile rarely, after which Josie cleared her throat, waved her cigar suggestively and said:

"I always thought you was a lady," she approved. "And to show I appreciate it, I'll tell you what to do. Just throw that little dog you gave to Sondra Marshall in the river. Then she'll come out—she, say—tiny dollars for what he cost me."

"That's terribly kind of you," I replied, "but I'm afraid impossible. Because I've already been summoned: 'Must have a big supper with Linda, this evening.'"

Josie Kilborn acknowledged her own kindness with a nod. "I don't mind, Mrs. Turner. My heart's too soft. Could gotten a big price for Stray, like's valuable. But one good turn deserves another, I say. And no nor this turn, Mrs. Turner. Not the word stick in lawful—I tell you what I'll do: I'll also the Inspector didn't dragged stolen me otherwise," she lowered her voice to a mysterious whisper. "They was in connect'y against your play. Land sakes alive I was even made us, Inspector, you to it! By that Mrs. Parris. She asked me over to tea, invet's pie, so we could plan a little joke on your her's me, and Mrs. Allen and Mr. Vickery. They was sore on the gentleman wrote your play with you. And she made me promise to her. Mr. Loring being so thick with Mrs. Marshall. Sort of friends of yours means no part for. Miss Marshall to act. And so she says, if I'd put you and the leading lady away off in that old inn, maybe you'd feel sorry and leave."

If You waste THEY want!

It may seem tough, when you're making good wages, to go on wearing old clothes. But it would be a good deal tougher if our overseas boys didn't get the supplies they need. So please remember the United Nations have only so many ships, trains and machines. Anything wasted here means shortage somewhere else. Save your . . . spend when the war is won.
